TROOPS ARE ORDERED RUSHED TO COLUMBUS TO END STRIKE RIOTS

One Thousand Men Are to Be Sent There for Duty.

Promiscuous Shooting and Dynamiting Mark the Trouble.

Governor Harmon Has Cancelled All Out-of-Town Dates.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 15.—Preparations are being hastily made to rush 1,000 soldiers into the city tonight following an order of Governor Harmon, at noon, calling out the troops.

The action was taken because of the increased rioting in the car men's strike on the street railway here in which the union men demand recognition of their union.

Governor Harmon acted on the advice of Adjut.-Gen. Weybrecht. The announcement that troops were again called out after the dismissal last week of the 3,200 soldiers who served on strike duty here for ten days, created much excitement on the streets. The ten days' service of the 3,200 troops which ended last week cost the state $150,000.

No New Peace Measures.

No peace measures were inaugurated early today but conferences were held as to the best way to cope with the increased lawlessness in stoning cars, promiscuous shooting and dynamiting car barns. Daylight rioting yesterday caused great alarm among the city officials.

Cars on the Columbus-Dayton division of the Ohio Electric Railway company were operated irregularly. It is said that fifty motormen and conductors are out, tying up the line from Columbus to Dayton. Clerks and stenographers have been put on as conductors.

MAYOR GAYNOR IMPROVING FAST

Wounded Official Will Be Taken to Mountains Later.

New York, Aug. 15.—Mayor Gaynor showed further improvement and strength today and is rapidly emerging from the danger zone. The early morning bulletin of the physicians showed the wounded executive had passed an excellent night. His temperature is 99 4-5; pulse, 70, and respiration, 16.

Secretary Adamsen said that the mayor seemed stronger today. Now that the patient is taking more nourishment and his sleep is better, his attendants feel that he will recover his strength rapidly. His appetite is good. The blood tests continue satisfactory and taints of any infection have not been discovered. The cough which so distressed the mayor has quite disappeared.

Gallagher Not Alone?

The police are engaging themselves with the theory that James J. Gallagher, the would-be assasin, may have had an accomplice. Gallagher denies this, but a man with a police record is under suspicion.

Mayor Gaynor will be taken to the Adirondacks just as soon as his condition permits, but whether he will undergo an operation to remove the bullet before his trip to the mountains has not been fully determined.

SCOTCH FURNISH PANAMA DREDGE

Their Bid Is Less Than 50 Percent of American Figures.

Washington, Aug. 15. — American ship builders have found themselves unable to compete with the Scotch yards in building a steel ladder dredge for the Panama canal, and President Taft has authorized the isthmian canal commission to buy the big machine abroad at a price of more than 50 per cent less than the only American bid.

TERRA NOVA IS SIGHTED AT SEA

British Polar Exploration Vessel Two Weeks Behind Schedule.

Cape Town, Aug. 15. — The ship Terra Nova, bearing the Antarctic expedition with which Capt. Robert F. Scott hopes to reach the South Pole, was sighted today off Cape Point. The Terra Nova sailed from Madeira June 27 and was about fourteen days behind her schedule time to reach Cape Town, the delay causing some apprehension. Capt Scott, commander of the expedition, who did not accompany his ship, expressed no alarm.

Tokio, Aug. 15.—Casualties from the great floods which last week inundated many districts in Japan, and on Friday and Saturday submerged two of the principal wards of Tokio almost entirely, were given out today, after official investigation, as 1,112 dead and missing.

Three thousand nine hundred and fifty-three houses were washed away, in addition to the thousands which were under water during the flood, but resisted the strain.

Thousands of persons are homeless and dependent on public relief.

TENNESSEE G. O. P. DELEGATES RALLY

Hope to Make Profit Out of Factions in Democracy.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 15.—Delegates are arriving for the Republican state convention which convenes at the state capitol in this city tomorrow. The Republican leaders claim that their party's nominee for governor will receive the greater part of the support of what are known as the independent, or anti-Patterson, Democrats.

It is understood that the platform to be adopted by the Republicans will contain a strong indorsement of the administration of President Taft and an equally strong condemnation of the course pursued by Governor Patterson. It was announced that the president will keep hands off in the matter of the selection of a nominee for governor.

Those prominently mentioned in connection with nomination for governor tomorrow are Robert Sharp of Chattanooga, the present chief inspector of postoffices, a native Tennesseean; John W. Overall of Nashville and Foster Brown of East Tennessee.

FOREST FIRES IN PARK ARE FIERCE

Washington, Aug. 15.—The fury of the forest fires in the Glacier National park, in Montana, has not abated in the least, according to the latest telegraphic advices received here by the interior department. Maj. Gen. Logan, supervisor of the new park, in a telegram received by Acting Secretary of the Interior Pierce, today made another appeal that troops be rushed to his assistance. It is assumed, however, that the dispatch was sent before Maj. Logan received word that soldiers were en route to the park.

GRISCOM ANGEL OF PEACE OR DISCORD?

He Bears Fateful Message From Beverly to Oyster Bay.

Most Important Political Trip of the Year to Sagamore Hill.

Oyster Bay, L. I., Aug. 15.—Traveling upon what is regarded as the most important political journey here so far this year, Lloyd C. Griscom, chairman of the New York county Republican committee, arrived early today from New York and proceeded directly to Sagamore Hill. Mr. Griscom refused to discuss the subject of the conference which he is to have with Col. Roosevelt, but it is known he is the bearer of an important message from President Taft, with whom he visited at Beverly, Mass., Saturday night.

Col. Roosevelt intimated he might have something to say at the conclusion of the conference.

It is generally believed that Mr. Griscom took to Col. Roosevelt an urgent message looking toward harmony between all elements of the party in the fall campaign. Upon Col. Roosevelt's reply, it is believed, will depend in great measure the future relations between the president and the ex-president.

TOO HOT TO VOTE OIL TRUST DIVIDEND

New York, Aug. 15.—Hot weather caused so many directors of the Standard Oil company to leave the city for cooler spots that when the quarterly dividend meeting came around today there was no quorum present to act on the dividend which is to be paid in September. The regular September disbursement is $6,000,000.

AUTOMOBILE DROWNS TWO

Two Others Have Narrow Escape From Death at Oslo, Minn.

Mrs. Rasmus Hage and Child Are Victims of Accident.

Oslo, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Yesterday in an automobile accident here Mrs. Rasmus Hage of Warren and her 8-month-old child were drowned and Mr. Hage and a 12-year-old girl narrowly missed death.

Hage, with his wife and child and the child of a neighbor, were in an automobile, and while endeavoring to leave the ferry boat at Oslo, up a steep incline, the machine slipped back with its occupants into the river.

AMERICAN HAS LOST MEMORY

Is Unable to Give London Police an Account of Himself.

London, Aug. 15.—The American embassy is investigating the puzzling case of a young American who has completely lost his memory and is now an inmate of St. George's infirmary, Chelsea. He is apparently well born and educated, and thinks that his name is John Drexel. He talks incoherently of Chicago and Boston. Anthony Drexel of Philadelphia went today to see him, but failed to recognize him.

Nothing was found in his pockets nor were there any marks on his clothes to give a clew as to his identity. He is supposed to have been in the company of some men who took everything that he possessed.

USES AX ON AUTO THAT BUMPED HIM

Hicagaliheyapipin, South Dakota Indian, Chases the Offender.

Wakpala, S. D., Aug. 15.—Hicagaliheyapipin is the name of an Indian living north of here. Translated into English his name is "Man-whose-teeth-rattles-as-he-falls-down." His shorter name is Skiskita, or "rough surface." Recently the Indian with the long name was proceeding along the road with an ax over his shoulder to get a little firewood, when a "joy rider" came scorching along and knocked him down. "Rough Surface" with his ax promptly waded into the white man's car, with the result that the owner had to proceed into the agency on foot.

The matter was taken to the agent for adjustment, for his word is law on the reservation. It was shown that no warning was sounded, and that the owner of the car was exceeding the speed limit by several laps. It was decided he had no redress.

MINOT'S BIG GAIN.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The population of Minot, N. D., announced by the census office, is 6,188, compared with 1,272 in 1900. The population of the village of North Minot, N. D., is 432. No separate count was made ten years ago.

WHOLESALE REVISION OF THE CITY'S ASSESSMENT

PITTSBURG BIGGER BY 18.2 PER CENT

Washington, Aug. 15.—The population of Pittsburg, Pa., is 533,905, an increase of 82,393, or 18.2 per cent, as compared with the combined population of Pittsburg and Allegheny of 451,512 in 1900.

The population of Syracuse, N. Y., is 137,249, an increase of 28,875, or 26.6 per cent, as compared with 108,374 in 1900.

ROBBED AND BURIED ALIVE

California Woman's Body Is Found By Her Pet Dog.

Another Woman and Two Men Missing From the Same Locality.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 15.—While detectives are searching the city, deputies from the sheriff's office are scouring the country today for Otto Schultz, wanted in connection with the murder of Mrs. Freida Castine, whose body was unearthed from a shallow grave by a pet dog yesterday at her ranch near Lancaster.

The investigations of the sheriff's office tend to show that the woman was murdered as she drove into her yard and that she was thrown into the shallow hole while yet alive. An examination by an autopsy surgeon disclosed the presence of sand in the lungs and bronchial tubes, drawn there by the victim's dying gasps.

Some of the police and deputies here are inclined to belive that Schultz, with the $6,000 thought to have been stolen from Mrs. Castine, has sought to enter Mexico by way of the Arizona border, or through El Paso.

Full Description Sent Out.

A full description of the fugitive has been telegraphed broadcast. According to the description Schultz is between 20 and 25 years of age; 5 feet, 8 inches tall; of medium build; wears a light mustache and has a florid complexion.

A curious feature, following the murder of Mrs. Castine, is the disappearance of Mrs. Martha Chatt, wife of a Los Angeles realty dealer, and her escort, John Inderbetten, while the two were on their way to a ranch near the home of Mrs. Castine. They have been missing for a week, and B. C. Chatt, husband of the woman, has asked the aid of the sheriff to find the wife.

Trains Collide Head-on.

Bristol, Conn., Aug. 15.—Two passenger trains on the Highland division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, were in a head-on collision early today. No passengers were injured.

HAS LETTER FROM LIND

Writer Says His Position Is Unchanged But He Lacks Information.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—"I cling to my original decision to refuse to be the Democratic candidate for governor, though I am writing without a full knowledge of the situation."

This is the most important statement contained in a letter received this morning by Frank A. Day from John Lind. The letter was written under date of Aug. 12, the day Mr. Lind returned from his Alaskan trip.

Some of the local leaders among the Democrats are said to be practically agreed today that John Lind will not be the nominee. John E. King, state librarian, admitted this morning that the outlook is gloomy.

Some find hope in the argument that Mr. Lind's letter is not final; that he "clings to his original" decision," but does not come out flat-footed and say: "I will not accept the nomination and will not qualify if elected." No candidate can be selected until Mr. Lind has more conclusively given his refusal.

Upon receipts of the letter from Mr. Lind, Mr. Day left for Minneapolis. It is known that he was in consultation with W. M. Jerome, a law partner of Mr. Lind, but the nature of the discussion was not given out. He also called at the office of Elnar Hoidale, but Mr. Hoidale is out of the city, as is also Mayor James C. Haynes.

JUSTICE PORTER WINS IN PRIMARY

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 15.—The official count of the ballots at the recent Republican primary for justice of the supreme court, announced today, developed that Justice Silas Porter of Kansas City, Kan., who had conceded his own defeat, has been renominated. His plurality is 169 over Justice C. B. Graves, who it was supposed had been nominated by a plurality of 600.

INDIAN LAND JUST PREY FOR SHARKS

Statement Is Made by Committee Working in Oklahoma.

Sulphur, Okla., Aug. 15. — "Every inch of land owned by Indians is looked upon as the legitimate prey of the land grabbers."

This statement was made today by a member of the committee appointed by the house of representatives to investigate Indian land contracts. Besides the charges of Senator T. P. Gore, the committee is inquiring into Indian land conditions.

"Some of the land grabbers' schemes certainly will be called to the attention of congress," said a committeeman.

"As there are in Oklahoma something like 20,000,000 acres of Indian lands it seems absolutely imperative that congress take prompt steps to prevent further land grabbing."

BOARD DOWN TO BUSINESS

Gives Notice of Increase to Long List of Firms.

Property Up River May Be Raised to $250 an Acre.

Owners Invited to Appear Before Board If They Have "Kicks."

A wholesale revision of the city assessment is evidently contemplated by the board of equalization which met this morning and got down to business.

County Auditor Odin Halden was present and took an active part in the meeting.

A resolution was passed asking that the wholesale houses, lumber concerns, electric companies and other large firms send representatives to appear before the board at a meeting to be held on Aug. 24 to show cause why their assessments should not be raised.

To show that the matter had been under serious consideration for some time, a list of the firms, the amount of the assessment, and the proposed assessment, had been prepared and was read along with the resolution.

If the board finally passes on the proposed increase it will mean thousands of dollars to the county.

While the people to be notified of the board's intentions at this time, consist largely of the mercantile interests, it is said that this is only the beginning, and that down town buildings and property as well as thousands of acres on the St. Louis river, are to receive consideration.

Those who own property on the river and think they have kicks coming, will be heard on Aug. 25. The steel plant property and the land adjoining on the west, is among the acreage to be reassessed. There are in all about 4,000 acres and the increase, if it is finally decided on, will make a difference of nearly $1,000,000. The land at the present time is assessed at $25, $40, $60 and as high as $75 an acre. The board proposes to increase it to $250.

The matter was talked over this morning at the meeting and some of the commissioners thought that as the land is being held at an almost prohibitive price, the assessment should be raised.

Held at $1,000 An Acre.

"If you try to buy the land at $1,000 an acre you would be laughed at," said one of the members of the board. If the land is really worth as much as it is held at, the tax rate should be made to correspond." That seemed to be the sentiment, and resolutions were passed asking owners to come in with their kicks Thursday of next week.

Some one who had a complaint told the commissioners this morning that

GIRL MURDERED ON WEDDING EVE

Burglars Are Believed to Have Chloroformed Young Kansas Woman.

Abilene, Kan., Aug. 15.—Miss Bertha Benigus, 20 years old, daughter of a merchant of this place and an employe in the telephone exchange, was found dead in her room at the home of her parents Sunday morning. The girl had been chloroformed and her hands were tied behind her back. Her head was covered with pillows and blankets.

The police believe that the girl was murdered by burglars. No trace of the murderers has been found. All valuables belonging to the family were hidden and nothing has been missed, but late in the afternoon a note was found in the yard under the window of Miss Benigus' room. It was written in German and said: "I have murdered her. Bring jewelry two blocks west."

Miss Benigus was to have been married to Earl Livingstone of Topeka this evening. Livingstone has been spending his vacation in Salina, where he was when the murder was committed.

Baton Rouge, La., Aug. 15.—Convened in extra session to consider a proposition for raising $6,500,000 in support of an exposition to be held in New Orleans in 1915 to celebrate the completion of the Panama canal, members of the Louisiana general assembly gathered today.

A joint resolution was passed at the recent regular session of the general assembly proposing a constitutional amendment for a tax of $4,000,000. Several days ago it was suggested that this amount be increased to $6,500,000 and Governor Sanders called an extra legislative session to consider it.

Gives Notice of Increase to Long List of Firms.

Property Up River May Be Raised to $250 an Acre.

Owners Invited to Appear Before Board If They Have "Kicks."

A wholesale revision of the city assessment is evidently contemplated by the board of equalization which met this morning and got down to business.

County Auditor Odin Halden was present and took an active part in the meeting.

A resolution was passed asking that the wholesale houses, lumber concerns, electric companies and other large firms send representatives to appear before the board at a meeting to be held on Aug. 24 to show cause why their assessments should not be raised.

To show that the matter had been under serious consideration for some time, a list of the firms, the amount of the assessment, and the proposed assessment, had been prepared and was read along with the resolution.

If the board finally passes on the proposed increase it will mean thousands of dollars to the county.

While the people to be notified of the board's intentions at this time, consist largely of the mercantile interests, it is said that this is only the beginning, and that down town buildings and property as well as thousands of acres on the St. Louis river, are to receive consideration.

Those who own property on the river and think they have kicks coming, will be heard on Aug. 25. The steel plant property and the land adjoining on the west, is among the acreage to be reassessed. There are in all about 4,000 acres and the increase, if it is finally decided on, will make a difference of nearly $1,000,000. The land at the present time is assessed at $38, $40, $60 and as high as $75 an acre. The board proposes to increase it to $250.

The matter was talked over this morning at the meeting and some of the commissioners thought that as the land is being held at an almost prohibitive price, the assessment should be raised.

Held at $1,000 An Acre.

"If you try to buy the land at $1,000 an acre you would be laughed at," said one of the members of the board. "If the land is really worth as much as it is held at, the tax rate should be made to correspond." That seemed to be the sentiment, and resolutions were passed asking owners to come in with their kicks Thursday of next week.

Some one who had a complaint told the commissioners this morning that

GIRL MURDERED ON WEDDING EVE

Burglars Are Believed to Have Chloroformed Young Kansas Woman.

Abilene, Kan., Aug. 15.—Miss Bertha Benigus, 20 years old, daughter of a merchant of this place and an employe in the telephone exchange, was found dead in her room at the home of her parents Sunday morning. The girl had been chloroformed and her hands were tied behind her back. Her head was covered with pillows and blankets.

The police believe that the girl was murdered by burglars. No trace of the murderers has been found. All valuables belonging to the family were hidden and nothing has been missed, but late in the afternoon a note was found in the yard under the window of Miss Benigus' room. It was written in German and said: "I have murdered her. Bring jewelry two blocks west."

Miss Benigus was to have been married to Earl Livingstone of Topeka this evening. Livingstone has been spending his vacation in Salina, where he was when the murder was committed.

LOUISIANA AFTER MORE MILLIONS

Legislature Meets to Arrange for Funds for Panama Fair.

Baton Rouge, La., Aug. 15.—Convened in extra session to consider a proposition for raising $6,500,000 in support of an exposition to be held in New Orleans in 1915 to celebrate the completion of the Panama canal, members of the Louisiana general assembly gathered today.

A joint resolution was passed at the recent regular session of the general assembly proposing a constitutional amendment for a tax of $4,000,000. Several days ago it was suggested that this amount be increased to $6,500,000 and Governor Sanders called an extra legislative session to consider it.

WITH THE NAVAL MILITIA BOYS ABOARD THE GOPHER

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 15.—(Special by Wireless to The Herald.)—Governor Warner visited the Great Lakes squadron this morning. He boarded the Wolverine, Yantic and Dow and all ships fired the governor's salute of seventeen guns. The ships anchored at 7 a. m. and left at 11 for Port Huron where the inspection will take place and ships will disband tomorrow.

The officers' race at Cleveland yesterday, won by the Gopher, will probably not count for the Sherman cup as Nashville protested on ground of not being notified.

It is not known whether the race will be rowed over this year. Adjt. Gen. Weybrecht represented Governor Harmon on the visit to the fleet at Cleveland. The Gopher will be home Friday night or Saturday.

On Board the U. S. S. Gopher, Sunday —After having won the beautiful Chamber of Commerce and Manufacturers' club cup and twelve medals Thursday, the Gopher boys distinguished themselves again Friday at Motor Island, Buffalo, by winning several small prizes in the gymkama events, which were arranged by the Motor Boat club. The events were entered by a number of men from each ship in the fleet and the Gopher boys were very successful.

The boys who won the medals in the whaleboat race and the dinghey race are delighted with their prizes. The medals are beautiful silver affairs, manufactured by Tiffany and are suitably engraved to indicate the events and the names of the winners.

Everybody had a good time at Buffalo, but the dissatisfaction of the Buffalo newspapers and the officials of the Motor Boat club with Commander Marsh's refusal to allow the ships of the fleet to go down the river to Motor Island Thursday was unfortunate. The Buffalo people had made arrangements for a naval parade down the river, but Commander Marsh would not allow all of the ships to make the trip, claiming that some of them draw too much water for the river channel. The Buffalo people were disappointed and Commander Marsh was subjected to a good deal of criticism, which was considered undeserved by those on the ships.

Except for the failure of the naval pageant, the arrangements were good and the men on the fleet enjoyed themselves. Nearly everyone found time to visit Niagara Falls and they were well repaid for the trip.

Lieut. Gerald Howze of the regular navy is now aboard the Gopher and will remain with the ship until the end of the cruise. Lieut. Howze was to have joined the Gopher at Duluth before it left for the rendezvous at Thunder Bay, but on account of a misunderstanding, he did not arrive in Duluth until some days after the ship had left. He then hurried to Buffalo and joined the ship there. Lieut. Howze has been on the Colorado on the Western coast for the past six years. He came to the Great Lakes from Washington, D. C., after having spent two weeks on the Ozark in company with the District of Columbia naval militia.

Lieut. Howze has been of great assistance to the officers and men on the Gopher. He has offered many valuable suggestions to the officers as to methods in use in the navy and he expects to make up for the week lost while the ship was between Duluth and Buffalo.

Saturday was a warm, beautiful day on Lake Erie. The flagship did not proceed with the fleet direct to Buffalo, but called for various evolutions and drills that were well executed by the fleet.

Another "man overboard" drill was given and the Gopher crew distinguished itself by making the drill in three minutes and forty seconds. The victory went to the Yantic, however, for the Gopher buoy was cast off before the signal of execution was given by the flagship. Although the Gopher lost the drill, the ship was favored by commendation on the time from the flagsip.

The Yantic also won the fire drill, but the boys on the Gopher made good time.

The Gopher boys were not idle any time Saturday. The flagship early in the morning instructed all ships to have the crews turn to for a thorough cleaning, the regular routine being dispensed with for the morning. The Gopher, as was the other ships, was thoroughly scrubbed from bow to stern and when the fleet pulled into Cleveland every ship was shining.

In the afternoon, the Gopher boys were given almost every drill in the routine. They practiced on fire drill, abandon ship, general quarters, fire and collision drill and every one was executed in a manner that proved conclusively that the crew which boarded the ship a week previous had been benefited by the work on the trip from Duluth to Buffalo.

FIRE WILL CLOSE BELGIAN EXPOSITION TEMPORARILY

Damage From Flames Will Be Millions of Francs.

American Exhibits Safe, But England Suffers Big Loss.

Brussels, Aug. 15.—The ruins of the burned sections of Belgium's exposition of 1910, destroyed by yesterday's fire, are still smoking. At a meeting early today the executive committee of the exposition decided to close it for a few days in order to clear away the ruins of the destroyed sections. Then the exposition will be reopened.

It is impossible in the present confusion to estimate closely the losses in the fire which swept through the exposition, wiping out whole sections of the fairy-like architecture and causing the loss of two lives, but the damage will run into millions of francs. The losses, however, will not be so great as was at first believed, when, during the excitement of the conflagration, they were roughly estimated at $100,000,000.

The entire Belgian and British sections, the whole Kermesse of Brussels, the Coney Island of the exposition, with water chutes, toboggan slides and other special entertainments, and everything west of the Avenue Des Nations, were destroyed, but by heroic work of the firemen and troops in the early hours of the morning and the use of dynamite in blowing up buildings in the path of the flames, the fire was checked.

American Exhibits Saved.

Practically everything in the American, Danish, Russian, Norwegian, Austrian, Japanese, Turkish and Swiss sections was saved. Only the facades of the Italian and Spanish sections and about one-third of the entire French section, the latter containing a valuable art collection, were burned.

Fortunately the most priceless art treasures, which had been loaned to the exposition, or acquired by it, including 8,000 valuable Gobelin tapestries, a large exhibition of jewelry, many paintings, marbles and ancient furniture, were removed beyond the reach of the flames and the pillaging criminals who attempted to take advantage of the disaster. The reproduction of the house of Rubens at Antwerp, the official pavilion of the City of Antwerp, containing masterpieces of Flemish art of the Rubens period, collected from the galleries of the world, was not even scorched by the flames.

Big Crowd in Panic.

In the Belgian and British sections the flames spread with such extraordinary rapidity that nothing was saved except the plan of the coming international exposition at Turin, Italy, in 1911. A strong gale carried the conflagration through the Kermesse, jammed with a Sunday crowd of nearly 100,000 at the time of the outbreak, with such speed that it is considered a miracle that the panic stricken masses were gotten out with a loss no greater than two killed and thirty injured.

The British loss is very heavy. It includes Tudor panelings from the Toronto museum, costly morlaix tapestry and priceless furniture from the collection of Bernard More, on which he refused to set any price. The were insured for $500,000. Most of the French dressmakers' exposition, which were insured for millions, were saved.

A few of the wild beasts in the menagerie, which escaped suffocation in the flames, which drove back the soldiers and attendants endeavoring to put them out of their misery, were shot down by the troops, who found them cowering in fright in various parts of the grounds.

MERRY DEL VAL WORKING ALONE

Papal Secretary of State Having No Conferences on Spanish Affairs.

Madrid, Aug. 15. — A semi-official note issued today attributes to Cardinal Merry del Val, the papal secretary of state, sole responsibility for the acts of the Vatican in the controversy with Spain. The note says that the statements issued by Cardinal Merry del Val for the purpose of influencing the press of the world will make no impression on the Spanish government, which is thoroughly informed of what is proceeding behind the scenes at the Vatican.

"The congregation of extraordinary ecclesiastical affairs," the inspirers of the note state, "was never consulted during the negotiations between Spain and the Vatican which have been going on for months. Premier Calalejas knows that every decision in the present controversy was taken solely by Cardinal Merry del Val."

No Instructions From Rome.

Rome, Aug. 15.—Owing to a misunderstanding, it was stated at the time of the abandonment of the clerical demonstration at San Sebastian, Aug. 7, that the Vatican had instructed the Roman Catholics of Spain to prevent the manifestation. The Vatican now wishes it known that this was incorrect.

The Holy See maintained a wholly extraneous attitude on the subject, taking no steps regarding the movement and doing nothing either to promote or prevent it.

SOCIETY'S FEAR OVER FOR A TIME

Narragansett Pier Gambling Case Is Delayed By Demurrer.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 15.—The fears of more than a score of well known society men and women who were caught in the raid on the Narragansett club a week ago that they would have to appear in court next Monday as witnesses were dispelled today when Judge Nathan B. Lewis advised Constable John G. Gross, the leader of the raiders, not to summon the witnesses for that date. The crusade against gambling was brought before the courts today for the second time, when William E. Arnold, who is charged with maintaining a gambling nuisance, reiterated his plea of not guilty and filed a demurrer to the complaint. Judge Lewis said that arguments on the demurrer would be heard next Monday.

If the demurrer is thrown out an assignment will be made for trial of the case.

RATE HEARING IS ADJOURNED

Railroads and Shippers Agree on Sept. 7 as the New Date.

New York, Aug. 15.—"If the carriers can prove that they are entitled to an advance they ought to have it," declared Judge G. M. Brown, chief examiner of the interstate commerce commission. "If it can be proved that they are not entitled thereto, they should be denied."

With this dat statement, Judge Brown opened the hearing today into the questions of increases in freight rates in the territory north of the Ohio and the Potomac and east of the Mississippi rivers. The railroads have asked for increases averaging 16 per cent, which, it has been figured, would cause an advance of half a billion dollars in freight rates for the affected territory.

Counsel for the railroads and shippers dinally obtained an adjournment until Sept. 7, when testimony will be taken.

ISHPEMING YOUTHS CAUSE AN EXPLOSION.

Ishpeming, Mich., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—There came near being a disastrous accident in the basement of A. W. Myers' Mercantile company's store Friday afternoon. Two boys employed there went into the cellar and as there was no light there they had matches to light them about. They held the match close to a barrel of paint and an explosion followed. The two boys were burned some about the body and hands, nothing serious however. Very little damage was done otherwise as the fire department quickly extinguished the blaze.

CHILE TELLS HER SIDE OF CLAIMS

Completes Presentation of Alsop Matter to King George.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Presentation to the arbitrator, King George of Great Britain, of the Chilean side of the Alsop controversy between the United States and Chile has been completed. Copies of the counter-brief of the Chilean agent were received today by the state department. The representatives of this government will be given until Dec. 1 in which to prepare a reply.

The basis of this claim is a loan which also is made to Bolivia. The loan amounted to $1,000,000. In 1876 Bolivia acknowledged the debt and agreed to pay it by turning over to the claimant the customs receipts of the port of Arica. The next year, however, Chile, during a war with Bolivia and Peru, seized the Arica custom houses and after peace was restored, retained control of that town. The United States thereupon demanded payment of Chile.

MARINE

TRAFFIC IS ON INCREASE

Eastbound Package Freight Movement Is Much More Active.

Better Demand for Flour--- Good Outlook in Lumber Trade.

Package freight line agents here say that the east bound freight movement is beginning to show a very fair increase, and that with the same proportionate increase continued until the close of navigation, the rather poor showing made by the east bound movement at the beginning of the season, will be compensated for.

The flour mills are beginning to receive orders for Eastern shipments of flour, and the boats from Duluth are taking a great deal of flour down the lakes at the present time.

With the increase of the east bound business has come a falling off of the business that has been coming to the Head of the Lakes from the East, and which has been heavy up until the past two weeks.

Many of the wholesale houses of Duluth have curtailed their orders for the time being, with the result that the package freight business of the boats has shown a falling off.

The Hines people are in the market for a large amount of Eastern lumber shipments this fall, according to the rumor here, and as there is a large amount of lumber on the docks at the Head of the Lakes, in comparison with the amount of lumber on the docks in former years, lumber shippers believe that before the season is over, the lumber movements will be heavy.

Several of the dock agents today stated that coal shipments to the country trade have begun in a small way. With the coal left over in the country from the comparatively warm spring, it has not been expected that shipments from the Duluth docks would be heavy at first. The news that the coal movement is even beginnings will be welcomed by the railroads and the shipping interests in general.

It is expected that the lake coal shipments will show a falling off the present month. Even now there is less demand for coal tonnage at some of the Ohio ports.

To offset this however, the ore movement is expected to keep up during the present month, and even show an increase. It is stated that the present month should show an increase over the July tonnage figures.

As yet there is practically no demand for wild ore tonnage.

OPENING GUN FIRED IN GREAT COMMERCIAL WAR

Duluth More Than an Interested Onlooker in Coming Fight.

When Chief Examiner George N. Brown, of the interstate commerce commission, at the New York custom house this morning, called Case No. 3400, entitled "In Re Investigation of Advances in Rates by Carriers in Official Classification Territory," he gave the signal for the opening gun in what will probably be the greatest battle in commercial or industrial economics that the United States has ever witnessed.

More than 400 railroads, represented by the ablest counsel and accountants that money can secure, appeared today before the people's tribunal, and will attempt to justify the putting into effect of 4,400 new freight tariffs, increasing rates all over the great territory known as the "Official classification territory," and involving an increase in the earnings of the carriers of $500,000,000 annually.

Under the law, the interstate commerce commission may only render a decision unfavorable to the carriers after a showing has been made that the increases proposed are not necessary for the preservation of the roads, and that the rates proposed are unreasonable in and of themselves.

Opposed to the railroads, and representing not only the shippers but all the consumers in the United States, is the committee of experts of the National Industrial Traffic league, which will attempt to show that the conditions do not warrant a general increase in rates, and that, on the other hand, the earnings of the carriers are showing continual increases and indicate a condition of prosperity that, if anything, call for a reduction of rates in many cases.

It will be a great struggle. On both sides there is firmness and determination, yet withal a purpose to place before the commission the exact truth, and to abide by the outcome. While the National Industrial Traffic league is largely composed of shippers, there appeared to be no organization qualified to undertake a defense of the people's rights in this important matter, and the league therefore took the responsibility upon itself to represent the consumer, who, of course, is the man who really pays the freight. Their position in this great fight, therefore, is more philanthropic in its character than anything else, and as much will probably be heard of this organization, which is comparatively a new one, during the present year, in connection with the recent railroad legislation, a brief history of the organization, its purposes and scope, will prove interesting reading at this time.

Origin of League.

Like all great movements, the league had its inception with two or three men who called in others, who said it was a good thing, and the idea grew like a snowball. Probably J. C. Lincoln, traffic director of the Merchants' Exchange of St. Louis, has been the most active figure in the work. Mr. Lincoln has been president of the league ever since its formation. Associated with him from the first have been a number of the most prominent industrial traffic men in the country, including Frank B. Montgomery, general traffic manager of the Illinois Steel company, H. C. Barlow, traffic director of the Chicago Association of Commerce, E. J. McVann, traffic director of the Omaha Commercial club, P. M. Hanson, traffic manager of the National Enameling & Stamping company of St. Louis; as well as many other men of note in the traffic world, industrial traffic managers of national reputation.

These men saw the shadows of coming events, and realized that the time was fast coming when the shippers would have need of a strong, centralized organization, that could negotiate with the railroads with the voice and power of all the shippers, and represent, through the shippers, the great body of consumers. About four years ago they met informally, and drafted constitution, by-laws, etc. As soon as the significance of the new movement became generally known, members flocked in from all sections of the country, and from a charter membership of about twenty-five, the league now represents about 85,000 members, including industrial traffic managers, traffic specialists, and commercial clubs in almost every section of the country.

There are no dues connected with the league, assessments being made for nominal amounts from time to time to cover the trifling expenses of secretary's office. All of the officers have contributed their services gratis, and even paying their heavy traveling expenses on the many trips they have made to Washington and various other places on the business of the league.

The meetings of the league, usually held in Chicago on account of its accessibility to the greatest number, have covered the widest range of subjects. The traffic managers gather there and discuss the intricate phases of the transportation subject, interchange experience and views, and some of those who have been regular attendants at the meetings state that the meetings have been of surprising educational benefit.

Three years before the recently enacted railroad legislation was even proposed in congress, the league, through its legislative committee, was at work gathering from all over the country, the material from which to draft such legislation as it was felt was needed to meet the changing demands of commerce. All of the clauses in the new railroad bill which are acknowledged universally to be of benefit, originated entirely within the league. The most notable changes in the laws secured by the league were those giving the shipper the right to route his own freight; making the carrier responsible for misquoting a rate; giving the interstate commerce commission the power to suspend proposed rate advances, also jurisdiction over classifications as well as rates, a new and quite necessary provision; making it unlawful for carriers to collect a through rate in excess of the sum of the local rates.

All of the changes secured by the league are of the most benefit to the shipper. When the railroad bill became involved in political difficulties many new provisions, not contemplated or suggested by the league, were injected into the bill. By the most active work at Washington, most of the objectionable features were weeded out before the bill was made a law. The league did not particularly favor the new commerce court, created by the bill, but as it can not do very much harm, if any, even if it does not result in positive improvement, the league did not oppose this feature.

Freight Claims.

Besides the legislative committee, another committee of the league has been doing work of the greatest importance to all shippers. The freight claims committee has been investigating the entire subject of railroad claims for several years, with the object of securing prompter payment of the same at the hands of all the railroad companies. Conferences between the committee and representatives of the railroads have been held at various times and in different parts of the country. The league's committee has agreed to undertake the work of educating its members in the proper methods for preparing and presenting claims of all kinds, and in return for this the carriers are making a much-needed reform in their manner of investigating and paying claims. Formerly, as all shippers know, a claim would some time, and, indeed, usually, run from three to six years before payment, and a claim for damage against a railway company was usually a bugbear to the ordinary merchant.

On April 1 of the present year, many carriers and tariff bureaus served notice on the public that no tariffs would be furnished therafter free of charge. The law makes the shipper responsible for knowing that the rate he pays is correct, yet by this move he would be deprived of the means of knowing what the correct rate was, unless he applied to a railroad office and took somebody's word for it. The league protested against this innovation, and with such good effect that the mandate was withdrawn.

A detailed record of the reforms that the league has carried to a successful conclusion, would occupy more space than is permitted at this time. It is sufficient to say that the organization has been back of every movement for the good of the shipping public.

Plans For Future.

The officers and leading spirits in the league have some ambitious plans for its future. It is hoped to establish permanent headquarters, probably in Washington, or if not there, in Chicago, these headquarters to constitute a bureau representing all the shipping interests in the United States. It will be apparent that such an organization would be a great power which the railroads would have to recognize. The deterrent effect of the existence of such a strong organization would be very great. Not only would the carriers be forced to do right by the shipper, but they would be very cautious about doing wrong, knowing that the shippers are no longer an unorganized mob.

Up to date the policy of the league has been one of unvarying conservatism and conciliation. Co-operation with the carrier has been the watchword. It is only when co-operation has failed, that the big stick has been brought out and dusted off.

New members are now coming into the organization in numbers, and the plans of the officers bid fair to be soon accomplished.

By their enthusiastic work in behalf of the National Industrial Tariff league, Duluth has come to occupy a position of importance in its councils. Three Duluth men are prominently connected with the league in an official capacity. C. R. Just is one of the vice presidents; E. A. Risdon is a director, and H. A. Earnshaw is a member of the organization committee.

MAY BE CLEW TO RICE'S SLAYER

Madison, Ohio, Woman Tells of Man Who Called at Her House.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 15.—Word received today from Madison, Ohio, that a possible clew to the identity of the slayers of William L. Rice, millionaire attorney had been unearthed there, revived the hopes of detectives that the crime may yet be solved.

The new clew is contained in the story of Mrs. Nellie Davitt, a Madison resident, who says that a strange man called at her home on the day following the murder and anxiously asked her to let him see a Cleveland paper of that date. He seemed much disappointed when she could not accommodate him. Detectives are looking for the man.

The inquest was resumed today.

Providence Mills Reopening.

Providence, R. I., Aug. 15.—Mill conditions in the Olneyville section of this city, which a week ago seemed so hopeless that many operatives left the city, showed great improvement today. The Riverside worsted mill reopened after three weeks of idleness and the National-Providence mills started up a number of additional looms.

DULUTH MAN WILL LEAVE FOR NEW FIELD.

Henry G. V. Crossland, for three years past connected with the French & Bassett store, has resigned and will leave tomorrow for the South, where he has accepted a position as manager of a large retail house furnishing establishment. Mr. Crossland has been a resident of Duluth for eight years, having been previously connected with Bayha & Co.'s store. His duties brought him in contact with a great many people at the head of the lakes and Mr. Crossland leaves with the best wishes of a wide circle of friends.

The employes of French & Bassett presented him with a handsome suit case Saturday as a parting token of their regard. Mr. Crossland has been visiting in Scotland and England this summer. She will join Mr. Crossland later in their new home in Dixie land.

"CANNED MUSIC" IS APPRECIATED.

It is estimated that 2,000 people listened to the diversified program of "canned" music at Lincoln park from 3:30 to 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The experiment of giving a varied list of selections upon a large phonograph, was pronounced an un qualified success and will be taken up by the park board with a view to making the programs a regular park feature. The tones and words carried a considerable distance and were greatly appreciated by those in the park.

FOUR MEN KILLED IN EXPLOSION ON SHIP.

Point Arena, Cal., Aug. 15.—Four men were killed late Saturday night when the boilers of the steam schooner Phoenix blew up at sea about ten miles north of Point Arena light house. Two of the dead, Chief Engineer Thomas Houston and Second Mate Andrew Rasmussen, reached shore with the survivors of the vessel, but died later of their injuries. The mangled bodies of two of the firemen—Chris Hansen, and William Nicholson—are in the demolished engine room of their waterlogged ship as she floats at sea a derelict.

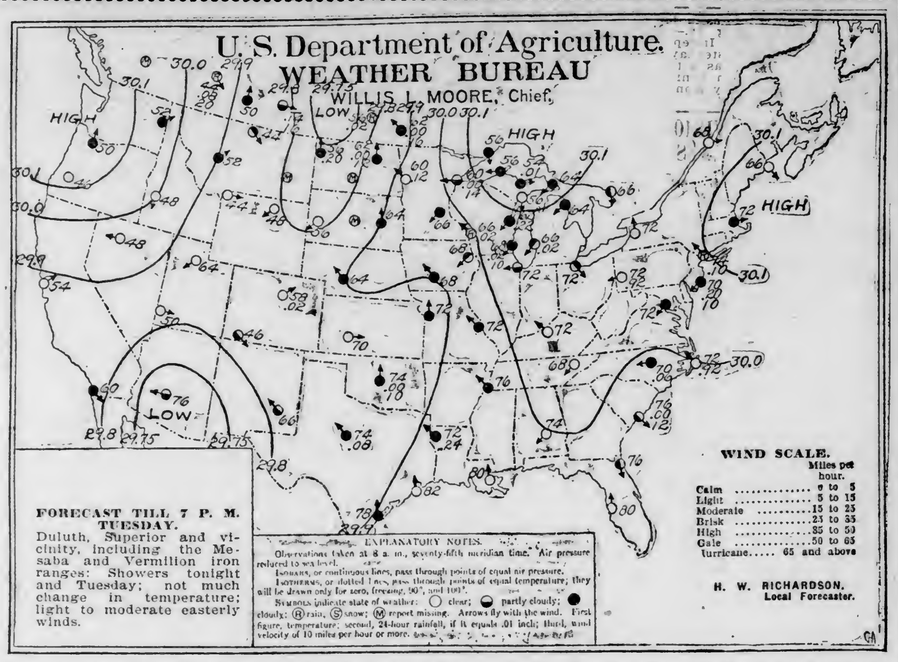
OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER



FORECAST TILL 7 P. M. TUESDAY.

Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesaba and Vermilion iron ranges: Showers tonight and Tuesday; not much change in temperature; light to moderate easterly winds.

RAIN

This delightful cool spell, that suggests the early fall and canoe trips, is being thoroughly enjoyed by Duluthians.

The evenings are cool enough to make sweaters desirable, and the early mornings are ideal for walking. The weather man looks for showers tonight and Tuesday.

A year ago today it was clear and warm. The sun rose this morning at 5:05 and will set at 7:19, making fourteen hours and fourteen minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the last twenty-four to forty-eight hours showers fell throughout the lake region, the Northwest and Southwest, due to low pressure areas central this morning over Saskatchewan and Arizona respectively. Moderate temperatures were the rule, except that hot weather prevailed in Oklahoma, Texas, Arizona and Ohio valley states. A high barometer condition central on the Oregon-Washington coast has caused cooler weather in that section, as well as in Alberta and Saskatchewan. The easterly movement of the Saskatchewan disturbance will be attended by showers at the Head of the Lakes during the following twenty-six hours."

Minnesota—Partly cloudy with local showers tonight or Tuesday.

Wisconsin—Local showers tonight or Tuesday.

Iowa—Showers tonight or Tuesday.

Montana and Wyoming—Generally fair tonight and Tuesday.

Upper Lakes—Light to moderate east to south winds and unsettled weather with showers tonight or Tuesday.

POLICE RAID A LOTTERY

The police rounded up nineteen Chinamen in a midnight raid on the place of Hop Ling Lund & Co., 18 West First street, last night, as the drawing was being made on a lottery which is said to have been operated throughout the upper part of the state on a big scale.

The police also declare that the establishment is a large gambling den and "hop joint." They found games of chance running at several tables, it is claimed, and an opium layout in the basement. In addition to these, $4,000 in currency was found in a small safe, together with a tin box filled with silver and bills of small denominations, and a quantity of liquor.

The lottery is claimed to have held out cash prizes running as high as $1,000, but because the police can't read Chinese, they have not gathered as much information on the lottery as will be gained after the services of an interpreter have been secured. The first drawing was in progress, it is asserted, as the squad of bluecoats from headquarters poured through front and rear doors. It is claimed that the promoters of the lottery now have a score of agents working among their countrymen in the different cities, towns and villages within a radius of 100 miles of Duluth and Superior. The names of the promoters are given as Sin Tick Wo, Hor Fong Kong and Wong Sin, and those of the treasurers as Lee You and Lee Gam, and those of the two local agents as Hor Lip Yang and Lee Wo Sing.

The Chinamen were taken completely by surprise. They didn't have a chance to hide a single piece of evidence, and not one of those in the place managed to escape. The roundup was one of the most complete ever made by the police. The men in the raiding detail were: Capt. Fiskett, Lieut. Fritz, Detectives Schulte, Irvine and Toewe, Sergeants Roberg and Weber, and Patrolmen Wood and Mason. Three trips of the patrol were required to take the prisoners and the confiscated paraphernalia to the station.

Those arrested gave their names and ages as follows: Sam Lee, 60; Harry Lee, 35; John Lee, 60; Chin Yin, 48; Ho Wom, 40; Lee Eeto, 57; Lee Fing, 25; Wo Soon, 29; So Do, 70; So Tom, 71; Ham Fong, 40; Ham Lee, 40; Hing Lau, 40; Low Do, 29; Charlie Sing, 48; Charlie Lee, 50; Wong Lee, 26; Charlie Wo, 45; Whong Lee, 59.

The police state that several of the Chinese arrested in last night's raid are professional lottery men from Chicago, who have made a business of tempting the gambling spirit of their countrymen in all parts of the country. Six were arraigned this morning charged with being implicated in a lottery. They were Sin Tuck Wo, Lee You, Lee Gam, Wong Sin, Hine Lye and Hor Fong Kong. They demanded preliminary examinations through their attorney, Alexander Marshall, and will have their hearings Thursday afternoon. The others were charged with gambling and will have their trials Friday morning.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—Forbes Stock company in "A Gilded Fool."
BIJOU—New vaudeville bill.

"A GILDED FOOL" THE FINAL BILL.

Nat Goodwin's great success, "A Gilded Fool" will be the play tonight at the Lyceum theater in which Gus A. Forbes and his company will play during this final week of their summer engagement in Duluth.

"A Gilded Fool," which had a great New York success, has never before been played in Duluth and Mr. Forbes is promising an especially fine production for his last week. He will appear in the role created by Mr. Goodwin and it has, of course, great possibilities for the comedian's art. The play is brimming over with fun and the interests of youth and yet has enough of a love story in it to keep the interest of the audience. It tells the story of a young American who inherits a million and spends it riotously, but eventually gets over the exhilaration of his great fortune.

The play will provide fine opportunity for every member of the company. Miss Kate Woods Fiske will appear in a role that is well suited to her capabilities, as a lady of uncertain years, who is much interested in the heathen.

The advance sale for the week's performances has been large. The first performance of "A Gilded Fool" will be given this evening and it will be continued every night for a week except Saturday. The matinee days will be Wednesday, Friday and Sunday.

ORCHESTRA WILL BE FEATURED AT ORPHEUM.

The orchestra will be one of the features of the new Orpheum, which will open next Monday evening.

An orchestra consisting of fourteen pieces, with possibly a fifteenth, is being trained by Fred G. Bradbury, who will be in charge during the coming winter. This is much larger than the usual theater orchestra, being nearly twice the size af the average organization of this kind in the Northwest. The overture will take on more the aspect of a regular number of the bill, than a mere time filler, and patrons would do well to reach the theater in time for the overture. Mr. Bradbury is planning to give special attention to the selection of his overtures during the season, and will try to present a varied program of both popular and classical selections.

The seat sale for Monday evening will open Thursday morning at 9 o'clock.

"THE SQUAW MAN" BY PIERCE PLAYERS.

Lee Parvin, advance representative of H. E. Pierce & Co.'s Associate Players, who open an engagement at the Lyceum Monday, Aug. 22, arrived in the city this morning from an eight weeks' trip in the interests of this attraction. "In view of the fact that this organization is a Duluth product, being owned by Mr. Pierce and Mr. Morrissey of the Lyceum theater, I thought it might interest the readers of The Herald to know something concerning this company," says Mr. Parvin.

"This organization, which is probably the most expensive traveling stock company in America, was organized for the purpose of operating the year round over the Copper and Iron Circuit of theaters. The cities played are Superior and Ashland, Wis., Ironwood, Ishpeming, Marquette, Hancock, Calumet and Menominee, Mich., visiting each city from three nights to a week and presenting "Strongheart," "The Squaw Man" and "At the White Horse Tavern." The distance around the circuit is 1,200 miles. Thus far the idea has proven successful.

"There is not a community in which we have played that has not accepted it as the best stock ever seen in that region."

Edwin Milton Royle's "The Squaw Man" will be the opening bill at the Lyceum Aug. 22. It will last all week.

Is Shot for Burglar.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—Martin McGurrin, a real estate dealer, shot and fatally wounded Collins Kerr last night, mistaking him for a burglar at his home in River Forest, a suburb. Kerr had gone to the McGurrin home to visit his brother, who is employed there, and was attempting to rouse him when McGurrin shot him.

CLOQUET HONORS REV. MR. HOSTAGER

Norwegian Lutheran Minister, Transferred to Brainerd, Given Sendoff.

Cloquet, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Saturday evening at the Norwegian Lutheran church a farewell reception was tendered Rev. and Mrs. M. L. Hostager, who leave for Brainerd today, where Mr. Hostager begins his duties in the pastorate of a new church.

There were several numbers Saturday evening by the Viking choir, Mrs. H. E. Nelson and J. R. Medley rendered a piano and mandolin duet and also a mixed vocal and instrumental duet, and Misses Mabel Johnson of Brainerd and Anna Michelson of Cloquet rendered vocal solos. Mr. Hostager, who has trained in the church here one of the finest mixed choirs in the Northwest, was requested to sing once more to the congregation who so sincerely regret his departure and fittingly responded with a farewell song in the Norwegian language. J. B. Baumann, the author of "Digte," gave an address, comparing the religion of the present with that of the olden time, and commended the splendid broadmindedness of Rev. Mr. Hostager's teachings and the power that he has had in drawing and holding the people of his church.

Judge J. E. Diesen presented Rev. Mr. Hostager, on behalf of his church, a purse, and at the same time expressed the regret generally felt at his departure. He spoke of the fact that it was owing to the efforts of this young minister that the slot machines and other gambling devices were taken out of the city about a year ago.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

Gov. Eberhart in the City and On the Ranges—Odin Halden Continues to Be a Victim of Illness—How the County Fights Are Progressing—Sentiment in Favor of the Election of Justice O'Brien.

Governor A. O. Eberhart, State Auditor Iverson, Secretary of State Julius Schmahl and State Engineer Ralph are members of a party that arrived in Duluth this morning and proceeded on the early train to the range towns. Attorney George T. Simpson and Assistant Attorney General Weeks also came to Duluth this morning, but did not go with the party on to the ranges. Mr. Simpson will join the governor at Hibbing tonight. Governor Eberhart will make a number of speeches during his tour of the ranges, which will occupy several days. After completing his inspection of the mining locations, the governor will return to Duluth and from here will go to Isle Royale on the United States Ship Gopher.

Governor Here This Morning.

Governor Eberhart is expected to find occasion during the course of his travels over the ranges to talk politics to his audiences. He may, it is said, make this journey the real opening of his campaign, following the recent meeting of the Republican state central committee at St. Paul.

Mr. Simpson spent the day in Duluth, meeting friends and renewing acquaintances.

The Mesaba Ore of Hibbing, while saying complimentary things about James P. Boyle of Eveleth, comes to the rescue of P. R. Vail, the Virginia brewer who is Mr. Boyle's opponent for the Republican nomination for the state senate. The Ore makes the surprising assertion that "Paddy Vail's record is proof that he has attended to our business for us in a careful and most exemplary manner." This is so violently at variance with the opinions of men who have had first hand knowledge of the legislatures of which Vail has been a member that it must be concluded the Ore is carried away by its enthusiasm for the cause of a personal friend.

In The Forty-Ninth District.

Concerning Mr. Boyle the Ore is frankly predisposed in his favor. "There isn't a single thing that can be said against Mr. Boyle—he is all there all the time, a splendid young man, full of fire and eloquence," it says, and then it goes on to laud Vail.

The Fifth Ward Republican club will meet Friday evening at headquarters, 202 Palladio building. The meeting has been postponed from Wednesday night to Friday.

This week is expected to witness a decided increase in the activity of candidates for nomination on the Republican ticket. The Democrats will have no contests at the primaries, so there is no necessity for them to get busy at this this stage of the game. Odin Halden, auditor of St. Louis county, continues on the sick list, but he is not worrying about the political situation. His many friends are working quietly in his behalf, though they do not believe that the opposition to his nomination will amount to much. "Mr. Halden's past services will no doubt insure his election," says the Proctor Journal.

Rivalries For Offices In The County.

The contests for nomination for county attorney and judge of probate are the liveliest to date. Charles E. Adams is working steadily to put his pleasing personality before the people and his rival, John H. Norton, who is now county attorney, is setting a warm pace for him. Their respective votes in the primary contest two years ago were so nearly balanced that the fight this year is attracting much attention.

J. B. Middlecoff is a candidate for re-election as presiding genius of the probate court, with some doubt as to his ability to make the distance in his run this year. S. W. Gilpin, who is his leading opponent, is making a spirited fight for the nomination and seems to have a pretty good chance to win. However, Mr. Middlecoff is not "laying down." J. H. Whitely, a third candidate in the field, is making a piquant campaign.

William J. Bates, candidate for renomination as sheriff, views the prospect with characteristic calmness. John R. Meining is his opponent and he is a popular man whose friends are working with him persistently and enthusiastically. Sheriff Bates, however, says there's nothing for him to worry about. He's satisfied, apparently.

M. C. Palmer has no opposition for renomination for register of deeds, and W. A. Holgate will not be opposed as a candidate for renomination as county treasurer, although he will be opposed at the polls in November by F. A. Lindgren, the Democratic candidate, who is expected to develop much strength.

The nomination for county superintendent of schools rests between N. A. Young and C. H. Graham, with no visible indications as to what the result will be. Duluth has no vote on this office, the superintendent exercising his powers outside the city only. Mr. Young is now assistant superintendent and for that reason may have an advantage over his rival.

S. E. Helps of Eveleth, is in the field as a candidate for coroner, running against Dr. McCuen of Duluth.

The state press continues to make favorable comment on the candidacy of Justice T. D. O'Brien of the state supreme court, many papers commending the Democratic state convention for its course in indorsing the candidacies of two Republicans for the judiciary. It is probable that the situation presented as a result of the convention's action will result in real progress toward the popular adoption of the non-partisan judiciary reform and that Justice O'Brien, concededly one of the most brilliant and ablest men who ever have served on the state supreme court, will be elected by a large majority.

Justice O'Brien and the Voters.

In connection with this idea, the Princeton Union remarks:

"Men who are able and on the square are the only ones who will command the support of the Foley Independent in the ensuing campaign, and in line with that policy that paper announces its determination to support T. D. O'Brien, present justice of the supreme court, as against D. F. Simpson of Hennepin county, the Republican nominee."

Washington, Aug. 15.—Two hundred and fifty million dollars' worth of things classed as luxuries were imported into the United States during the the fiscal year 1910, that total exceeding by more than $25,000,000 the figures of 1907, the former high record year, and being actually more than double those of 1900, according to statistics of the department of commerce and labor.

Diamonds, jewelry, laces, embroidery, furs, feathers, beds, perfumery, cigars, tobacco, wines, liquors and automobiles constituted the principal luxuries on the list, though in another group were decorated china and bisque, musical instruments, toys, orchids and palms.

TRYING TO FIND HER RELATIVES

Body of Mrs. Sadie Dillon Is Still at Undertaking Rooms.

Arrangements for the funeral of Mrs. Sadie Dillon, the woman who died at St. Mary's hospital Saturday night as the result of drinking an antiseptic solution, have not as yet been made.

The body is at Stewart's undertaking rooms awaiting information from the unfortunate woman's relatives who are believed to live in Chicago.

As yet they have not been located. She is said to have several near and distant relatives who live in the Windy City, but as the information the sheriff has to work on is very indefinite it seems doubtful if they will be found.

Mrs. Dillon had been arraigned before Judge Ensign of the district court on a charge of killing her husband, John Dillon. She claimed that he insisted that she support him by leading a life of shame.

For a time it was thought that she would recover, but she passed away Saturday night in great agony.

TWO MURDERS KEEP DETROIT POLICE BUSY.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 15.—Two murders occupied the attention of the Detroit police Sunday. William Roach, whose occupation has not yet been learned, was shot and killed as he was leaving a saloon on Michigan avenue. Detroit saloons are supposed to be closed on Sunday.

Harry Butler, a bar tender, was arrested. He admits shooting Roach, but pleads self-defense.

Ben Hardt Carradin, a cook at the Griswold hotel, was fatally stabbed early Sunday, it is alleged, by Lucius Cardmeger, also a cook employed at the same place. The stabbing occurred in the hotel kitchen. Cardmeger was arrested after a search lasting several hours.

The taking effect of the increases made by the railroads has been postponed until Nov. 1. Meantime, on its own initiative, the interstate commerce commission will consider the propriety of the proposed advances, and after the hearing will issue such an order as may appear to the commission to be proper and equitable.

SHIELDS SPEAKS AT TWO HARBORS

Two Harbors, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—John A. Shields, field secretary of the state prohibition committee, delivered the chief address at the Y. M. C. A. meeting here yesterday telling of the work in Kansas and what it is proposed to accomplish in Minnesota.

Replying to the time-honored query: "What Is the Matter With Kansas?" he said in part:

"I have lived in Kansas nearly all my life, and have traveled in half the states of the Union. Prohibition in Kansas, in the hands of its enemies, is better than license and local option and regulation in any other state in friendly hands.

"We voted our state 'dry' thirty years ago, but we have voted our statehouse 'wet' every two years since. Beneficial results from prohibition have been gained through the efforts of outside, unofficial organizations. Last year it cost us over $30,000 to keep the law enforced. This was paid by the people, in addition to their taxes, to various law enforcement associations. Most of it was given to the Anti-Saloon league. It was necessary. I helped pay it. We have been paying unofficial organizations thousands of dollars a month for nearly thirty years, that they may do the work that the administration ought to do. Thousands of dollars have been spent, year after year, in every prohibition state we have ever had, and vast sums are being spent today in Georgia, and Maine, and North Dakota, and every other prohibition state, to make the law effective.

"The people of Minnesota want county prohibition, and state prohibition, but they do not want to continue to pay hundreds of dollars a week to any union, or league, or federation, after they have their law.

"Let Minnesota put prohibition in the hands of its friends and it will be thoroughly and economically enforced, by the administration, without this enormous outside expense, and without the necessity of maintaining an expensive and often inefficient law enforcement league. The Prohibition party is the only political friend of prohibition."

HIBBING BOYS COME EN MASSE

Several Hundred Rooters Took in Sunday Ball Game With Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Virginia lost two out of the series of three games played here with Hibbing Saturday and Sunday. The Saturday game was lost to Hibbing by a score of 6 to 5.

Sunday afternoon the clubs broke even. The first game resulted in a score of 8 to 4 in favor of Hibbing. Murray pitched four innings for Virginia and Lang went in the box and finished the game, Anthony catching both pitchers.

In the second game Virginia fared far better and defeated Judge Brady's aggregation in a seven-inning game by a score of 8 to 3, the short game being played in order to give the Hibbingites time to catch a train for home. Johnson and Anthony were the battery for Virginia and Grady and Carroll for Hibbing.

A fair sized crowd attended the Saturday game, but yesterday every available seat in the grand stand and the bleachers was taken and standing room was at a premium. Several hundred people came from Hibbing, as well as large crowds from other neighboring towns.

THE VERY TIME

When Powerful Food Is Most Needed.

The need of delicate yet nutritious food is never felt so keenly as when a convalescent gets a set back on account of weak stomach. Then is when Grape-Nuts shows its power for it is the most scientific and easily digested food in the world.

"About a year ago," says a Kansas woman, "my little six-year-old niece, Helen, left the invigorating and buoyant air of Kansas, where all her life she had enjoyed fairly good health, to live in the more quiet atmosphere of Ohio. She had a complete change of diet consisting of a variety of food, and of course a change of water, somehow she eventually contracted typhoid fever.

"After a long siege her case seemed hopeless, doctors gave her up, and she was nothing but skin and bones, couldn't eat anything and for weeks did not know even her father or mother. Her parents, wishing to get something delicate and nourishing, finally hit upon Grape-Nuts food for her and it turned out to be just the thing.

"She seemed to relish it, was soon conscious of her surroundings and began to gain health and strength so rapidly that in a short time she was well, playful and robust as if she had never been ill.

"We all feel that Grape-Nuts was the predominting factor in saving the sweet little girl's life."

he and his company were being "soaked." The word "soaked" came in for some discussion. The board to a man agrees that no assessment will be raised with the idea of "soaking" anyone. They state that they want to treat everyone alike and want the kicks to come in so that they may be considered.

The board up to this time has been checking over the books and getting things in shape to go ahead with the consideration of the business to come before it.

The proposed changes that were talked over this morning are, it is said, but a forerunner of what is to come. The board expects to be in session for the next three weeks. During that time the members will make known their intentions as they did this morning, and call in the property owners so that their complaints may be heard before taking final action.

A list of the assesments as they are at the present time and the proposed raise in each instance, follows:

Duluth Street Railway company from $761,181 to $1,500,000; Duluth-Edison Electric company, $169,869 to $200,000; Standard Oil company, $22,176 to $100,000; Consolidated Elevator company, $208,933 to $250,000; Stone-Ordean-Wells company, $122,474 to $175,000; Marshall-Wells, $305,823 to 355,823; Fittsburg Coal & Dock company, $69,309 to $100,000; Wright-Clarkson, $51,588 to $65,000; Gowan-Peyton-Twohy, $82,774 to $100,000; Kelly-How-Thomson, $121,861 to $150,000; Northern Shoe company, $46,374 to $55,000; F. A. Patrick company, $159,930 to $170,000; Christensen-Mendenhall & Graham, $14,503 to $16,500; Capitol Elevator, $1,050 to $2,050; Fitger Brewing company, $28,226 to $45,000; Duluth Brewing and Malting company, $33,800 to $40,000; People's Brewing company, $12,050 to $15,050; Pabst Brewing company, $5,100 to $7,000; Minneapolis Brewing company, $2,105 to $3,105; Miller Brewing company, $3,975 to $5,000; Schlitz Brewing company, $3,026 to $5,000; Virginia Brewing company, $5,500 to $15,000.

In addition to these firms there are a great many other large concerns who are to come in for a raise according to the various members of the board. Some of the firms have large holdings out-of-town and in this list will be a number of lumber companies. Among them are: Alger-Smith, Mullery & McDonald, Virginia & Rainy Lake Lumber company, J. C. Mullery, Red Cliff, Scott-Graff, Duluth Shingle, Heimbach, Waters Clarke, Duluth Log, Ouelette & Baxter, Woodruff, C. J. Petruske, Martin Bros., Coolidge-Schussler, Colvin-Robb and the Northern Lumber company.

SOME STIRRING INDIAN BATTLES

Will Be the Features With the Wild West Exhibition.

Fidelity to historic fact has ever been the well substantiated claim of Col. Cody and Major Lillie in the productions incident to their exhibition. They have been practical illustrators of American history for years.

For their present tour they have selected the Battle of Summit Springs as the chief scenic feature of the exhibition. This battle was one of the deciding conflicts in reclaiming the West from Indian control. It was on July 11, 1869, that Gen. E. A. Carr, in command of a detachment of United States cavalry, and guided by Buffalo Bill as his chief of scouts, came suddenly upon the camp of Tall Bull, chief of the "Dog Soldiers," and engaged them in one of the fiercest struggles in the annals of Indian warfare. The conflict was sharp and relentless, but when Buffalo Bill killed Tall Bull, the tide quickly turned and the Indians suffered utter defeat. In this reproduction of the Battle of Summit Springs, Buffalo Bill will enact his original role, and the death of Tall Bull will be shown with vivid realism.

Previous to the actual battle the customs and camp life of the Indian will be shown in the erection of a typical Indian village, and the details of Indian recreation, sports and pastimes will be detailed with fidelity to life on the plains when the red skin was monarch of that vast domain. Other typical Western scenes will be made a part of the Wild West exhibition. There will be a holiday at "T-E" ranch, in which the plainsman's pleasures will be revived, and the attack on an emigrant train, depicting the dangers attendant upon the life of the pioneer. The congress of rough riders will also constitute an important part of the Wild West entertainment, horsemen from all parts of the globe having been assembled for the purpose of giving exhibitions of their proficiency as masters of equestrian expertness and reckless daring, supplemented by the first appearance in one arena of Rhoda Royal's and Ray Thompson's trained thoroughbreds and range horses. The entertainment entire will constitute a thrilling display of unusually interesting and novel exhibitions, a fitting climax to the career of Buffalo Bill on his farewell visit.

MAYOR KILLED WHILE WARNING FIREMEN.

El Paso, Texas, Aug. 15.—W. F. O. Robinson, mayor of El Paso, lost his life at 9 o'clock Sunday morning while endeavoring to warn a number of firemen of imminent danger from a tottering wall. At the same time Todd Ware, a fireman, was instantly killed and William Robinson and Dave Sullivan, also firemen, were injured.

The casualties followed a fire which broke out at 2 o'clock in the morning in a dry goods store and ruined it. Mayor Robinson, who had watched the fire, left the sidewalk and approached the building to instruct the firemen to stop further work on the unsafe walls. As he approached the building a large portion of the brick wall buckled and fell, crushing Robinson and Ware, and knocking the other man down. Mrs. Robinson witnessed the accident from the sidewalk.

SCALDING WATER CAUSES DEATH

Four-Year-Old Boy Tips Over Pan With Fatal Result.

Burns from scalding water resulted in the death early Sunday morning of 4-year-old Harvey Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew C. Johnson of Jamestown, N. D. The boy was visiting at the home of his grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Johnson at 515 North Nineteenth-and-a-half avenue west.

The little fellow had been playing in the kitchen and while his grandmother's back was turned, started to investigate a pan of water which had just been taken boiling from the stove and placed on the table. The pan tipped over, the steaming water falling on the lad's head and chest. The burns did not appear serious, however. The grand parents called Dr. J. C. Braden and had the burns dressed. Dr. Braden expected to call later but was notified by telephone that his services would not be needed as the boy was doing finely.

The child took a sudden turn for the worse yesterday morning, however, and death followed before a physician could be summoned. The father, who left for his home a week ago, has been notified and is on his way here to make the funeral arrangements.

The plan of work committee consists of Miss Bradshaw, Mrs. John Millen and Miss Faith Rogers. The artists thus far engaged for the local concerts are the Kneisel Quartet, which will be heard here in November, and Miss Christine Miller, contralto, who will sing a recital program in January.

The song composers whose works will appear on the regular club programs will be those whose birth anniversary falls nearest the day of meeting. The plan of work in detail is as follows:

W. C. T. U. LECTURER

To Appear at First Methodist Church.

With county option being discussed in the state, the lecture by Mrs. Mary Harris Armor which will be given at the First Methodist church Wednesday evening of this week is of great interest to many people. Mrs. Armor is president of the Georgia state W. C. T. U. and is a well-known speaker. Of her Mrs. T. E. Patterson of Griffin, Ga., has written:

"When Mrs. Armor spoke at Belleview Chautauqua, fifteen miles from Omaha, Neb., last summer, the management was so pleased that they begged her to allow them to arrange for a debate on prohibition with Hon. James Dahlman, mayor of Omaha and liquor candidate for governor of the state. The crowd was immense, it being estimated that 5,000 people were under the tent. Even the Omaha Omaha papers—all for liquor—admitted that the crowd was with Mrs. Armor. There were no judges appointed and no formal decision rendered, but it was freely predicted that it would defeat Mayor Dahlman for governor, and so it proved, for he failed to get the nomination. Every Georgian should know and hear Mary Harris Armor, Georgia's most distinguished daughter."

AN APPEAL TO THE LADIES

In my race for the office of Probate Judge, I want to get the ladies interested. Of course you have no vote, but you ought to have for that office just as a matter of plain business fairness. Just as you now have a vote for school director. The women have more business in that court than the men, as the widow usually administers her husband's estate. The wife too often leaves no estate.

And then, sad as it may seem, women sometimes go insane and have to be examined in that court. And then there has never been a wedding in that court unless there was a woman in the case. Let me tell you ladies this is the office that most interests you. So get busy and look up the best man for the office and use your great influence to elect him. Not politics, but a plain business proposition. Look up

J. H. WHITELY,

One of the Candidates for Probate Judge.

P. S.—An appeal to the boys will appear in this paper tomorrow. Tell them to watch for it.

Swiss Potato Soup.

Slice cold boiled potatoes and fry in butter. Add salt, pepper, parsley, a blade of mace, a bay leaf and half a cup of chopped ham. Cover with four cups of beef stock (or one can of bouillon and three of water). Simmer for an hour. Add a teaspoon of butter and one of flour and the yolks of two eggs, beaten smooth with a little cold stock. Strain and serve with croutons.

Meat—Mock Venison.

Cut a nice piece of corned beef into slices and soak for several hours in tepid water, changing the water often. Drain and wipe dry, then broil quickly, turning often. Make a gravy of drawn butter seasoned well, chop fine a hard boiled egg and add a bit of scraped onion. Pour over the meat and serve.

Salad—Tomato Jelly Salad.

Soak half a package of gelatine in half a cup of cold water. Dissolve in three cups of boiling, highly-seasoned tomato, strain and mold in cups. When chilled and firm serve on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise.

Dessert—Pineapple Shortcake.

Make a rich biscuit dough slightly sweetened and bake in two parts or a round cake fully an inch thick. If the latter, split while hot and butter. For the filling use a rich sugar loaf pine that has been shredded, covered with sugar and allowed to stand over night, or, quicker still, use the canned, crushed pine. Before filling drain off the surplus juice and use it with whipped cream as a sauce.

HOT QUARTERS

By Maria Mason.

There were thirty hives of bees on the cart. It was September, and they were being hauled in from the "outapiary to be wintered, ten miles away.

The bees had belonged to Jim Smith's father, who had died suddenly the winter before, leaving Jim the chief support of the family. The only assets were the half-cleared farm, with a heavy mortgage on it, and twenty colonies of bees.

Scott, who held the mortgage, had agreed to take over the bees in lieu of cash payments for the year. Jim was to work them for him and was to receive one-third the honey and all the increases by swarming.

There was ten swarms that summer, and Jim congratulated himself on having an excellent beginning of an apiary of his own. But at the last moment Scott repudiated that part of the bargain. He claimed all the bees, and as the agreement had been oral, without witness, Jim had no means of redress.

Hauling bees any great distance is, usually, ticklish work. They had a rough road at first. Every hive was a cauldron of boiling fury; but the packing had been carefully done, and the only real danger was that the load might shift and wrench one of the hives enough open to make a crevice.

Suddenly, without warning, something struck Jims' face a sharp blow and he felt a burning, excruciating prick.

Almost at the same moment Scott ducked, ejaculated, and fought at the air. Another vicious insect rapped down on Jim's face and stinging the instant it touched. A thin stream of the honey-gatherers were leaking up from among the boxes, and Jim jumped to the startled conclusion that the bottom board of one of the hives on the lower tier must have shifted. He snatched up the smoker. It had gone out. He struck match after match to relight it, and was stung three or four times more. The team had been plodding on undisturbed, but as he began to puff the smoke down the road, one of the horses started violently and plunged sidewise.

"You'd better unhitch and get the horses away," Jim called. "Then you can unload and see whats' the matter."

But it was too late. Where one bee has stung, a dozen will sting, attracted by the odor of the poison. For a moment Scott held in the terrified team by main strength, and then they bolted.

The rush left the cloud of bees behind for an instant. Jim was nearly flung from his perch; the farmer's hat went flying behind, but before many seconds he had accumulated a sort of halo of mad, stinging bees around his head. Jim knew better than to fight at the insects. He was inured to stings, and he let them sting while he puffed smoke down among the hives, and tried desperately to hold to the flying cart. In the crisis he forgot his wrath; he was as anxious to save the bees as Scott himself.

The farmer was working heroically to bring the maddened horses under control, but the animals could now no more be managed than the flying bees. There is nothing that so drives to utter reckless desperation as multiplied bee stings.

"Hold them in. They can't run far," Jim shouted.

But the farmer, with a yell of exasperation and despair, dropped the reins, brushed frantically at his head, and jumped from the load. Jim had a glimpse of him rolling over and over as he alighted.

Jim himself had been strongly tempted to jump. They were not his bees, after all, so it seemed, but defeat brought him a sudden determination. He would show this skinflint who had robbed him what he could do, and he scrambled over the sliding hives to the driver's seat.

The horses tore at undiminished speed; the best he could do was to keep them in the middle of the road. The cart pitched like a ship on a stormy sea, climbing over the small rocks that strewed the road.

Jim expected the horses to tire but they were whipped continuously by the insects. He could see knots of brown bees clinging to their sides.

His face and hands were spotted with crushed bees; and he had been stung so often that, hardened as he was, he began to feel a deadly nausea at the pit of his stomach and one eye appeared to be closing.

In a cloud of dust, flying gravel and bees, they bore along the rutted road. Suddenly, as they rounded a curve, Jim caught sight of the river bridge before him.

Beyond the river lay a steep hill. Victory was within reach if he could steer them safely over the bridge.

Before he had time to think of it they were rattling up the approach to the bridge. Jim wound the reins round his wrists, setled himself back in his seat, and then the hair almost rose on his head with the shock of what he saw.

Coming upon the other end of the bridge was a trap, containing two women. Their horse, terrific at the enormous resounding runaway coming down upon him had balked, and was plunging and kicking. Out of their wits with fright, the women were standing up, plying the whip and screaming.

Jim was on the bridge before he realized the inevitable wreck. Disaster was certain and one wreck was better than two.

Standing up, he swung the horses around with a terrific effort. The off horse reared as it swerved, and was thrown violently against the bridge railing and, the team crashed through, the cart after it. Jim was hurled into the air as the team plunged down into the river. He went under in the midst of a cataclysmic splashing and uproar, came up and touched bottom, finding the water not quite shoulder deep. As he gasped for breath the horses struggled to their feet also, tore themselves loose from the cart, which had fallen on its side, and splashed out on the other side of the bank. Here a fence brought them up, and they stood trembling, their energy quite subdued.

Jim found himself in the midst of a floating mass of all sorts of bee apparatus. The hives had not burst, however, and as he realized this, he set himself hurriedly to steer them to shore.

On reaching the top of the shore he perceived Scott coming, hatless, at an exhausted dog-trot down the road, and advanced to meet him.

"Whole—thing—smashed?" the farmer panted. "Why didn't you jump?"

Jim pointed somewhat maliciously to the still floating wreckage and the broken bridge. The salvaged hives were out of sight, down at the edge of the water.

"What'll you take for your bees now?" he said.

The farmer had had enough of bees now and he named a low price.

Jim grinned.

"Here you are then. But I won't rob you: I'll just take the ten swarms that belong to me."

CONVERSATION MAXIMS

By MARGARET E. SANGSTER

In telling a joke, do not laugh yourself before the point is reached. If the joke be original do not laugh at all.

In a tete-a-tete conversation it is illbred to drop the voice to a whisper.

Egotism is always in bad taste. Allow others the privilege of proclaiming your merits.

Never speak of personal or private matters in general company.

Avoid as much as possible beginning a conversation with stale commonplaces, such as "It is a fine day," "the water is charming," etc.

Do not speak slightingly of the city or neighborhood in which you may be visiting. By offending the prejudices of those about you, you render yourself extremely disagreeable.

Avoid all excitability and dogmatism in conversation. Nothing is more annoying than to converse with an arrogant, loud speaking person.

Avoid lavishing praise on the members of your own family. It is almost as bad as praising yourself.

It is exceedingly bad taste to parade the fact that you have traveled in foreign countries, or that you are acquainted with distinguished or wealthy people, that you have been to college, or that your family is distinguished for gentility and blue blood.

Always endeavor to contribute your quota to the general conversation. It is as much your duty to entertain as to be entertained. Bashfulness is as much to be avoided as too much assurance.

Never ask questions of a personal nature, such as what a certain article cost, or why so-and-so did not go to the opera. They are decidedly impertinent.

Look at the person with whom you are conversing, but do not stare.

Avoid loud laughter in society.

If you carry on the thread of conversation after the entrance of a visitor, you should always recapitulate what has been said before his or her arrival.

TEN RULES FOR HUSBANDS

By VIRGINIA HARLAN.

Here are ten rules for husbands:

1. Avoid verbal controversies at all costs, because you will come off second best, no matter if you're the most brilliant lawyer in the world. If controversies are unavoidable, give way after a sham fight. You will increase in your wife's respect, because you've been so wise as to recognize her as the wiser.

2. Never forget that you're married to a woman, and not an angel.

3. Don't refuse your wife money too often; rather steal or starve.

4. If you observe that your wife doesn't love you enough, remember that she lovely jewels and fine clothes.

5. See to it that your better half always has the last word. That makes her happy, while it would leave you, with your love of justice and truth, only uncomfortable.

6. Read only books that everybody is talking about, so that your wife can discuss them with you. She would be miserable if she lacked a gossip-partner just because you in your crazy disregarded for "what everybody likes," reads books of your own selection.

7. Even in controversy, don't wound your wife by being too logical.

8. Bestow upon your wife, from time to time, the compliment that she is the most beautiful of creatures, and that you are simply desperate because you are so hopelessly unworthy of her.

9. If your wife is shrewd, beware of seeming shrewder. If she's stupid, be more stupid, in order (in either event) that she may not be angry.

10. Above all else, respect your mouther-in-law. Remember that she is primarily to blame for your marital happiness.

THE KITCHEN

Simple Summer Salad.

For this particular salad we require three lettuces, a large handful of mustard and cress, about a dozen small olive-shaped breakfast radishes, some watercress, if obtainable, and if the flavor is not objected to, a few small spring onions. Wash the mustard and cress, and put it on a dry cloth, spread out, wash and trim the radishes, and add to the mustard and cress; also the watercress. Divide the lettuces, leaf by leaf, rejecting the coarse outside leaves. Wash them carefully in salted water, and break each leaf into convenient sized pieces. Put these with the other salad on the cloth; take up the four corners, and swing until most of the moisture has been shaken out of the salad.

Now, get your salad bowl ready. Those who like garlic may lightly rub the sides of the bowl with a clove of garlic, but this should only be done by one who is fully acquainted with the power of the onion-like bulb. Put in the salad and stir until all the various vegetables are well mixed.

Five minutes before serving, dress it in this way: Twice fill the salad spoon with brown vinegar, having previously put a saltspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper into the spoon; pour the vinegar slowly over the salad, but not among it. Three times fill the same spoon with good olive oil, and pour as before over the salad. Now, with the fork and spoon lightly toss and stir the salad, you are sure that the dressing has been thoroughly mixed in every part.

Asparagus for Winter.

Prepare the sticks in precisely the same way as for immediate boiling, tie them up in bundles, drop the bundles into boiling salted water, and leave for about two minutes only. Stand the asparagus in wide-necked bottles. Take equal parts of vinegar and water, boil with sufficient salt to form a strong pickle, and pour over the asparagus, which should be entirely covered. When quite cold cover down, and store in a cool, dry place. Before using, soak the asparagus for some time in fresh cold water. It can then be prepared in any way you please.

A Meat Mold.

Almost any kind of cold meat does for this. It is a nice breakfast or picnic dish. Take a few slices of cold veal, a few slices of cold ham, two hard-boiled eggs, and, if at hand, some pieces of cooked beetroot, then some pieces of meat, ham and parsley. Fill up the mold with layers of the various things. Season the stock and fill up the dish with it. When the mold is firm, turn out and serve.

Tomato Cream Soup.

Take 1 pound tomatoes, 1 ounce butter, 1 ounce flour, 2 pints water, half pint milk, ¼ teacup rice, ¼ teaspoonful bicarbonate of soda. Peel and slice the tomatoes, put them into a pan with one pint of cold water, and bring to boiling point; then add the rice, which has been thoroughly washed, and the remainder of the water. Mix the flour and the butter together with a little milk, and stir into the soup when the rice is tender, then add the milk and the soda, and allow the soup to boil for about ten minutes, or until the flour is cooked. Tinned tomatoes may be used instead of fresh ones. If this is done a little less water should be used.

Hashed Lamb.

Take 1 pound cooked lamb, 1 ounce butter, 1 pound cooked potatoes, pepper and salt and some finely chopped parsley. The scraps left over from a roast of lamb will do very well. Peel the onions and cut them in very thin rings. Heat the butter in a pan and fry the onion rings in it; add the cold, cooked lamb, either chopped or cut into neat pieces or thin slices, season with pepper and salt, add about one teacupful of stock, and cook for about ten minutes. The bones from the roast should be boiled for stock. Place the hash on a hot dish and sprinkle over it some finely chopped parsley. Poached eggs may be served around the dish.

YOUNG MEN AND MAIDENS

By MISS EXPERIENCE.

Love at First Sight.

Is there such a thing as love at first sight—that is, true love which lasts all through the rest of one's life? Opinions vary on the point, but it is certain, nevertheless, that many enduring romances have sprung from the feelings created in the first moment of meeting.

A great many people, however, imagine themselves in love, when in reality they are merely fascinated and swept off their feet by qualities which would ill stand dissection and analysis. It is wise not to exchange vows of eternal devotion until one has had time to realize all they may mean.

The so-called love at first sight generally begins with physical attraction—a handsome face or a witty tongue. But the girl who stakes all her life's happiness on slender threads like these is bound to come to grief. Far better is it to wait and watch for those deeper traits which form a good and loyal man. Again, it is cruel for a girl to encourage a man who appears to be fascinated by her particular charms, unless, of course, she is equally attracted by his. A woman's love is the most precious gift she has to bestow; therefore, she should never cloud its radiance by playing with it, nor fling it at a man's head the first hour she meets him. Time only can prove love. When the faithful lover says "I loved you from the first moment I saw you," what he really means is "My love for you began the first moment I saw you, and has been growing ever since."

A Chinese Wedding.

A Chinese marriage is all ceremony—no talk, no levity, and much crying. The solemnity of a funeral prevails. After the exchange of presents the bride is dressed with much care. A feast is spread upon a table, to which the blushing bride is led by five of her best female friends. They are seated at the table, but no one eats. The utmost silence prevails, when finally the mother leads off in a cry, the maids follow, and the bride echoes in the chorus. Then all the bridesmaids leave the table, and the disconsolate mother takes a seat beside the chair of state where the bride sits. The bridegroom now enters, with four of his best men. The men pick up the throne on which the bride sits, and preceded by the bridegroom, form in procession and walk around the room or into an adjoining parlor, signifying that he is carrying her away to his own home. The guests then throw rice at the happy couple.

THE DAY'S BEST STORIES

Modern Chivalry.

"Alas and alack!" sighed the romantic Mrs. Oldwed, as she perused the last line of "The Scarlet Pimple." "The days of chivalry are surely gone! In this lovely book, George, the hero, falls in love with the heroine at first sight, and then waits 10 years for her."

"What of it?" pooh-poohed George. "Can't I say more? Can't I say I waited 20 years for you?"

"Twenty years!" gasped Mrs. Oldwed. "Why, we've been married 21, and I accepted you straight off!"

"I know," retorted George; "but I've waited about three years for you to get your gloves on, about four years for you to change your hat, about five years while you said one last word to the cook. I've waited downstairs, I've waited at the theater, I've waited in cabs, omnibuses, taxis, motor cars, I've waited so long and so regularly that, between you and me, that hero of yours strikes me as a miserable, impertinent little trotter."

Art for Art'th Thake.

"Which tooth?" inquired the man of forceps grimly.

"Anyone you like," responded the victim calmly, "so long as it's a front one."

"But—" began the astounded dentist.

"Hurry up!" thundered the visitor.

With bleeding heart the operator hitched his forceps on to a bit of absolutely sound ivory, dragged his patient three times across the room, and—

"Hey, presto!" smiled the dentist. "It's out! But will you be so good as to tell me why on earth you wanted a sound tooth extracted?"

"By all meanth," responded the patient. "You thee, I'm an actor and I have to take a part where the thpeaker lithpth. At firth I couldn't mather it, but now I'm thure it'll be a thimply thcreaming thucthess!"

THE DAY'S BEST STORIES

Two Stories of Rostand.

Edmond Rostand, author of "Chantecler," is one of the most charming of men, but he admits to two antipathies. He hates undue familiarity, and hates the ministerial officer known in France as a "huissier"—who corresponds to a bailiff in the old days of arrest for debt. The other day at the wedding of Monsieur Jean Coquelin, a young man walked up to M. Rostand, clapped him on the shoulder, and exclaimed: "Well, old chap, I am glad to see you. How are you, my dear old pal?"

"My dear old pal," said Rostand very quietly, "who are you?"

The other day a friend of Rostand's called on him for a subscription. "It's really charitable," he explained. "We want to pay the burial expenses of a poor devil of a bailiff, who—"

"What!" exclaimed Rostand, "a bailiff. How much?"

"Oh, about $10," his friend said.

Hard-Headed.

A cavalry sergeant had endured the stupidity of a particularly hopeless recruit for days. The "rookie," having more flagrantly disregarded instructions than ever one morning, was admonished thus by his disgusted sergeant:

"Don't ever dare, you numbskull, to come at the horses from behind without speaking to them first. If you do they'd be kicking at that thick head o' yours, and then soon there'll be half the mounts in the squadron gone lame!"

SUICIDE HAD LOT OF TIMEPIECES

Man Who Hanged Himself Near East Grand Forks Had Six Watches.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Relatives of J. E. Hellerstedt, the man whose lifeless body was found hanging in the woods six and a half miles north of this city Friday, are here making arrangements for disposing of the remains and his personal belongings. The body will not be shipped to Warren, where his sister lives, but will be buried in this city. Before any disposition of his personal property can be made, an administrator will have to be appointed and the matter taken through the probate court.

Hellerstedt recently purchased a half interest in the Geo. Buckley saloon in this city some little time ago. The check for $25, which was found in his pockets, was signed by George Buckley and had been given him for the purpose of securing a government license. A trunk, checked to the Northern Pacific depot here, was secured, and more of his personal possessions were found in that. Six watches were found among his possessions, three of them having been kept in the vault in the Buckley saloon. There have been several theories advanced as to the manner in which he secured the watches, but they are only theories and how he happened to be in possession of so many will never be known.

It is possible that an inquest will be held, Coroner Stenshoel wishing to confer with the county attorney before taking any definite steps.

LAUDS MARQUETTE PRISON.

Noted English Criminologist Praises Upper Michigan Institution.

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. Alanson Himes, who has been in the city for several days in the interests of Grolier Society of London, visited the Marquette prison.

Capt. Himes served in the British army during the Boer war and was attached to the secret service. Later he was made provost marshal of Cape Town.

He has traveled all over the world and has made a special study of criminology, having made it a practice to visit prisons wherever possible in the course of his travels.

"The Marquette prison is one of the best conducted and most progressive penitentiaries I ever have visited," said Capt. Himes at the conclusion of his inspection of the institution.

"The warden has recognized the finding of modern thought and science that criminality is a disease and that the function of a prison should be to cure rather than to punish.

"From this humanitarian viewpoint, the Marquette prison should be classed with four others in the world—the prison in Elmira, N. Y.; Milan, Italy; La Plata, Argentina and Milbank, England. I know of no other penal institutions that are being conducted so fully along the lines of modern science as these five."

THE BOULEVARD.

It seems that "the boulevard" already has a name. The records of the board of park commissioners show that on Dec. 27, 1894, sixteen years ago, the following resolution was adopted:

> Resolved, That in recognition of the valuable services rendered the city by the late Col. W. K. Rogers, former president of this board, in planning and supervising the construction of the parkway connecting the system of parks, that the same be named "Rogers' Boulevard."

So the boulevard was named sixteen years ago, and yet, when the question of naming it arose, not three people in all the city knew that it had any other name than "the boulevard."

Evidently, the name did not "take." It was a fitting tribute to the farsighted initiative of Col. Rogers, and it was a pretty thing to do.

Yet the name does not meet the demands of the situation. What is needed is a name that shall be attractive and descriptive and that will cling to the memory. It is well to honor Col. Rogers, but what is needed is a name for the boulevard that will make it as famous as it should be. It can hardly be made more famous than it is by giving it the name of an individual however highly honored he may be locally. The name of Rogers should be given to a park or a street; but the boulevard should have a name of its own that shall be distinctive and that will herald its fame abroad.

Many excellent names have been suggested. "Hillcrest" boulevard or drive is descriptive and attractive. "Hill beach" boulevard or drive would pique the curiosity because it is apparently paradoxical, yet is aptly descriptive. Many other likely names are in the list of suggestions.

The fact that sixteen years after the boulevard was named "Rogers' boulevard" practically nobody knew that it had a name is evidence enough that the title did not take well.

With absolutely no disposition to take one jot from the honors due to Col. Rogers, The Herald still believes that the boulevard needs a new name.

THE PUBLIC MARKET.

Beginning Wednesday morning, and continuing each Wednesday and Saturday until the season closes, the city public market in the Armory building will be open.

Tillers of near-by soil will be given every opportunity to display their products for sale, and it is to be hoped that buyers for the home will take advantage of the opportunity to get fresh, clean farm products at reasonable prices.

Not everybody can get to the market, of course; yet last year enough got there to clean out the available supplies fairly early every market day. People came to buy on foot, in carriages, in automobiles and in street cars. Most of those who bought there last year found the experiment so profitable that they will repeat it this year. The goods displayed are gathered in the early morning of market day, or at least the afternoon before, and nowhere on earth can better and sweeter farm products be bought than in the Duluth public market.

The market fell into neglect through several years, so when it was opened again not many farmers came. As the news spread that the market was a good place to sell products in, the number of vendors increased, and it is to be hoped that this year every producer within reach of the market place will make regular visits there with his produce.

THE COLONEL'S PAPER AND OHIO.

Col. Roosevelt hadn't a word to say when the Ohio Republican state convention rejected Garfield, Progressive, and chose Harding, Reactionary.

There wasn't anything he could say without shattering that party "harmony" which, according to all unprejudiced observers, spells "Harmon."

But lots of people nowadays are studying the Outlook, of which the Colonel is a contributing editor, hoping to gain an indirect insight, in this way, into what the Colonel really thinks.

Probably it is hardly fair to ascribe to the Colonel all of the opinions expressed by the Outlook. He is not its editor-in-chief. He is only its "contributing editor." What is his in that publication is signed by his name; and such matter, of late, is very like the editorials in a newspaper which dares not express an opinion on anything vital for fear of offending somebody. Folks have searched anxiously through an essay on the birds of England, hoping to find an opinion about the vultures that rule the Republican party in the United States. They have studied his essay on prize-fighting, without finding anything about the fight between people and privilege. They have read his article on an eminent general whose career the Colonel made, without finding anything about the present status of the progressive movement of which the Colonel was late the leader.

But the Outlook has a word about the Ohio convention that, while it doesn't come from Roosevelt, pleases Roosevelt admirers on the theory that Editor Abbott probably wouldn't print anything that would displease the contributing editor.

Says the Outlook: "It was an old-time political convention of the sort that flourished up to ten years ago. It was conducted by leaders who threw votes from one candidate to another as generals throw regiments against this or that side of the enemy on the battlefield. The convention showed its character by its choice of Mr. Harding as the compromise candidate—a former lieutenant-governor, known as a fervent political orator, an orthodox party man, a Republican war horse. That he embodies any political ideals or any distinctive policies for the future, has not been as much as hinted.

"So far as the nomination for the governorship is concerned, the Ohio Republican convention indicates that there is a strong tendency on the part of the Republican organization to forget the lessons of the past few years and to substitute for definite and vigorous principles the slogan of party orthodoxy."

That utterance, with a very few minor changes, would do quite as well to describe the action of the Minnesota Republican state convention as it does to describe that of Ohio.

Democrats ought to be very grateful, both in Ohio and in Minnesota, for the work in their behalf that has been done by Republican state conventions.

THE UNAPPRECIATED.

Says the Princeton Union: "That brave old newspaper veteran, Hon. James E. Child of the Waseca Herald, who is eternally fighting the battle of the masses, begins to realize that the people he is trying to befriend will not lift a finger to help themselves, and in agony of spirit he groans and cries out: 'Oh, for a square deal for the toiling, moiling, patient producers, who seem to be too busy, too ignorant, too indifferent and too much given to baseball, prize-fighting, drinking and useless amusements in their short hours of leisure, to secure justice for themselves and their children!'"

That note of profound and depressing discouragement comes from a passing mood that occasionally afflicts all who set their visions beyond today. It is but a passing vapor, however, and it does not allow its victim to see quite a true picture of conditions.

It is true enough that the people do not seem to appreciate what dreamers and believers in progress try to do for them. The prophet of a new dispensation always is reviled and discouraged and treated with ribald contempt. In his lifetime he is the butt of thoughtless jokes; after his death a repentant people raises monuments to his memory.

But the trouble with the ardent reformer is that he expects the people to be as ardent and as enthusiastic as he is, and is disappointed if they are not. In his disappointment he condemns the people as indifferent, but his indictment is as unjust as the treatment he undergoes himself. The people are not so indifferent as they seem. They are patient, enduring, slow to wrath—but mighty when at last they are aroused.

This seeming indifference befools more than the reformers. The sordid, sodden, beef-necked beneficiaries of Things as They Are are fooled, too. Because the people always have taken mistreatment and oppression with patience, they think the people always will stand abuses. They are disabused of their error when the people rise like a tempest that is slow in gathering energy but irresistible when it breaks.

Nevertheless, the reformer usually has a pretty hard time of it during his life. The only really happy man is the one who is willing to take things as he finds them, to "let well enought alone," to believe that because things have been so they must remain so. In a sense, it is a misfortune to be of that turn of mind which looks always toward the ideal, and is contented with nothing less; yet of such is the kingdom of progress. If the world were made up of those who are willing to "let things alone;" if the doctrine of laissez faire ruled humanity as absolutely, say, as the law of evolution rules the universe—then the world would quickly collapse into a state of stagnant corruption, and humanity would be lower than the beasts.

Fight on comrade! Despair not, soldier in the army of the Common Good! Look to the consciousness of duty done for your reward, and not to the approval of the people. He who seeks public acclaim seldom finds it. He who scorns it often is showered with it. Not any passing mood of depression can change a true progressive into a stolid, insensate reactionary. Not any indifference among the people can stay progress. Progress is evolution. He who casts himself into its current is living truly the life that is in him. He who turns his breast against that current is wasting his life in a vain and empty struggle. Hope crests the banners of those who look beyond today and see a vision of a time when men shall be free.

THE ANGEL OF THE CRIMEA.

So firmly fixed was Florence Nightingale's name in the records of romance and history that to many she was a historic character, not a living person, and to them the news of her death in London yesterday in her ninety-first year will bring the shock of surprise.

Splendid pioneer of a noble army of heroines that has dared death and welcomed hardship on errands of mercy upon a thousand battlefields, Florence Nightingale will long be remembered as the first woman to follow a modern army into battle for the sake of giving succor to the wounded. In 1854 she went to the blood-stained Crimea, having organized a band of trained nurses in a week, and there she showed rare gifts of organization, heroism and industry. In that fearful war her energies were taxed to their utmost capacity, but she labored valiantly until her health suddenly broke with the strain.

Her chief gift to humanity was not so much her personal service in the Crimea as it was the fact that she pointed the way for women to have their noble share in the sacrifices and heroisms of battle. Following her example many thousands of noble women have volunteered for the hard, dangerous service of army nursing, and today the women who wear a red cross on their sleeves form a splendid army that extends all over the world, and that is always in the vanguard of peril where need is greatest.

TWELVE YEARS SINCE SPANISH WAR ENDED.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Twelve years ago (Aug. 13, 1898,) the Eighth army corps of the United States army, under command of Gen. Merritt, assisted by the United States fleet under command of Admiral Dewey and the Filipinos under Aguinaldo, captured the city of Manila, P. I., which constituted the last engagement of the war with Spain.

Those twelve years have wrought great changes. Manila at that time having been harboring the Spanish army of defense within and having been infested by the combined armies of the Americans and Filipinos without, became the filthiest city on the face of the globe. But after the occupation by our troops it was cleaned and improved until now she ranks among the healthiest, cleanest, most beautiful, modern cities that mother earth has as an ornament placed by man upon her naturally beautiful bosom.

Those men who were engaged in the war with Spain are now being mustered into the ranks of the United Spanish War Veterans, not to promulgate war, but to stimulate patriotism and loyalty, to enhance peace and to the best of their ability promote the general welfare of the glorious republic.

The war with Spain had the tendency to close the breach caused by the Civil war. The North and South have had a common cause to defend, united. The United Spanish War Veterans firmly welds together and retains that comradeship between the patriots who enlisted for the defense of the nation's honor in the war with Spain that cannot successfully be perpetuated in any other manner. And, as an organization, it endeavors to keep track of all the comrades who passed muster in that war, and seeks to conduct at funerals, as one by one the boys are laid to rest, proper and fitting military honors, including taps, in honor of the patriotic acts of the deceased comrades.

Duluth has the John G. McEwen camp, meeting twice a month at Memorial hall, and which camp is rapidly increasing in numbers this summer, owing to the efforts in the right direction being made by its efficient officers and encouraged by the use of the most magnificent and practical hall in the country for meeting place, i.e. "Memorial Hall."

The department headquarters of the Department of Minnesota, U. S. W. V., is located in Duluth this year, Joseph B. Gibson of Duluth having been elected department commander at the annual encampment at Faribault. Hugo V. Koch of St. Paul was chosen department delegate to the national encampment to be held in Denver, Aug. 29, 30 and 31.

At the next Department of Minnesota of U. S. W. V. an effort will probably be made to secure the 1912 encampment at Duluth. The encampments are meetings of this organization to freshen up the memories of the members of the war in which they took part, and whose last engagement, "the capture of Manila," took place just twelve years ago today.

Habit.

Carlyle: Habit is the deepest law of human nature. It is our supreme strength, if also, in certain circumstances, our miserablest weakness. Let me go once, scanning my way with any earnestness of outlook, and successfully arriving, my footsteps are an invitation to me a second time to go by the same way; it is easier than any other way. Habit is our primal fundamental law, habit and imitation; there is nothing more perennial in us than these two. They are the source of all working and all apprenticeship, of all practice and all learning in the world.

The Wonders About Us.

John Burroughs: Let not care and humdrum deaden us to the wonders and mysteries amid which we live, nor to the splendors and glories. We need not translate ourselves in imagination to some other sphere or state of being to find the marvelous, the divine, the transcendent; we need not postpone our day of wonder and appreciation to some future time and condition. The true inwardness of this gross visible world, hanging like an apple on the bough of the great cosmic tree, and swelling with all the juices and potencies of life, transcends anything we have dreamed of superterrestrial abodes.

He Knew What to Do.

New York Sun: A chauffeur who had just returned to the garage after taking the state's examination to determine his fitness to be licensed was asked by a fellow worker what the questions were:

"One of them was about meeting a skittish horse," he replied. "They asked what I would do if I approached a horse which showed signs of being afraid of the car and its driver held up his hand to me."

"What's the answer?" asked a bystander.

"Oh, I had that, all right," the chauffeur replied. "I told 'em I'd stop the car, take it apart and hide the pieces in the grass."

The Umpire's Lot.

The umpire stands behind the plate
Conspicuously in view;
The way that fellow toys with fate
Just keeps me in a stew!

He calls the balls the batter swats
And those he doesn't touch;
It's wonderful the way he spots

He puts the batter out or not
Just as he seems to please;
I'd hate to stand in that same spot
And hand out things like these!

Back to the bench he sends some chap;
A Giant maybe, too,
I often wonder if a scrap
Won't come when they are through.

An umpire cares not what he gives,
Strike three or just ball four;
It sets us guessing how he lives
When all the team is sore.

Ten per seems but a fragile sum
For umpiring, I say,
If you consider what may come
To him some cruel day.
—New York Sun.

Her Responsibility.

Youth's Companion: "Susannah," asked the preacher, when it came her turn to answer the usual question in such cases, "do you take this man to be your wedded husband, for better or for worse—"

"Jes' as he is, pahson," she interrupted; "jes' as he is. If he gits any bettah Ah'll know de good Lawd's gwine to take 'im; an' if he gits any wusser, why, Ah'll tend to 'im myself."

A TEMPEST IN A TUB.

(Reprinted from the writings of James M. Bailey, "the Danbury News Man," who died in 1894.)

It was all about a washtub. Mrs. Villiers had loaned Mrs. Ransom her washtub. This was two weeks ago last Monday. When Mrs. Villiers saw it again, which was the next morning, it stood on her back stoop, minus a hoop. Mrs. Villiers sent over to Mrs. Ransom's a request for the hoop, couched in language calculated to impugn Mrs. Ransom's reputation for carelessness. Mrs. Ransom lost no time in sending back word that the tub was all right when it was sent back and delicately intimated that Mrs. Villiers had better sweep before her own door first, whatever that might mean. Each having discharged a Christian duty to each other, further communication was immediately cut off, and the affair was briskly discussed by the neighbors, who entered into the merits and demerits of the affair with unselfish zeal.

Heaven bless them! Mrs. Ransom clearly explained her connection with the tub by charging Mr. Villiers with coming home drunk as a fiddler the night before Christmas. This bold statement threatened to carry the neighbors over in a body to Mrs. Ransom's view, until Mrs. Villiers remembered and promptly chronicled the fact that the Ransoms were obliged to move away from their last place because of non-payment of rent. Here the matter rested among the neighbors, leaving them as undecided as before. But between the two families immediately concerned the fire burned as luridly as when first kindled. It was a constant skirmish between the two women from early morning till late at night. Mrs. Ransom would glare through her blinds when Mrs. Villiers was in the yard and murmur between her clenched teeth:

"Oh, you hussy!"

And with that wonderful instinct which characterizes the human above the brute animal, Mrs. Villiers understood that Mrs. Ransom was thus engaged, and lifting her nose at the highest angle compatible with the safety of her spinal cord, would sail around the yard as triumphantly as if escorted by a brigade of genuine princes.

And then would come Mrs. Villiers' turn at the window with Mrs. Ransom in the yard, with a like satisfactory and edifying result.

When company called on Mrs. Villiers, Mrs. Ransom would peer from behind her curtains and audibly exclaim:

"Who's that fright, I wonder?"

And when Mrs. Ransom was favored with a call it was Mrs. Villiers' blessed privilege to be at the window and audibly observe:

"Where was that clod dug up from?"

Mrs. Ransom has a little boy named Tommy, and Mrs. Villiers has a similar sized son, who struggles under the cognomen of Wickliffe Morgan, and it will happen, because these two children are too young to grasp fully the grave responsibilities of life—it will happen, I repeat, that they will come together in various respects. If Mrs. Ransom is so fortunate as to first observe one of these collisions she promptly steps to the door and, covertly waiting till Mrs. Villiers' door opens, she shrilly observes—"Thomas Jefferson, come right into this house this minute! How many times have I told you to keep away from that Villiers brat?"

"Villiers brat!" What a stab that is! What subtle poison it is saturated with! Poor Mrs. Villiers' breath comes thick and hard, her face burns like fire, and her eyes almost snap out of her head. She has to press her hand to her heart as if to keep that organ from bursting; there is no relief from the dreadful throbbing and the dreadful pain. The slamming of Mrs. Ransom's door shuts out all hope of succor. But it quickens Mrs. Villiers' faculties and makes her so alert that when the two children come together again, which they very soon do, she is first at the door. Now is the opportunity to heap burning coals on the head of Mrs. Ransom. She heaps them.

"Wickliffe Morgan! what are you doing out there with that Ransom imp? Do you want to catch some disease? Come in here before I skin you." And the door slams shut and poor Mrs. Ransom, with trembling form and bated breath and flashing eyes, clinches her fingers and glares with tremendous wrath over the landscape.

And in the absence of any real, tangible information as to the loss of that hoop, this is perhaps the very best that can be done on either side.

The Rhyme of Ye Fisherman.

Oh, he was a fisherman brave and bold
Who went to fish on the ocean cold,
He fished all day, and he fished all night,
But nary a fish on his hook would bite.
The codfish winked, and the sardine sad
And the pranksome whale
Lashed his joyous tail
Till the waves beat high on the sandy shallows
And the hungry snark
With the ways so dark
Flopped around like a squirrel in Central park.
They were all too bright
On that bait to bite,
For they knew full well if they bit that bait
It was no Sandy Hook would be their fate,
But a dinner bell
Would sound their knell
In a private house or a swell hotel.
So the fisherman, with his heart broke,
Went back once more to his waiting folk;
But lest they think he'd no luck at all,
He stopped on the way and hired a haul,
And he told his kids of what fun he'd had
In getting a grip on that ten-pound shad;
And how he'd fought for the mackerel
That they loved so well;
And how that cod so sleek and fat
Had knocked him flat
With his four-pound fin
As he pulled him in;
And how a whale he'd harpooned the whiles
Had carried his boat for a hundred miles
Ere he cut the line that would set him free
Lest he land on the coast of Jigamaree.

MORAL.

Believe no tales that the fishers tell,
They're all good men, and they all mean well,
But it's Nature's plan, and it never fails;
There's something fishy in all fish tales.
—John Kendrick Bang, in Lippincott's.

New Political Nomenclature.

Altoona Constitution: In a recent issue The Springfield, Mass., Republican, a paper with an outlook that is national, remarks, "There are, in reality, only two political parties in the United States—the insurgents and the regulars."

The Republican states a fact that is becoming increasingly obvious, however, reluctant the bourbons of both parties may be to make the admission.

The situation in this country is identically as described by the Constitution several months ago when, discussing the congressional situation national politics as being in the "melting pot" stage.

Just how conditions may resolve themselves not the keenest prophet can with safety predict. It may be the insurgents will capture both the old parties. It may be the present wrangling will continue and broaden, so that ultimately a brand-new alignment will force itself into being.

At any rate, a system of political nomenclature that brands Cannon and Murdock as Republicans, and that perpetrates similar inaccuracies in the Democratic party, cannot much longer continue to prevail.

Virtue.

Theodore Roosevelt: Virtue by itself is not strong enough, or anything like it. It must have strength added to it, and the determination to use that strength.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

•••Joseph Wolf, the well known contractor, has just closed a deal for the twenty-five feet on Superior street adjoining the Henderson building at Fifth avenue west. He paid $20,000, or $800 a foot, the highest price ever paid for inside property so far west on the street. He will erect a building that will cost about $25,000. It will be four stories on Superior street and four on Michigan.

•••Governor J. Proctor Knott could not fail to be pleased with the banquet accorded his party at the Spalding last night. Judge Page Morris acted as toastmaster. Acting Mayor T. W. Hugo extended a welcome to the governor on behalf of the city. S. A. Thompson, in a bright and eloquent address, welcomed the visitors on behalf of the business men. Daniel G. Cash, as a representative of the old settlers of Duluth, also extended a hearty welcome and paid a high tribute to the honored guest. He said it was his fortune to be a resident of Duluth when it was discovered by Governor Knott. The banquet closed with an eloquent speech by the governor.

•••Rev. B. W. Irving, who, during the past summer has occupied the pulpit of the Lakeside Presbyterian church, died today at St. Luke's hospital after an illness of two weeks from typhoid fever. He was only 27 years of age, was a graduate of the first class of Macalester college, and was taking a course in the McCormick Theological institute at Chicago.

•••The Canadian Pacific railroad has acquired the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic and Minneapolis, Sault Ste. Marie & Atlantic roads' traffic from the West to Duluth over the Great Northern will go by the South Shore road and reach the East via the Vermont Central.

•••The employment department of the Y. M. C. A. has been organized about two months, but owing to the illness of the chairman, C. E. Doll, and the fact that few people know of its existence, little has been done.

FOR NORTHERN MINNESOTA.

"Best Farming Section."

Roseau Times: Roseau county is getting a pretty wide advertisement on account of the remarkably good grain crops notwithstanding continued dry weather. Contrary to all expectations the soil stood the drouth in a remarkable manner, and all grain crops will yield better than the average crop of past years, with the exception of 1895, which was a very wet season. The potato crop with the aid of recent rains will prove very good and all corn and vegetables are showing up extremely good. These conditions are gratifying and will all the more confirm our farmers in the opinion that Roseau county is the best farming section in the state. The crop conditions in Roseau are a revelation to all visitors and will prove a great boon in securing practical farmers who are looking for desirable and profitable farm homes.

Coming Into Her Own.

Cloquet Pine Knot: Reapportionment is a good-sized plank in the legislative candidates' platforms these days. It really looks as if Northern Minnesota is to come into her own at last.

In Favor of Boosting.

Crookston Times: Do your share towards making the Polk county fair the success it should be, and don't waste your time criticizing the other fellow.

Has a Good Crop Yield.

Middle River Pioneer: Despite the general cry of drouth this section of the county is not going to fare so badly this year. A drive out through the country convinces one that there will be a considerable crop yield after all. Much of the wheat will yield half a crop, the flax will do even better than that and some of the farmers will have considerable oats. People who come in here from farther south admit that things look better here than anywhere else they have seen. Besides all this there has been more hay put up here than usual. Farmers who are going to be short of grain will thus feed their stock more than the usual amount of hay and get through the winter all right. Others will reap quite a revenue by having high priced hay to sell. The creamery will still run and pay a good price for butterfat. So, take it all around, there is nothing to feel particularly apprehensive about.

Better Pass It, Though.

Anoka Union: If the coming legislature passes a reapportionment bill, you may be sure it will not become operative until the senator's terms end.

Living Up to Its Name.

Mankato Free Press: The Northern Minnesota Development company is determined to live up to its name and then some. Not content with boosting its own particular section of the state it proposes to extend its usefulness over the entire commonwealth.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Why wouldn't watered silk make satisfactory bathing suits?

There is one bad habit that most of us are addicted too. We talk too much.

Some men would work if given a chance, but there are others who refuse to take chances.

Lasting fame means doing things so often that the world doesn't get a chance to forget you.

How we dislike a man who asks questions merely for the sake of getting a chance to answer them!

Glass eyes are now made with such perfection that even the wearers are unable to see through the deception.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The strongest belief a conceited man has is that he isn't.

An extra hateful bill to pay is when it was for something useful.

It seems as if the worse destiny treats a woman the more faith she can have in it.

A woman is willing to slave herself to death for a man who tells her she inspires him to want to do noble things for her.

A Tammany Epitaph.

Samuel McChord Crothers in the August Atlantic: The Hon. George Washington Plunkett of Tammany hall, declared that he wished but one inscription to be placed upon his tombstone: "He seen his opportunity and he took it." Here you have the startling point of all politics, good or bad. Opportunism is the protoplasm out of which all varieties are evolved. Politics consists not in making programs, or in passing judgment on accomplished facts, but in seeing and seizing opportunities. Now, opportunities are kittle-cattie. They do not stand around waiting to be taken home and brought up by hand. A man may be very honorable, and conscientious, and even erudite, and may never have seen an opportunity in his life. The politician is looking for small opportunities, for such pickings and stealings as a careless public may leave for those of his kind. The great politician is looking for great opportunities. He knows that he can do nothing till they come, but he must be prepared to recognize them instantly, and to grasp them in the brief moment when they are within his reach.

Allies.

La Follette's: The system press is outraged at what it calls the "unholy alliance" between the Progressive Republicans and the Progressive Democrats in congress. But how about that alliance between the Cannon Republicans and the Tammany Democrats? And that alliance between the Aldrich Republicans and the Big Business Democrats?

Reverie.

Amiel's Journal: Reverie, like the rain of night, restores color and force to thoughts which have been blanched and wearied by the heat of the day. With gentle fertilizing power it awakens within us a thousand sleeping germs and, as though in play, gathers round us materials for the future and images for the use of talent. Reverie is the Sunday of thought, and who knows which is the more important and fruitful for man, the laborious tension of the week, or the life-giving repose of the Sabbath?

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

The Bystander: Slim Pickings—Host (waxing sentimental)—And these bravo old monks, driven from their land, took the secret of Chartreuse with them.

Guest—Ah • • • Wal, no doubt they were no end clever, but the fellow that blew this glass had a darned short wind!

Philadelphia Record: First Lawyer—You did not have a bit of trouble with that woman. In fact, she turned out to be a perfect witness.

Second Lawyer—Yes; I took the precaution to have her age asked before she was sworn.

Puck: The Hare—But, of course, you'll give me another chance?

The Tortoise—Oh, I suppose I must! But understand right now my end of the purse'll be 75 per cent, win or lose!

Fliegende Blaetter: Friend (to dramatist whose piece is being played for the first time)—What is it you are making notes of?

"The places that the people don't boo. They will make a new piece."

Cornell Widow: Aspiring Vocalist—Professor, do you think I will ever be able to do anything with my voice?

Perspiring Teacher—Well, it might come in handy in case of fire or shipwreck.

Housekeeper: "John, did you take the note to Mr. Jones?"

"Yes, but I don't think he can read it."

"Why so, John?"

"Because he is blind, sir. While I wur in the room he axed me twice where my hat wur, and it wur on my head all the time."

Pele Mele: Tenant—I hear you have a letter for me. Just give it to me, will you?

Concierge—All right, ma'am, but I warn you you won't be able to make much out of it. None of the servants, nor my wife, nor myself can read it.

Washington Star: "Baseball isn't what it used to be out in my old town," said the boy who was selling soft drinks, cigars, chewing gum and candy. "What makes you think so?"

"People didn't wait till they got thirsty to buy lemon soda and sarsaparilla. What they were after were bottles to throw at the umpires."

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Remember my boy, there are other things worth while in college besides athletics."

Boston Transcript: "Maud surprised her husband last night with her first loaf of bread."

"Indeed, and what did he say?"

"He said: 'This is so sodden.'"

Fliegende Blaetter: Absent-Minded Professor (meeting a friend unexpectedly on a mountain peak)—Hello! Did you climb up from below?

Washington Star: "How are you going to meet the arguments of your opponents?"

"Easily," replied the statesman. "They can't hold a successful meeting. I've made exclusive contracts with all the brass bands in my districts."

Points for Churchgoers.

Philadelphia Bulletin: A clergyman was smoking a cigar under an oak.

"My congregation coughed this morning," he said. "I could hardly make myself heard. It was most annoying."

"Well," said a physician, "the next time they cough, tell them to press the upper lip just beneath the nose. Pressing the nerves in that quarter will stop the most obstinate cough, and, by the same token, it will stop a sneeze too.

"I'll tell you how to stop the hiccoughs. You press hard on the cheek, right in front of the ear. Those nerves there control the hiccoughs as money controls politics. You need only press—the nerves will do the rest."

THE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL

Begins its seventh successful year on Sept. 6th with a complete staff of specially trained teachers, who cover the work of the grades together with those studies that fit for college—geology, physics, chemistry, history, English, French, German, Latin and Greek. It prepares for business and for life also.

The classes are small and the course of study broad and elastic. The needs of the students are paramount, and a disciplined mind rather than an informed mind is its aim. Its teachers, except in the primary grades, are men.

We have satisfied others; we will satisfy you.

Presidents of Minnesota Normal Schools Meet in Duluth.

The State Normal Board Will Meet Here Tuesday Morning.

Presidents of the normal schools of Minnesota met this morning and this afternoon at the Spalding hotel and discussed questions pertaining to the administration of the institutions over which they preside. The subject of the controlling policy in the summer schools was taken up this morning and in the afternoon a number of important subjects occupied the attention of the educators.

The school presidents will remain in the city two days, attending the meeting of the state normal school board tomorrow, when they will make a report on their discussions of today.

The educators and board members will be given a good time while in the city. J. L. Washburn, the resident member of the board, has arranged a program of entertainment that will relieve the sessions of any hint of drudgery.

Tomorrow morning the visitors will be taken for an automobile ride about the city, starting at 9 o'clock. The first meeting of the board will begin at 10 o'clock, at the normal school. The school presidents and members of the board will be given a luncheon at the Spalding, after which they will be taken to Fond du Lac and return by boat. In the evening there will be a theater party at the Lyceum.

Wednesday morning there will be another auto tour, after which the business of the board will occupy the attention of the visitors, who will again be the guests at a luncheon at the Spalding.

Those attending today's sessions were: Guy E. Maxwell of Winona; Charles H. Cooper of Mankato; W. A. Shoemaker of St. Cloud; Frank A. Weld of Moorhead, and Eugene W. Bohanron of Duluth.

The board meetings tomorrow will be held at the Duluth normal school and will be attended by the following members of the board: Gen. Eli Torrance of Minneapolis, president; C. G. Schulz of St. Paul, secretary and state superintendent of schools; S. H. Somsen of Winona; John C. Wise of Mankato; Karl Matthie of St. Cloud; C. A. Nye of Moorhead; H. E. Hoard of Montevideo; W. E. C. Ross of Blue Earth, and J. L. Washburn of Duluth.

At the last session of the legislature $50,000 was appropriated for the construction of an addition to the Duluth normal school. The board will let the contract for this work tomorrow, besides transacting routine financial business.

The presence here of the presidents of the normal schools will afford an opportunity for an exchange of ideas between the board members and the executives of the different institutions, which will be an advantage in the discussion of subjects pertaining to the course of study and administrative problems.

FORMER WRIGHT COUNTY JUDGE LAID AT REST.

Deer River, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—David Cochrane, aged 65, who died on his homestead, near Wirt, was buried at Howard Lake, Minn., Saturday, following services at the local Methodist church, conducted by Rev. THREATENS MEN IN OFFICIAL LIFE

New York, Aug. 15.—A letter in which the writer threatens death to several judges in this city and Brooklyn and several assistant district attorneys, was received at the district attorney's office today and turned over to the police for investigation. The letter was addressed to District Attorney Whitman. In part the letter says that the writer and three others "have decided to deal out a death sentence to Judge O'Sullivan, Judge Malone, Judge Fawcett, Judge Rosalsky, District Attorneys Ely, Hart and two others, for our lives are not worth living. I cannot locate my wife and child. I was charged with grand larceny, and as sure as God is in heaven I was innocent, and I am also sure that many a man in state's prison is innocent.

"The day is not far when some of the above mentioned names will be a thing of the past. This may be taken as a joke, but wait for results. It is a disgrace to the world to see a married man taken from his family just because certain people go to the district attorney and swear they were swindled."

COPPERS HAVE A REACTION

Profit-Taking Sends Market Down After Last Week's Advance.

Scattered liquidation in metals sent coppers downward today. The selling in coppers and steel was steady during the session and consisted chiefly of the abandonment of long lines by holders, who believed that the advance had gone far enough for the present. There was slight buying around the low levels, which caused occasional rallies. These were of short duration, however.

The metal market appears to be on a moderately firm basis of 12¾c for electrolytic for thirty days' payment. Daily buying since the fore part of last week has been moderately heavy. Phelps, Dodge & Co. advanced the price of electrolytic to 12¾c on Saturday from 12⅝c. The United Metals Selling company followed with a similar advance today. The bottom prices in the copper metal market appear to have been reached.

The local market was broad and active, although the volume of trading was not as large as some days last week. Nearly 7,000 shares were traded in and the character was good, many high priced stocks changing hands. The undertone was fairly firm, although the action of the market was mixed. There was a feeling of confidence that the slight reaction was due to profit taking and that a renewed buying movement would get into swing again later in the week.

Butte-Alex Scott, part paid, sold at $4 and the full paid at $6.75. Butte-Ballaklava was weak and sold at $12 to $11.87½. In the East this issue sold at $11.75 to $11 and then at $11.25. Copper Queen was traded in at 28c. Denn was weaker at $3.18¾ to $3.06¼ and then at $3.12½. Live Oak was one of the strongest stocks on the board, selling at $18.25 to $18.75. North Butte sold at $28.75 and in the East at $29.75 to $28.25.

The full paid Savanna sold at $2.37½. Shattuck was exceptionally active and was the feature of the list in this respect. Barney Cook and J. C. McFadden of this city and John Warn of Eveleth returned yesterday from a visit to the Star district of Utah. They inspected the Red Warrior, Mowitza and St. Mary's mines and several others, including the Moscow, the stock of which sold here for 10 cents several years ago but which is now difficult to buy.

There are fourteen producing mines in the district, said Mr. Cook, and several others will enter the shipping list in the near future. The Red Warrior is shipping high grade ore to a smelter and is more than paying its way. It has no smelter charges, the smelter paying the company a premium of 50 cents a ton for the privilege of smelting the Red Warrior's ore because of certain constituents in the mineral matter needed by the smelter.

The Red Warrior shaft, said Mr. Cook, has reached a depth of 500 feet. Developments are in progress on both the 300 and 500-foot levels. The drifts and laterals are in high grade ore which is being rapidly blocked out.

FINDING OF ABANDONED SILVER MINE ON NORTH SHORE RECALLS OLD TRAGEDY

With the passing of the forest on the North Shore, discoveries are continually being made, which arouse the curiosity of man and present to his mind theories to explain romances which can only be guessed at.

Lying on the crest of a high, steep hill, which rises into the heavens as a rocky wall, are the bleached bones of a white man who evidently met his death at the hands of one whom he considered his boon companion. Jealousy, greed, avarice are the only accountable reasons which would prompt the murder in the wild woods at a time when companionship is held so dear.

About eighteen miles from this scene is to be found the watery grave of the supposed murderer, according to the stories told by settlers, for after having slain his friend, the homicide left the scenes of their activity, and while trying to make his way through a poorly cut trail, on the edge of a high precipice, he missed his footing and fell to his death.

The bones of the murdered man are to be found today on the hill top in township 58-5, about one mile from Thomasville, Cook county. But besides telling the story of tragedy and horror, they tell of the adventures and the trials of white men in the hunt for wealth.

The story told by old Indian guides to the pioneer settlers and fishermen, is believed to be true, for it pictures realistically the extremes to which many will go in their ambition for wealth.

Although the North Shore of Lake Superior has been settled for many years, and the land devastated with serious forest fires, still few, even in Northern Minnesota, know of its vast wealth as a mining region. Here, it is claimed, are to be found places rich in silver.

The bones already mentioned, form but a part of the many markings which indicate the place of a once active mining locality. This place was recently sold by Phillip Slagts, who now resides in the township of Schroeder, a landing near Thomasville, to Frank H. Chandler of Duluth and Harris McIver of Grand Marais.

Mining Camp Found.

When the land was turned over to Mr. Slagts four years ago, it was heavily timbered, and nothing could be found which would indicate that it had been a mining camp many years before. It was not until this timber was cut and much of the shrubbery removed, that these tell-tale evidences of an old murder were brought to light.

These prompted Mr. Slagts to investigate, and after interviewing many of the old Indians he had secured sufficient evidence to draw up a good story of the tragedy.

About 1860 two white men came to the wild woods of the North Shore, evidently to seek gold and silver. It is believed that their primary object in leaving civilization at that time was to escape drafting into the army during the Civil war. But having reached this northern section of the state, they heard from Indians that silver and gold were to be mined here in abundance.

Having arrived in the neighborhood of the silver mine, they held a conference with Chief Beaver Bay, who was later known as Chief Charles Beaver Bay to the settlers, at which it was arranged to mine this silver, with the three men as partners.

At the foot of this high rocky hill, over which a large stream of water flowed, the men started work, drilling a tunnel about twenty-five feet into the base. From this they sank a shaft over forty feet, from which they took out ore, undoubtedly rich in silver. It is estimated that the value of the silver they took out was between $2,500 and $3,000.

On one side of the creek formed from the stream which passed over the hill, they made a stone smelting furnace, where they removed most of the impurities of the ore. This furnace still stands, although there are signs of crumbling and decay. Almost directly across from this are the timber beams which formed the foundation for a two-room cabin and a small blacksmith shop.

Both these buildings were constructed of logs, crudely hued and placed together. But they have been burned down by the forest fires which have swept over the land, and the only remnants are the foundations and floors. The floors, however, have so rotted that through the holes small trees have found their way, which have grown until today they are good sized trees towering from an old structure.

All these landmarks were lost to view for many years until Mr. Slagts came upon the scene. He did not know of the tunnel nor the shaft, until he began an investigation. Over the opening into the tunnel lay a large tree, which had fallen down but a few years before, and this completely obstructed the tunnel. When it was taken away, the tunnel was discovered. This led to a further examination, and soon the entire place was cleaned out and sample ore removed.

Miners In Dispute.

The story continues that after the men had taken out the ore and removed the impurities, a dispute arose between them as to the division of the silver. The feeling between the two men became so bitter, and when it had reached its climax, one of the men killed his friend. Having committed this crime, it is said he started off from the old mining grounds, taking the old trail which leads to the Palisades. Among the provisions which he had with him was a large jug filled with whisky. Of this, he is said to have drank freely.

Having arrived at the Palisades, where the precipices are high and steep, he had considerable difficulty in making his way along the narrow trail, which in many places was obstructed by fallen trees. It is believed that while passing along this precipice he fell into the water, and died.

With the passing away of these two men the silver mine which had so much promise disappeared from sight, for the Indians never called the attention of others to it. Only the removal of the heavy timber revealed its presence.

The present owners are planning to work the mine, which is believed to be a fairly good proposition. During the past week several well known mining men of this city have visited the place, and good reports are made by them.

Estimating Timber Damage.

The Oliver Iron Mining company has sent several cruisers into the timber holdings between Two Harbors and Tower to ascertain the damage by fire this year. Considerable logging may be necessary next winter to save timber damaged by fire. The annual report that the Alger-Smith mill at Tower has been sold to the Oliver interests is denied by General Manager John Millen of the former company.

For Stealing Rug.

Thomas O'Leary and Charles Carroll were arrested last night by a patrolman on suspicion of having stolen a large rug from a car in the Northern Pacific yards. The policeman saw them carrying the unusually large bundle and put them under arrest when they were unable to tell how it came into their possession. The police are trying to locate the owner. O'Leary and Carroll were not arraigned in court this morning.

J. Oreckovsky of J. & M. Oreckovsky, left yesterday for New York and Boston on a buying trip.

For Lifting the Lid.

Frank Spence was arrested yesterday charged with selling liquor on Sunday. The evidence against him was secured by Patrolmen Stahl and Youngstrom, to whom it is alleged he made the sale. Spence entered a plea of not guilty and will be tried Aug. 23, at 2 o'clock.

Looking for Negro.

A big negro wearing a brown suit of clothes is being sought by the police on complaint of Conductor Mitchell of the street railway company, who alleged last evening that the colored man had threatened him with a gun at Lake avenue and Superior street. He stated that the negro had made trouble all the way over from Superior and that he pulled a gun as he was leaving the car.

Fame Reaches South America.

The progressiveness of Duluth has reached to Buenos Ayres, in South America. Dr. Pedro Diaz Colodrero, an attorney, has written John McCall, secretary of the mayor, for information relative to the city. He states that they recognize that Duluth is one of the busiest towns in the United States and wishes to give it representation in a compilation of the leading municipalities of the world which he is preparing for their centennial celebration.

Bears Are Numerous.

Bears are alleged to have been depleting the stores of construction camps along the new extension of the Duluth and Northern Minnesota railroad, putting cooks on the verge of despair and the men in fear of starvation. Several of them have been killed after they got into the habit of repeating their excursions, furnishing the gangs with unexpected bear steak. Game is reported to be plentiful along the line of the new road.

St. Paul Man Missing.

The police have been asked to help find Myron Standish of North St. Paul, who disappeared from his home Aug. 5. He is 25 years old, about 5 feet 5 inches tall, weighs about 137 pounds and has thick red hair with a smooth face. The last time his wife saw him he kissed her and the babies good-bye, stating that he would return shortly.

Inspector Resigns.

The New England store, handling men's furnishings and dry goods, at 205½ West First street, was gutted by fire early yesterday morning. The floor was burned through; a quantity of goods was destroyed and most of the contents damaged by fire and water. The loss will amount to about $500, partly covered by insurance.

MAY ESCAPE ON INSANITY PLEA

Alleged Murderer Is Claimed By Attorney to Be Demented.

Guiseppi Furlani, who was indicted by the grand jury for the murder of Mario Furlani on July 4 last in Stuntz township, is being examined for his sanity today in district court.

S. C. Scott, his attorney, went up to the jail to talk to him this morning and Furlani talked in such a wild and incoherent manner that Mr. Scott at once decided on the examination.

Furlani struck the murdered man over the head with a crow bar, fracturing his skull and his victim died five days later.

SCOUT WILL MAKE REPORT

Dalton, Mass., Aug. 15.—United States Senator W. Murray Crane, who, according to dispatches from Beverly, is expected to visit President Taft tomorrow and report concerning the political situation as the senator observed it in the course of his recent trip to the West, may be on his way to the summer capital by automobile.

It was stated here today that the senator had left Dalton on an auto trip throubh Vermont, New Hampshire and Massachusetts. Whether this trip has any significance politically; in view of the fact that a state election in Vermont and state primaries in New Hampshire will be held three weeks from tomorrow, could not be learned from Stnator Crane's office today.

Lull at Beverly.

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 15.—There was a decided lull at Beverly today. Only two callers were scheduled to see the president, and neither was concerned with a political errand. One was Judge Woodmansee of Cincinnati, an old friend of the Taft family, and the other Leonardo Osoriyes, former governor of a province in the Philippines.

Mr. Taft talked politics with Representative Nicholas Longworth today while the two played golf on the Myopia links.

FOES OF CONSERVATION TO INSIST ON CHECK ON FEDERAL PUBLICITY

Washington, Aug. 15.—During the coming session of congress the country is promised a fight on the conservation movement by a strong coterie of men from the public land states, who expect to kill the popular interest in conservation by putting a check on the publicity work indulged in by various bureaus in several of the departments which are concerned with the study of utilization of natural resources.

A number of senators and members of the house have insisted for some time that they will not stand for this "conservation hysteria," as they call it; that the natural resources of the West must be exploited along the "first come, first served" plan, the same as in the past. They claim that there has not been much land grabbing, and that the occasional frauds unearthed, and even the startling disclosures concerning conditions in Alaska, are not so serious after all. It all means "development," they say, even if a monopoly or two be created in the process.

Too Easy to Learn.

Those who will be behind the coming fight have figured that the principal reason for the country's applauding both the Progressive Republicans and the Democrats who are making the conservation movement an issue is because the newspapers and magazines have had the task of getting information from the departments made too easy.

The first skirmish in the fight which will begin in earnest next winter was opened by Representative Tawney of Minnesota during the last session, while the agricultural appropriation bill was up. Tawney is about as warm towards conservation as Uncle Joe Cannon is, and as soon as he got the opportunity he attempted to clap on an amendment to the bill, a proviso which would have made it impossible for the forest service of the department of agriculture, except "on request," to give out any information to newspapers or to magazines.

Beat Tawney's Scheme.

The attempt to stifle publicity on studies to save the timber supply, wood pulp investigations, timber frauds, and prevention of forest fires was imemdiately discovered. Representatives Cooper and Morse of Wisconsin, and Keifer of Ohio offered strenuous objections, and showed that the amendment would mean that the public would get very little or no information under its provisions, for not many people would be likely to request something which they did not know existed. The amendment was defeated, and an opportunity to prevent conservation publicity was lost.

The plan for the attack is unique but simple, the idea being to remove the cause of public support and close the channels of publicity through which the acquirement of information by newspapers and magazines is made possible.

Several of the bureaus have had in their employ for years trained newspaper men whose work has been to condense nad throw into understandable English, scientific reports which in the old days were lost to the general public because they were weighed down with technical expressions often known only to learned members of scientific societies.

Will Push the Fight.

The congressmen who have looked down upon publicity work in the past, and who are expected to lead the fight against it next year, maintain that when specific information is wanted a person can write for it, and that it is unnecessary to employ former newspaper men or others to condense and popularize the information collected by Uncle Sam. The opposition has never been organized, but next year it is hoped to push the fight in both the house and in the senate, in the committee and on the floor. And all that is necessary to insure their success is to get into the wording of the appropriation bill two little words, "on request."

WEATHER REPORTS BY WIRELESS.

A movement is on foot at the present time to secure the co-operation of the government in arranging to have weather observations furnished to the ships of the Great Lakes. F. G. Moe of the United Wireless company, is working on the scheme with H. W. Richardson, local weather inspector, and if their efforts meet with success, weather observing instruments will be placed at Isle Royale and at Grand Marais. If this was done the weather conditions over the entire lake could be reported at the Duluth office and in turn communicated to the various ship captains.

RISKING LIFE FOR MONEY.

William A. Johnston in Munsey's: The diver makes a grimace as he views the bridge worker on his lofty parch.

"I wouldn't stand up there for a million," says he. "The mans' a fool!"

Some ludicrous instances of this feeling have been noted. A dynamiter, who, at the time of a desperate strike, calmly pitched his bed in a quarry powder house over several tons of the uncertain and awful explosive, walked several miles out of his way each evening to avoid crossing the ice of a frozen river with his fellow workmen.

The amusement world offers side lights on the subject. Take the circus acrobat, the "thriller" specialist, the snake charmer, the animal trainer, the "loop-the-looper," the parachute jumper. On what basis are they paid, and what prompts them to defy death?"

This latter question was put bluntly to Captain Baldwin, the first man to give a public exhibition of parachute jumping in this country. He proposed to the managers of an amusement party in San Francisco to jump down 1,000 feet from the clouds.

"But," asked the amazed official, "why do you want to do it?"

"To make money," said Baldwin calmly. "I'll have to charge you a dollar a foot."

For another descent at Quincy, Ill., Captain Baldwin received $2,500; and he continued his exhibitions, as did Leo Stevens, till many others took up the idea, and the rates dropped so low that the dangerous feat ceased to hold out any inducement.

In the case of these "acts," as in the trades, it would seem that a performer is paid for the big risks he takes; but he isn't. He is paid for his ingenuity in devising the feat—for his skill, in other words. Just as soon as the act becomes common, and the novelty that draws crowds is gone, its money value drops very low, despite the fact that its hazards remain just the same.

The first "loop-the-loop" performance, at Madison Square Garden, is said to have brought to its promoters the sum of $1,000 a week. Today there are men ready and anxious to repeat it, even to add additional risks, for less than one-tenth of that amount. But the novelty is gone; the fickle public wants to see human beings dare death in new ways.

It is commonly believed that the woman who, strapped helplessly in an automobile, turns a double somersault in mid-air, receives a princely sum; but she doesn't. The man who originated the idea, and who patented the incline, pockets almost all the money; the performer risks her life for only $35 a week. And when the last performer was killed, more than eighty women applied for the place—at that same wage.

This heroine of the "thriller" has no standing in the circus family. There is no skill in her act; she simply risks her life, which is nothing. Acrobats and equestrians, on the other hand, take great pride in their work, are constantly striving to add to its ingenious, spectacular side, and are paid accordingly—for their skill.

The daring individual, bedecked in finery, who enters a cage of snarling beasts, and puts them through their paces, often receives the pitiful sum of $10 or $12 a week—rarely over $15. Most show animals are tame; but it is a well known fact that the savage instinct of a wild beast is never quite conquered, and may return in murderous force at any instant. One has only to read the daily newspapers to realize the dangers of this calling.

It may be urged that the training of wild animals involves skill. So it does; but the original trainer is rarely the exhibitor, unless he has devised so difficult an act that he alone can continue to produce it. Here, again, the wage is that of skill.

The wily showman bests the ordinary trainer by ordering an assistant, in or about the arena, to watch the act and learn the necessary cues. When this stage is reached the manager parts with his $50-a-week trainer and takes on the helper. The danger remains the same, but the pay is half or one-third as much. The thing at issue is only a human life.

And so the list goes on. It is undoubtedly true, particularly of the amusement and show world, that excitement and the love of daring attract and hold many. To the circus acrobat, the blare of the band and the applause of the crowd become, as it were, the very breath of life. The racing automobilist never thinks of death in his mad rush. The song that trills his being is the song of speed—"faster, faster, faster!" If he feels any fear at all, it is the fear of a hunted animal. He is afraid of the man behind him in the race—afraid that he will be passed and beaten.

SQUARE MILE OF DEAD BIRDS.

Outing: It may be asserted with considerable degree of probability that there is no one natural factor more destructive to bird life than the migratory habit. Here is a well known recent instance: One night in March there was an immense migration of Lapland longspurs over Minnesota.

A wet snow storm came on, chilling and bewildering the birds. Over an area estimated at hundreds of square miles dead birds were found. In the towns and cities they swept them up and carted them off. On wire lakes the ice was dotted with them in all directions about a foot or two apart. The number that perished at that one time was doubtless in the millions.

When pay days stop, rent days come along a-galloping. Want advertising can—if persisted in for a reasonable time—restore pay day to your regime of life.

TIES ARE OF EBONY.

Kansas City Star: Many thousands of ebony trees of large commercial growth are found upon the uncleared lands in the lower valley of Rio Grande in Texas. As yet no effort has been made to utilize this valuable timber for anything except to make railroad ties.

Since the agricultural invasion of this region began a few years ago large tracts of land have been cleared and the ebony trees found thereon were cut into crossties and used upon the railroad that penetrates the valley territory.

Logs of good size could be made from great numbers of these trees still standing. A few of the land owners recognized the value of the trees and left them untouched in clearing the shrubbery and other trees from their property. It is claimed that crossties made of ebony will outlast any other wood.

The little railroad that runs from Brownsville to Point Isabel contains ebony ties that were laid in 1868, when the road was first built. These ties are still in a perfect state of preservation.

Couldn't Trust Des Moines Associates

But Not Afraid to Trust Himself Now That He Has Taken The Neal Three Day Cure.

In a letter to State Senator Bruce, Atlantic, Iowa, this patient expressed the fear of bing tempted to drink if he stayed in Des Moines, so he shunned temptation.

"———, N. D., March 28, '10.

"Mr. J. E. Bruce,

"Atlantic, Iowa.

"Dear Sir: Words cannot express how satisfied I am that I took the Neal Cure. One who does not drink cannot realize the satisfaction it is to be able to say "No" and realize that you mean it.

"I was born and raised in Des Moines and my mother still lives there. I began drinking by being around with the crowd of young fellows. I know of at least 25 or 35 of these young fellows that would take this treatment if approached properly, but after taking the cure I was afraid to trust myself in D. M., so came home at once. Am not afraid to trust myself now. For this reason I did not get a chance to see them and get them to try it.

"Honestly, I would not have missed taking that cure for $10,000.00 and Mrs. (his wife) is better satisfied with it than I am. I certainly wish the cure a success.

"Yours truly,

(Signed) "———"

S.S.S. PERMANENTLY HEALS SORES AND ULCERS

No matter in what way an old sore or ulcer first commenced, whether from a wound, cut, or bruise, or from the ulceration of a pimple wart or mole, or even if it came without apparent reason, the fact that it does not heal shows that bad blood is back of the place. While the circulation remains impure and polluted the nerves and tissues of the flesh around the place are constantly being fed with unhealthy matter and the fibres are thus prevented from knitting together and healing. Purify the blood and the place MUST heal, its cause having been removed. S. S. S. cures old sores and chronic ulcers because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers. It cleanses and removes from the circulation every taint or impurity, and so enriches the blood that it feeds and nourishes the tender, sensitive flesh, causes a knitting together of all fibrous tissue and thus heals the place entirely; it works on the simple principle of curing by removing the impurities which produce the trouble. NEW TOWN BEING BUILT

The new town of Walsh has been born on the Vermilion iron range and although the plat has not yet been filed, nearly $100,000 worth of lots have been sold. In a few more months it will be a village of considerable size. A dozen buildings are on the townsite already. Work is to begin at once on a 40-room hotel, a general store, a drug store and several dozen residences, principally homes for the miners. None of these buildings are to be erected by the owners of the townsite. They will be built by individuals.

Walsh adjoins the station of Tower Junction on the Duluth & Iron Range railroad, and is midway between Tower and Soudan. It is springing up about the Walsh shaft, the first concrete and steel shaft on the Vermilion range, on the property of the North American Iron Mining company. From this shaft will be taken iron, gold, silver and copper.

Stockholders in the North American were notified that Walsh town lots were for sale at $250 each and were given first chance to buy them. They bought every lot offered. The entire townsite is as level as a floor and is traversed by several good roads of gravel laid over peat.

The town is named after T. J. Walsh, president of the mining company. The strike of silver, gold and copper on the North American property, in addition to large bodies of high grade iron ore, was chronicled in The Herald recently. Since then another lot of ore was shipped to a smelter at Denver. One batch was rock picked up on either side of the cut at Tower Junction made by the railroad. This rock yielded $6.40 a ton of silver and gold and $1.50 of copper per ton. The other batch was what is known as graphetic ore, obtained by diamond drills. This ore assayed $43 to the ton of silver and gold, with a trace of copper. Some time ago a batch of ore from the property was sent to an Omaha smelter produced $15 of silver and gold, about two-thirds of the values being silver, and enough copper to cover the cost of mining and smelting.

Shipments of ore will be made next week to smelters at Salt Lake City and St. Louis. The North American company is having the ore treated at many different points to ascertain the best methods of treatment to save all values. When it has satisfied itself upon this point the company will erect a smelter at Walsh. It has the funds on hand for this purpose.

The Walsh shaft, which is to be ninety-four feet in depth, is down today eighty-two feet and the remaining twelve feet will be completed within ten days. So much trouble was experienced in getting "sandhogs," as workers in compressed air are known, that the foundation company, constructing the shaft, recently brought twenty-two negroes from St. Louis. These giant blacks stand the air pressure better than any other laborers. They work only three hours per day and are paid $1.25 an hour.

Last week a strike of high grade Bessemer ore was made in the North American mine at a depth of seventy-four feet. The strike is on the south side of the north ore formation, which was disclosed by diamond drills before work on the shaft was started. This ore assays as high as 67 per cent of metallic iron. Iron mining is what the North American started out to do and it expects to place its iron mine in the shipping list early next season. The money is in its treasury for that purpose.

The North American has had a singularly successful career. It is one of the promotions of T. J. Walsh. Only a year ago 108,000 shares of its stock were offered at par, $1. The offering was oversubscribed 46.00 shares. No additional treasury stock was offered to the public and none is for sale. The stock rules around $4 in the open market.

The North American mine and the town site of Walsh are located on the homestead of T. J. Walsh, who had to fight for twenty years to establish his claim and employ several high-priced lawyers at a cost of thousands of dollars. C. de Autremont, Jr., the mining magnate, who is not now practicing law is given most of the credit for the Walsh victory in the courts.

IS PASTOR OF UNIQUE CHURCH

Syracuse Congregation Is Following the Plans of the Y. M. C. A.

A church costing $200,000, built on the plan of the average Y. M. C. A. building will be erected in Syracuse, N. Y., by the congregation of the Baptist church of that city, of which Rev. W. W. Dawley, formerly of this city, is the head.

Rev. Mr. Dawley preached in the First Baptist church, First street and Ninth avenue east, yesterday. He left the pastorate of the First Baptist church in 1896 to take charge of the Woodland Baptist church, St. Paul. He is here meeting former friends.

The Syracuse church has a membership of $1,500. It is spending $200,000 in a building that will permit the church to make a feature of its social life From the bachelor apartments on the three upper floors the annual income is estimated at $12,000. A gymnasium will be in the basement. The Y. M. C. A. desires to lease the rooms on the upper floors, as its building nearby is too small for its needs.

PILING UP VICTORIES

Duluth's Naval Militia Men Are Adding to Their Laurels.

Officers' Gig Race Is Easily Won By Gopher Crew.

On Board U. S. S. Gopher, Lake Erie, Aug. 15.—The Gopher maintained her record by winning the officers' gig race yesterday afternoon. The Gopher crew finished three lengths ahead of the nearest rival. The Don Juan de Austria finished second. Doroteha third and the Yantic, fourth. In the Gopher boat were Ensign Joseph Carhart, stroke; Lieut. E. G. Smith, 2; Ensign A. O. Rabideau, 1; Surgeon T. W. M. Weum, coxswain. As the Wolverine and Nashville had no boats, the race was not regarded as official.

A race will probably be rowed for the Sherman trophy which was won by the Gopher last year and the Wolverine the year before. The trophy must be captured three times in succession before it comes into the permanent possession of a crew. In the cutter race the Don Juan defeated the Nashville. The Gopher has no cutter and was not entered.

Governor Warner of Michigan will be received at Detroit today. The fleet reached Detroit early this morning. The squadron left Cleveland last night and thousands of people watched the vessels weigh anchor.

FORMER DULUTHIAN AFTER POLITICAL HONORS.

Alfred Gillon, for eleven years court officer of the municipal court in this city, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for sherff of Bonner county, Idaho, and is making a most vigorous campaign. Mr. Gillon left Duluth some nine or ten years ago for the West, where he has acquired a large and valuable ranch at Addie, Idaho.

The Idaho laws prohibit a candidate for office from advertising in the papers, but Mr. Gillon has circularized the county quite thoroughly. His circulars contain some warm letters of commendation from many of the local judges and court officers, and nearly a hundred of the attorneys.

Mr. Gillon, in his letter to voters, stands on a platform of strict law enforcement. In his platform he says:

"I am in favor of the strict and rigid enforcement of the local option law, as well as all other laws on the statute books. With malice toward none and justice toward all, shall be my motto, in the enforcement of any and all of the laws; no favorites, no pets and no political debts to pay. I stand by the law, and dare look the world squarely in the face, and humbly but honestly say I have done my duty; I have washed my hands clean of official infidelity, and not betrayed the confidence and trust placed in me by the people. As to whether I am dry or wet, I am dry. Not for political purposes, or for the sake of an office, but for the sake of principle. I am not a new convert on probation, but an old twenty years' practitioner, cured and well seasoned, fully tried by the fierce fires of experience, and have been weighed in the balance and never found wanting."

Mr. Gillon has a host of friends in Duluth who will be pleased to hear of his success at the primaries and election this fall.

BIG TIM GIVES THE NEWSIES SOME ADVICE.

New York, Aug. 15.—Six thousand newsboys left the streets Sunday afternoon and were the guests of "Big Tim Sullivan" at a local theater, where they remained for the rest of the day enjoying a "wuxtry" long program especially arranged for their benefit. The big leader, who was once a newsboy himself, occupied a box in the theater, and when the "newsies" demanded that he make a speech he left his seat and gave them some good advice.

"My advice to every newsboy in this city," he said, "is not to drink and never tell a lie. And when you're selling your papers day by day, always keep one back. Read it and read it well, for it is better than all the libraries in the world. If you do that you will put yourselves on an equal footing with the sons of millionaires who graduate from college."

IRON AND STEEL REVIEW

New York, Aug. 15.—The United States Steel corporation last week announced unfilled orders on July 30, for 3,790,931 tons. According to operative managers however, such a record by any steel company is of small value as indicating the state of the industry. Specifications are regarded as the true index as they determine the output of the mills.

The Steel corporation today is running 72 per cent of its pig iron and 75 per cent of its finished steel capacity. All the subsidiary companies have specifications which will carry them at the present rate for sixty to ninety days and in some instances rolling schedules are complete even to the end of the year, notably in fabricated material and in tin plate.

The wire trade is exceptional in that new business is exceeding shipments and both specifications and new orders are greater than at the corresponding time last year.

One important feature is that current business is almost entirely for quick shipment and the volume of new orders in all lines is light because consumers, anticipating lower rather than higher prices, are throwing the burden of carrying the stocks upon the manufacturer. Fabricated steel orders last week were only 15,000 tons, and railroads placed nothing but mandatory orders.

Equipment contracts included only 13,000 tons of rails, insignificant car and locomotive orders, while bridge work was scarcely 5,000 tons. The principal railroad order was 1,500 tons for the Schuylkill river bridge awarded by the Pennsylvania railroad to the Steelton mill.

The pig iron trade was dull in all districts. In the Eastern territory new contracts were less than 10,000 tons and in the entire country the aggregate tonnage placed was little more than 25,000 tons. Prices were not changed and sentiment tended downward rather than otherwise. Stocks at merchants furnaces continue to increase notwithstanding the reduced output.

Eau Claire, Wis., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eau Claire and Duluth battled for thirteen innings yesterday before the leaders were able to score the winning run, the final score being 1 to 0 in favor of the leaders.

Blancke and Morrow were in fine form and both twirlers received brilliant and at times sensational support from their teammates. Little Mike Breyette saved the game at several stages by his great fielding. He accepted thirteen chances without a skip, and some of them were of the circus order. Breyette knocked down what appeared to be sure hits, and at several stages only his wonderful fielding prevented the Sox from winning.

Three double plays, coming at critical stages of the contest, saved the day for Eau Claire.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 15.—Ty Cobb's home run in the sixth with Delehanty on first virtually won yesterday's game for Detroit. Willet was very effective, the visitors getting but five hits and were unable to score. The batting of Cobb, Crawford and Elberfeld featured. Score: R. H. E.

HALLING'S TEAM WINS AND LOSES.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—New York and Chicago divided a double-header here yesterday, the locals winning the first game 4 to 1 and Stallings' team the second 5 to 1. Hughes was pounded for fifteen hits in the first contest, while Lang and Walsh proved invincible. Walsh was the victim of a concentrated attack in the second battle in the fifth inning when the visitors found him for five singles in a row. These, with a base on balls, netted five runs. ST. LOUIS DROPS TWO GAMES AT HOME.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 15.—St. Louis lost both games of yesterday's double-header to Boston, the first by a score of 7 to 4 and the second 5 to 4. Bailey's poor work in the first and an error by Pelty in the second game was the cause of the double defeat. Umpire Perrine held up the second game for twenty minutes as the result of an argument with Shortstop Wagner of the Boston team. The latter questioned a decision of Perrine, calling Truesdale safe at second, and was ordered to the bench. His successor was not forthcoming immediately and Perrine called the recess. Lerchen was finally put in Wagner's place. Scores:

COLUMBUS AND TOLEDO DIVIDE.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 15.—Columbus, by great up-hill fighting, was able to save the second game after it was gone apparently to Toledo, after that city had won the first, 6 to 1, largely because the home team's fielding was at fault. Five runs in the sixth tied the last game and three in the ninth on singles by Hinchman and Congalton, a double by Downs, an out and Freeman's muff of a thrown ball won it. Elwert left the first contest with a sprained ankle and Carisch with a split finger. W. Hinchman and Abbott led their teams at hitting. Scores:

INDIANAPOLIS WINS AN EXCITING CONTEST.

POOR SHOWING IN PRELIMINARIES

Oshkosh, Wis., Aug. 15.—Kathryn, Cubanola and Patsy were the winners in Saturday's races on Lake Winnebago. The Duluth Boat club had entries in Classes A and B only. Allegro, in the morning race, finished in third place; and, after a hard struggle, Navaled, in Class A, managed to beat out Nina for ninth place.

In both races, and especially in the Class A contest, in the afternoon, the struggle for the Duluth boats to get out of last place formed the prettiest contests of the day. Cubanola and Kathryn had comparatively easy times of it, and after the first mile or so the positions of the other boats hardly changed. But for the last place there was a fight all the way around the course.

As in Friday's contest, in Class A, Scout had the best of Allegro during the first round, but then her rigging sagged, or something else happened to her, for she just slowed up, and Allegro got ahead and stayed ahead. In the afternoon Nina and Navaled dropped back in the very first leg of the course, but the Neenah boat was ahead at one time to the extent of nearly two minutes. In the last round and a half Navaled caught and passed Nina and finished nearly a minute and a half ahead. The wind was southwest and fairly steady, but not blowing nearly hard enough to be favorable to the Duluth boats.

The race in Class A is for the Felker Challenge cup, and in the other two classes for the trophy cups offered by the Oshkosh Yacht club. The Inland Lakes regatta commences today and continues for five days.

In 1903 Oshkosh became the permanent home of the association and for five years the regattas were held on Lake Winnebago. In 1907 the Minnetonka clubs secured the passage of an amendment to the rules allowing the regatta to be held at some other lake than Winnebago every third year. In 1908 the regatta went to Minnetonka. Next year it is again subject to removal, the place for holding the 1911 meet being up for decision at the annual meeting of the association next Thursday night. Duluth and Oconomowoc both want it. As far as water is concerned everybody favors Duluth. As far as entertainment is concerned, the Wisconsin clubs are inclined to favor Oconomowoc, not because they are afraid of Duluths' hospitality, but because they have tried Oconomowoc's and know it to be good.

Members of each club are quietly setting forth the advantage of their own particular brand of sailing weather—and other inducements—whenever they can get anybody to listen to them. White Bear and Minnetonka naturally favor Duluth, partly because they believe they will get a better racing course there, but also on account of the smaller expense.

WITH THE FUTURE GREATS

The surprise of the Duluth-Superior league games yesterday, was the defeat of the crack Bingham Baseball team of Superior by the New Duluths. The suburbanites took the contest by the score of 2 to 1, Letson holding the Superior boys to one hit. An error was responsible for the one score of the Binghams.

The defeat places the Superior team out of the running for the pennant, as the Oak Halls won their game yesterday. Had the Binghams won yesterday and then won the thrown out game with the Duluth Heights, which will be played in the future, they would have won the flag.

The Oak Halls had little trouble with the Woodruffs, while the Duluth Heights easily defeated the Columbias. The Hummers literally swamped the Jeffersons by the score of 10 to 2.

The season was brought to a close yesterday. It has been the most successful season of amateur baseball in the history of the city. Most of the teams will play some games during the remainder of the good weather, but as far as the Duluth-Superior league is concerned, the games played yesterday, with the exception of the game to be played between the Binghams and Duluth Heights, are the last official games of the season.

Batteries—Letson and Nord; Olson and Hussey.

Bethune of the Woodruffs was easy for the Oak Hall hitters, who drove the Woodruff slab artist to all corners of the lot. The Woodruffs also performed raggedly in the field, errors counting in the score of the victor's. Weber pitched a good game for the winners. Score:

Woodruffs ....1 0 1 0 0 0 2 0 0— 4

Batteries—Weber and Banack; Bethune and Brosius.

The Jeffersons were no match for the Hummers, going down to a 10 to 2 defeat. Maske was very easy to solve, while Wiggins of the Hummers held the Jefferson hitters safe at all stages of the game. Score:

Batteries—Wiggins and Kriz; Maske and Baker.

In a heavy hitting game the Duluth Heights took the Columbias into camp, the score being 16 to 6, both Danielson and Cole being hit hard. Both teams were wobbly in the field, errors counting in the score. Score:

Columbias ....2 0 1 0 0 0 3 0 0— 6

Batteries—Cole and Cyr; Danielson and Harwood.

The F. A. Patricks defeated the Wolvins in the Commercial league race Saturday, the score being 2 to 1 in favor of the Patricks. By agreement the game went only seven innings, the Patricks playing an errorless game. Stevens and Murphy were in rare form, only three hits being gathered off the Patrick pitcher. Two hits and an error gave the two runs to the winners; a single and triple accounting for the only run scored by the Wolvins. Score: R. H. E.

Patricks ....2 0 0 0 0 0 x—2 5 0

Batteries—Stevens and Wolff; Murphy and Swanstrom.

The game played July 30 between the Wolvins and the Northern Shoe company team has been thrown out and ordered played over again. The game was won by the Northern Shoe company team, the score being 8 to 7. The question as when a batsman is out was the basis for the protest.

As the result of a conference between the managers of the Fitwell and Cloquet baseball teams, the date for the contest for the $100 side bet has been set for next Sunday. The game will be played at Athletic park, and there has already been a great deal of interest shown in the outcome.

The People's Brewing company's team Saturday defeated the Charles Mork team by the score of 11 to 7. The game was played at Thirty-second avenue west, and was witnessed by a large crowd. Sloan and Nelson were in the points for the winners, and Carlson and Peterson for the losers.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northerns yesterday defeated the Adams of this city by the score of 8 to 7, the game going eleven innings. The Proctor Juniors also defeated the Bingham Juniors of Superior by the score of 17 to 5.

Grummit pitched against the Adams, striking out twelve men and holding the Duluth aggregation to four hits. Johnson for the Adams struck out ten men, but was wild at several critical stages of the game. Shovern for the railroad boys made a great catch in left field, turning a somersault after a long run for the ball.

BANTAMS WIN EXCITING RACE

Walker's Crew Surprises the Juniors---Mirest Wins Motor Boat Race.

A decided surprise was furnished rowing men Saturday through the defeat of the junior eight by the Eddie Walker crew, an eight composed of the bantam four and some of the men who have been members of the rowing squad the present season. The Walker bunch lead the junior to the finish by a length of open water.

"Tony" Puck's seniors again exemplified the difficulty of "coming back," the old timers coming in behind the other two boats.

The race was for a mile and was close all the way down. The juniors were well in the lead, when their boat began to ship water. Here the Walker eight made a short spurt and passed the struggling juniors. The junior boat was half filled with water at the end of the race and the seniors were rapidly overtaking the water logged regulars.

After the race the entire rowing squad had dinner at the St. Louis hotel. The meeting was productive of more enthusiasm than has been shown the present season. The men agreed that if Duluth expects to win races, the oarsmen must get out and do more work. More work will be done this fall, with the belief that Duluth will make a clean sweep next season.

It was also agreed that every effort will be made to get a race with St. Paul this fall. The question of a professional coach came up at the Saturday night meeting, but the men agreed that it was up to them to get out and work this fall, before asking for any favors from the officials of the club.

The 26-foot class motor boat race was won by Dr. Jern's boat, Mirest. The time for the ten miles was 37:05. The Dixie of Superior finished second. Owing to the rough weather the race between the 20-foot boats was postponed for a week.

MOOSE LAKERS BEATEN.

Cloquet, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cloquet defeated the Moose Lake ball team here Sunday by a score of 6 to 2. It was anybody's game up to the eighth inning, when a batting rally and a few errors netted five runs for the locals. Both runs for Moose Lake were made on errors.

The Moose Lake team defeated the Fitwells of Duluth a week ago 5 to 2, and next Sunday the locals will play the Duluth team in Duluth. A large number of fans are expected to accompany the team in hope of defeating the Fitwells and incidentally winning a $100 side wager. The score: R. H. E.

MANY ENTRIES FOR TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 15.—With the largest list of contestants ever entered in the tournament, play in the thirtieth annual lawn tennis championship of the United States was begun today on the Casino courts here. The entry list, which numbers 181, included nearly all the tennis experts of the country.

In the opening round today fifty-two matches were made, many prominent players taking part. Besides William A. Larned of Summit, N. J., national singles champion, those who are entered in the tourney include Maurice E. McLoughlin of San Francisco; Beals C. Wright of Boston; Harold K. Hackett and Frederick B. Alexander of New York, national doubles champions; T. C. Bundy and Trowbridge Hendricks of California, and others.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE.)

Great is the interest in the race of next Saturday between the two motor flyers that are owned by Messrs. Barnes and Schell. The race that is scheduled for next Saturday is the talk of the club, and the city too, for that matter.

Here in the central part of the city, there is a desire to see the Barnes boat to win the race. West Duluth, to a man, woman, child and dog, is with Richard. Out in that section of the city they have heard Mr. Schell say so much regarding the speed of his boat, that they do not believe that there is another boat in the country that can show the way to the finish line to the Schell boat.

Neither Mr. Barnes or Mr. Schell has anything to say that will give an inkling of the speed of his boat. The Schell boat is credited with 26 miles an hour, and this seems like a conservative estimate of the speed of the boat that won at White Bear and Minnetonka.

Several days of last week and yesterday the Barnes boat was being tuned up. William Tecumseh Jones was at the throttle yesterday, but how fast the boat is, one will never learn from the expert on gasoline. It looks as though the race of Saturday will furnish the only reliable information on the speed of the two water witches.

Never has so much interest been shown in any event scheduled by the Boat club. It is to be hoped that the race of next Saturday comes off without accident or further delay. Since early in the spring, when it was mysteriously bruited around that a new boat would be purchased by some member of the club which would be about the fastest thing in these parts, there has been a growing interest in the prospective meeting with the new boat purchased by Mr. Schell.

Judging from the success attending the races of the club the present season, motor boat racing is destined to be very popular at the Head of the Lakes. Motor boat racing here has been more or less of an experiment the present season. The members of the club have enjoyed it, and now, with the big event of the season about to occur, the whole city is manifesting an interest in the outcome.

Can He Come Back?

Some of the older members of the Duluth Boat club are very much interested in the statement of Jack Hackett, who informed a number of the oarsmen, coming down on the boat from Kenora to Rainy River, that he was going to try to "come back."

There are many members of the old Northwest Rowing association who never tire of telling of the wonderful feats of this raw-boned, single scull wonder. There are some of these older members of the local club, who believe somswhat that the former champion amateur sculler can re-enter the game and make some of the greatest extend themselves.

At the present time in this country there is but one man that Hackett would have to defeat. That man is Durnan of Toronto. Professional sculling has dropped to such a low ebb in this country that Durnan remains about the only sculler of any ability on the North American continent.

Barry of England and Earnst of Australia race for the world's title Aug. 18. We have no man in this country capable of giving either of these men a decent race, for Durnan has been beaten by scullers of Australia who in turn have been defeated by Earnst.

It would surprise the rowing world if Hackett were able to show any of the wonderful speed that once made him the king of the old rowing association. It is said that Hackett resembled muchly the progress of a rabbit, when coming up the course. At every stroke his boat used to fairly jump out of the water. It was not an uncommon occurrence for Hackett to enter two or three races a day. He used to win them all, too. One day a member of the Duluth club asked Hackett if he never ecame tired.

"Hardly ever," answered the tall Rat Portage man. "If I do, I just hustle over the line and get a rest."

Hackett was surely a marvel in his day. Before he was ever known to rowing circles of the Northwest, he was rowing in an old river boat, miles and miles per day. His endurance was like that of a tough Western horse. The once great oarsman is 41 years old at the present time. Judging from his appearance, the years sit lightly on him. Barry, the English champion, is almost as old as Hackett. Judging from the performance of Barry, Hackett might come back. There are many of the older members of the Duluth Boat club who would like to see long Jack make the experiment.

Are the Gods Peeved?

If there be baseball gods, and there properly should be, for there are gods of several other occupations and amusements, they must be peeved at the members of the Duluth baseball team.

All season we have been dropping games by one score. If there has been any luck in the game, it has fallen to the other team. With the team playing the best ball of the season, the hoodoo follows us closely, dogging our very heel plates, and robbing us of games.

"Ifs" are hazy and as hard to account for as the records of Dock Cook. Yet "if" baseball luck had been dished out impartially by the baseball gods the present season, the White Sox would be occupying a much more enviable position today.

The team has not played good baseball during all of the season to date. Neither have all of the other teams of the league. During the race so far we have been dropping games which might have been turned into victories had baseball luck broken evenly. Here on the present trip, when the Sox are going fine and gingerly, the same old hoodoo seems to lurk around the Duluth bench.

This is not an excuse for the team; it is simply a question as to the peeve of the baseball gods. There must be a dissension on Olympus. Maybe the gods have become disgusted over the muddled standing of the Minny league.

GOLF TOURNAMENT OPENS AT DENVER.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 15.—F. E. Patterson of Oklahoma City and F. D. Upham of Denver, drove off from the first tee of the Denver Country club course today in the qualifying rounds of the trans-Mississippi golf tournament and will be followed at four-minute intervals by the other 202 golfers who will contest for the title.

Harry G. Legg of Minnekahda, the title holder, is paired with Harry A. Fisher, the Colorado champion, whom many believe will be Legg's greatest rival for the title.

BRITISH MOTOR BOATS REACH NEW YORK.

New York, Aug. 15.—The three British motor boats which will compete for the Harmsworth international challenge cup on next Saturday, reached here today on the steamship Minnetonka. The boats are the Maple Leaf, owned by Mackay Edgar; the Zigorella, owned by Daniel Hanbury, and a new hydroplane, owned by the Duke of Westminster.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—F. C. Thomson of Los Angeles, is champion amateur all-around athlete of the world for 1910, winning that distinction at the annual tournament on Marshall field in this city, Saturday. His score was 6,991, 400 less than that which captured the championship last year. His nearest competitor was J. C. Gillis of Vancouver, B. C., who rolled up 6,909 points. Gillis fought Thomson for the first place through every event.

The field was perfect, the sun's rays were screened off by light clouds and the day was ideal.

No world's records were made, nor were any existing records in danger. The showing all around was mediocre, compared with last year's results.

Five of the original entrants withdrew, among them the New Orleans athlete, H. W. Fitzpatrick, who was looked upon as a possible champion. He refused to compete, when he learned C. White, a negro from the University of Pennsylvania, was entered.

The best showing of the day was as follows: C. P. White, the negro athlete, led the field in the 100-yard race and beat last year's champion, Martin Sheridan's mark of 10 3-5 seconds by 1-5 of a second.

F. C. Thomson, by walking the 880-yard heel-and-toe event in 3:44, led his competitors by several rods, but fell behind Sheridan's mark of last year. Gillis beat Sheridan's last year's hammer throw by tossing the missile 126 feet, the best showing since Kiely's throw of 142 feet 10 inches in 1906.

W. L. Crawley of Chicago university, came within five inches of the world's pole vault record of 11 feet 9 inches, and Thomson was only 3-5 second behind the world's record of 15 3-5 seconds for the 120-yard hurdle.

Thomson got his 6,991 points as indicated in the following events: 100-yard dash, 832; shot-put, 719; high jump, 614; 880-yard walk, 792; hammer-throw, 748; hurdle, 910; pole vault, 600; 56-pound weight, 474; broad jump, 628; mile run, 674. The scores were as follows: F. C. Thomson, Los Angeles, 6,991; J. H. Gillis, Vancouver, 6,909; Avery Brundage, Chicago, 6,120½; Leslie Byrd, Chicago, 5,747; Charles Furey, Philadelphia, 5,600; G. W. Philbrook, unattached, 5,575; E. Schobinger, Chicago, 5,492; Vice Kennard, Chicago A. A., 4,857; W. Crawley, Chicago university, 4,545; E. C. Quaranstrom, Sioux City, 4,454; Charles White, University of Pennsylvania, 4,450 4-5; W. A. Draper, Chicago A. A., 4,374; J. A. Carroll, Illinois A. C., 3,089; James Andromedas, Lowell, Mass., 2,644; Ellery H. Clark, Boston A. A., withdrew after five events.

CASS LAKERS VICTORS.

Allow Grand Rapids Only One Run in Lively Game.

Cass Lake, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a game which started out like a pitchers' battle, Cass Lake defeated Grand Rapids yesterday by a score of 6 to 1. Each pitcher had four strikeouts to his credit the first two innings, but the Cass Lakers commenced pounding the ball hard and landed for two two-baggers and four singles in the next three innings.

The game looked like a shut-out for Grand Rapids until the ninth inning when Schmidt issued two free passes to first base and with the visitors' second hit of the game put a man on third who scored on a passed ball.

SAYS CARPENTER ASSAULTED HIM

Nelson Causes Arrest of Employe Who Objected to Criticism.

Erling Hersted's reluctance to be bossed got him into trouble Saturday. Hersted was at work on a house for Nels Nelson at Forty-eighth avenue west and Third street and Nelson came along to see how the work was going. When he objected to some features of the work, Hersted became irritated, according to the story Nelson told Judge Flack this morning and seizing Nelson, threw him off the premises bodily with considerable damage resulting to the proprietor's clothes, several bruises on his person, and much injury to his dignity.

Nelson swore out a warrant for the assault this morning and Hersted was brought to the police station and arraigned before Judge Flack. He was released on $10 bail. He claims that Nelson's story does not correctly represent the facts and stated his intention of employing an attorney and demanding a jury trial.

The boulevard has been covered with Solvay calcium chloride between Lincoln and Chester parks, making it practically dustless. The park board is satisfied that the chloride preparation is the most successful layer of dust that has been introduced in the city and ordered a large quantity for the use on the boulevard and park drives.

ORE CLAIMED BY THE STATE

Attorney General Will Fight for Deposits Under Longyear Lake.

Who Owns the Land Under Navigable Water? Is Question.

Attorney General George T. Simpson with Assistant Attorney General C. L. Weeks passed through the city on their way to Chisholm, Minn., this morning where they will secure data and other information in regard to Longyear lake preparatory to a suit in which it is hoped to show the state's rights to the minerals under the lake.

This brings up a new question in law. Has the state any right to the minerals under a navigable body of water?

It is known that there are rich deposits of ore under the water. To whom they belong is another question. There will be many to fight the state for the mineral.

Mr. Simpson will be in the city Sept. 7 to try the case. Work preparatory to the action is now going on and the point to be made or lost will be an interesting one.

Over in England all the land under the rivers and the lakes and other waters belongs to the king. Minnesota will try to show that she owns and controls the bottom of Longyear lake.

In speaking of the matter this morning Mr. Simpson said that the state is about to try to ascertain just what her rights are in this particular and that the action is for this purpose alone.

GRAVEL PIT IN DISPUTE

Before Judge Dibell of the district court this morning the case of the Duluth-Superior Sand & Gravel company against Charles N. Ashford is being herad.

The sand company wants to take away the sand that it claims to have purchased from Ashford some years ago, and Ashford doesn't want the company to have it.

All the trouble is over a gravel pit on the shore of Lake Superior up in Cook county. Some years ago Ashford took a claim that had on it a valuable gravel bed. He sold it to the Head of the Lakes company for 10 cents a cubic yard, with the understanding that it could be taken away any time in twenty years.

When the company appeared with a scow, Ashford is said to have rowed out and threatened to shoot all the men on board if they touched the sand. The company asks that it be allowed to take its gravel, and also that Ashford be made to pay $250, the sum it claims to have lost by making trips to the gravel pit without being able to bring back the product.

Ashford claims that the agreement made with the company is now null and void, and asks the court to set it aside. He states that when it was made he had not yet proved up on the land; that it was the property of the United States government, and that for these reasons the agreement was not regular.

ADMITS FORGING RECLUSE'S WILL

Woman Says She Has Mania for Such Things---Gave Herself Fortune.

San Francisco, Aug. 15—Through a confession made by Mrs. Mary Davies of Salmon City, Idaho, mystery surrounding the authorship of a strangely worded will, purporting to dispose of an $150,000 estate left by Susana A. Moore, an aged recluse who died in 1908, is cleared up. Mrs. Davies was named as sole legatee in the will, but admits that she forged the instrument and that she has a mania for writing bogus wills. She sent the Moore will, together with an anonymous letter, to a Mrs. Edmunds at Winnemucca, Nev., who became an innocent tool by sending the communications to the public administrator in this city.

THE COMMITTEE IN CHARGE OF THE PICNIC.

The architects and builders of Duluth made merry at Pike lake, Saturday, the occasion being their annual picnic.

Work and thoughts of anything resembling labor were left behind as they headed for the country back of the city. The road to the picnic ground was a long string of automobiles, which conveyed the members of the party to and fro. It is estimated that about thirty machines were in line and that nearly 200 people attended the outing. A ball game between the architects and the builders was the feature of the afternoon. The covers were knocked off half a dozen balls, and as many bats were cracked. The exertions were so strenuous that each team had to call in fresh men every few minutes. The rooters had all kinds of fun watching the contestants and have many husky throats as testimony of their enjoyment. In the evening an excellent chicken supper was served. Several informal speeches were made. The universal verdict was that "a very enjoyable time was had."

RAILROADS

NEW LINE IS IN PROSPECT

Capitalists Are Looking Over Conditions to North of Brainerd.

H. A. Millard and J. McNelly Have Been Over the Ground.

Brainerd, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. Alfred Millard, a capitalist of Washington, D. C., and J. McNelly, a railway promoter of Minneapolis, have been examining conditions here with reference to putting in another railway to the north of Brainerd, to develop the new country from Merrifield to Cross Lake. Running in a northerly direction, the line would also tap the Rainy river country and connect with the Minnesota & International railway at Brainerd or over near it, run to Cross Lake, thence to Longville, and then perhaps in a northeasterly direction to Deer River, where connections would be made with the Great Northern. It is said that the line might be extended to International Falls.

The road will be assured of a heavy line of log, pulpwood and lath bolt shipments on its run north and its cars on the return trip would haul the finished producet. In addition there is the possible developments of an ore district. Connections could also be made on the south to tap the Cuyuna iron range region.

This week a mineralogist will examine the route of the proposed railway with hespect to the presence of mineral along the right-of-way. M. D. Stoner of Bemidji was asked some time in February to make a reconnaissance for capitalists of Cleveland, Ohio., who were examining the project.

PREFERS POLITICS TO BEING MINISTER

Omro, Wis., Preacher Quits Church to Talk Against County Option.

Oshkosh, Wis., Aug. 15.—Rev. Daniel Woodward, pastor of a Methodist church at Omro, Wis., has resigned because he was told by Supt. S. H. Anderson of the Oshkosh district of the church that he would either have to give up his pulpit or cease talking politics.

Rev. Mr. Woodward claims he had been granted a leave of absence with the understanding that he could take the stump against county option.

Supt. Anderson, however, claims that the board was not unanimous in the matter, and that after reports came in of Woodward's strong argument against county option, the board held another meeting and unanimously agreed that Mr. Woodward had overstepped his position and must be recalled to his church. In a statement today Supt. Anderson said a Methodist pastor could not serve his church and be a political speaker and do both successfully.

TROOPS BEGIN MANEUVERS.

Royan France, Aug. 15.—Thirty-seven dead and fifty-eight wounded have been recovered from the wreck of the Bordeaux excursion train, which yesterday crashed into a freight train at Saujon while running at a speed of fifty miles an hour. Six cars of the excursion train were telescoped. The bodies were horribly mangled.

The accident was caused by an open switch.

EFFECT OF FATIGUE.

Army and Navy Gazette: Some interesting experiments were recently conducted by the Austrian military authorities wiht a view to testing the effect of the fatigue of a long march on the shooting of trained soldiers.

Fifty cyclists of over two years service undertook a march of sixty-five miles in eight hours, the return journey being against a strong head wind. Before and after the march they fired ten rounds at a target representing a section of twenty-six men, in extended order, lying down at 500 yards.

The experiment was repeated with a section of forty-two non-commissioned officers of the school of musketry before and after a twenty-three hours' exercise in the field during which thirty-three miles were covered. This section, chiefly marksmen, made eighty-one hits on twenty-one out of twenty-six figures before starting and sixty-two hits on twenty figures after their return. The men, though much fatigued when firing their second series of shots, made nearly as good practice as when fresh before starting.

These results are valuable as showing that the skill of seasoned soldiers who are at the same time first rate shots does not degenerate much with fatigue.

Anti-Saloon League Worker Admits St. Louis Is Against County Option.

P. J. Youngdahl, superintendent of the Minnesota Anti-Saloon league, who will address a meeting at the Armory tonight in the interests of the movement for county option, was seen at the Lenox hotel this afternoon, where he was in company with Rev. E. C. Clemans, superintendent of this district for the Anti-Saloon league.

Mr. Youngdahl said he expected a large audience at the meeting tonight and lamented that St. Louis county is not as ardent a believer in county option as it might be. He said, though, that a canvass of the county, would, in his opinion, disclose that a large percentage of the voters are favorable to his cause.

"Of course, county option could not carry in St. Louis county," he said. "I think, however, that there are about forty-five counties in the state in which county option would put the saloons out of business. Then there are twenty others which would, in my opinion, be fighting ground. Ramsey, Hennepin and St. Louis counties, it is conceded, would not adopt this plan."

Mr. Youngdahl said he expected to see a material increase in Democratic strength in the next legislature, especially in the senate.

"I have been asked often why many of the members of the legislature who voted for county option voted for the tonnage tax. To these questions I have but one answer. That is that the St. Louis county delegation voted wrong on every proposition brought before the legislature, and it was no strange thing that decent men believed they must be wrong on this tonnage tax question, too.

"I know nothing about the merits of the tonnage tax. I haven't had time to get posted on the subject. But I think that the answer I have given to the question explains why the county option members voted against the St. Louis county delegation on that issue."

Mr. Youngdahl took occasion to mention a number of hills on which the St. Louis county delegation differed with the optionists, without going into the merits of those measures, either.

DANCING IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Opinion of Board's Attorney Does Not Say It Is Unlawful —Says It Is Discretionary With the Board.

Considerable interest has been manifested by residents of Duluth in the action taken a week ago Saturday evening when the board of education at its annual meeting decided that dancing and social gatherings af alumni associations would not be permitted in public schools.

The question has been before the public for some time, and many arguments were presented for and against the dancing. The board wishing to do justice to all, engaged the services of H. H. Phelps, a local attorney, to investigate the legal side of the question. His opinion was presented at the annual meeting, and following its reading the decision was made.

Mr. Phelp's opinion was as follows: "To the Board of Education of the City of Duluth:

"Gentlemen—Three days ago S. T. Harrison of this city called me to his office and stated that he had been employed by a committee of your honorable board to investigate the law and render a legal opinion as to the powers and duties of the board upon the question of permitting the use of the school buildings for social gatherings of students and alumni. He stated that owing to his being called away from the city he could not undertake the work and that by direction of the committee that employed him I had been designated as the person to be substituted in his place. I accordingly commenced an investigation of the statutes and decisions, and after devoting to the work the greater part of the intervening time since my interview with Mr. Harrison, I have come to the following conclusions:

"The facts, as I understand them, are that for several years the students of the various schools of the city and the alumni have held reunions and social gatherings at the school buildings, not by direct permission of your board, but without any objection being made on the part of the board, and that at these gatherings dancing has been indulged in; that at a meeting of your board held in May, this year, a petition signed by numerous residents in the district, was presented in which the petitioners protested against the use of the school buildings for these dances and called upon your honorable board to exclude from the school buildings all such functions.

What the Law Says.

"Section 1321, Revised Laws, 1905, of this state provides:

"'The school board may also upon a petition of legal voters authorize the use of any school house in the district for divine worship, Sunday schools, public meetings, elections, and such other similar purposes as in their judgment will not interfere with its use for school purposes.'

"Without this statute, your board has no power, in my opinion, to grant the use of the school buildings for any purpose except an educational one. Under the statute you can only grant permission to use the buildings for the purposes therein mentioned, upon the presentation of a petition as therein provided.

"Our own supreme court seems never to have been called upon to decide what powers and duties a board of education has under our school laws in reference to the buildings and other property entrusted to its care. A principle very similar was, however, before the court in the case of Borough of Henderson vs. County of Sibley, 28 Minn. 515. It was there held that the County of Sibley could not enter into a contract with the Village of Henderson to permit the use by the village of a part of the county courthouse for village purposes.

"In other states, the question as related to the powers of school district boards has frequently been decided.

"In School District vs. Arnold 21 Wis. 658 (665), it was held that the district board, or the electors of the district even, could not authorize the use of the school house for anything except for school purposes. In that case the school house had been used by the Sons of Temperance as a meeting place, and injury had been done to the building at such meetings. The board sued for damages because of these injuries. It was shown that the use of the building had been authorized by the voters of the district. The court held that even the voters could not authorize the use of the building for such a purpose, except by express statutory authority.

"In Spencer vs. Joint School District No. 6, 15 Kansas 259, it was held that a school district had no power to lease a school house for society meetings and gatherings, where a tax payer objected and it was shown that the school property was injured.

"In Schofield vs. Eighth School District, 27 Conn. 499, it was held that a school district had no power to grant the use of the school buildings for Sunday schools and religious meetings.

"In the case of Sugar vs. Monroe, 108 La. 677 (69 L. R. A. 723) the school authorities made a contract whereby the assembly hall of the high school building was to be used for theatrical performances. This contract was held to be illegal, and the authorities were restrained from using the building for the purpose contracted for.

"In Dorton vs. Hearn, 6 Mo. 301, it was held that the board of directors of the school district could not authorize the school building of the district to be used for Sunday school purposes.

"In Weir vs. Day, 35 Ohio State, 143, the court said:

"'Boards of Education are invested with the title to the property of their respective districts in trust for the use of public schools, and the appropriation of such property to any other use is unauthorized.'"

In that case it was held that even a private or select school could not be carried on in the school house.

For Education Only.

"From the foregoing, and numerous other authorities which might be cited to the same effect, I conclude that the board has no right to permit the use of the school buildings for purposes not educational, except in the cases and upon the petition provided for in the statute above quoted.

"It does not follow, however, that the board is bound to prevent all gatherings in the school buildings at which recreation and amusement are indulged in. Incidental to education, exercise, recreation and certain forms of enjoyment are everywhere recognized. The school is not only for the purpose of training the minds of the young, but as well, to so mould the individual that in life he, or she, shall fill the position of a highly civilized man or woman. One of the effective ways to bring the young up to this standard, is by example at gatherings where the highest order of intelligence and good breeding are shown.

"The school buildings and school grounds may, in my opinion, be legally used for any purpose incidental to education as sought to be accomplished by American ideals.

"The test of the board's power with reference to permitting the use of the school property is, as to whether the purpose of the use is educational or incidental to education. Recreation is incidental to education. The board may permit the use of the school grounds by the students for games of baseball or football, but it would have no right to allow them to be used for a sheep pasture or for horse racing, or even for professional baseball.

"There is room for a decided difference of opinion as to whether or not dancing is an essential or even an incident to good breeding. I am of the opinion, however, that because at social gatherings of the students dancing is indulged in, that fact does not render the use of the school buildings for such gatherings illegal. The board may, in my opinion, prohibit the use of the buildings for such purposes, but it is not obliged to. In other words, it is discretionary with the board. The board has as much control over the forms of amusement and recreation of the students as it has over the curriculum of the schools.

"A more difficult question arises with reference to the powers of the board to permit the use of the school property by the alumni. For purposes not educational and not specified in the statute, it may not permit the use of the school buildings by the general public. Does the case of the alumni form an exception?

"There is recognized in this country as existing between the school and a graduate therof, a tie that continues as long as life lasts. From an educational standpoint the one is regarded as the mother; the other the son or daughter No matter to what size or age the boy or girl gsows, the mother will always indulge her child as she will not a stranger. I do not believe the courts of this country are going to say that the men and women who have been educated in our schools shall not have the right to gather on occasion at the buildings where they received their instruction and renew old acquaintances and enjoy the society of their teachers and fellows and if, as an incident to their enjoyment, they indulge in dancing, I do not believe that fact would exclude them from the use of the school buildings. Very respectfully yours,

"H. H. PHELPS.

"Dated at Duluth, Minn., Aug. 4, 1910."

ONE OF FEW CITIES TO SHOW GAIN

During July, 1910, figures compiled by the Construction News, Chicago, covering fifty of the principal cities of the United States, show twenty-nine more permits than in July, 1909. Apparently, however, building in July, 1910, was confined more generally to smaller structures, for the aggregate value of buildings for which permits were issued in July, 1910, was only $37,423,830, as against $50,600,338 in the corresponding month of 1909.

The fact that the structures were smaller in July, 1910, than in July, 1909, coupled with the fact that the falling off in the larger cities, would seem to indicate that the deterrent influence, whatever it was, was most potent in the larger cities. New York leads the list of the largest cities with a reduction in the number of buildings from 113 in July, 1909, to 72 in July, 1910; the aggregate falling off being $11,976,415, or 67 per cent. New Haven, Conn., dropped from 112 buildings to 98, the reduction in total value of buildings being 59 per cent.

An encouraging phase of the building situation in July, 1910, is the substantial increase of building operations in cities of diversified interests in which the wealth is more or less equally distributed among the population.

While it can hardly be said that either gain or loss in the number of permits issued or in the value of structures represented was confined to any particular section—a loss or gain in one section being approximately offset by a corresponding loss or gain in another section—still there have been some especially notable gains and losses. Richmond, Va., made a gain of 60 per cent and Atlanta, Ga., 185 per cent. St. Paul and Duluth, Minn., gained 45 and 46 per cent respectively; and while Stockton, Cal., lost 90 per cent, Los Angeles gained 29 per cent; Seattle, Wash., gained 28 per cent and Portland, Or., lost 7 per cent.

The net loss of 26 per cent in July building operations may be largely accounted for in the reduced building in the larger cities and there also may be fairly attributable to the diminished activity of the larger interests, a single structure of which often is sufficient greatly to raise the aggregate. The magnitude of such operations is such that they cannot, except in times of the greatest prosperity, fall in every month of the year. Tables appended show July building operations in detail:

AIR LINE REPORTS

Doux, France, Aug. 15.—An outcry is being made by German newspapers because a French aviator on Thursday last accidentally crossed the frontier, some of the papers suggesting that he ought to have been shot.

Le Blanc, who is one of the contestants in the cross-country flight, last night refused to shake hands with a German officer who asked permission to congratulate him.

Drexel Is Beaten.

Lanark, Scotland, Aug. 15.—The aviator Cattano, who on Aug. 10, established a new British record for a single flight, 141 miles at an average speed of 44.16 miles an hour, is the winner of the duration and mileage prize, for which J. Armstrong Drexel, the American aeroplanist also was a contender. Drexel, however, has been very successful at this meeting, his prizes aggregating $6,775. He also won the Lanark trophy.

Munich, Aug. 15.—The dirigible balloon Parseval VI made a successful flight Sunday with sixteen passengers aboard. The dirigible remained in the air for one hour and a half.

"ANGEL OF THE CRIMEA" DEAD

Florence Nightingale Succumbs After Long Struggle With Disease.

London, Aug. 15.—Florence Nightingale, the famous nurse of the Crimean war, and the only woman who ever received the Order of Merit, died Saturday afternoon at her London home. Although she had been an invalid for a long time, rarely leaving her room, where she passed the time in a half recumbent position and was under the constant care of a physician, her death was somewhat unexpected. An attack of heart failure brought the end.

Her funeral will be as quiet as possible, in accordance with her wishes.

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE.

On May 12 she celebrated her ninetieth birthday and was the recipient of a congratulatory message from King George.

She was the first woman to follow a modern army into battle as a nurse, and in the Crimean war she gained the title of "Angel of the Crimea."

There is a strong feeling among the general public, and particularly among the military men, in favor of a public funeral for Florence Nightingale. There is little doubt, however, that her expressed wishes in this connection will be taken into consideration.

Not even the death of a royal personage could have called forth more universal, poignant expressions of regret and tributes of love and affection than appear in the English papers.

Chicago, Aug. 15. — The Winnetka home of Robert C. Brinkley, son-in-law of the late Ira G. Rawn, president of the Monon railroad, who died from a bullet wound less than a month ago, was entered Saturday night and drawers and desks to which Mr. Rawn's private papers had been transferred, were ransacked. The intruder was frightened away by a private watchman. Mr. and Mrs. Brinkley are in Virginia and it is impossible to learn whether anything of value was taken.

Police Magistrate C. F. Hately declares the entry was evidently not made for the purpose of burglary, as valuable silver and jewelry was undisturbed.

LONG WHEAT LIQUIDATED

Values Decline Under Scattered Selling---Cash Markets Are Heavy.

Small Export Business in Durums---Flax Dull and Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, Aug. 15.—Wheat slumped today in a sick market characterized by sliding cash markets and scattered liquidation. The only strong feature was the durum market, which, however, was unable to buck the sentimental effect of the decline in wheat. All other grains either declined or held to a steady level with the exception of rye, which advanced 1c.

The export trade, which has been the chief bull factor, showed signs of weakening today, although this market did a small export business in durums and Baltimore reported two cargoes of red winter wheat worked for export, one before noon and the other toward the close.

The September option dropped 1⅜c, December 1¼c and May 1¼c. Trading was light. When the scattered liquidation ceased the market was dead. Toward the close values continued to slump but at the close there was evidence of short covering which caused the market to rally slightly.

Cash wheat closed 1c over September, oats ¼c off, rye 1c up, barley was unchanged and durum lost 1c.

Showers in the Northwest caused an easier tone in flax. September lost 6c, October 1½c, November 1½c and December ½c.

Wheat opened easy on lower cables due to an increase in the amount of wheat on passage and world's shipments. The former increased 3,208,000 bu. World's shipments amounted to 11,120,000 bu against 10,464,000 bu the week before last. America sent out nearly 200,000 bu more wheat than week before last, last week's shipments amounting to 1,536,000 bu.

There was a let-up in the export demand today. France and Budapest had holidays. This market did a small export business in durums and Baltimore, which is always the first market to feel the effects of an export demand, reported the chartering of a full cargo of 18,000 quarters of red winter wheat for the continent. A Minneapolis mill sold some flour for export late Saturday and it is said that sales are pending. Heavy shipments from Russia and the Danube last week amounted to 6,328,000 bu. Private messages from France said the weather there is favorable.

Scattered showers in the Northwest did not have any effect on the market. Indications point to an increasing movement of spring wheat to the primary markets in the Northwest. There was scattered realizing after the weak opening although values firmed slightly toward noon on account of light buying on the break. Cash markets were exceedingly heavy. Marketings since harvest have been large and the movement in the Northwest is not yet in full swing. In the Southwest the movement is subsiding, but continues in fairly large volume.

If the markets get out of line for an export business some people look for values to decline sharply as they think the export demand is the chief factor which has sustained values lately. They would like to see larger flour sales and a bigger demand for cash wheat. They do not think the export business will continue.

The annual report of the Continental Commercial Bank of Chicago shows the wheat crop to be 657,000,000 or 80,000,000 bu under last year but equal to the ten-year average.

MARKET GOSSIP

On Flax.

Hope, N. D.—Flax here will make 5 bu to the acre. Cannot tell a great deal about the flax crop yet as it is late. The outlook is for an exceedingly poor yield.

Buttzville, N. D.—The flax crop near here is in very poor condition. It is too early to give an estimate of the probable yield.

McKenzie, N. D.—The flax yield in this neighborhood will be very small. Don't think it will make 5 bu an acre but can't tell as the crop is late. No grain has been thrashed here yet.

Hamilton, N. D.—There has been no thrashing here but the probable yields of grains can be fairly estimated. The flax crop is estimated at from 4 to 10 bu, with an average of 6 bu to an acre. The crop looks in a very poor condition.

A Hamilton, N. D., dispatch from another person says—Flax will average 7 bu to the acre in this vicinity. The crop looks fair. It is extremely spotted. Some fields will make 2 bu to the acre and others nearby will run as high as 12 bu.

Minto, N. D.—There will be very little flax here. The crop will not make 3 bu an acre. It will run from 1 bu to slightly over 3. The plant is so small that much will be lost through inability to save it in the cutting.

Valley City, N. D.—The flax crop is not advanced sufficiently to tell about the probable yield. Think the yield will be about one-sixth of last year. This includes a strip six miles wide that was "hailed."

* * *

Wheat and Other Grains.

Hope, N. D.—Spring wheat will run 7 to 8 bu an acre, barley 8 to 10 bu and durum wheat 7 to 8 bu. The yield of spring wheat will be light, but the quality will be good.

Buttsville, N. D.—Spring wheat near here will average 9 bu to the acre. While the returns will be light the quality will be excellent.

McKenzie, N. D.—No wheat has been thrashed near here and it is impossible to estimate the yield. Don't think this part of the state will have much of anything to send out. After seed requirements have been attended to, don't think we will have any stuff to send to market for some time as farmers are disposed to hold their wheat. They are selling a little to meet expenses on account of threshing, but that is all. Most of them are bullish on this wheat and would rather buy future options than to sell the actual grain.

Hamilton, N. D.—Spring wheat will run from 8 to 25 bu an acre. It may average between 12 and 17 bu an acre. It seems to be in fair condition. Barley will average between 10 and 12 bu to an acre. The barley crop is practically a failure. The oats crop may be placed in the same category. No durum wheat is raised here. There has been no thrashing.

Minto, N. D.—Spring wheat will run from 3 bu to 10 bu an acre and will average between 6 and 7 bu. The wheat crop is nearly all threshed. All grains will be entirely threshed in a few days.

Valley City, N. D.—Spring wheat will make an average yield near here of 5 bu an acre. Durum wheat will make a yield of 6 bu an acre. The wheat crop in this vicinity will be about one-third of normal.

Michigan, N. D.—The wheat yield will be about one-fifth of last year. Hail damaged considerable stuff in this vicinity. No wheat has been thrashed yet.

The annual crop report of Continental Commercial Bank shows wheat crop 657,000,000 bu or 80,000,000 bu under last year, but equal to the ten-year average. Corn 3,000,000,000 bu or 225,000,000 bu over last year and 25 per cent over ten-year average. Oats 1,077,000,000 bu or 200,000,000 bu over ten-year average. Barley 125,000,000 bu about equal to last year's crop and rye 31,500,000 bu against 31,500,000 bu last year.

Bromhall cabled: "Liverpool opened steady and unchanged to ⅜d lower. Offerings were lighter with demand quiet, the sustaining influence being the firmer American cables on Saturday. Following opening there was heavy general realizing and prices declined 1⅛ to 1½d. This selling was due to heavy worlds shipments, the total from Russia and Danube being 6,328,000 bu. Amount on passage showed a heavy increase and private reports of very fine weather in France and consigning the closed holiday bears took an advantage to force the market here. There is generally a quiet on continental demand with shipments to continental amounting to 6,128,000 bu. At midday market was weak and demoralized 1⅜d to 1½d lower than Saturday. Corn easy ½d lower. Pressure was due to lower Plata offerings and in sympathy with wheat."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Prices Slump in the Day's First Trading.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—Wheat prices fell off in the opening trading here today and values slumped from ⅝@¾c to 1½c, later regaining some of the decline. The controlling factor was a weaker foreign market which had little bullish domestic competition. Heavy world's shipment and an increased quantity of foodstuffs afloat also contributed to the bearish trend at the start. The initial decline, however, invited purchasers and there was good buying for a time, although the market in the first hour failed to recover all the lost ground. September opened weak, ⅝@¾c to 1¼c lower at $1.02⅞ to $1.02⅜, and worked back to $1.02⅝. December took a greater plunge at the start, which at $1.06 to $1.05½ was ⅞c to 1½c below the final quotations of Saturday. The distant option moved up to $1.06⅛ in the first hour.

Increased offerings of corn from country holders gave a weak tinge to the market and opening figures were unchanged to ½@⅝c lower. Buying by brokers who took a bullish view of crop conditions brought prices back to Saturday's closing level in the first hour. September opened unchanged to ½c lower at 64 to 64½c and crept up to 64½c. The distant futures followed suit.

The market moved in sympathy with wheat. Bullish crop reports from sections of the corn belt failed to stiffen the trade. The close was weak with September ⅞c off at 63⅝c.

Oats showed less tendency to sag than wheat or corn and opened generally ⅛c to ¼c lower. The market had a moderate support from commission sources and fluctuations were within narrow limits. September opened ⅛c to ¼c off at 36⅝c to 36½c.

Commission houses were prominent in the provisions pit and absorbed offerings at the moderate decline with which the day began. Pork fell off at the start from 2½c to 5c with the September products selling at $21.77½; lard showed a similar decline at the start, with the September product at $11.92½. Ribs were also off from 2½c to 5c, September selling at $11.92½@11.95 at the start. Fluctuations were in a narrow range in the first hour.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Heavy Receipts and Foreign Weakness Cut Wheat Prices.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 15.—Heavy local wheat receipts and weakness in foreign markets made the market easier today. Trading in the pit was of fair volume. Deferred contracts were relatively firmer than near months. September closed 1⅜@1½c lower than Saturday. December 1⅛c and 1¼c lower and May 1⅛@1¼c lower. Local elevator stocks decreased 15,000 bu for two days.

Minneapolis today received 52 cars of wheat against 54 cars a year ago; Duluth 64 cars against 5, and Winnipeg 75 against 13. September opened $1.11½; high, $1.11⅝; low, $1.10¾@⅞; closed, $1.11⅛. December opened $1.12¾; high, $1.12¾; low, $1.11⅞ and $1.12; closed, $1.12¼@1.12⅜. May opened $1.16¾; high, $1.16¾; low, $1.16⅛; closed, $1.16¼@1.16⅜.

Cash wheat was active but easier on account of heavy receipts. Millers were good buyers and elevators moderate buyers at lowest premiums. No. 1 northern sold for 1½@2½c above September. Closing prices: No. 1 northern, $1.12⅝@1.13⅝; to arrive, $1.12⅝@1.13⅝; No. 2 northern, $1.07⅛@1.11⅝; to arrive, $1.06⅛@1.10⅛; No. 3 wheat, $1.04⅛@1.10⅛; No. 3 yellow corn, 61½@62½c; No. 3 white oats, 36¼@37c; No. 2 rye, 71@74c.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,678 tons. No quotable change. Bran in 100-pound sacks, $20.00@20.50.

STOCK CLOSE IS STEADY

Early Pressure Is Not Renewed in Last of Session.

New York, Aug. 15.—The stock market opened dull and steady. But soon afterwards displayed a yielding tendency in sympathy with the pressure against the metal stocks. United States Steel declined * and Amalgamated Copper and American Smelting ¾. On the other hand Rock Island preferred moved up 1¼ and Republic Steel 1.

Room traders followed the lead of the professionals and sold stocks, causing a further general decline. The Western railroad stocks, Reading, United States Steel and the copper stocks were the weak features. Union Pacific sagged 1⅝, American Smelting and Amalgamated Copper 1½, Reading and United States Steel 1¼ and St. Paul, Southern Pacific, Missouri Pacific and Chesapeake & Ohio 1. Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis preferred advanced 4 and Great Northern ore certificates 1.

Sever more of the representative stocks scored losses of a point before the selling movement exhausted itself. The weakness of the market was due to the realizing of some of the profits on the recent sharp advance and the selling by bear traders who took advantage of the absence of any important buying to put out new short lines. Prices at noon were slightly above the lowest. Union Pacific rallied a point. Bonds were easy.

During the greater part of the afternoon the market was in a rut. Since the early selling movement culminated the list has been stagnant and fluctuations trivial. Prices for many of the important stocks ruled about a point under Saturday's closing. Canadian Pacific moved up 1½.

The market closed steady. There was not much stock offering around current prices in the final hour, and when orders came in for St. Paul and Consolidated Gas they were bid up above last week's close. The rest of the market leaders moved in a rather aimless fashion, but there was no renewal of the early pressure. American Beet Sugar became rather active toward the close and advanced over 2 points.

Cotton Market.

New York, Aug. 15.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 8 to 12 points and while there was nothing in the news to indicate that the drouth in the Southwest had been broken, sold off under local bear pressure and liquidation, with the active months showing a net loss of from 14 to 16 points inside of the first half hour. Sentiment appeared to be unsettled with local bears showing more confidence owing to the absence of aggressive support from the bull leaders and the appearance of continued lipuidation through commission houses.

SEVEN DYING OF EATING ICE CREAM

Scores of Others Are Made Sick at Church Function.

Portsmouth, Ohio, Aug. 15.—Seven persons are dying and a score of others are seriously ill as the result of eating poisoned ice cream at a church function in Glenn, Ky., last night. George Holcomb, manager of the Portsmouth Granite company; George Tinsley, a laborer; Mrs. John Blackenberger and four children cannot recover, according to reports from physicians today.

The poisoning is thought to have resulted from the use of a rusty or unclean-lined vessel in making the ice cream.

AUGUST 15, 1910.

We are bullish on the entire situation, and cannot see a cloud in the sky. We advise the purchase of Amazon-Montana for the real big money, and believe this stock will sell at above $9 a share this fall.

Butte-Ballaklava is a big earner and we think it should be bought. It will sell much higher this coming winter.

Carman is very active and it has a wide market. It may have a stiff advance later on.

The Butte-Alex Scott is one of the best mines on Butte Hill. We look for big news from developments that have taken place in the last ten days. We can not see a single not now be selling for three times not now be selling for three times what they are now being quoted at.

St. Mary's stock is in big demand at bid price and should be one of the heaviest traders this fall and winter. This stock should sell at 60 cents or 70 cents a share this winter.

WOMAN DEAD; DOCTOR SUICIDE

Double Death Is Discovered in House in Pennsylvania Town.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 15.—The bodies of Dr. Russel Campbell and Mrs. Ira Morrison were found at the home of the Morrisons in New Germantown, Perry county, today. A neighbor discovered the body of the woman lying across the front door step and further search revealed the doctor's body in his room.

Hasty examination showed that the woman had died from internal hemorrhages, resulting from an operation. theory of the police is that Dr. Campbell performed the operation some time during the night, and discovering the fatal result, killed himself. His death was due to cyanide of potassium.

A coroner's jury found a verdict to the effect that Mrs. Morrison had died from the effects of an operation and that Dr. Campbell died from poison taken with suicidal intent.

The husband, Ira Morrison, refused to talk and said he would give no information to anyone except to the district attorney. He was advised not to leave the house and told his fellow townsmen that he would not run away.

EXPERIENCED WAITER.

At the first meal on board the ocean liner, Smythe was beginning to feel like casting his bread upon the waters, says Lippincott's. His friends had told him that when he began to feel that way he should stuff himself. He tackled a cutlet first, but it didn't taste right. He observed to the waiter: "Waiter, this cutlet isn't very good."

The waiter looked at his whitening face, then said:

"Yes, sir; but for the length of time you'll 'ave hit, h'it won't matter, sir.'

THE CONTRARY SEX.

"I deserve this honor of membership," said he, "for I have always upheld her even against herself.

"For instance, I strongly reprimanded a Hannibal woman once. Here was the occasion.

"'So this is a little girl eh?' I said to the woman, as she displayed her children to me. 'And this little sturdy urchin in the bib belongs, I suppose, to the contrary sex?'

"'Yassah,' she replied. 'Yassah, dat's a gal.'"

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF ST LOUIS—

District Court, Eleventh Judicial District.

In the matter of the application to vacate a portion of the plats of Stowell's Addition to West Duluth and Clinton Place Addition to Duluth and Macfarlane's Grassy Point Addition to Duluth, and to adjudge the title to all of the streets, avenues, alleys and public grounds to be in the persons entitled thereto.

1. That it is the owner of all of the platted property in St. Louis County, Minnesota, included within the following described boundary, viz.:

Commencing at a point on the north line of Lot Sixteen (16), in Block Nine (9), Macfarlane's Grassy Point Addition to Duluth, forty (40) feet, measured on said north line, from the northeast corner of said lot; thence southwesterly in a straight line to a point on the east line of the Northeast quarter of Northwest quarter (NE¼ of NW¼) of Section Thirteen (13), in Township Forty-nine (49) North, of Range Fifteen (15) West, which is five hundred ten (510) feet south of the north line of Section Thirteen (13); thence running north on the east line of the Northeast quarter of Northwest quarter of said Section Thirteen (13) to the north line of Section Thirteen (13); thence west along the north line of Section Thirteen (13) one hundred fifty (150) feet to a point; thence in a northeasterly direction in a straight line to a point on the north line of Lot Sixteen (16), in Block Twelve (12), Stowell's Addition to West Duluth, which is sixty-five (65) feet, measured on said north line, east of the northwest corner of said lot; thence easterly along the south boundary of Bristol street to the place of beginning.

2. That petitioner, DULUTH, WINNIPEG & PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY, desires to use said property as a part of its railroad yards, except as to a strip along the northwesterly border thereof, which it proposes to open up as a wagon road.

3. That all of the streets, avenues, alleys and public grounds included within said above described boundary are useless for the purposes for which they were laid out.

4. That the city of Duluth, by ordinance passed by the Common Council February 7th, 1910, approved by the Mayor, February 11, 1910, and duly published, and by petitioner accepted, has granted the right, permission and authority to this petitioner, its successors and assigns, to construct, maintain and operate its railroad yards on all of said property, and the streets, avenues and alleys adjoining the same, to the extent of such portions of the lots and blocks therein and the streets, avenues and alleys adjoining the same as are included within a four hundred (400) foot strip, which four hundred (400) foot strip includes all of said property except the portion thereof along the northwest border thereof as the petitioner proposes to lay out as a wagon road.

WHEREFORE, Petitioner prays that the court vacate the respective plats of Stowell's Addition to West Duluth, Clinton Place Addition to Duluth and Macfarlane's Grassy Point Addition to Duluth, so far as they are included within the above described boundary, and adjudge the title to all the streets, avenues, alleys and public grounds within such boundary to be in the persons or corporations entitled thereto.

TARIFF AND TRUSTS BLAMED FOR HIGH COST OF LIVING IN REPORT OF SENATE COMMITTEE MINORITY

Increased Money Supply Enters But Little Into the Question.

Washington, Aug. 16. — The tariff, trusts, combines and monopolies and an increased money supply are the three substantial causes for the advance in prices in the United States, according to Senators Johnson of Alabama, Clarke of Arkansas, and Smith of South Carolina, minority members of the select senate committee, appointed during the last session of congress to investigate and make a report on wages and the prices of commodities.

Vigorous attack is made in the minority members' report on almost all the reasons given by the majority in its report, submitted some time ago, as to the cause for the advance in prices.

Tariff and Trusts.

"We are without sufficient data," say the minority members in their report, just completed, "to apportion the degree of responsibility between these three causes, but that the two first are the chief malefactors we have no doubt; and they are, of our own creation or permission."

After attacking, one at a time, the fifteen principal causes contributing, according to the majority report, to the high cost of living, the minority takes up the tariff, declaring that when the Payne-Aldrich bill was framed "champagne was put on the schedules at from 54 to 66 per cent, whilst wearing apparel was taxed from 80 to 92 per cent—drinking champagne was to be encouraged and wearing woolen clothes discouraged.

"So with hats," they add, "those bringing not over $4.50 per dozen were taxed 77 per cent and those valued at more than $18 per dozen 47 per cent."

Result of Protection.

"We believe," they say, "that the amount of the tariff is added to the price and taxed to the consumer; that but for the tariff, the commodities we buy upon which that tax is laid would be cheaper approximately, to the extent of the tariff; and that when we do not buy the imported article the protected manufacturer puts approximately the amount of it on the goods produced by him.

"It is difficult to understand how anyone can favor high rates of duty if

AVIATOR BEATS CARRIER PIGEONS

Amiens, France, Aug. 16.—The first aerial race between the birds of nature and of man's production took place in the course of the great aerial cross-country competition and was easily won by man. A flock of forty-seven carrier pigeons was released at Douai yesterday at the same instant that Le Blanc, in his Farman biplane, started from the mark on a 50-mile flight to Amiens.

Rushing through the calm air, the biplane soon outdistanced the birds, and when Le Blanc reached Amiens the flock was not yet in sight, the first pigeon arriving six minutes and twenty seconds after Le Blanc. Before the last of the flock had come in, Le Gagneux, who had started at the same time as Le Blanc but consumed nine minutes more on the trip, arrived, beating the last pigeon by twelve minutes.

BLOWS TOP OF HEAD OFF

Had Been Morose Ever Since Accident One Year Ago.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the curtain of his bedroom spattered with his brains and pieces of his skull driven into the ceiling and walls and scattered about the floor, the body of Arvid Peterson was found at his home last evening two minutes after the report of a shot came from the house, in front of which the father and wife of the dead man were standing.

It was a plain case of suicide, the shot gun with which the deed had been committed being found at his side. The man literally blew the whole top of his head off.

Morose Since Accident.

Peterson had been morose since an accident at the saw mill last summer when he was hit on the head and his nose broken. He had been closely watched of late, and the gun had been taken to the home of his brother-in-law, John Sandberg. Last evening Peterson stole away and got the gun shortly before 11 o'clock, and the suicide took place soon after. He is survived by a wife and one child. He was 25 years old.

NEW YORK REPUBLICAN CHIEFS TURN ROOSEVELT DOWN; HONOR SHERMAN

BALTIMORE BELLE NOW RENO DIVORCEE

MRS. SMITH HOLLINS McKIM.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 16.—Mrs. Smith Hollins McKim, wife of a prominent Baltimore physician and a daughter of Dr. Isaac E. Emerson, millionaire head of the Bromo Seltzer company, has been granted an absolute divorce at Reno, Nev., according to advices from that city. Mrs. McKim went to Reno six months ago, and her divorce was allowed as soon as the necessary legal residence had been established.

Mrs. Emerson, the mother of Mrs. McKim, very emphatically denies that her daughter is to marry Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, as has been persistently rumored since she entered proceedings for the divorce.

As Margaret Emerson, Mrs. McKim was a reigning belle in this city. Dr. McKim, who is the son of Mr. Hollins McKim, a well known Baltimore banker, proposed to her on board her father's yacht, the Margaret, in the bay of Naples. They were married in Baltimore in 1902.

Effort to Select Ex-President Is Defeated By 20 to 15.

Woodruff's Retirement Said to Be Slated for Convention Date.

New York, Aug. 16.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt's name was presented for the office of temporary chairman of the Republican state convention at the meeting of the Republican state committee today, but his selection for that honor was lost by a vote of 20 to 15.

Vice President James S. Sherman was named as temporary chairman of the coming state convention by unanimous vote, following the defeat of the motion to make Col. Roosevelt the temporary presiding officer of the convention.

The state committee selected Saratoga and Sept. 27 as the place and time for the coming convention.

Led by Barnes.

The opposition to former President Roosevelt was led by William Barnes, Jr., and actively seconded by Speaker Wadsworth and National Committeeman William L. Ward. Before the delegates were called to order Mr. Griscom called about him the members of the New York county committee and was in whispered conversation with them for several minutes.

He was in consultation also with Mr. Barnes and Mr. Wadsworth, and made known to them his intention of presenting former President Roosevelt's name for the office of temporary chairman of the convention.

Mr. Griscom was plainly angered at the rejection, and his manner indicated that in his opinion the step taken would receive the reprobation and censure of every enrolled Republican in the state.

Woodruff to Retire?

There were reports that Chairman Woodruff might retire today, but these were generally discredited. Committeemen felt that in view of the present situation it would be better to defer any matter concerning the state chairmanship until the state convention.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 16.—The state house yard holds many tents of the privates of the First regiment of Cincinnati, O. N. G., who arrived here early today on call by Governor Harmon for strike duty. The militia is in absolute control of the situation, although martial law has not been proclaimed. The soldiers cook their meals on the state house grounds.

Director of Public Safety McCune today formally discharged the thirty-three mutinous policemen who refused to go on the cars when ordered by Mayor Marshall.

FRESH FROM VATERLAND

Thirty-Two German Students Making Flying Trip Through America.

Thirty-two students of the University of Commerce of Cologne arrived in Duluth this morning to spend the day here studying her industries.

Duluth is one of the points selected for inspection on a hurried but comprehensive six weeks' tour of the country. The young men are keen, observant young fellows and take a great interest in American mechanical and other devices. They are an unusually intelligent group of men, typical German students, showing the foreigner, even through the New York garments which have been acquired by some.

The party is in charge of J. W. Coupland traveling representative of the Hamburg-American line, and is also accompanied by Professor-Doctor Christian Eckert, head of the university; Professors Kurt Hassert, and Paul Mondenauer of the faculty; and Karl Rehorst, deputy mayor of the city of Cologne.

The trip is being made under the supervision and with the approbation of the German government, and will include, as far as is possible in so short a stay, a thorough survey of the country, its economic conditions and its natural resources.

Inspect Elevator.

This morning the young men were taken through the big new Consolidated elevator "D," the working of the big hoists and other machinery being explained to them by the management, and by their professors. Most of the young men speak English remarkably well, as a result of their uni-

TAKE RELIGION TO THE FARMERS

Bishop Berry Says They Need It and Will Get It.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 16.—Another great layman's missionary movement may grow out of the statements made by Dr. Joseph L. Berry of the Methodist Episcopal church regarding the decadence of the rural church and the godlessness of the American farmer. If the plans of the bishop are carried out, the movement will be similar in character to the recent great foreign missionary project, but this movement is to Christianize the United States rather than heathen countries.

The bishop has obtained, it is said, the backing of James G. Cannon, a New York banker, who is to finance the project. A great army of Christian workers is to invade the rural districts and advocate a country-wide revival. One hundred American centers which will reach 2,000 towns, will be worked.

In reference to the campaign, Bishop Berry says:

"The great laymen's missionary movement has thus far been a campaign in behalf of foreign missions. What is now proposed is a campaign for the evangelizaton of the millions at home."

GAYNOR STRONGEST SINCE HE WAS SHOT

Mayor May Go to the Adirondacks in Two Weeks.

New York, Aug. 16.—Mayor Gaynor steadily continues to improve and when he awoke today he seemed to be stronger than at any time since he was shot. Danger of infection is almost past, although everything is in readiness should circumstances render an operation necessary.

Mayor Gaynor is being kept very quiet and a few visitors are permitted to see him. The wounded executive feels the heat but otherwise seems not disturbed by his unfortunate situation.

Should no complications develop it is believed that Mayor Gaynor can be taken to the camp of a friend in the Adirondacks in about two weeks.

The mayor's physician said that the patient had slept all during the night and was doing nicely this morning.

WOMEN WANT TO VOTE ON BONDS

Louisiana Suffragists Go to Tell Views to Legislature.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 16.—Members of the Era club of New Orleans, the leading exponents of woman's suffrage in Louisiana, journeyed to Baton Rouge this morning to ask the general assembly to provide for the right of women non-taxpayers to vote in proposed bond issues in support of an exposition to be held here in 1915 in commemoration of the completion of the Panama canal. Women are entitled to vote in this state on certain questions of taxation.

On the same train with the club members went an opinion of the attorney general, which declared that only qualified electors can vote on an amendment to the Constitution as proposed in the exposition matter, and declaring that women are not qualified electors.

THIRTY-NINE LOST AT SEA

Spanish Steamer Is Sunk By Collision With German Boat.

Accident Occurs at Straits of Gibraltar---Passengers Are Victims.

Gibraltar, Aug. 16.—The Spanish steamer Martos foundered this morning off Tarifa, on the African coast, at the entrance to the straits of Gibraltar, after a collision with the German steamer Elsa.

Thirty-nine were drowned, of whom thirty-two were passengers. The survivors were landed here.

Nine of the victims on the Martos were first cabin passengers. The other twenty-three passengers who perished were in the steerage.

The bow of the Elsa was stove in by the collision and her forepeak filled quickly with water. The steamer, however, managed to keep afloat.

The Martos was a small steamer of 1,046 tons net, engaged in the coasting traffic. She was built in Dundee, Scotland, in 1883, and was 234 feet long. Her port of registry was Valencia, Spain.

The Elsa, a German tramp steamer, is even smaller, registering only 494 tons. She sailed from Abo, a river port on the Niger, in Africa, on July 20 for Valencia, and was last reported passing Gibraltar on Aug. 3.

HAS CROSSES CUT THROUGH CHEEKS

Cleveland Man Says It Was Done By Society for Revenge.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 16.—Running through the streets with a cross cut on each cheek and one on his chin, Tony Mossa was arrested at midnight. The cuts had been made by a razor and completely penetrated his cheeks. He told the police that they were the avenger's sign of a secret order to which he had belonged, and accused Teole Meneotta, a fellow countryman, of being his assailant.

Meneotta was arrested later, but the police were unable to get any coherent statement from either man.

The victim of the supposed vendetta, after making his first statement, appeared frightened at having said so much and obstinately refused to give any further information. Both men were held.

DEPARTMENT LACKS FUNDS

State Immigration Bureau Needs More Money, Say Bankers.

Will Boost the Agricultural Possibilities of Northern Minnesota.

Charles R. Frost, secretary of the Minnesota Bankers' association and also secretary of the Interstate Bankers' association, is in the city today, the guest of William I. Prince, cashier of the City National bank. As secretary of the bankers' association of this state, Mr. Frost is at the present time engaged upon some work that is of vital importance to this section of Minnesota.

The agricultural department of the bankers' association is working to secure an increased appropriation for the immigration department of the state. Those who have watched the work of this department believe that it is one of the most important departments of the state and one that is doing the most good.

Officials of the bankers' association believe that the immigration department is greatly hampered because of lack of funds. The annual appropriation for this department is $20,000. The committee in charge of the work that is being done along this line by the state bankers' association will go before the legislature and ask that the appropriation for the immigration department be at least doubled, so that Minnesota can place its advantages before the eyes of the citizens of other states.

Mr. Frost pointed out an instance of the way the immigration department is hampered because of this lack of funds. A pamphlet was gotten out by the state commissioner of immigration and a few were sent into Iowa. Some citizen of that state became interested in the facts and figures contained in the pamphlet and asked that 500 of the little booklets be sent to him. The request had to be declined, simply because the department did not possess the funds necessary to print any additional pamphlets.

It is the idea of the agricultural department, that the advantages of this state be placed before those citizens of other states who are seeking new homes. This is a subject that the people of this section of the state are particularly interested in, as Mr. Frost pointed out from the fact that there are thousands of acres of idle land in this part of Minnesota that should be settled.

Agricultural Education.

Another subject that will be taken up by the agricultural department of the association, is that of a broader policy of agricultural education in the state. It is the aim to have the legislature pass a law making it compulsory to have agricultural education in the rural schools of the state. It is also the idea of the bankers' committee to have an agricultural course in the normal schools, in order that the state may fit its teachers to take up this important branch of education.

Mr. Frost pointed out that only 5 per cent of the students of the state were taking agricultural education, which in a state like Minnesota the members of the committee consider far too low.

Another important matter that the Bankers' association will bring before the state legislature, is the appointment of a commission, composed of one or two representative business men, and one or two representatives from the trades or some other branch of industry in the state, to visit Germany and study the educational system there.

Germany has, according to the opinion of the members of the association who have taken up this particular study, the greatest system of education in the world.

This commission would study the subject of education thoroughly, and its ideas could be used in broadening and making more practical, the system of education of Minnesota.

Mr. Frost stated today that in securing an increased appropriation for the immigration department of the state, the bankers' association was only too glad to work with commercial clubs and other organizations throughout the state which had the subject of agricultural improvement under consideration.

The secretary of the state bankers' association commended the good work that is being carried on by the commercial club of this city, and stated that what the Duluth Commercial club had done in the past, had resulted in awakening interest in immigration and the settlement of farm lands which means so much to the prosperity of Minnesota.

CAMPAIGN OPENS.

Starkweather Arraigns Insurgents; Lenroot Defends La Follette.

Former Mayor C. S. Starkweather opened the campaign in behalf of his candidacy for congress last evening at the Sons of Norway hall, by delivering a strong anti-insurgent speech, rehearsing the achievements of the Republican party since the Civil war and arguing that the Grand Old Party was in danger from within. He was opposed to Lenroot, he said, because he went to Washington as a Reupblican and voted with the Democrats.

A large crowd attended the meeting and the speaker was accorded hearty applause at times.

Congressman I. L. Lenroot also spoke before a good sized audience last night before the Swedish-American club in Terminal hall. He defended the La Follette candidates for assembly and state senate, and warmly supported the insurgent cause in national politics.

LIE PASSED BY MINERS

Lewis and Walker Exchange Compliments in Indianapolis Meeting.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 16.—That President John Walker of Illinois had lied and International President Lewis had told untruths was the substance of Lewis' statement and Walker's reply in the special international convention of the miners today. Lewis at the outset was interrupted, but after rapping the convention to order and declaring that he was "going to have his say," was given close attention.

After reviewing the situation in Illinois, he defended the calling of the convention, which President White of Iowa had termed a monumental blunder, by saying the purpose of the convention was to fix an assessment and to "discipline certain rebels" in the order.

Cheered Both Men.

The cheers which marked the end of Lewis' statement were redoubled when Walker took the platform. The Illinois president declared in opening that he had no ax to grind and would not be a candidate for international president. He read a number of letters to show that Lewis had evaded indorsing the strike.

Walker, after saying that he had been watching Lewis as closely as he had the Illinois operators and that it had paid him, closed his reply with a plea for an indorsement of the Illinois strike.

FATE OF RACING IN OHIO AT STAKE

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 16.—Harry K. Devereux, president of the Forest City Livestock & Fair company, appeared in Police Justice Murphy's court today to answer a charge of permitting pool selling at the Grand circuit light harness meet at North Randall last week, but on his attorney's plea that he had not sufficient time to prepare his case, counsel agreed to a continuance until Aug. 25.

Horsemen believe that the fate of racing in this state depends on the decision in Devereaux's case.

New Second Baseman.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 16.—George E. Lennon, owner of the St. Paul baseball club, announced today that Second Baseman Baker of the Holyoke, Conn., club, had been secured to fill the vacancy by the release of Second Baseman "Zeke" Wrigley. Baker will join the St. Paul club at Toledo.

RAILROADS

Will Increase Stock.

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 16. — The Missouri, Kansas & Texas Terminal Railroad company of St. Louis today filed with the secretary of state a certificate of an increased capital stock from $100,000 to $10,000,000.

Wreck on the Missouri Pacific.

Nevada, Mo., Aug. 16. — One negro was killed and thirty-five passengers were injured when the tender of Missouri Pacific passenger train No. 209 jumped the track eleven miles north of here early today. Fireman Grover Murdock of Nevada, was badly scalded. The smoker, baggage and mail cars and one chair car were completely wrecked. None of the passengers is seriously hurt.

RECOVER FROM STAGE FRIGHT

Denver, Colo., Aug. 16.—As man after man drove off today in the second round of the medal play in the trans-Mississippi golf tournament it became evident that the spasm of stage-fright, which attacked many of the best golfers in the West yesterday had passed.

The big field started on in pursuit of the four leaders, but Legg of Minikahda with 77 for the first round, Broomfield of Denver with 80, Sheehan of Des Moines with 81 and Lindsey of the Omaha Field club with 81, are sure to finish in the first flight.

Harry G. Legg, the title holder, has shown clearly that he is of the class of the best trans-Mississippi entrants and is expected by many experts to reclaim the title.

With the make-up of the first flight largely determined by the first round yesterday, the energies of the successful players were directed toward qualifying for the presidents' and directors' cups, open to the second and third flights of 32 each in the qualifying round. All ties in the qualifying round will be decided by extra hole match play at 5:30 this afternoon.

NOT READY TO RUN TRAINS

W. L. Martin, vice president and geenral traffic manager of the Soo, today stated that as yet no definite announcement could be made as to the inauguration of through passenger traffic between this city and Chicago.

Mr. Martin came here today to look over the terminals and also to attend a meeting of the various traffic interests of the city, which was held this afternoon in the Commercial club.

"They informed us in Minneapolis that the depot would be completed by the first of September," said Mr. Martin, in answer to the question as to the completion of the depot. "After looking over the depot here, I am of the opinion that it will be about the first of October before it is completed. Therefore it is too early at the present time to announce when the through passenger service between Duluth and Chicago will be inaugurated.

"However, I am of the opinion that some definite announcement will be made within a very short time."

Vice President Martin stated that the wheat situation in North Dakota was very much better than was generally anticipated. Much of the short straw, he stated, had thrashed out very well. Mr. Martin stated that the lumber business, as far as the Soo was concerned, was very quiet, but otherwise general business was very good.

BIG SUIT IN OHIO COURT

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 16.—Suits aggregating more than $1,100,000 were filed here today against Newman Erb, a New York attorney, on behalf of Rudolph and Leopold Kleybolte, former brokers of this city. One suit alone would dispose of $1,100,000. In another the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad is made a joint defendant with Erb.

The litigation grows out of the formation of a liquidating trusteeship of the old firm of Kleybolte & Co., in 1908. In general the allegations are that Eerb, although active trustee, was found in adverse instead of friendly attitude towards the interests which he was supposed to conserve and that as a result of his deals the interests of the members of the firm and of the creditors have been endangered.

One of the deals in question involved the sale of the Wisconsin Central railroad to the Canadian Pacific; another the purchase of the Chicago, Cincinnati & Louisville, by the Chesapeake & Ohio road.

The plaintiffs ask for the appointment of a receiver to take over the assets held by the trusteeship.

COPPERS HAVE AN UPTURN

Shares Open Firm and Advance Throughout the Session.

The copper market opened moderately firm and after a period of nervousness it struck its stride and values marched steadily forward, closing at the top or within a fraction of it. Gains were pronounced, running in most instances as much as two points. The upturns made by the lower priced stocks were relatively as large and the entire market participated in the upward swing.

North Butte was particularly strong. Amalgamated also acted well. In the curb stocks several issues were buoyant but most stocks were slow to move because the advance came at such a late hour in the day that the public was not aware of the sharp upturn that values were taking. The most active stocks on the local board were Red Warrior, Calumet & Montana, Calumet & Corbin, Amazon and several others.

London came stronger and the tone was reflected at the opening on this side. There was very little news of importance early in the day and the day and trading was mostly professional. Toward noon the public came into the market more heavily. The foreign visible supply of copper shows a decrease of 2,500 tons this month. This statement caused heavy buying in coppers toward the close, Amalgamated and North Butte leading in the upturn.

Butte-Ballaklava sold at $11.25. This stosk is now earning at the rate of $3 annually. It is shipping 160 tons of ore a day, carrying an average of 9 per cent copper and 11 oz. in silver. It is producing at cost of less than 4c a pound. Copper Queen sold at 28c; Denn at $3.12½, and North Butte at $30.12½ and $30. Red Warrior sold at $2.75, $2.87½, $2.81¼ and back to $2.87½, closing $2.93¾ bid with no offers lower than $3. Nearly 1,000 shares changed hands.

The full paid Savanna sold at $2.50; Warrior at $6 and $5.87½; Amazon at $3.50. This stock was weaker today on profit taking after its sensational advance. Calumet & Montana sold at $1 to $1.06¼; Calumet & Corbin at 46c and 47c; Mowitza at 60c; San Antonio at $6.25; St. Mary's at 25c; Tuolumne at $2.25, and North American at $2.93¾ to $3.

Amalgamated sold at $65.87½ to $68; Steel at $70.50 to $72.62½ to $72.50, Butte Ballaklava in the East at $11.25, $11.12½ to $11.75, Butte Coalition at $19.50 to $20 to $19.75, Calumet & Arizona at $59.50 to $62, Giroux at $7.12½ to $7.37½, Greene at $7.87½, North Butte at $28.40 to $28.50, and Superior & Pittsburg at $12 to $12.12½.

Calumet & Arizona in July produced 2,705,000 pounds of copper. The Bisbee district produced 2,469,000 pounds and the Courtland district yielded the balance. The Superior & Pittsburg company prouced 2,224,000 pounds.

* * *

W. T. Smith, president of the Amazon-Montana, returned last evening from a visit to the property in the Wickes-Corbin district of Montana, the Butte-Ballaklava mine near Butte and the Interstate mine near Wallace which is owned by the Butte-Ballaklava crowd, and which probably will be put on the market when financial conditions are favorable.

"Shipping will be started at the Amazon-Montana in a few weeks," said Mr. Smith. "The crosscut which has encountered the Silver Star vein at a depth of 250 feet has proven stoping ground for a distance of 165 feet. We uncovered high grade ore on the 85-foot level. The width of the vein on the 250-foot level has not been determined. We are driving on the hanging wall and the average assay of the ore is $27.50 a ton. The product is lead, silver and gold. We expect to crosscut the vein every fifty feet and we believe we will find higher grade ore on the foot wall than we are getting on the hanging wall."

DEPUTY MAYOR OF COLOGNE DOFFS HIS HAT TO DULUTH

Duluth is all right.

The deputy mayor of Cologne, Germany, is responsible for the statement this time, as many men of many minds have been in the past.

Duluth not only is all right, but the men who live here are a whole lot more polite than those who live in Europe.

That statement is made on the authority of Francis Samuel of Hungary, who believed men everywhere should be polite, especially to the ladies.

Professors and students of the University of Commerce of Cologne are in Duluth today on an American tour under the auspices of the Hamburg-American line, personally conducted by J. W. Coupland, traveling representative of the line, who hails from New York and almost every other city in the world.

Karl Rehorst, deputy mayor of Cologne, is a member of the party. He has paid particular attention to the topographical and scenic features of the cities he has visited in the United States. He says that the most striking thing he has observed is the stern practical lines on which the cities here are laid out. In Germany the chief attention of the municipal authorities is devoted to planning for the comfort and pleasure of the people, while here the main consideration seems to be to get the greatest degree of utility out of the streets and avenues.

Where in Germany the authorities would design serpentine streets and avenues, with a view to making the most of every hill, knoll and contour of the land, the American municipalities would make it a point to level away the land and build straight streets. Pittsburg strikes him as being about the most ungainly, straight-away burg he has seen.

Mr. Rehorst as deputy mayor has charge of city planning and extension at Cologne. There are several deputy mayors, each with his department, much as American cities are administered under the commission plan. The fact that municipal government in Germany is of the highest grade is very well known, and although Mr. Rehorst has not gone into questions of municipal government in this country, he inclines to the belief that the cities of America would lose nothing by adopting the commission form of government.

Francis Samuel of Hungary, one of the students with the party, is a young man of distinguished lineage and the son of wealthy parents.

"No, I am not married," he smilingly said, twitching the dainty mustache that adds distinction to his features. "And I do not intend to marry while on this journey. American girls? Indeed they are charming. And they have such small feet. The men are polite here. I like that very much. When they get in an elevator—the lift—when ladies are there, they take off their hats. That is very nice.

"Another thing I have noticed is that here in America you have better rapid transit than we have in Europe. The conductors? Oh, they are the same everywhere."

Details of Robbery of Reds Told--Court Said to Know All.

Sulphur, Okla., Aug. 16.—Attempts to show that the government was justified in delaying the sale of $30,000,000 worth of Indian land in Oklahoma occupied the congressional committee in the investigation of the McMurray contracts today. Testimony was given that it would have been impossible for the government to sell out the land and distribute the money among the Indians as speedily as J. F. McMurray had promised.

Representative C. D. Carter of Oklahoma was recalled and asked: "What is your opinion of Vice President Sherman in matters pertaining to Indian affairs?"

Disapproved Big Fees.

"What was his (Sherman's) attitude toward large fees?"

"He had been opposed to them."

Representative C. H. Burke, chairman of the investigating committee, pointed out to the witnesses that much of the government alleged delay in selling the land was due to the failure of the Indians to take their share of allotted lands.

Douglass H. Johnson, chief of the Chickasaw nation, testified he signed the McMurray contracts. He had urged others to sign, but he never had been induced to do so by McMurray.

Details of Scheme.

Details of a scheme by which "land grabbers" organized systematically to enrich themselves at the expense of minor Indians, were related at the investigation. In one instance, it was asserted, the cost of disposing of the property of an 18-year-old Indian was $2,075 more than the property brought.

The probate court at Durant allowed the guardian to sell for $2,800 a tract of 140 acres of what is known as allotted land owned by an 18-year-old boy. The guardian then put in a claim on the proceeds.

The claim included $850 for acting as guardian, $1,650 for improving the land, $500 for a barn, $60 for posts, $260 for fences, $68 for witness fees and more money for other purposes.

Owed His Guardian.

It was found when the deed was closed that the boy owed his former guardian $2,075 and now the guardian is threatening to have the property sold in order to get the $2,075.

In another case, in which 325 acres were sold for an Indian child, when all the claims were paid the child got $350. In another instance $1,500 was obtained for 200 acres, but the child got only $120.

"In other words," said the witness, "the children of deceased Indians in this state, where are located one-third of all the Indians in the United States, are systematically being robbed of the estates allotted to them by the government. The property is sold at prices dictated by the land robbers. The children are robbed at both ends—at one end by their guardians and at the other end by the purchasers."

"Do you mean to say that such things are countenanced by the probate courts?"

VENIREMAN SAYS HE WAS TALKED TO

Chicago, Aug. 16.—Judge Kersten, in whose court a jury is being selected for the re-trial of Lee O'Neil Browne, will investigate an alleged interview between Emil Wenderberg, a venireman, and a physician named in court only as "Doctor" Kelly. Wennerberg sad Kelly had called him into his office and spoken to him about jury service. A subpoena was issued for the physician, but it was quashed when Attorney Thomas Dawson promised to bring Kelly into court.

ASSESSMENT IS A MASS OF GROSS INEQUALITIES

Board of Equalization Finds Its Task Growing More Difficult.

That the city assessment now being considered by the board of equalization is a mass of inaccuracies and enequalities, and that if an equitable assessment is to be ecured, an entirely new one will have to be made, is the opinion of those who have studied the assessor's books.

It is claimed that the work of the board of equalization is barely begun, and that many other gross inequalities will be found before it is completed.

One proof of this is the fact that in 1910 there were 419 more persons to be assessed than there were in 1909, but there is this year a net decrease in the valuation of personal property, of $867,294.

These figures are the result of the checking up of the city assessor's books by the county board of equalization.

Meets With Approval.

The action of the board of equalization in checking over the books and making known its intention of raising the assessment in numerous instances, seems to meet with the heartiest approval on the part of the real estate and business men generally throughout the city.

Several realty men this morning said that while they had not looked thoroughly into the matter, they knew enough about it to state that business property assessments need adjusting.

N. J. Upham in giving his opinion on the matter states that there are, to his knowledge, many irregularities and that the board is doing only its duty straightening them out and correcting them. On land up the river, Mr. Upham says that he favors being as easy as possible on the ground that it is eventually to be used for manufacturing purposes. He says, howevxer, that $38, $40, $60 and $75 would appear to be very much below what the assessment should be. "The board is working along the right line in getting the assessments straightened out," he said.

Whitney Wall is very much of the same opinion as Mr. Upham. It is his opinion that unimproved property should be taxed relatively more than improved property. Mr. Wall states as his reason for this that the man with a lot alongside the improved property reaps the benefit in the increased valuation of his lot, while the man who has done the improving pays more in addition to doing the improving.

The Street Railway Case.

In 1909 the Duluth Street Railway company was assessed at $673,412. The amount was raised by the county board to $915,585, and the company paid taxes on that figure. In 1910 this sum has been reduced to $761,181 by the assessor, a decrease of $154,404. The county board wants to raise the amount this year to $1,500,000. The difference in the point of view of the board and the assessor amounts to $738,819.

In 1909 retail merchandise was assessed at $1,157,307. This year it was assessed at $849,011. The decrease in this particular is $308,296.

It is the same way with the wholesale merchandise. In 1909 the assessment was $1,230,142. This year it is $1,196,330 and the decrease is $33,812.

On logs and lumber in 1909 the assessment was $643,096. This year it is $567,831. The decrease in this instance is $75,265.

On elevators the result is the same. Last year the assessment was $237,325 and this year it is $195,620. The decrease is $41,705.

The Standard Oil company was assessed $44,359 in 1909 and in 1910 $22,176. The decrease is $22,183.

A Curious Situation.

A curious situation exists on the upper side of First street at Third avenue west. The Board of Trade and Wolvin buildings each stand on 100 feet of ground, and the land is assessed in each case at $33,200. The inside 100 feet adjoining each building is assessed at $36,000. The corner 100 feet is assessed $2,800 lower in each instance than the inside 100 feet adjoining it. The Elks' lodge building stands on fifty feet which is assessed at $18,000, while the fifty feet adjoining it on the east, which is part of the board of trade property, is assessed at $13,900—$4,100 less. The same situation exists on the other side of Third avenue with the inside fifty feet of the Wolvin building lot and the fifty feet adjoining it on the east.

When this discrepancy was called to the attention of City Assessor Rakowsky, he stated that in both cases it was due to clerical errors. He wrote to the county board about it, but that body had already taken the matter up for investigation and correction.

The American Exchange bank corner is assessed at $44,850. The lot between Fourth and Fifth avenues west, on which the City Gun store stands, is also valued at $44,850, in spite of the fact that it is in the middle of the block while the American Exchange bank lot is a corner one.

The upper side of Superior street is assessed higher all the way along the business section until Fifth avenue west is reached. Here conditions change and the lower side is assessed at the higher rate. Property on the lower side has always been considered the more valuable on account of its frontage on two streets, allowing two store fronts and an extra floor on Michigan street.

The southwest corner of First avenue east is assessed at $31,050. This southeast corner is assessed at $24,150. What makes the difference in this property the board finds its difficult to figure.

The corner fifty feet of the Bayha building at Second avenue west and First street is assessed at $20,160. The corner fifty feet of the Wolvin building at Third avenue west is assessed at $19,300. The board is trying to figure out how this conclusion was reached when Third avenue property is considered more valuable than that at Second avenue west.

All over the city and on all kinds of property the assessments vary, sometimes a very great deal in a very short distance. The board is busily engaged in trying to make them uniform and to correspond to property of the same location and of equal value.

The board will be in session every day for the next week and those who have complaints to make are invited to appear before the board and make them The figures now on the books would tend to show that the board has its work cut out for some time to come.

OPEN MARKET FOR PRODUCE

Farmers Will Offer Their Supplies for Sale in Armory.

Citizens Will Have Chance to Save Money on Vegetables.

The public market on the ground floor of the Armory, Second avenue east and First street, will be open tomorrow for the first time this summer.

Many farmers are expected in with their wagons heaped high with good things to eat, including every varieties of vegetables and green stuff that thrives so well on the fertile acres back of the city. Each year the tillers of the soil who live near Duluth bring in baskets of lettuce, cucumbers, celery, green beans, tomatoes, ripe corn, parsley and all kinds of root vegetables.

The First street floor of the Armory has been prepared for them by the board of public works. There will probably be plenty of room and all will have an excellent opportunity to make selections for the stands which the farmers will erect.

The public market has been well patronized in the past, but it is thought that more people will purchase there this year than ever before. The citizens are beginning to learn that the market offers them the place they have been waiting for. Twice a week, Wednesdays and Saturdays, they can secure more and better supplies for the table at less cost than anywhere else inside the city limits.

The encouragement of the public market means much to the citizens. When the market becomes too small for the demands made upon it, the pressure will result in a permanent market upon a broader, firmer basis. Truck gardening is in its infancy in Duluth, comparatively speaking, and nothing would do more to bring in additional farmers than the spreading of the news that the farmers already here cannot bring their produce to market fast enough.

SALEM SHOE MEN OUT ON STRIKE

Salem, Mass., Aug. 16.—A general strike of union employes in the Salem shoe factories was begun today and it is expected more than 1,000 workers will quit their benches. The strike came as the result of a meeting of the United Shoe Workers of America last night, at which it was voted to declare a general strike if a conference today failed to bring about an adjustment of the troubles that have existed for some time between the union and the L. G. Straw and Dunham company. The conference failed to reach an agreement.

IN SESSION AT NORMAL

Presidents of Schools and Directors Discuss Improvements at Duluth.

Report Shows That Duluth Is Least Expensive Normal School.

The normal school presidents and the directors of the state normal school board were in session at the Duluth normal all morning today. The time was principally taken up with a discussion of the two wings which are to be added to the Duluth normal school building this fall. The problem involved is to build the wings without interfering seriously with the view of the lake afforded from the new dormitory behind the building. W. A. Hunt, the architect, was in conference with the board this morning.

The meeting adjourned for the day at noon without the directors coming to any definite decision, and the question will be taken up at the meeting tomorrow morning. The session tomorrow morning will be held in the offices of Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell in the Lonsdale building, in response to Director J. L. Washburn's invitation.

In addition to discussing the $50,000 addition to the Duluth normal school, the board received and approved the report of the purchasing agent for the year. His report affords some interesting statistics on the amounts being spent on the various schools. St. Cloud is the most expensive of the normal schools of the state to maintain, the total expenditures there for the year ending July 31, 1910, being $52,912.99. Mankato spent $49,155.22. Moorehead normal is next with a total expenditure of $46,879.51. Winona is next with an expenditure of $45,281, while at Duluth the school was run for the year at a cost of $35,837.92.

At the meeting tomorrow it is probable that the question of putting in special courses in the normal schools to fit students to teach the special branches of music, drawing, home economics, manuel training, educational supervision and physical education will be taken up. At the June meeting of the board the board of presidents recommended that these courses be installed provided that an extra appropriation could be secured to defray the expense so that the regular work of the schools need not be slighted. A committee was appointed at that time to confer with the high school principals and with the state university authorities upon the subject and the report of that committee is looked for tomorrow.

This afternoon the board of directors and presidents will be entertained on a trip up the river to Fond du Lac as guests of J. L. Washburn, in M. H. Ainworth's launch. This evening they will go in a body to the Lyceum to witness the performance of "A Gilded Fool" by the Forbes company.

All the board members and presidents were in attendance this morning. Those present include: Guy E. Maxwell of Winona; Charles H. Cooper of Mankato; W. A. Shoemaker of St. Cloud; Frank A. Weld of Moorhead; Eugene W. Bohannon of Duluth; Gen. Eli Torrance of Minneapolis; C. G. Schultz of St. Paul; S. H. Somsen of Winona; John C. Wise of Mankato; Karl Matthie of St. Cloud; C. A. Nye of Morhead; H. E. Hoard of Montevideo; W. E. C. Ross of Blue Earth, and J. L. Washburn of Duluth.

CANNOT DECIDE ON MAN'S SANITY

After an examination as to his sanity in district court yesterday, before Judge Cant, Guiseppi Furlani was taken back to the county jail to await the October term of the range district court.

He is charged with having killed his cousin, Mario Furlani, by hitting him over the head with a steel bar. S. C. Scott is defending, and after visiting the man in his cell at the jail, the attorney asked for an examination as he believed the man insane.

The matter was put over so that he might be watched and further signs of insanity, if there be any, noticed. After the examination it was still undecided as to whether or not the man is in his right mind.

The murder is said to have taken place on July 4. The victim died a few days later.

CENSUS SHOWS MORE INDUSTRIES

Washington, Aug. 16.—The value of the annual product of the manufacturers of Delaware, the first given out by the census bureau as the result of its investigations in connection with the thirteenth census, is $52,871,041. This is a gain of more than 28 per cent since 1904, when the value was $41,160,276.

There was a 29 per cent gain in salaries and wages, of 17 per cent in the number of establishments and of almost 20 per cent in the capital employed. More than 2,000 officials and clerks and more than 21,000,000 laborers are employed.

BEARS STEAL THEIR FISH

Two Duluth Fishermen Have Harrowing Trip to Gooseberry River.

The week's camping expedition which had been so carefully planned by Joseph Schwartz of 424 Sixth avenue east, and Lloyd Sayer of this city, came to a sudden end this morning, following one day's outing.

This is a true fish story as well as a true bear story, but it is the latter part that adds to the interest of the story and caused a hasty departure from the fields of pleasure.

Schwartz is employed as a printer and Sayer as a drug clerk, but at heart they are fishers, and they have shown themselves to be as good fishermen as any in Duluth.

For several weeks before their vacation, which was Saturday night at the close of business, they had arranged for a camp. They selected a pleasant spot on the banks of Gooseberry river, above Two Harbors, and had secured their tents and provisions.

Sunday morning they arrived at the scene of their week's sport, and it was the work of but a few hours to arrange as neat a camp as ever had been pitched on the banks of this attractive river.

In the afternoon they began fishing, and they had excellent sport.

Well satisfied with their day's trip on the river, they returned to camp. They strung the fish up on a convenient hook, outside the tent, and retired.

After retiring they were disturbed by some sounds about the camp, but believing that they were only from the rustling of the leaves tossed about by the high wind, they paid no more attention to them, and soon were sound asleep.

Yesterday morning, bright and early, they awoke with the idea of having another successful catch. But, to their astonishment, when they stepped out of the tent, they found the fish had disappeared.

Then an investigation began. Like the old scouts in the Wild West, they started to look for tracks. They found plenty of them, and they were bear tracks. There was no mistake about them.

The idea that the woods were filled with bears did not strike them as a pleasant one ,as they were unarmed, and without any further discussion, they hastily broke camp, and arrived home last evening.

Their warning to friends who would go fishing and camping is, "Beware of the bears, and take a gun along."

GRAND LARCENY IS THE CHARGE

Axel Erickson, Chimney Sweep, Arrested for Alleged Pocket Picking.

Axel Erickson, 28 years of age and a chimney sweep, was arrested this afternoon on complaint of John Schleyel for grand larceny. According to Schleyel's testimony the men were rooming together at the Liberty hotel, 613 West Superior street. Shortly after noon today Schleyel missed a pocket book with a roll of bills from his coat pocket. Being reasonably sure that nobody but Erickson could have taken it, he at once made complaint to the police. At sight of the officers Erickson ran upstairs and made an ineffectual attempt to get rid of the money, just before being arrested.

ADVISORY BOARD TO TRY RUNNING MINE.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—The advisory board of the Illinois Coal Operators' association has decided to purchase a mine from one of the individual members and attempt to operate it, with a purpose of bringing about a resumption of coal mining operations in the state. The attempt probably will result in a test case, as prosecutions are expected to result for violation of the law forbidding the importation of miners. The association also voted to sever negotiations with State President Walker of the United Mine Workers of America.

GET CLEW TO MURDER OF ABILENE, KAN., GIRL.

Abilene, Kan., Aug. 16.—What is regarded as a significant clew in connection with the supposed murder of Miss Bertha Benignus here Sunday was discovered today. The merchant's billhead upon which the German note found under her window was written was taken from a box on the table in the corner of the girl's room. In this box she kept receipts and private letters. This is believed to be further evidence of murder, and to indicate that the murderer engaged into a thorough search of the girl's effects.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

Attorney General Simpson and the State's Meandered Lakes Case—Former Chairman Brown of Republican State Committee Visits Duluth—County Auditor Halden Quits Sickbed to Attend Meeting of Board of Equalization—O. A. Lende of Marshall Candidate for Senate.

Attorney General George T. Simpson, who was in the city yseterday, believes that the litigation which the state is prosecuting in an effort to determine where title to the soil under meandered lakes rests, is of the very greatest importance. The value of the soil under water is held to be incalculable, there being great deposits of mineral in the ground under some of the lakes of Northern Minnesota. How much these deposits are worth cannot be known, but the authorities are agreed that they are worth millions.

Simpson Has Big Litigation In Hand.

The case which is expected to result in a judicial determination of the issue, is to be tried in circuit court here next month, with Attorney General Simpson representing the state.

In Great Britain all lands under water belong to the crown. In the United States court decisions have been made that have a bearing on the present controversy, notably in the Alabama clay cases, the New Jersey oyster cases and the salt cases. These decisions are expected to play a prominent part in the trial here next month.

Mr. Simpson, who has a penchant for finding new sources of wealth for the state, says he does not believe that two individuals can enter into a litigation and foreclose the state, and he is confident that the courts will agree with him.

* * *

A. D. Brown, a member of the Republican state central committee, who was chairman of that body in the last campaign, was in the city for a few hours yesterday. He came up from St. Paul on a purely social trip and saw a few of his friends here, returning to the capital last night. While here Mr. Brown talked of the political situation and predicted the election of Governor Eberhart, saying that he could not understand how the Democratic party can elect a governor who will not be in the race until late in the season.

A. D. Brown Pays A Visit To Duluth.

Mr. Brown is satisfied that John Lind will accept the Democratic nomination. He is extremely confident that the distinguished former governor will make the run, but he does not admit that his chances of election are strong, which is more or less to be expected from a Republican politician.

The former chairman of the Republican committee is now employed in the office of State Treasurer Pettijohn. He has many friends in Duluth and met several of them at the Spalding last evening, including Former Senator Culkin and Senator Pugh.

* * *

Odin Halden, auditor of St. Louis county, left his sick bed yesterday and came down town to attend the meeting of the board of equalization. Not only was Mr. Halden suffering much pain, which made his trip to the courthouse a peculiarly arduous one, but also he made the journey in direct violation of the doctor's orders. However, Mr. Halden knew that the board had important business before it, and he was determined to be present and on duty.

Quit Sick Bed To Attend to Duties.

The board took decisive action on a number of items of business, among them the assessment returned by the city assessor of Duluth, ordering a wholesale readjustment of the figures. The street railway and other companies are affected by this action. Increases ranging from 10 to 100 per cent are contemplated.

When the business session of the board was finished, Mr. Halden returned to his home. He is still suffering greatly from rheumatism and will in all probability be laid up for a week, or may be several weeks.

O. A. Lende of Marshall, after withdrawing as a candidate for county attorney of Lyon county, has announced that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for state senator. He has county option backing in a district counted as strongly inclined to the county option point of view. Marshall is in the Seventeenth legislative district. Mr. Lende is one of the coming men of Western Minnesota, in the opinion of those who know him, and the suggestion that he run for either house or senate is not a new one. V. B. Steward is now the senator from that district. He has declared for county option, but has not the support of the optionists, who are exceptionally active in the district, which includes Lincoln, Lyon and Yellow Medicine counties.

O. A. Lende In the Race Against V. B. Steward.

G. B. Bjornson, editor of the Minnesota Mascot, who has been asked to make the run but declined the honor, commends Mr. Lende to the voters of the district, saying:

"Mr. Lende's candidacy is backed by men who want to see the people and not the 'interests' rule; by men who stand for clean politics; by men who are tired of letting a few politicians select those who shall run for this or that nomination; by men who will not be dictated to by bosses; by men who believe that the people, as a whole, have a right to rule in all matters; by men who believe that those running for high political office should espouse measures desired by the people from conviction, not compulsion.

"As to Mr. Lende's ability there is no question. He is probably the most eloquent speaker in the Seventeenth legislative district—not excepting his distinguished opponent. As a factor in a legislative body he would soon have to be reckoned with. He has the faculty of leadership born in him, and his frank and free demeanor inspires confidence in all who come in contact with him. No one ever questioned his sincerity. He is not of the kind who would 'double cross' his friends, or do an underhand thing to gain a personal advantage. He is clean-cut and stands squarely for what is right. His constituents will not need a drag-net to discover his convictions, and he will not have one 'conviction' for one set of friends and another 'conviction' for another set. He will do what is right, not because it is the best policy, not because it is the expedient thing to do, not because it will get him the greatest number of votes, but because it is right."

S. M. Akre of Becker county, in announcing his candidacy for the house, says he believes "that justice to the northern part of the state requires that the legislative districts be reorganized to give all parts equal representation." More adequate protection against forest fires, liberal support of the state's educational system, county option, good roads, amendment of the compulsory education law, non-partisan judiciary and Clapp for senator are among his platform planks. He says:

Platform Of a Becker County Candidate.

"The great power of moneyed interests lies in the lobby system maintained by them at the legislative centers. I shall favor such laws as will curtail these powers.

"I am opposed to the indiscriminate appropriations generally known as the 'Pork Barrel' appropriations. Every appropriation should only be passed on its own merits.

"Detroit, with its many lakes, is an ideal place for a fish hatchery. I shall try to have one established at that place."

* * *

W. F. Donahue of Melrose, Stearns county, has announced that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the senate from the Fifty-fourth district. He is an attorney and is described as a man for whom "his constituents will never have to blush."

* * *

Says the Aurora News, under the caption, "Mr. Miller, Congressman:"

"Congressman Miller does not seem to deserve all the good things that are coming his way.

"While making his original campaign for the place he pledged himself to vote against Cannon for speaker. It was on this issue that he was elected. Going to Washington he voted for Cannon. But he did worse than this. He promised to appoint A. E. Pfreimmer postmaster at Hibbing, and repudiated this promise. This would seem to make Mr. Miller a notable promise breaker, a man who cannot be relied upon any of the time, and therefore not worthy of the support of the News.

"A personal friendship with the congressman makes it impossible for the editor to be as vindictive in this case as the facts warrant, but the contention remains that Mr. Miller is apparently not worthy of the high position to which the people chose him. Vote for him if you want to, for he will be elected anyway, but there is a long time coming, in which Mr. Miller must redeem himself if he wants to remain in public life."

At the conclusion of the county option meeting in the armory last night a folder was distributed among those who attended which is designed to make votes for Bert N. Wheeler, Prohibition candidate for the senate in the Forty-ninth district, and for James M. Burwick, candidate for the house in the Forty-first district. This paragraph explains the circulation of the folder among the men attending a county option meeting:

"If you believe that your town, your city or your state has a right to vote the saloon out, and if you believe that the law that shuts the saloon out of county or city should be enforced then vote for these men, for they are the only men who stand on a platform which is pledged to the passage and enforcement of such a law."

TO THE BOYS

I want all the boys of this county from 7 years upward to get interested in my campaign for Probate Judge. I want them to look me up and get acquainted. I like boys and have friends among them. The Judge of the Juvenile Court has a beautiful work to do, but how much more beautiful and sacred is the work of the Probate Court, which looks after the widows, orphans, insane, and the guardians and wards. You may be in one of these classes any day, so this is your business. Of course, you cannot vote this year, but if I should continue to be a candidate for fourteen or sixteen years like the present Judge of Probate, you will be able to vote for me later. But I am asking for the office for only two years now. You know we have an election every two years for this office. It's the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States who is chosen for life, and there is a vacancy there now. I wonder if some Duluth jurist couldn't land it.

Please boys, look me up, and if you think I am the right man, or even the best man for the office come in and get some cards to distribute. Above all, boys, be honest.

Sincerely your friend,

J. H. WHITELY,

First National Bank Bldg., Duluth. One of the Candidates for Probate Judge.

MANEUVERS AT FORT RILEY BEGIN

Junction City, Kan., Aug. 16.—The working out of the first military problem of the fall maneuvers at Fort Riley began today with 1,500 men of the Kansas militia, under command of Brig.-Gen. Charles P. Crew and Brig.-Gen. Charles I. Martin of Topeka, taking part. Until the troops become accustomed to the reservation the problem is one which necessitates a minimum of marching. Recent rains have put the ground of Pawnee flats, where the maneuvers are staged, in good condition. The Nebraska troops are expected in camp tomorrow.

TWO ROBBED ON SANTA FE TRAIN

One Man Resists and Is Shot By the Holdup Men.

Bucklin, Mo., Aug. 16.—Two men boarded a Santa Fe passenger train at the Russell Fork bridge, two miles east of here, late last night, held up and robbed two of the passengers and escaped into the woods. Oscar Kirby of Bucklin lost his watch and money. Luther Ryals, a merchant of Ethel, Mo., resisted the robebrs and he was shot in the left side.

RACING AUTOMOBILE HITS ONE STANDING.

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 16—Capt. George H. Breymann of this city, head of the marine contracting firm of Breymann Brothers, was killed, his wife and sister, Mrs. Z. Taylor of Detroit, and Mrs. Halling of Toledo, were seriously injured in a collision of automobiles at Parrysburg, near here, last night.

Breymann had stopped his machine to repair a tire, when two automobiles, said to be racing, bore down on him. The first pased within a few inches of the stalled machine, but the second crashed into it at full speed.

MINISTER WILL NOT BE STAND-PAT

Missouri Man Withdraws From Race After Changing Platform.

Holden, Mo., Aug. 16.—F. H. Devol of Holden declined yesterday the nomination for representative from the Sixth Missouri district.

Devol is a minister. He was the candidate chosen by the congressional committee and entered the race with avowed progressive Republican ideas. This did not coincide with the views of the committee, and Devol was induced to switch to a stand-pat platform. His declination is attributed to the fact that there has been wide condemnation among the voters of his adoption of the conservative ideas.

DETROIT HOST TO TWO CONVENTIONS

Fraternal Congress and Stamp Collectors in Session There.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 16.—Two national conventions opened in Detroit today, bringing 500 delegates to the city. The first of the conventions to get under way was the twenty-fourth annual meeting of the National Fraternal congress, which held its first session this forenoon.

The twenty-fifth annual meeting of the American Philatelic society was opened later in the day. The Philatelic society is composed of stamp collectors from all parts of the country. It is expected about 200 will be present at the meeting, including G. H. Worthington of Cleveland, who is said to possess the most valuable collection of stamps in the United States. Henry N. Mudge is president of the society.

You can have all defects remedied by fine crown and bridge work, done by Dr. Storer.

GERMAN YARDS ARE ALL IDLE

Shipbuilders' Strike Has Tied Up All But Government Plants.

Berlin, Aug. 16.—As a result of the fight between the German shipbuilding companies and their employes, all the shipyards of Germany except the government works are now idle so far as new construction is concerned. The men demand an increase of 10 per cent in wages and a fifty-five hour week. The ship builders maintain that these economic demands are a cloak to political purposes and cannot be granted.

The commisioner-general of the exhibition fearing accidents, had a complete duplicate list, which he kept at his residence in this city. The estimates of the loss from the fire are from $6,000,000 to $10,000,000.

Among the awards to Americans granted by the international jury of the exposition are 2 grand prizes, 9 diplomas of honor, 19 gold, 17 silver and 17 bronze medals, and 5 cases of honorable mention.

Detectives Say If It Fails to Lead to Slayer They Must Give Up.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 16.—Detectives seeking a solution of the mystery surrounding the death of William L. Rice, millionaire attorney and clubman, today admitted that if a clew they are now following fails to produce results, they will be at the end of their resources.

This clew led to a search for a colored man and a Sicilian who sought to sell a revolver of the same caliber as the one from which the shot that killed Rice was fired.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

More than $1,100 in subscriptions has been received by the committee interested in the series of concerts being arranged for the season of 1910-1911 at the Lyceum theater. The concerts are being arranged by the local musical triumvirate, Stephen H. Jones, Trevanion W. Hugo and Horace W. Reyner, and will begin in October with a concert by Melba and her own company. The other numbers in the course of five concerts will be the famous Russian dancers, Anna Pavlova and Michael Mordkin with a company of sixty including the imperial Russian ballet, and three concerts by the St. Paul Symphony orchestra assisted by Pepito Arriola, the great Spanish boy pianist.

The announcements which were sent out Thursday of last week contained the important notice "Subscribers will select their seats in the order in which subscriptions are received". That notice was observed by many who received the circulars and the return mails are bringing in the pledge cards.

"We have received the return cards from many who have never subscribed before," said Mr. Reyner this morning, "and that is most encouraging, of course, because it shows that Duluth is responding more quickly and eagerly to the announcements of such a course as we are arranging. But I am afraid that many of our regular subscribers have not carefully read the circular and will be keenly disappointed when their subscriptions come in Number 492 or something like that. I shall be sorry for their disappointment but the seats will absolutely be chosen according to the turn in which the subscriptions are being received. A regular file is being kept. I hope the old and regular subscribers will notice this change and act accordingly.

"The series of concerts is going to be a winner and never before has there been such widespread interest in the early announcements."

"WONDERLAND"

With "Weenies" Will Wallop Wallets Wiggley.

With "weenies" for refreshment and a slippery slide for amusement, society will have the time of its life Tuesday evening of next week when the local society of Kings' Daughters will exert itself to entertain the city. Frederic Thompson, who originated Luna Park, will look to his laurels after the first of next week or else will offer an equal partnership to the local amateur showwomen for the Wonderland that is promised at Woodland will outclass all previous Wonderlands, if the prospectus of the management can be believed.

The one night Wonderland will be stationed in the field of the Julius H. Barnes property at Hunter's Park, the place of many previous entertainments, which has been known as Hunter's Field for many years. Once inside this magic enclosure the entertainment starts. Like Frederic Thompson, the King's Daughters believe in a flood of light and the electric lights and the special torches and the illumination will be a special feature.

A whole list of the wonderful attractions, like unto those of Ringling's circus, cannot be named in one announcement limited by the confines of a single issue of a paper. But a few of the many good things promised include a Punch and Judy show that revives the best thing in this art known in all the past. It will be under the direction of Bruno Eyferth. There will be pony rides on real ponies. There will be picture postals to send the folks back home who couldn't come, if there be any such, and there will be the slippery slide, which is more or less shrouded in mystery as far as the name will allow.

And then by very special request there will be a return engagement of the great tragedy, "Julius Caesar" as an opera, with a revival of the original cast. Brady and Frohman are vieing with each other in revivals and the King's Daughters compete with them on their own ground and a revival of "Julius Caesar" is announced as a very special attraction. "Julius Caesar" was first given last winter by the King's Daughters as a head-line attraction in the Cafe Chantant, which evening's performance established the society's reputation as original and successful producers. The announcement of Tuesday night's attractions sounds like Charles Frohman's late summer announcements for the coming season just after his return from Europe.

And then when the ability of one to be entertained longer is completely exhausted there will be red hots between fat buns for refreshment.

If by chance it should rain Wonderland will be postponed one night.

Chicken Timbales.

Force cold boiled fowl through a meat chopper and repeat; there should be one and one-half cupfuls. Pound in a mortar, adding gradually, while continuing the pounding, the unbeaten yolks of three eggs; then add one-half cupful of heavy cream and one-third of a cupful of white wine. Season with salt and fold in the whites of three eggs beaten until stiff. Butter individual timbale molds, and fill one-fourth full of white sauce, to which is added one and one-half cupfuls of chopped truffles; then fill with the chicken mixture. Set the molds in a pan of hot water, cover with buttered paper and bake until firm. The white sauce for these timbales should be made of two tablespoonfuls of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour and one cupful of milk; then seasoned with salt and pepper.

Salad—Chiffonade Salad.

Mix one cup each of shredded lettuce, celery, chickory or endive and one tablespoon each of beets, watercress, onion, chives, parsley, sweet red pepper or green all chopped fine. Sliced fresh tomatoes and grapefruit pulp may be added. Serve on leaves of lettuce with French dressing.

Rusks.

Scald one cup of milk and add two tablespoons each of butter and sugar with half a teaspoonful of salt. When cool add half a yeast cake softened in two tablespoonfuls of warm water. Now stir in enough flour to make a stiff batter, beat it until smooth, cover and let it rise. When risen add two eggs beaten until very light and flour enough to handle. THE DAY'S BEST STORIES

Trouble for Algy.

A young lady presented her intended with a beautifully worked pair of slippers and Algy acknowledged the present by sending her his picture incased in a handsome frame. He wrote a note to send with it, and at the same time replied angrily to an oft-repeated dun for an unpaid-for suit of clothes.

He engaged a boy to deliver the package and notes.

The young lady received a note in her adored one's handwriting, and flew to her room to devour its contents. She opened the missive with eager fingers and read:

"I'm getting tired of your everlasting attentions. The suit is about worn out already. It never amounted to much, anyway. Please go to thunder!"

And the tailor was struck utterly dumb when he opened a parcel and discovered a portrait of his delinquent customer, with a note that said:

"When you gaze upon my features, think how much I owe you."

When the unfortunate young man called that evening to receive the happy acknowledgement of his sweetheart he was very quickly shown off the doorstep by the young lady's father.

Business.

The third act—THE act—was nearing its conclusion. The silence of the audience was as breathless as their breath was silent. A commotion arose at the door. Everyone turned round. A pale youth dashed into the auditorium.

"Is Dr. Owen in the audience?" he gasped.

A small man rose gravely from the stalls. With the serious, self-contained air of one whom the life of a fellow creature depends, he passed down the aisle.

"Well," inquired the physician, "what is it?"

"Doctor," said the young man, drawing from his pocket a large wallet, "I am Cash & Payup's new collector. Would it be convenient for you to settle that small amount this evening?"

THE EVENING STORY

LYNCHED

By Arnold Goldsworthy.

"Another bad lynching case in America," said Dixon, as he laid down the paper.

"I dessay these things get a bit exaggerated," said the captain. "I was once lynched myself, but I seem to have got over it pretty well."

"Were you burnt to ashes or merely blown to pieces?" asked Griggs, with the air of one who was ready for anything.

"Neither," said the captain. "I was merely strung up at the end of a rope. It was in South America. I was hunting in Patagonia among the Indians there, and one day one of them started a rumor that I had been stealing horses."

"Had you?" asked Dixon, eagerly.

"I had not, sir," replied the captain, promptly. "But once a rumor like that gets a start it isn't easy to stop it. One morning the friendly Indian whose tent I was sharing told me that the mob was after me, and that my only chance was to make a run for it. So I took the hint and bolted. I must have run a good twenty miles—"

"What should I want to stop for?" asked the captain, impatiently. "I had about a hundred of the savage devils after me, and it was no time for a picnic, I can assure you. As it happened, they caught up to me just as I was dashing into the forest to hide. I was a pretty good runner; but they were mounted on fast horses, and of course, in a straight run it was only a question of time before they overtook me. In two minutes they had got a rope around my arms, and then they slung me up to a big trees, so that I was hanging by the shoulders. I couldn't see their game at first till I saw several of them get their bows ready and back off a few paces. Then it was clear that they were going to shoot me at short range, and make a sort of pin-cushion of me with arrows. I tell you it was one of the closest calls I ever had in my life."

"How did you escape?" asked Dixon. "Did you threaten to call for the police, or what?"

"I escaped by the merest chance," continued the captain. "The first man had just started the shooting — he pinged an arrow at me, and it came so close it tore all the skin off my cheek. You can see the scar for yourselves;" and as he spoke the captain pulled his collar aside a little and invited inspection.

"Don't see anything," said Griggs, skeptically.

"Well," said the captain, "maybe it's got a bit faint now. The thing I'm speaking of happened forty years ago. But as I was saying, the shooting was just going to begin on a large scale, when all at once a huge rhinoceros came out of the forest and charged into the group of Indians."

"But there aren't any rhinoceros in South America," protested Dixon, with a puzzled air.

"I don't suppose there are now," retorted the captain. There's not much big game left anywhere when I've been shooting over a place for a week or two. As soon as the Indians caught sight of the savage creature they bolted like the wind, because their arrows wouldn't have been of any use against his thick hide. Taking advantage of the confusion, I swung myself up to the branch above, and sat on it while I wriggled myself free of the rope round my arms. From my seat up there I could see two or three of the Indians prowling round ready to begin shooting again as soon as the rhinoceros had retired, and I was too tired to run any more. So as the huge beast came running towards me again, I swung off the branch and dropped just in the center of the back—"

"I grabbed the brute by the ears and clung to his back as well as I could, though every time his feet hit the ground I was perked into the air about a couple of feet. We hadn't gone more than half a mile before the Indians spotted my game, and they were after me in a flash, evidently resolved that, if they couldn't wing the rhino, I wasn't going to escape them, anyhow. The first hint I had of their presence was an arrow which struck the rhino in the rear and glanced off. This showed me at once two very important things. Firstly, that they couldn't wound the faithful creature anyhow; and, secondly, that his skin would make a very good bullet-proof shield."

"But you couldn't skin him and ride him at the same time," protested Dixon.

"That is precisely what I did though," insisted the captain. "The skin of a rhinoceros is made up of three clear layers, about an inch thick each one. It doesn't hurt a rhino to take off this top skin any more than it hurts a horse to pare his hoofs for him. Besides, in the case of the rhino, it is easy enough to remove the top skin, because it is in three pieces, and you have only got to cut through the seam, as it were. It was a desperate measure to adopt, but it was the only way out of the difficulty, and I did it. I held on with one hand, and with the other I slit the seam of the skin behind me and then folded it over my head. I wasn't a moment too soon either. I could hear the arrows beating against it a moment later just like you hear heavy drops of rain coming down on your umbrella."

"They couldn't. That was the beauty of it," said the captain. "At that time we were running through a lot of prickly undergrowth in the forest. The rhino didn't mind it in the least, because the briars couldn't penetrate his skin; while the horses of the Indians couldn't, of course, stand the scratches. Besides, you have no idea how a rhino can run when he's thoroughly scared. He was a bit frightened when I jumped on him; but when he found the roof of his back, as you might say, being lifted up, he was in a state of absolute panic. I don't suppose he did less than twenty miles an hour at any time. Of course, after I had left the Indians behind, I could have got off; but I was alone in the jungle with only my knife for a weapon, and I didn't see the use of taking the risk. I knew that no wild beasts would interfere with a rhino, and so I stuck to him till we got clear of the forest. All of a sudden I smelt the sea, and I could then see the animal's dodge. He thought he could run into the water and shake me off that way. As a matter of fact, I didn't want any shaking, because when I'm near the sea I always know where I am."

"Where were you?" asked Dixon.

"I was in the forty-second parallel, to be precise," said the captain. "Directly I looked out to sea and I got my bearings at once. All along that coast from the Falkland Isles to Buenos Ayres there is a kind of gulf stream running from South to North. I could see it a mile from the shore, a deep blue streak on the light green of the rest of the water. So I jumped off the rhino's back and struck out for the cross-stream. Of course, as soon as I struck that I was all right. What with my being a pretty fast swimmer and the rate at which that stream travels, I got along pretty much the same as you young men do when you are coming down hill on a bicycle with the wind hard behind you."

"That is to say, captain," said Griggs, gravely, "at about thirty miles an hour."

"Something like that I dare say," said the captain imperturbably. "I was having dinner in Buenos Ayres about five hours later, and I couldn't have been much less than 150 miles along the coast when I started. I remember that dinner very well, because when I landed I had a thirst on me you could have cut with a knife, and—

"A nod's as good as a wink to a blind drunk, captain," said Dixon, as he rang for the waiter.

THE QUALITY OF SELF-CONTROL

By JOHN WATSON WHYTE

Coolness and quickness of action in times of danger are qualities which are always admired by those who do not possess them, and yet they can be acquires by almost every one, if the training is commenced at an early age, and this is best done by example.

A mother who gets into a state of flurry and excitement over small domestic accidents, such as a breakage of china or a boiling over saucepan, is invarably semi-hysterical, and helpless in real trouble; and to use a common but express term, she loses her head at the very time when she could or should have all her wits about her. This state of things is bad training for her girls, who, naturally, take after their mother, with the result that they too, on reaching womanhood merit the remark too frequently heard:—"Oh, she is of no use in a dilemma; all somebody else."

In a busy household, especially where there are children, it is extremely difficult to keep patience and bad temper well in hand. Little worries, which seem at the time far more formidable than real trouble, are constantly occurring.

Baby knocks his head, and of course screams; he is not hurt, but you, thinking he must be seriously injured, excite yourself terribly over it and render yourself quite unfit for your household duties for an hour or two.

A box of matches catches fire in your hand, and instead of throwing it into the fire at once, or even stamping it out with your foot, your nerves are so shaken that you can only fling the burning mass from you at the risk of causing some dire calamity, and call for help.

When real trouble comes, and perhaps the woman of this type is suddenly "pushed off the ledge," and is compelled to go out into the world and earn her own living, of what use is she? She has been accustomed to look to others for help in everything; she has never forced herself to look into the uncertain future, and to fit herself for some kind of work, and the result is most distressing. She either goes under or has to endure the humiliation of being provided for by relatives.

A woman who has learned to keep her nerves under control will rarely come to want. She has mastered the fact that the world is ready to assist those who are clear-headed and steady-nerved, and even if the work in which she is engaged is not as congenial as she would have liked, "she makes no moan," and if she marries she proves herself to be a valuable friend and companion, a wife in the highest sense, to her husband.

FADS OF THE FASHIONS

A smart waist noticed is of white line in tailored model, with front, collar and turnback cuffs hand scalloped in a pretty shade of blue.

* * *

Imported bead neck chains strung on wire are very dainty and effective.

A pretty, cool looking sun shade is of Panama cloth flowered with Dresden coloring.

* * *

Silk gloves are seen this season in hues that never graced flower or gem or well-behave paint box, and yet women buy them with apparent delight and wear them with smiling effrontery.

* * *

Blouses are of infinite variety. Never was there so wide a choice. One can have them open in front, buttoned in the back, round neck, high neck, half high and low, plain, gathered, tucked, lace inserted, embroidered, and pleated. Some have long sleeves, others have short and three-quarter length.

* * *

The new skirts that are gathered in below the knees, the upper portion of skirt falling slightly over the shirring, seem to have found favor with women, if we may judge from the number seen during the last month.

* * *

The furore of Paris now is the shot silk ninon or charmeuse. The plain or patterned fabric has become quite hopelessly demode in the past few days amongst the little circle of the gay city's ultor-modish women who must have some distinctive rage every week.

RHYME AND REASON

By FRANK L. STANTON

He Gives the Grass a Chance.

Takin' of my ease here, where the sunbeams glance,
I'm fair enough to rest awhile an' give the grass a chance.
If it never gets a hustle, if it never comes to hay,
The hoss that you're a-bettin' on will have a hungry day.

I listen to the river,
I watch the sunbeams dance,
I'm the feller who is willin'
To give the grass a chance.

World is full o' toilers an' there's plenty hereabout;
Perhaps they wouldn't thank me, if I tried to crowd 'em out.
The daisies in the grass there, they look so sweet at you,
Pity for to take 'em from the sunshine an' the dew!

Life is pleasant, watchin'
Of the twinklin' sunbeams dance,
I'm the feller who is willin'
To give the grass a chance.

Give Me a Dream.

Fortune, here's a word for you,

When the dreams are coming true,

Give me a dream!

YOUNG MEN AND MAIDENS

By MISS EXPERIENCE

The Training of Girls.

Nowadays some elementary notions of hygiene have usually filtered into a girl's brain by the time she marries, while her education at least prepares her to avail herself intelligently of any instruction she can obtain whether of a practical nature or by means of books. The girl who has received a thorough training—no matter for what purpose—and has worked hard at some profession or business, is better fitted than the half-educated and the idle for any onerous position, she usually takes her duties seriously if she marries, and is anxious to do her best for her children. It is the frivolous, empty-headed woman who shirks. For every baby neglected for intellectual pursuits, a thousand or more are neglected in pursuit of pleasure.

* * *

The bride should be brought by her father, or failing the father, the nearest male of kin to her. The bridesmaid may, and usually does, accompany her. Of course, if she has father and mother alive, both ride with her in the carriage to the church or hotel where the marriage is to be celebrated. It would be out of rule for the bridegroom to bring her, but at a pinch the best man might do so, though he is, of right, in attendance on the groom. Convenience must, however, in many cases regulate the procedure.

* * *

M. and Nancy—I think you "giggle" too knowingly, talk too much and confide too freely the names and number of young men who call upon you. This makes the other girls jealous, and, of course, they "dig" you, as you termed it. Let the other young women in your set tattle all about their affairs; you sit back and gain knowledge by keeping open ears and a silent tongue.

Men know that if you do not brag about the number of their calls you also will not brag concerning their inclinations and wooing. I know it is just "lots of fun" to tell of the "jolly good time you had last night," but the least said about the attentions of any man the less trouble you make for yourself and the longer you keep the friendship of not only the young man in question, but your girl and women friends, too.

SPEAK TRUTH TO CHILDREN

By JOHN WATSON WHYTE.

A man or a woman who is known to be of an untruthful nature is never to be trusted—even on those occasions when the truth is really spoken. There is always an unpleasant feeling lurking in the mind of the listener that the statement on the particular incident is without foundation. Such people are shunned and regarded with a certain amount of suspicion, and that untruthfulness considerably handicaps any honorable career is a fact well understood.

I would like to impress upon parents the importance of training their young children to be truthful and honest even in the earliest details. If an accident occurs and a cup is broken, encourage the child to frankly confess, and do not be harsh, or severe, as this may frighten the little culprit to future deceit. If you have proof that a falsehood has been told you, or that some fault has been hidden, reprove the child at once, gravely, and try to make it fully understood that he has done wrong. Check the first deviation from the truth, and if the fault is repeated (wilfully) you must punish the child—not necessarily by beating it. Some children are naturally timid and nervous and the fear of being punished leads them to little acts of deceit. Such children may be trained into habits of truthfulness by patience and gentleness.

Hints For the Housekeeper.

To renovate faded carpets, wash over with warm water, to which a little ammonia has been added.

A lump of sugar put in the teapot will prevent tea staining the damask however fine, over which it may be spilled.

If a cork should be too large for the neck of a bottle, drop it into boiling water for three minutes and it will be found to fit quite easily.

To wash overalls use bran instead of soap, and on no account use soda. Iron on the wrong side, and the material will look as good as new.

To prevent bruises turning black pour some boiling water on a cloth or sponge and apply as hot as can be borne; this must be done as soon as the bruise has been received.

To clean painted walls, wash with a large sponge dipped in warm water, in which soda has been dissolved, using always a downward movement. Change the water often. Wipe dry with waste or soft flannels.

MRS. HOWARD DYKEMAN IS GRANTED DIVORCE.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 16.—Mrs. Howard Dykeman, wife of Howard Dykeman, former mayor of Breckenridge, Minn., and up to three years ago cashier of the East Side State bank in Minneapolis, has obtained a divorce from her husband. The divorce was granted last week in the supreme court, and Mrs. Dykeman was awarded the custody of two children of Mr. Dykeman by a former marriage.

Mrs. Dykeman asserted in court that her husband had squandered a fortune of $50,000 in the last few years.

Mr. Dykeman came to Spokane three years ago and bought the Victoria hotel. He recently sold the hotel.

WORK NEARLY COMPLETED

Big Extension to D. M. & N. Yards Almost Ready for Use.

Work on the big extension of the Proctor yards of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad is nearing completion. Practically all the tracks of the new yards are laid and a part of the tracks is already in use. The new machine shop addition which has been erected at a cost of $62,000 is nearly finished and will be ready for use soon.

The foundations for the new $160,000 car repair shop are in place and the steel for the frame work is on its way here. When this is completed the present car repair shop will be abandoned as thoroughly inadequate. The total expenditure made in enlargements at Proctor this year by the railroad company for the new yard tracks, the machine shop addition, and the new car shop, will be very close to $340,000, over $115,000 having been spent in track laying alone.

A steel bridge is being built over the new yard tracks at the scale house so that farmers and others using the wagon road will not be delayed while cars are being weighed at the scales. This will be completed as fast as the steel arrives.

The road officials say that the number of men which will be employed in the yards in addition to the present force depends almost entirely upon the amount of business which is handled by the road, but that a safe estimate would be 300 more than at present employed.

The railroad company last week let a contract to J. R. Quigley of Duluth for the erection of twenty-five new houses for the use of the employes of the road. Some of these are near the site of the new car repair shops and some on the east side of Proctor, near those formerly erected by the road for this purpose. These houses will be completed early in the fall.

GRAND AVENUE IN BAD SHAPE.

West Duluth business men are again agitating the matter of the condition of Grand avenue. They feel that there should be some improvement made to this street soon, as it is the only thoroughfare between West Duluth and the city proper.

It is claimed by the business men that the traction company has torn up the paving between the tracks, and that in replacing it, has made no effort to cover up the big stones. Not only does this make it difficult for teaming, but it makes it rough for automobile driving, and extremely hard on automobile tires.

Several automobile owners, who have occasion to use this road to a considerable extent, as well as many business firms which use the street, are preparing a petition to present to the board of public works, asking that the board order the street railway company to fix the paving between the tracks.

HEALTH

Is the Most Valuable Asset of Man.

Unless a man is healthy all the money in the world will not make him happy. Yet how many men go about the world merely existing because their health is shattered.

Every weak man can become strong, robust and healthy again if he will only take our advice. As we are specialists in men's diseases only, we can assure him of a complete cure. We assist every afflicted man to clear up and out of his body all poisons—we free him from his bad habits, we cure his maladies and we return him to perfect health.

One of our most valuable aids in curing men's diseases is the electric-dissolving process used exclusively by us. Instead of pouring drugs into the body through the stomach, disturbing all the natural functions of that organ, we get the medicine into the body direct, by means of electricity. This is truly a wonderful, although a perfectly natural method. It does away with all cutting or blood shedding, dissolving all poisons and foreign growths. In our hands it never fails to produce results.

Remember that we cure ALL diseases of men and that we give a written guarantee to cure every patient whose case we accept. Call and get a free consultation.

BAD FALL FROM FLYING TRAPEZE

James Dormedy, 13-year-old son of Edward Dormedy, sustained serious injuries to his head yesterday afternoon, when he fell on the cement floor of the West Duluth police station, where he and other boys were playing.

He was removed immediately to his home, 525 North Fifty-sixth avenue west, where he received medical treatment. He was believed to have suffered a concussion of the brain, but the physicians are confident that he will recover.

With Reave Hankins, William Simmons and Lee Galarneau, he had been playing about the station and they entered the cell department, where athletic apparatus of many kinds have been set up.

They were playing on the swinging trapeze, and had arranged a table at a convenient distance from which they leaped to reach it. It was while trying to make such a leap that young Dormedy fell.

Just as he was about to spring for the trapeze his foot slipped and his head struck against the table as he descended. Then he rolled heavily to the cement floor.

Greatly alarmed at their companion's fall, the boys rushed out to find Patrolman Stahl, whom they told of the accident. The unconscious boy was taken to his home, while physicians were called.

At a late hour this afternoon the Dormedy boy was resting comfortably and his recovery is likely.

Chief Engineer Hazen and Mr. Campbell are the only company officials from Canada working on this side of the boundary line, the other officials being Americans. All the employes of the company on the American branch of the railroad will be Americans.

Want New Sidewalk.

Efforts will be made by the West Duluth aldermen to have the improvement suggested by Alderman Barnes at last evening's council meeting regarding the walk in front of the fire hall carried out by the board of fire commissioners. Mr. Barnes introduced a resolution to have a new walk, of creosote blocks, put in. The present walk has been in use for many years, and is worn out. Several complaints had been made to both Alderman Barnes and Getchell. The matter was referred to the board of fire commissioners.

POSLAM'S GREAT WORK IN CURING ECZEMA

Uniform Success in the Treatment of All Surface Skin Diseases.

The remarkable work which poslam, the new skin remedy, is accomplishing in the eradication of eczema includes cases of many years' standing, the trouble having affected all parts of the body.

"For fifteen years I have had eczema on my head," says Mr. E. C. Staton, Woodbridge, Va., "the scalp being nothing but blotches. I found that the first box of poslam helped me, and now my scalp seems to be entirely cured, leaving it clear and perfectly white. I think it is the greatest remedy in the world for this disease." All other skin disease, including acne, tetter, shingles, barber's itch, piles, salt rheum, skin scale, etc., are relieved and cured by poslam in like manner, itching being stopped at once. The less serious troubles, such as pimples, red and inflamed noses, fever blisters, sunburn, etc., respond so readily that results are seen after an overnight application.

Write to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West 25th street, New York City, and they will send you by mail, free of charge, in plain wrapper, enough poslam to cure a small affected surface, clear the complexion or remove pimples.

A STEADY DRAIN

Sick Kidneys Weaken the Whole Body---Make You Ill, Languid and Depressed.

Sick kidneys weaken the body through the continual drainage of life-giving albumen from the blood into the urine, and the substitution of poisonous uric acid that goes broadcast through the system, sowing the seeds of disease. Loss of albumen causes weakness, languor, depression. Uric poisoning causes rheumatic pain, nervousness, nausea, cricks in the back, gravel and kidney stones. The proper treatment is a kidney treatment, and the best remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is good proof in the following testimonial:

E. S. Moulton, First avenue, Two Harbors, Minn., says: "I was suffering from a pain in the small of my back for a long time. I finally decided to try a good kidney remedy and procured a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was much pleased with the results of their use and I am now free from pain and feel better in every way. I know that Doan's Kidney Pills are a valuable remedy and am pleased to recommend them."

CANNON FOR SPEAKER.

Joseph G. Cannon, next to Nelson W. Aldrich the chief bell wether for the interests, says that those who are talking of his self-effacement are speaking without authority. In an interview discussing the report from Beverly that the Republican organization hopes to eliminate him and others, he says:

> I expect to be re-elected to congress by an overwhelming majority, and then I will be a candidate for speaker, always subject to the will of the people. If I am beaten in the caucus, which I believe is remote, I will willingly take my place in the ranks. . . . No Republican representative in the next congress will be elected speaker unless there is a majority of real Republicans in the house that will unite in a caucus touching the organization of the house and abide by the action of the caucus in the selection of the speaker and other officers. . . . .

"Subject to the will of the people" is good, very good. Cannon's nomination for speaker by a Republican caucus has no more relationship with the will of the people than Aldrich's election to the senate from Rhode Island.

Cannon might not be re-elected to the house. Surely the Danville district will not slumber always. The Republicans might possibly elect enough progressives to control the caucus against him. But beyond these possibilities is the very strong probability that it will not be a Republican caucus that picks the speaker, but a Democratic caucus.

But if the Republicans control the house, and the reactionaries control the Republican caucus, we hope they re-elect Cannon speaker. He is a mighty valuable object lesson right where he is, and he might as well stay there to irritate the people until they rise in their might and give congress the complete housecleaning from cellar to garret that it needs very badly.

Incidentally, real insurgents who are accused of party disloyalty may take interested notice of the threat in the last sentence of the above quotation. It means that unless the reactionaries can pick the speaker, rather than let the progressives pick him the organization will vote for a Democrat. That's how strong the party loyalty of the reactionaries is. They have no loyalty except to the greedy interests which they force the Republican party to serve.

CHILD LABOR ON THE STAGE.

Last spring The Herald published an article provided by the Survey Press service, which is a device for giving wider publicity to the social service matter in the Survey, a magazine representing the National Child Labor committee and other social improvement organizations, in which Everett W. Lord, secretary for New England of the National Child Labor committee, explained why the committee is fighting in Massachusetts to prevent the appearance of children on the stage.

That article has given rise to an interesting controversy between the Survey and Francis Wilson, the New York actor-manager, which is still in progress. The Survey calls it "child labor on the stage," and Mr. Wilson calls it "the training of dramatic genius." These phrases indicate how widely apart are the two sides to the dispute.

Mr. Lord thinks that children's parts can be successfully portrayed by adults, and that early experience is not necessary for the development of great actors, as evidenced by the ages at which present day stars began their life careers. Mr. Lord also claimed that few child actors attain prominence in later life, and that premature appearance on the stage is a positive injury to health and morals.

Mr. Wilson, who led a campaign in Boston in favor of a revision of the Massachusetts law, believes that it is necessary to allow children to appear in walking and speaking parts to present properly many plays, and to start the development of the actor at an age before he becomes self-conscious. He showed that many of the actors mentioned appeared at ages younger than those given in Mr. Lord's article.

In answer the Survey asserted that there are many actors who began their work at ages ranging from 16 to 25 or long past the awkward age of adolescence, and as proof that the actor's calling is unhealthful showed that life insurance companies discriminate against the profession. Mr. Wilson rejoined that it is impossible to measure the effect of legislation such as that in Massachusetts because it is not yet general and has been in force but a short time. He offered a list of 144 actors who began their careers under 14, to disprove that "the majority of actors did not begin their careers as children." The Survey suggested that the success of these actors was in spite of their early start.

Unquestionably there is much to be said on both sides of this dispute, but on the whole the Survey seems to us to have the better of it. There are few callings, even among the arts, in which it is considered necessary to begin training at an age when the child should be having the benefits of school and home. In fact we recall no art, trade or business in which such necessity is claimed except the stage. On the stage child training is necessary for acrobats and the like, but hardly for followers of the legitimate drama. Though a great deal of nonsense is heard about the unwholesomeness of stage life, still at its best it is no such environment as anybody would choose for a child. In Minnesota child labor on the stage is treated precisely as child labor in factories is treated, and recently a number of child performers have been barred from acting in Duluth.

With parents on the road during most of the year, the problem of what to do with stage children is complicated; but on the whole it seems that if there is any way out of it, they should not be brought up in the stage atmosphere.

BEATING THE BIRDS.

The process of conquering the air is nothing if not prettily picturesque.

Nothing in the history of land and water transportation ever has approached for piquancy yesterday's feat of Le Blanc and Le Gagneux, French aviationists.

At the same moment, forty-seven carrier pigeons were released at Douai and Le Blanc, in a Farman biplane, started with them for the fifty-mile flight to Amiens.

Darting away together, the flock of birds and the man-driven biplane, the biplane soon out-distanced the pigeons, and when Le Blanc reached Amiens the flock was not yet in sight, the first and fleetest pigeon not arriving until six minutes and twenty seconds later. Not only that, but Le Gagneux, who started in another biplane with Le Blanc but was nine minutes longer on the road, beat the last of the pigeons to Amiens by twelve minutes.

This is trenching on the preserves of the birds with a vengeance. Matters have indeed progressed far when a flying man, who has lately learned the trick, can outstrip birds to whom flying is second nature.

IT WAS NOT THE WATER.

It is no surprise to find that the drinking water was not responsible for the plague of intestinal troubles that prevailed during the warm weather. A local story in The Herald last evening stated that while the analysis of water samples now in progress is not complete, samples thus far examined have been found to be pure. It is to be expected that the remaining samples also will be found pure.

The theory that the disorder was spread by flies is far more plausible than the theory that anything was the matter with the water. The fly is noted for its evil habit of carrying germs from a convenient place of filth to the nearest dinner table, and the time is coming when the fight against the fly will be waged as earnestly as is the fight against the mosquitoes which have been found guilty of spreading malaria and yellow fever.

Duluth's drinking water is beyond reproach, and that fact is something that every citizen of Duluth should give praise for every day.

THE MIDDLEMAN.

While the middleman can offer many excuses for his existence, some of them valid enough, there seem little doubt that one great cause for the high cost of living is that it costs too much for the producer to get his products to the consumer.

The producer gets too little, and the consumer pays too much.

Prof. L. H. Bailey of the Roosevelt country life commission has hit upon this problem, and is calling for public regulation of the middleman. Speaking to an organization of farmers in New York state the other day, he said:

"A few farmers here and there, producing a superior article and favored by location or otherwise, can be quite independent of marketing systems; but the larger number of farmers never can be so situated, and they must grow the staples, so they are now at the mercy of many intermediaries. A merchant in a small city may want as high as 20 per cent commission to sell produce, and then retain the privilege of returning to the grower all the produce that spoils on his hands or that he is unable to sell; he invests little capital, takes no risks, and makes more than the man who buys his land, prepares the crop months in advance, and assumes every risk from seed time to dinner table."

Prof. Bailey does not deny that the middleman performs a legitimate and necessary function. What he charges and would correct is that the distributor of farm products is obtaining more than his fair share of the prices which the ultimate consumer pays.

He notes three steps in the way of controlling the middleman: First, an aroused public conscience on the question; second, a good fundamental law on the interstate phases and similar state laws for local phases; and third, good commissions or other bodies to which any producer or any consumer or any middleman may take his case.

Government has been so lenient toward the demand for profits and so regardless of the fairness of such profits that to a very large degree the interests of the producer and the consumer have been overlooked. They are only people; profit-seekers are large interests, well organized, powerful, influential. If there is anything tangible in the present trend of economic and political thought, it is that the tendency is toward greater consideration for people, and less for profit-seeking.

In Minnesota the middleman is pretty well regulated so far as grain-growers are concerned. The statement has been made recently by a state official, who always has leaned toward the producers' side of any controversy, that never before in history has the Northwestern grain-grower been able to market his crop so cheaply as he does now.

Comparison of prices received by producers and those paid by consumers, however, show in every case that there is too much waste in between. Something will have to be done about it in the common interest of producer and consumer; just what that something will be is not quite clear.

Until government takes definite action, co-operation will help. Co-operation is working out a system on a small scale which helps reduce the margin between producer and consumer; perhaps in time it will work out something adequate on a large scale. Perhaps the governments of nation and state will try regulation of the middleman, and perhaps, sometime, it may take over the middlemen's functions itself.

At any rate, there is a margin between what the consumer pays and what the producer gets that it is well worth while to analyze.

Washington society is to have a new organization next season—the Mentioned-in-the-Gore-Charges-Investigation club. Another more exclusive and much smaller one will be known as the "Unmentioned," etc.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

A PLAIN TALK ON THE FARMING PROBLEM.

To the Editor of The Herald:

If you will allow me a little space in your Open Court I would like to make a few comments in regard to the farming proposition. Since having spent a few days out on the farm I have long wondered since being in Duluth why farming industries do not progress more than they do. I now see for myself why, and I, for one, voice the sentiments of the St. Paul gentleman who a few days ago made the statement that a great many of the farmers seemed to think that all they had to do was to stick the seed in the ground and then sit on a stump and watch the returns roll in. I will admit that farming is steady work, yet not all heavy work. What industry is followed in city life that is not hard work? If you are not at manual labor your brain has got to be working and the rest of your body idle. When this is the case you either become so lethsy that your tailor cannot get enough out of one bolt of cloth to make your suit, or else it is the reverse, and you are attacked by some disease. The farmer, of course, has a chance to do the same, as he is not exempt, although they are not so liable to physical ills, as they are always closer to Mother Nature. The food he consumes has not been penned up in a crate, shipped and thumped around over some railroad or stage line, put in cold storage, are shampooed in a pail of cold water trying to bring it back to its natural state. How much of the summer food that adorns your table is natural tasting food? Take your own personal experience. Are you the same person after a twenty-four or forty-eight-hour ride by any form of transportation as you are at your own residence in everyday life? You will give this a thought at first and no doubt come back and say, "How are we all going to be farmers and get these benefits?" If you have the time, follow closely all the way through, then give your decision.

Now, then, you often notice some enthusiastic person start to boast of farming on paper. Well, that amounts to about as much as the farmer just sticking the seeds in the ground. The city people look at a farmer as though he is the worm in the dust. You go out through the country roads for a spin in your big touring car or your runabout. You meet a farmer. Why turn your head if your eyes come in contact with him? You are apt to burst an inner tube or lose a spark plug. Well, anyway to get by him. Now, he is as clear of crime as you are, and if you would greet him or give him a wave of the hand, or drop one of those clear Havana cigars that you have crowded your ice cream suit with, wouldn't he appreciate it? I know so, more than if you would stop and hand him a ten spot. Now, how suddenly some unforeseen happening may overtake you? Who would you go to for assistance? The farmer, of course! Could you blame him if he returned the compliment to you? (Just a little farmer.) I happened to be in the country last fall for a few days to avoid being taken to the hospital for an operation, and am sound as a dollar today. (Glad I went.) And it had been one of those chilly northeasters all day. We had just come in from doing the chores and were just sitting down to the table to supper, (not dinner), when footsteps sounded on the porch. "I say," said a voice, "I have my touring car stuck on yonder hill. Will you take your team and give me a pull?" Would this man go? Yes, he went, got his miles warm supper, took his team from their meal, got them up the hill, gave them a pail of water for their yank, got soaked to the very skin; wifey had to take his supper and put it back on the stove to keep warm. Then when he was through, did the man pay him? No, not to this day! He didn't even ask what it would be, but said, "I am a little short; come down to my office and I will settle." Now, if he had been O. K. couldn't he have made out a check and mailed it? This man is only a farmer, though. Let him go. Now, this same bunch passed us on the road in the morning and did not even look to see if we were out of their way. Had I been the farmer they would have sat right on that hill all night, and you will find me one of the most willing persons who ever walked to help you when you are in trouble, if it is in my power to do so.

Speak and think. It encourages them, makes them think life is worth living. Encourage them along. Tell him his crop looks fine, and if there are 400 weeds in his potato patch he will be sure to get them out before you have occasion to pass again. Why? Because you have noticed his efforts and he is encouraged.

Next, you go down the street. You don't see one farm implement store in your city. What farming implements you do see are those that were used in Noah's time. It is now twenty years ago when I saw this truck you are putting up for the farmers, in the junk pile. Get busy. If you handle this line, give them the latest farming machinery, the same as the latest fancy drinks you get at the soda fountain or at the bar. Don't try to hold him back. You bring all Iowa, Illinois, Missouri or any other first class farming country farmer here and see how quickly he is looking around for those things, and when he is out looking at your farms, if he doesn't say truck, he will be doing an awfully lot of tall thinking. Get a few of those fellows going and see where your farming country will come in. A great many of your farmers are fellows who are not accustomed to the tilling of land, got out there for recreation, finally give it up, come back in town.

Speaking, for instance, of the hay crop, dairymen selling off their cattle, raising the price of milk. Now, if the hay that goes down and to waste within a radius of twenty miles of Duluth was taken care of, the railroads and outside states wouldn't make street car fare this year on the hay sold and shipped to Duluth. Now, this is not paper talk. You come with me and I will show you the real goods as nature put it there. These poor meadows are not to blame for the poor crop. When you buy a new pair of shoes, do they last a life time? Well, there is where your poor meadows are. The hay this year is of the finest quality that can be produced. I can show you where I cut one and a half tons of hay along the main road within a distance of one and a half miles and show you the hay. Crops of all kinds, not barring anything, are doing fine. Anyone who has occasion to get out from the city who understands, can see for themselves. Corn, oats, barley, rye, potatoes, cabbage, beets, tomatoes, radishes, onions, carrots, rutabagas and every kind of vegetable are doing tip top, for when they have a black-green color, you can lay your money on them being right.

Again, your commission men try to down the poor farmer by giving him poor seeds. Get the money, though. He won't farm long; certainly not, if his high priced seeds won't grow.

(Some more shampooing.) Take your seed corn, your oats and rye, go down in a farming country and see how quickly you get turned down. Yes, you will see your farmers come in town and take out loads of hay. Now, I saw one with almost a ton of hay about Aug. 2, and there are twenty-five tons of hay not one mile from his farm that will go down to rot. Is there any management in that? If he was an industrious farmer, what would he do?

Again, about all the chance the settlers have to get ready money is from road work. Along come the county commissioners and start road work. If any settler doesn't do the work, out comes a crew of men from the city. Now, then, it is high time to be busy mowing the weeds in the truck patches, hay time. Well, Mr. Farmer has stuff all growing. He thinks he'll get those county dollars. Here's where your real farmer would come in and say, "Give us this work when we are not busy, just after seeding time. Then after hay time, while we are waiting for our crops to ripen." Then doesn't he get the benefit both ways?

Then my sentiments are, get busy up in this part of the country with some good live farmers. This land will grow any ordinary seed that you may put into it with proper handling and care. Then you will have cheaper living. You will get better goods for your money. And do not think that I believe everybody should be a farmer. No; but I do think that a farmer is entitled to all the courtesy that can possibly be found in mankind, for, without them, our country would be a wilderness. There are many details we could linger on. If anyone does not believe my views, come along in person and we will chat the matter over and see who is who. I am from Missouri; show me!

EDWARD M. KELLEY,
11 Vernon street.

Duluth, Aug. 15.

WHO PAYS?

Life: It seems unfortunate that a Socialist, in addition to being a contemptible mischief maker, should, of necessity, be insane. According to our Wall street friends a man who labors for the benefit of his fellow creatures instead of for dividends is a pretty low-down thing. If there is any doubt on this subject ask John D. Rockefeller or Thomas Fortune Ryan what they think of Socialists.

Apropos of which, Charles Edward Russell, in his recent book, "Why I Am a Socialist," says of war:

"In order to prevent workingmen from perceiving the huge folly of this arrangement, it is customary to rouse periodical spasms of patriotic fervor, to picture the German emperor as about to descend upon England, or the czar about to capture India, or Japan about to hurl her hosts against the United States. The outcome of each of these spasms is an increased expenditure for armament and battleships, which the workingmen must pay. And all the time the fact is perfectly apparent to any observation that the German emperor will not descend upon England except with German workingmen, and the czar will not capture India without Russian workingmen, and the only hosts that Japan can hurl against the United States are composed of Japanese workingmen. And if any of these improbable events should happen, the invading armies of workingmen would be met by other armies of workingmen, the blood that would drench the earth would be the blood of workingmen, the widows and orphans of workingmen, the limbs that would be amputated in the field hospitals would be chiefly the limbs of workingmen. So that unless the workingmen can be deceived and inflamed against one another unless they can be made in some way to think that they have some interest in these international brawls there will be no war. But as a matter of fact, the workingmen cannot have the slightest interest or concern in such conflicts, they never gain aught from them except heavier burdens and a more wretched condition; in no conceivable respect is the war any concern of theirs, but only the concern of the capitalists, as it was in South Africa, and as it is or yesterday it was in Morocco.

"These things are always done with and at the expense of workingmen. The capitalists that make the wars never take part in them, and never pay for them; the working classes that are fooled into going forth to shoot at one another are also fooled into paying all the bills of the shooting. Some day it is to be supposed, the workingmen will weary of being fooled and being shot at. Then they will put an end to these pleasant games. The way that they will end is by ending the system of which the games are an integral and inseparable part."

Also in peace, we might add, the capitalist fights with all the power that is in him against an income tax. For an income tax, although relieving the pampered and greedy workingman, might take a few dollars from the starving millionaire.

For Calling Him a Federalist.

In a paper on "Log Cabin Courts of Long Ago," written for Case and Comment, David C. Baker tells the story of an old libel suit in Franklin county, Ind., in which defendant was accused of calling plaintiff "a d—d old Federalist." The witnesses for the prosecution, thirty of them, were sworn all at one time.

"We will examine Mr. Herndon first," said Gen. James Noble, leading counsel for the plaintiff.

"Mr. Herndon, do you consider it libellous and slanderous to call a man a Federalist?" asked Gen. Noble.

"I do," the old man answered.

"Which would you rather a man would call you a Federalist or a horse thief?"

"I would shoot him if he called me one or the other."

"You have not answered the question," said Gen. Noble.

"Well," replied Herndon, "I would rather be called anything under the heavens than a Federalist."

"What damages would you say the defendant should be made to pay for this libel in calling the plaintiff a Federalist?"

"I would say a thousand dollars at least."

Judge John H. Test, attorney for the defendant, then took the witness.

"Mr. Herndon," he asked, "what do you understand by a Federalist?"

"My understanding is that it means a Tory, an enemy to his country," the witness replied.

Gen. Noble again took the witness and asked him one more question.

"Mr. Herndon, would you feel safe with a Federalist by your side to meet the Indians in a bush fight?"

"I would not. I would just as lief have one of the hostile Indians with his rifle and tomahawk by my side."

There was a brief conference between the opposing attorneys, then Gen. Noble arose and said:

"May it please the court, we have twenty-nine other witnesses that we are ready to examine, but to save time it is agreed by counsel that they will each swear to the same facts as those stated by Mr. Herndon, and that the publication of the libel is admitted."

No evidence was offered for the defendant. Lengthy speeches were made by the counsel on both sides, covering in their range the history of the general government from its organization. The charge was given the next morning. The jury retired and in a few minutes returned into court with the following verdict:

"We find that to charge a man with being a Federalist is libellous, and we assess the damages of the plaintiff at $1,000, the amount sworn to by Mr. Herndon and would have been by the other twenty-nine witnesses that were not examined, as was admitted by the counsel."

"The court are well satisfied with your verdict," said the Associate Judge. "Your are discharged to get your dinners, as you have not yet had your breakfasts."

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It is the hope of the Duluth & Winnipeg road to get its affairs in dispute with the government so arranged that this week or next it can go ahead with its work. "If we do," said an official of the road today, "we shall put on such a force of men as this part of the country has never seen engaged in a single railway job. We are arranging to rush in 5,000 men, and while we probably cannot get such a tremendous crew as that, we will have fully 4,000 men on the line before snow flies.

Plans have been drawn for a large flour mill to be built on the east side of Rice's Point not far from the site of the Gilbert sawmill. It will be about the size and capacity of the Imperial, whose wonderful success has had a great deal to do with the move for a second mill.

Ex-President Minot of the Eastern Minnesota is certainly engaged in some big scheme, for he has rented seven large offices in the new Chronicle building at San Francisco. The theory is that he is in charge of the Great Northern interests. That road has surveyed a route from Butte, Mont., to Boise City, Idaho, thence through the Lassen pass in the Sierras down through Northern California, and then to the heart of the San Joachim valley.

E. A. McNair returned today from a visit to South Dakota. He reports that the farmers in that section are far from prosperous and a great many are planning to leave the state. Unlike North Dakota, where the crops are fairly good, the weather has not been favorable and the yield will be very light.

Frank Hayes is making a strong effort to form an athletic club here. He has already secured the support of a number of wealthy men of sporting proclivities, and he thinks that another month will see the incorporation of the Duluth Athletic club.

Lake Crystal Union: The real struggle is not between the two old parties, but between the people and the privilege.

Of Course It Was.

Foley Independent: The Democratic plea for non-partisan judiciary was a little more sincere than that of the Republicans. The Republicans failed to indorse T. D. O'Brien for the supreme bench, while the Democrats went them two better and indorsed the two Browns, both good and able men.

Martyrdom of Bryan.

Cloquet Independent: Today a hero, tomorrow a martyr. This is the reiterated history of politics. Unless a man is killed or dies in office he is certain to some day lose his popularity, for the people love new idols. Had Lincoln been spared to live through the trying days of reconstruction, it is probable that even his splendid judgment and keen sense of humor would have proved insufficient to have kept the halo undimmed about his name. And one has but to glance over the list of lesser statesmen and politicians to find many shattered idols. But perhaps the hardest blow dealt to any man in recent years was that received by W. J. Bryan when he was slaughtered in the house of his friends last week, losing control of his own state by a vote of almost two to one. But Mr. Bryan can yet solace himself with the thought that he has lasted longer than any other unsuccessful candidate in the history of his country.

Who's Your Katiedate?

Little Falls Transcript: A Chicago man has discovered that Wagnerian music played by a phonograph will cause a cat to stop yowling. It may be a case of going from bad to worse.

Soda Fountains Rare There.

London dispatch to New York Times: When an Englishman adopts an American scheme for making money the result is deadly. His motto seems to be, "Sting the American for what is called American." He cannot realize the sentiment, "Do it right and you will make money."

With one exception the soda fountains of London are criminal misrepresentations of the American idea. During the American season every "chemist's shop" invests in a sparkler bottle and a bottle of sweetened toilet water. This rash expenditure is then made known to the public by a bold window placard reading. "American Drinks."

The unsuspecting American enters.

"An egg phosphate, please."

The man behind the symbolic bar is horrified. "We don't keep eggs. * * * Our syrups are quite nice, though."

Wishing to conciliate him and not wishing for a dose of medicine, no matter how beautifully colored it may be, the American asks for a lemonade. Before he knows what is handed to him he has swallowed a mouthful of pop, slightly acid in taste. Lemonade is not lemonade in London—it is lemon squash.

The only thing that can be said for these soda fountains is that they bring one back to childhood days, the days when one mixed and drank vinegar, water, sugar and cooking soda.

On the other hand, there is a real fountain in London at the American department store. Furthermore, it is in charge of H. J. Besher, a young man from Chicago, of wide experience and varied talent. He can make over thirty kinds of ice cream.

"When I first opened up," said Besher, "herds of English ladies used to gather about me to watch me toss the drinks. Finally one would get up enough nerve to ask for something and she would be disappointed if she found she had ordered a drink that isn't tossed."

"And the crazy questions they'd ask!

"One woman, after puzzling over the bowls of crushed fruit, asked for a plate of salad.

"Another asked for a fried egg.

"Then there was a woman who sat down with her drink to listen to a musical concert. She thought the faucets of the fountain were the stops of an organ."

What Happens!

I speak of men—a host of men!—and you and I know many such,
Whose word is nil within their homes, whose law does not amount to much.

They're humble, meek and silent, too;
their better halves control them quite,
And will not let them spend a cent or wonder with the boys at night.

But once in every little while a man like this will break away,
Evade his wife and "cut it loose" and
"whoop it up" till break o' day!

But, oh, the price that they must pay!
It quite reminds me, if you please,
That "Solomon, with all his wives, was not arraigned like one of these!"

Hankinson (N. D.) News: Nine feet and two inches of beard—that's what Hans Langseth of Mooreton boasts. And he grew it in North Dakota. It was thirty-four years ago that Mr. Langseth declared a boycott on the barber craft. That makes an average growth of three inches a year. Mr. Langseth himself declares it knows no brother west of the Mississippi river. The beard is not straight and stringy. It has a beautiful wave. Sometimes Mr. Langseth carries it draped over his shoulder. In cold weather it makes a perfect muffler. In the summer he can use it as a screen to keep off the glare of the sun.

THE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL.

After a successful existence of six years now occupies an enviable place in the educational system of Duluth. Its course of study is broad and elastic, and is in the hands of teachers specially trained for their tasks. It admits boys and girls and covers the ground from the primary grades to college. It has a complete equipment—maps, charts, diagrams, a general and reference library and apparatus for teaching any of the sciences. Manual training and experimental science are made prominent.

It has satisfied others; it will satisfy you.

COUNCIL TAKES A HAND IN ASSESSMENT REVISION

Claims Assessor's Figures Contain Many Mistakes and Irregularities.

Committee of Aldermen Appointed to Urge Thorough Review.

President Frank Jordan of the city council last night appointed Aldermen Shartel, Getchell and Wharton a committee of three to urge upon the county board of equalization a thorough investigation of the personal property and real estate assessment now before it for adjustment.

The council went on record as believing that many gross inequalities and numerous mistakes have been made in making the last assessment, and that they should be rectified.

City Assessor C. L. Rakowsky stated that the invitation to explain the reasons for the apparent inequalities did not come into his hands until Friday noon, and that the interim has been too short to compile the necessary tables. He stated that he welcomed the request and that the information will be laid before the council next Monday night.

The resolution introduced by Alderman Shartel, calling for the appointment of the committee, follows:

"Whereas, there appears to be gross inequalities in the valuations placed upon personal property and real estate in the city of Duluth in the assessment now before the county board of review, and

"Whereas, this council is of the opinion that many mistakes have been made, which should be rectified, therefore,

"Be it resolved, that the president of this council is hereby directed to appoint a committee of three aldermen to urge upon said county board of review as thorough an investigation of said assessment as possible, and that all of said real and personal property be assessed equitably, and said committee is hereby authorized to require such information and assistance from all departments of the city as it deems necessary."

The bid of the N. J. Upham company for the purchase of the $50,000 worth of permanent improvement revolving fund bonds was accepted last evening. This will so relieve the permanent improvement revolving fund that many needed improvement can be completed. The bidders will dispose of the bonds among local people.

Chief Troyer reported that since the recent murder at New Duluth a regular patrolman has been stationed in that suburb. He stated that at least two men are required to properly protect that district and that he has called the attention of the conference committee to that fact in his report. The chief also mentioned that the need of additional patrolmen in all parts of the city is becoming more pressing.

Contractor P. McDonnell addressed the aldermen when the board of public works reported that a bill of $252 for extras had not been allowed, as the provisions of the city charter had not been complied with. It appears that the contractor, had no written agreement or order before he did the extra work. Mr. McDonnell said that he has never had written orders in the past, as he acted on the principle that the city is sufficiently broad-minded to do what is eminently fair. But he said that in the future he will make it a point to have written orders in such cases.

City Treasurer Fred Voss called the attention of the council to the fact that the city has $572,000 on deposit in the various banks and that the amount is covered by but $460,000 in surety bonds, leaving $112,000 unprotected in this manner. The matter will be taken up by the finance committee.

The library board was asked for additional information relative to the cost of a site and the maintenance expense of the proposed new Carnegie library. Andrew Carnegie has offered to donate $20,000 for the building provided the city will furnish the site and $2,000 a year for maintenance. The charter requires that a specific levy must be made by the conference committee before property for library purposes can be acquired by the city.

City Engineer Thomas F. McGilvray explained that the Soo road is prepared to pave Michigan street between Eighth and Twelfth avenues, up to the north car track, with sandstone blocks, and that the contractor who has been putting in a sewer on the other side is willing to pave a strip about six feet wide. This leaves a strip about twelve and a half feet wide which has not been taken care of. The engineer estimated that the cost of this would be $4,000 and that a concrete base for all would cost about $4,050. He recommended that the city make some provision to take care of this extra strip and the concrete base. His communication was referred to the committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks.

The health commissioner was directed to report as to the feasibility of putting a shorter smoke stack on the incinerator with a view to installing a force draught. The stack was nearly demolished in a recent electrical storm and the plant has been out of commission since that time.

* * *

The contract awarded P. McDonnell for the paving of First avenue cast between Superior and First streets was approved. His bid was $13,459.60.

* * *

George E. Duren, sealer of weights, asked that he be allowed $25 a month to pay the cost of feeding the horse which he is required to use in performing his duties.

* * *

The health commissioner was requested to report the results of the water analysis to the council, together with the locations of the taps from which the water was taken.

* * *

The health department was advised that all children from the children's home who come down with contagious diseases should not be treated free of charge where the parents are able to pay. But if they have no means of getting the money the council is in favor of giving them the same treatment as the others.

MAY NOT USE THE PASS BOOK PLAN

Postal Bank Organization Committee Has Another Scheme.

Washington, Aug. 16.—Postmaster General Hitchcock has received a report that the committee on organization of the postal savings bank systems favors the use of certificates of deposits instead of pass books, as previously decided upon by the committee in framing its tentative plan. The system proposed contemplates a mechanical method of keeping the records of the postal savings banks which would render unnecessary a great part of the bookkeeping that would be involved in the pass book system.

Under this plan every depositor of amounts from $1 to $9 will be given a certificate punched in duplicate to show the amount of the deposit. He will be required to sign this certificate in duplicate, the postmaster retaining one of the certificates. On the back of this evidence of the deposit will be engraved interest computations showing exactly the amount of interest due at the end of any interest period.

Cholera Infantum Cured.

"Something like two years ago my baby, which was then about a year old, was taken seriously ill with cholera infantum, vomiting and purging profusely," writes J. F. Dempsey of Dempsey, Ala. "I did what I could to relieve her but did her no good, and being very much alarmed about her went for a physican but failed to find one, so came back by Elder Bros. & Carter's store and Mr. Elder recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea remedy. I procured a bottle of it, went home as quickly as possible and gave the baby a dose of the remedy. It relieved her in fifteen minutes and soon cured her entirely." For sale by all druggists.

BALLINGER ON CONSERVATION

Secretary Makes Speech at Luncheon in Oregon Town.

Klamath Falls, Or., Aug. 16.—In a speech at a dinner given in his honor at Eagle Ridge, Secretary of the Interior Ballinger said that fidelity and economy in the conduct of business and common sense in the handling of the country's reserves constitued conservation.

Mr Ballinger said in part:

"Every acre of agricultural land in the United States is bound to be needed to raise food products for our own people. The time is past in this country when we can skim the cream and ignore a system for making the best use of everything we have.

"While in the past we may have seemed wasteful, we have also been progressive. The time has now come when we have got to be economical and we must use common sense in the handling of the resources we have. That is all there is in conservation."

CANNON WILL BE IN FIGHT

Speaker Says He Intends to Run for Speakership Again.

Scores the Insurgents and Pooh-Poohs Stories of Reorganization.

Chicago, Aug. 16. — The Inter-Ocean today prints an interview with Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the house of representatives, in which he denounces insurgents, says that he will be a candidate for the speakership of the next house, and declares that reports of a contemplated re-organization of the Republican party originated with insurgents and Democrats.

Referring to the dispatches from Beverly, Mr. Cannon said:

"I do not believe Mr. Taft contemplates any such action. The president is not the kind of man to yield to every passing whim of a minority. The story that Senators Aldrich and Hale and myself were to be thrown out of the party will be found, when traced to its source, to have originated with some of the insurgent-Democratic allies, whose wishes are father to the thought.

Will Run For Speakership.

"I expect to be re-elected to congress by an overwhelming majority, and then I will be a candidate for speaker, always subject to the will of the people. If I am beaten in the caucus, which I believe is remote, I will willingly take my place in the ranks."

Answering the question, "Will you be a candidate for re-election as speaker of the next house?" Mr. Cannon made this statement:

"I have been asked that question frequently, especially by our Democratic friends and their practical allies, the followers of La Follette and Cummins. I have answered it, but so far the answer, as I gave it, has never been published by our friends, the enemy.

Is "In Harmony."

"I am speaker of the house, elected by a Republican majority four times. I have been in harmony with and have to the best of my ability co-operated with the Republican majority in the legislation that has been enacted for the last seven years, during the administrations of Theodore Roosevelt and William H. Taft.

"I know of no reason, personal or political, that would prevent my being speaker again if a majority of the house of representatives should so desire. Under these conditions, pending a campaign, I could not, upon the demand of the enemy, pledge, in the event of my re-election to congress, that I will not be a candidate for speaker, without acknowledging that the record of the house during the last seven years is subject to criticism, and that the Republican majority, with whom I have co-operated in the enactment of legislation, is subject to just criticism.

Seven-Year Record.

"This I will not do, because I believe that the record of the party for the last seven years should be indorsed and not condemned.

"No Republican representative in the next congress will be elected speaker, unless there is a majority of real Republicans in the house that will unite in a caucus touching the organization of the house and abide by the action of the caucus in the selection of the speaker and other officers."

Mr. Cannon then devoted his attention to the insurgents.

"The senators and representatives who call themselves 'insurgents,' and who voted against the enactment of the Payne bill, voted to increase or maintain the duties on the industries and products of their own states and sections," he declared. "They were protectionists for their own people, but were opposed to protection for other people in other sections.

Action of Insurgents.

"Senator La Follette did not vote to increase the duties on lead and zinc, but he defended the finance committee's schedules on those products in speeches, saying they were not high enough, explaining, however, that he could not vote on the question because he said he had a personal pecuniary interest in the outcome.

"Senators La Follette and Bristow and the other so-called insurgents voted to increase the duty on barley and barley malt, for the reason that their constituents produce barley. In other words, these gentlemen, who call themselves 'insurgents,' voted with the Republicans on schedules that protected the product of their constituents, and with the Democrats on schedules that protected the products of other sections of the country."

OPENS DAKOTA LAND TO SETTLERS

Title to Coal Deposits Is Reserved to the United States.

Washington, Aug. 16.—The coal lands in North and South Dakota, amounting to about 1,000,000 acres, which recently were withdrawn from the public domain by President Taft, have been opened to homestead settlement under the act passed at the last session of congress authorizing agricultural entries on coal lands. The title to the coal and the right to prospect for, mine and remove it, is reserved to the United States, but the surface of the lands is thrown open to settlers.

BODY BLOW FOR "PREXY"

Dr. Eliot's Five-Foot Shelf Ditched By Railroad Libraries.

Dante and Darwin Must Yield to McCutcheon and Chambers.

The library and parlor cars of several Western roads which have been carrying Dr. Eliot's "five-foot" shelf of books have been renovated. That is, the five-foot shelf has been deposited at helpless way stations and has been replaced by literature more suited to the needs of the folk who travel.

For those who do not hanker after literature except such as is turned out by machines with a popular author's name affixed, let it be said that Dr. Eliot is president emeritus of Harvard. A few months ago he got up a list of books which could be packed into a five-foot shelf. He assured the world that the books were worth reading. An author selected by Dr. Eliot was an ancient named Epictetus, the foremost living disciple of whom was shot down the other day as he was about to sail for Europe. Then there was a chap by the name of Plato, two writers called Milton and Plutarch and others who are not known to the average reader in these days of high-brow thought.

What do you think, Alisa? Strange as it may seem the five-foot shelf did not contain a single book by George Barr McCutcheon, Upton Sinclair, Bob Chambers or Charles Edward Russell. Of course, when the railroads' literary bureaus found this out they promptly ditched the five-foot shelf. They substituted a five-footer of their own. The comparison—but there is no comparison.

In place of a poem called "The Divine Comedy," written by an Italian of the stiletto rampant period, named Dante, and a story called "The Origin of Species," by a literary hack, Darwin by name, the railroaders substituted two light bits of fiction, "Railroad Freight Rates," by L. G. McPherson and "Federal Regulation of Railroad Rates," by that well known red-blooded novelist, A. N. Merritt.

The Bible and Mr. Bill Shakespeare's playlets have been retained, but folk do not have to read them for on the other end of the shelf will be found thirty volumes of short stories by American, English and foreign authors and those delightful essays by S. Thompson, "Cost, Capitalization and Estimated Value of American Railways," and "Railway Statistics of the United States, 1904-8."

For Dryden's unknown "All For Love," Shelley's "Cenci" and Browning's "Blot on the Scutcheon," the railroading literary gents have substituted a hot one, "Three Weeks," by a female novelist. This book is kept in the linen closet, but can be had by slipping the porter two bits. There will also be a rattling good novel, "Gallagher," by Dick Harding Davis, a witty bit of descriptive stuff, "Railway Transportation," by E. S. Hadley and that side-splitting collection of rollicking sketches, "The World Almanac."

Goethe's "Faust" has given way to "Margery Baw and Other People," by Thomas Bailly Aldrich (not Nelson of R. I.) and Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" made room for "Whispering Smith," by Frank Spearman. "Imitation of Christ," written by old Tom Kempis is replaced by "Short Stories" by Balzac and "Arabian Nights" expurgated. The unexpurgated edition, it is said, can be had by passengers proving that they live east of Jersey City and south of Poughkeepsie. "A Little Book of Profitable Tales," by Eugene Field is given a place at the far end of the shelf.

The railroads' literary censors say: "Dr. Eliot's shelf is made up of what is commonly known as 'hard reading,' not particularly adapted to the desires of our patrons."

They Have a Definite Purpose.

Foley Kidney Pills give quick relief in cases of kidney and bladder ailments. Mrs. Rose Glaser, Terre Haute, Ind., tells the result in her case. I am again able to be up and attend to my work. I shall never hesitate to recommend them." Sold by all druggists.

TWO NEW LIGHTS ARE ESTABLISHED.

An important notice issued by the branch hydrographic office of this city, is the one stating that the light and fog signal have been established at Split Rock, north of Two Harbors. This has long been a dangerous place for mariners, and the news of the establishment of the light and fog signal will be read with a great deal of satisfaction by all mariners who make this end of the Great Lakes.

The second notice issued by the department has to do with the establishment of a light off Shaganash island.

BEAUTY MORE THAN "SKIN DEEP"

"Beauty," said a well known teacher of calisthenics, "is more than 'skin deep,' for no matter how good a complexion may be, a pretty face with a scrawny neck and under-developed bust does not constitute true beauty. While I advise exercise and plenty of fresh air for all women, yet there are many instances where such methods are insufficient, and in cases of that kind I invariably prescribe the Vaucaire treatment, which was introduced into France many years ago, and used successfully by the women of that country ever since. The chief ingredient, gallol, has a wonderful tonicity value, and if used faithfully, feeds the delicate tissues and rounds out the sunken or under-developed parts of the anatomy, giving to every woman's form, those graceful lines of boauty so much admired by the sterner sex.

"To prepare this simple treatment, get one ounce of gallol from your druggist; then take one and one-half cups of granulated sugar and add enough water to make a pint of syrup. Add to this the gallol (but be sure it is the true gallol), and take two teaspoonfuls twice or three times each day and you will soon produce the desired results."

FORESTRY STATION WORK PROGRESSES

Considerable Being Done on Land Being Cultivated in "Cloquet Forest."

Cloquet, Minn., Aug. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work on the state experimental forestry tract established near here last April has progressed rapidly this summer, and at the present time there is a crew of eight men at work at the station.

Thre are 2,700 acres in the tract. One million, five hundred thousand feet of Norway and White pine have been selected in four compact groups for future experimental work and study. This timber, and a considerable amount adjacent to it was purchased several years ago from the United States by one of the local logging companies for logging purposes, and outside of the three groups mentioned logging is now going on. These groups will not be logged until the legislature has had time to act upon a bill looking to the purchase of this timber, that it may be kept intact for the work of the station.

Four Acres Are Cultivated.

Seed trees have been selected to be used to test the effects of various conditions of ground and underbrush in securing seedling pine growth. About four acres has been cultivated and put into crops, and next year this land will be used for growing seedlings of a variety of trees suitable for forest planting and it is expected that this branch of the work will eventually expand until it will be possible to furnish experimental plantations at cost to private parties.

Owing to the dry season, it has been necessary to maintain an almost constant patrol, and fire lanes two rods wide have been made partially around the forest. The work has been carried on this summer from temporary quarters, but permanent buildings are now in construction at the northeast corner of the grove, in a beautiful grove of Norway pine. An eight-room house will be built of logs, peeled and oiled, which will be the home of the forester in charge, and will be occupied all the year. Dillon P. Tierney of the state university and Forest school, has been in charge of the work this season. The experimental tract has been named "Cloquet Forest."

CLOQUET COUPLE GAVE FRIENDS BIG SURPRISE.

Cloquet, Minn., Aug. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The marriage of John Tonkin and Miss Eva Guerin, which occurred last Saturday evening, was announced today, and was a complete surprise to their many friends in this city. The marriage was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Guerin, by Rev. C. H. Blake and was witnessed by only the immediate families. The groom is the son of Mrs. Grace Tonkin and has lived in this city a number of years. He was formerly an engineer on the Mesabe. They will reside at the Tonkin family home on Carlton avenue.

BRUIN STILL LIVES.

Automobile Bear Hunt Is Not Fatal to the Bear.

L. J. Filiatrault's bear hunt last Sunday was a success in every way except that the party did not get the bear. Undiscouraged, Mr. Filiatrault proclaims "We'll get him yet."

Except as to the unsuccessful outcome of the hunt, the trip was a pleasant one. The roads between here and the Whiteface river are in first rate shape and the trip was made running easily, in two and a half hours. The four-mile low strip between the Cloquet river and the railroad tracks, which has been low and bad travelling has been greatly improved by a gravel fill, and a couple of badly washed out culverts beside Pike Lake have recently been repaired.

Mr. Filiatrault attributes the failure of the hunt to the fact that he forgot to take along the decayed fish bear bait which was to attract bruin from his lair.

REFUSE TO KEEP PARTY PLEDGES

Conservatives in Colorado Democracy Win in Party Caucus.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 16.—An initiative measure which, it is asserted, is ultra-conservative and will make but little change in existing conditions, was agreed upon at a caucus of the Democratic senators early today, who met to agree upon legislation to be enacted at the present special session of the state legislature. The measure will call for a petition to be signed by 15 per cent of the vote for governor at the last election in two-thirds of the counties.

The caucus resulted in a complete defeat of those who advocated the enactment of all the party's pre-election pledges, for which the extra session was called by Governor Shafroth, and a victory for the Senator Hughes-Mayor Speer faction, which advocated a redemption of pledges on a conservative basis. Another caucus, it is believed, will be held late today, to consider the referendum measure.

At Virginia This Afternoon, to Be Given Banquet at Eveleth Tonight.

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Eberhart and other state officials inspected state drainage ditch No. 53 which extends from Kelsey to the Whiteface river, yesterday, and spent the evening at Hibbing. They came to Virginia today about 1 o'clock in the afternoon and inspected the Sliver mine and other state properties. This afternoon at 4 o'clock a party of local automobilists will go over to Virginia to bring the governor and party here to inspect the Leonidas shaft on the Adams property, which is now being sunk. This is the only state property around Eveleth.

Any Woman Can Have a Soft Velvety Complexion

If you are troubled with blackheads, large pores, pimples, freckles or muddy complexion get from your druggist a two-ounce package of amarol, add two teaspoonfuls of glycerine to a pint of hot water, and the entire contents of the package of amarol, shake well for a minute or so, then let stand for a few hours, and it's ready for use.

Use this lotion freely after washing and drying the face, hands and arms, rubbing until dry.

You will find this simple lotion much better than paints, powders and cosmetics, as it will not clog up the pores of the skin, but leaves them free to take in pure air that is necessary to health and a good complexion.

Any druggist will sell you the amarol in the original two-ounce package, and I advise every woman who wants a soft, velvety complexion to try this simple amarol solution.

HIBBING WATER MUCH IMPROVED

Changes Made at Plant Have Given Village Pure Supply.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Very few complaints are being registered these days against the local water. It is very much improved as a result of recent changes in the method of supplying the village. The water is clear and apparently as pure as any range town.

The clearness is due to the fact that the work of timbering and driving the underground reservoir, 260 feet below the surface, is being done behind a dam, a steam pump forcing the impure water to the surface at the rate of 800 gallons per minute.

Water Question Is Settled.

Frequent tests of the water are made at the plant to insure its purity and with the completion of the work now being done, the water question will be settled for some time to come.

It might be interesting to some to know that at a depth of 260 feet below the surface of the site of the water plant, an excellent quality of ore is exposed and a small fortune is being mined in the construction of the immense reservoir.

SUNDAY CRIMES AT BLIND PIGS

One Man Is Shot Twice, Another Badly Cut Near Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The lid was not down very tight on some of the blind pigs in this locality Sunday. One man was shot through the arm and side and another was so badly cut he had to be taken to the hospital.

Joseph Magg shot M. Sisisreddy at Stevenson. The men were in a blind pig drinking, and it is alleged that Magg was very quarrelsome. Finally Magg drew a revolver from his handkerchief and shot twice at Sisisreddy, who was wounded in the arm and side. Sisisreddy was able to come to town and report the matter to the police.

Officer Comes Across Crime.

Officer McDonald went out to Stevenson after Magg, but was unable to locate him. Returning, he discovered a row at the French location on the edge of town.

Pete Vladich was busy carving Mike Drovich with a knife, while two assailants were arrested while Dan Dravich held the victim. The two assailants were arrested, while Drovich was taken to the hospital.

Magg was caught toward evening near the Dale-Uno mine after a hard chase of 200 yards by Officers O'Donnell and Nord.

ABANDONED IT

For the Old Fashioned Coffee Was Killing.

"I always drank coffee with the rest of the family, for it seemed as if there was nothing for breakfast if we did not have it on the table.

"I have been troubled for some time with my heart, which did not feel right. This trouble grew worse steadily.

"Some times it would beat fast and at other times very slowly, so that I would hardly be able to do work for an hour or two after breakfast, and if I walked up a hill it gave me a severe pain.

"I had no idea of what the trouble was until a friend suggested that perhaps it might be caused by coffee drinking. I tried leaving off the coffee and began drinking Postum. The change came quickly. I am now glad to say that I am entirely well of the heart trouble and attribute the cure to leaving off coffee and the use of Postum.

A number of my friends have abandoned coffee and have taken up with Postum, which they are using steadily. There are some people that make Postum very weak and tasteless, but if it is boiled long enough, according to directions, it is a very delicious beverage. We have never used any of the old fashioned coffee since Postum was first started in our house."

WITH THE NAVAL MILITIA BOYS ABOARD THE GOPHER

On Board the U. S. S. Gopher—Beautiful and rather warm weather prevailed while the Great Lakes squadron was in Cleveland. The ships cast their anchors in the harbor about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon and remained until Sunday evening. Many of the men on the differet ships were given shore liberty, and they took advantage of the opportunity to see the city which is the home port of the Dorothea.

The news that Governor Harmon was unable to visit the fleet was a distinct disappointment to the officers and men of the different ships. The Ohio governor, as a national figure, is a person of importance and the lake sailors would have been glad to receive him on their ships.

There was little doing while the fleet lay at anchor in the harbor of Cleveland. Very signals were given by the flagship Saturday night for the first time, and the Gopher acquitted herself admirably. Ensign Farrington, signal officer, visited the Wolverine Sunday morning and he was told that the Gopher's percentage on the Very signals given the previous evening was 100. The perfect record is an added instance of the Gopher's repeated success in the signal drills.

The Very signals are given with rockets and shooting stars, and the signal crew of the Gopher had no opportunity to practice with them this year. Their reading was ready and accurate as the percentage shows.

Commander White of the Bureau of Steam Engineering at Washington visited the Gopher Sunday morning and inspected the boilers and engines. He was sent from Washington to make a similar inspection on all of the ships of the fleet.

Commader Eaton expressed the belief that the Gopher will secure a recommendation from Commander White that new engines be installed. The Gopher was built in 1871 at Philadelphia and the engines which were installed at that time are still doing duty. They are the first four and one-half expansion engines ever constructed, it is said, and their usefulness is not great in comparison with modern engines in ships of the Gopher's size. New boilers were installed in the Gopher this year, but their efficiency cannot be thoroughly brought out through the old engines and Commander Eaton and the other officers of the Gopher have high hopes of being provided with new engines—which will make up in a measure for the need of a new ship.

* * *

The buglers on the Gopher are about the best the Gopher has ever had. They are almost letter perfect in the several calls, get good tone out of their bugles and are making a hit with the officers and men, not only of the Gopher, but of the other ships in the squadron.

Their sounding of taps when the ship lies at anchor is especially fine. One is stationed on the main deck, one at the mainmast and one at the stern and they sound the beautiful call in succession. Their work is truly beautiful and the first night they sounded taps, they were showered with congratulations.

The Gopher has a mascot on its cruise with the Great Lakes squadron. He is a wee, black and white and tan "purp," who was taken aboard by one of the blue-jackets and to whom nobody will lay claim. The men up "for-rard" have named him "Salome," and, although Salome is the name usually applied to another sex, "Salome" he is.

For the first two days out, Salome was about the sickest dog anybody ever saw. He was certainly not accustomed to sailing on the deep. By the time the Gopher reached the Soo, the dog had gotten his sea-legs and from that time on wandered around the ship at will. He is a favorite with the officers and men as well. He has carte blanche and cannot be taken before the mast for any offense, for Salome is not on the ship's roster and has no station billet.

OPTIONISTS' FIELD DAY

Speakers for County Option Present Arguments to 1,000 Voters.

County option had its field day last evening at the Armory, where P. J. Youngdahl, superintendent of the Minnesota State Anti-Saloon league, and Rev. E. C. Clemans, superintendent of the Duluth district, addressed a gathering of nearly 1,000 men.

The crowd was smaller than had been expected. Mr. Youngdahl said yesterday he was confident that the house would be packed. However, although the size of the audience did not come up to expectations, the zeal and enthusiasm of some of them was a compensating feature from Mr. Youngdahl's point of view.

Presenting the well-known argument of the optionists, Mr. Youngdahl contended that under the present license system the cities burden the people of the whole county with taxes without permitting the rural communities to have a voice in the making of laws that create the taxes.

He held that county option is nothing but fair treatment of all the people, and the extension of the right to vote on an issue touching all classes in a community. He said that the county is the unit, because it is the tax-making unit, and that as it is the unit which controls the taxing power, so it must be the unit that controls the police power. To permit the people of the county to say whether saloons, which he described as the breeders of crime, shall be allowed to run is no more than a square deal, he said, as it is the taxes levied on the people of the whole county that produce the revenue that pays the cost in criminal proceedings.

Greatest Cause of Crime.

"The supreme court of the United States in a recent decision brands the saloon as the greatest cause of crime in this country. This court being the highest tribunal, ought to know, and if such is the case the city man and farmer should have something to say as to how the taxes they pay should be used. They should be allowed to say whether they wish to pay the bills for an institution of this sort or not."

As to the arguments of those opposed to county option, Mr. Youngdahl found them full of inconsistencies. While they talked against county option on the ground that it deprived the cities of home rule and permitted the rural communities to rule the urban, they also contended that where prohibitory legislation is enforced more liquor is sold than elsewhere. Mr. Youngdahl denied the truth of this assertion, but added that he didn't see why the brewery interests objected to county option if it is true that it would increase their business.

Afraid of Prosperity.

"Perhaps they are afraid they would make too much money," he said.

Mr. Youngdahl found fault with both of the big parties, saying that politics is rotten, and that the leaders of each party are controlled by a non-partisan ring that is exploiting the public. He urged his audience to take a livelier interest in politics, for the purpose of removing from the public service men who represent this ring and not their constituents.

"Shame on the man," he said, "who goes to prayer meeting on primary night, the night that you should be out choosing your representatives to make the laws of your land. It is your negligence in attending the caucuses and seeing that the right representatives are chosen that makes poor laws for your community."

"In 1900 not more than 18,000,000 people in this country were living in communities where the sale of intoxicants was prohibited," he said. "Now the territory in which prohibition is enforced includes a population of 50,000,000."

Mr. Clemans, in his address, said that the anti-saloon league does not represent the church arrayed against the saloon, but that it is an organization, essentially undenominational, of the good people of all the churches united to combat the aggressions of the brewery combine.

Speaking of St. Louis politics, he said that he had written letters to each of the candidates for seats in the legislature and had received a reply from but one of them. This reply he had read many times and studied carefully, but so far has been unable to discover whether the candidate is for or against county option legislation. He said:

"Reapportionment is what all are at present favoring. Will we have it with the representatives which are being placed on the ticket by the brewery interests? No, the brewery interests do not wish reapportionment, for that would necessitate a new class of men two years from now and another $500,000 to be spent by the liquor dealers to elect their candidates."

Intense Colicky Pains Relieved.

"For some years I suffered from intense colicky pains which would come on at times and from which I could find no relief," says I. S. Mason of Beaver Dam, Ky. "Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommended to me by a friend. After taking a few doses of the remedy I was entirely relieved. That was four years ago and there has been no return of the symptoms since that time." This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

NO CITY QUITE LIKE DULUTH

F. B. Daugherty More Enthusiastic Than Ever About Former Home.

Former Senator F. B. Daugherty, who now makes his home in Chicago, is spending a few weeks in the city, having arrived last evening.

Mr. Daugherty, while he makes Chicago his headquarters, always plans to spend several weeks of every year in Duluth, perferably in the summer time.

"In all my travels I have not found a city that has so many natural advantages as Duluth," he says. "First of all, there is one of the best harbors, if not the best, in the world, with docks that are equipped with the most modern machinery for handling freight, so that I guess I am safe in saying that cargoes can be loaded and unloaded at Duluth faster than at any other port in the United States. We are hitched up to one of the best water powers in the country, surrounded by the greatest iron deposits in the world, and it will not be but a few years when St. Louis county will be the greatest agricultural county in the state. Last, but not least, we have the best drinking water of any city in the United States, and with the great Lake Superior to draw from, no matter how large the population at the Head of the Lakes becomes, it can never pollute our water, the same as is done on Lake Michigan and other places where the water is shoal, and not cool enough.

"We have the most beautiful park system of any city I have ever seen—beautiful and grand because it is natural—and I always feel a great pride in the fact that I think I was the first chairman of the park committee in the city council of Duluth, and was partly instrumental in starting the grand boulevard, that everyone appreciates so much. Of course there were some others who assisted, but we had a hard struggle to even get a survey made, as at that time we were working under a village charter and our funds were very limited.

"I notice by the papers that there is talk of employing an expert to advertise Duluth—a very wise thing to do, and he certainly will have foundation to work on.

"I do not know much about local politics, but I am sorry to hear there is some opposition to Mr. Halden, our very efficient county auditor. I am one of those who do not believe that because a man has held office a few terms, he should give way to someone else, anymore than I should discharge a man in my employ, who was very efficient, for the simple reason that he had spent years in learning my business and became very valuable, and I ought to give some other man a chance. Mr. Halden is recognized as the best county auditor in Minnesota, and I think it will be a great mistake to make a change. The same might apply to all county or city offices.

"If the voters of St. Louis county will stop to think, they will remember that there has never been any scandal in the way of graft, that I know of, in either city or county affairs, especially county affairs. We have always been very fortunate in having good men hold the different offices."

PATIENT GOES CRAZY.

Inmate of Grand Forks Hospital Attacks Other Patients.

Grand Forks, N. D., Aug. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Herman Soranson of Thief River Falls, Minn., will be returned to that city by the local county authorities, as he has lost his ability to reason things out along the usual route. Soranson, a patient at a local hospital, became demented and was ordered arrested by the attending physician. Yesterday morning he undertook to punish two fellow prisoners with the use of a shoe and precipitated a near panic as a result.

Devils Lake, N. D., Aug. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Telephone service throughout this section of the state was disrupted Monday afternoon as a result of several electrical storms. The lines west of Churchs Ferry were entirely out of service during the afternoon and evening and big crews of linemen have been sent out to repair the damage and restore communication.

This afternoon the schedule planned includes visits to the ore docks, to the Zenith Furnace company's plant, the aerial bridge, and other points of interest in the city. Tonight they leave via the Northern Pacific, going to Butte without a stop-over. Prof. Eckert expressed regret that time did not permit a visit to the great ore bearing regions of the iron range but said that their limited time made this impossible.

The itinerary of the trip so far has included New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Chicago, Milwaukee and Duluth. From now on they will visit Butte, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, the Grand Canyon, St. Louis, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Boston, Lexington, Beverly, Fall River and Bethlehem. As will be seen, the trip includes a thorough survey of the northern and western parts of the country, and the party hopes to be able to "do" the South on a later trip. The total mileage of the party in America will be 8,707.

"Ach! A Great Country."

"Ach! It is the greatest, grandest, most wonderful country you have here," said Prof. Eckert this morning. "I am very glad we included your city in our trip. We have seen Chicago and it is fitting that we should see her new rival, Duluth. We expect to hear much of your town in the future.

"Our trip is primarily to study your commercial, business and manufacturing systems, but we shall spend what time is left over in seeing your natural wonders. We shall see the Grand Canyon, and though we are business men we are not unappreciative of your great hills.

"We take an interest in the model systems of production, which have so considerably enhanced man's abilities by the application of the latest technical inventions to machinery. We want to learn the course of production in agriculture, which not only supplies your home markets but also a part of the world; also we want to learn about the rapidly developed industry which more and more is gaining supremacy in so many branches.

"We are full of admiration for the practical application of business talents, or the grandiose distributive organizations, which take into consideration the remotest contingencies, which are always creating new demands, and finding means of satisfying them."

TARIFF AND TRUSTS BLAMED FOR HIGH COST OF LIVING

he does not honestly believe that it will increase the prices to be realized by the manufacturers producing the article affected, by diminishing or destroying competition, and thus necessarily increasing the cost to the consumer.

"Then we were many times mournfully warned that any reduction in rates would flood our country with lower-priced German products, and that the smoke of American manufacturers would disappear from the heavens. Now we are informed that the tariff has not increased the cost of these articles entering into every household and administering to the health and comfort of every family."

Tariff and Prices.

Showing the effect of the tariff on prices, they instance sugar, which the New York consumer, they say, pays more than the London consumer by the difference between the sugar tariffs in the two countries, plus 17 cents per hundred pounds.

"It is scarcely necessary," they add, "to mention the iniquitous woolen schedule—where the tariff rates are so high on those necessities of our people as to practically preclude any foreign competition with the American manufacturer, except on high-priced goods purchased by the wealthier consumer, who can, to some extent, disregard price."

Taking up the subject of trusts, combinations and monopolies, they declare that "there are few trusts that could survive a revenue tariff. They flourish only under the shadow of high protective walls. Standing behind them those walls that shut off foreign competition, and destroying domestic competition by consolidations and absorptions, they are limited only to selling at a fraction less than the foreign price plus the protective duty.

Production and Profit.

"That they reduce cost of production seems certain; but it is in rare cases that the public or the laborers employed by them participate in the enlarged profit. So enormous have been their profits that we find organizations springing up all over the country, like the Elgin board of trade, the wholesale grocers and lumber dealers—associations that have contributed largely to the advance in prices—and the frauds perpetrated by manufacturers of certain goods in reducing the weight of contents of packages from 20 to 50 per cent and maintaining the same prices.

"The methods of the meat trust," they declare, "seem to be admirably adapted to taking from the consumer and the producer the largest amount that the traffic will bear. Their destruction of local competitors cannot be improved upon."

Sample of the Workings.

As what they call a "sample of the workings of our combines," they say that "while everywhere else in the world the price of harvesting machinery has been appreciably reduced since 1900, in the United States it has been materially increased. The increase," they add, "started nearly contemporaneously with the Dingley tariff."

As to wages, they say that "the fear that wages would fall if the tariff were removed, and the fall in prices would not be a clear gain to the consumer, is not warranted by the experience of Great Britain. Great Britain is a free trade nation, and it is the most prosperous nation in the world except our own. Shoals of emigrants from the tariff-ridden nations of France, Germany, Italy and Russia go to England to work. But Englishmen do not emigrate to those countries because the standard of living is lower."

Wages and Protection.

"The general testimony is that the rate of wages for all mechanical trades is substantially higher in Great Britain than in those protectionist countries, while the prices of necessities are lower, leaving the Englishman a wider margin to live upon.

"It is about sixty years since Great Britain adopted free trade, and during that time, according to a table published in Whitaker's Almanac, wages have increased 81.7 per cent and prices only 3 per cent. It is, therefore, well seen that the abolition of the tariff in England did not bring down the rate of wages. Neither would it in this country. If we remove the obstruction, allowing prices to sink to their natural level, the question of wages may be trusted to take care of itself."

Replying to the majority's statement, in its report, that an "increased demand for farm products" is a cause of advancing prices, the minority cites the wheat crop as having increased from less than 7 bushels per capita in 1900 to more than 8 in 1909; corn, from 27 to 30 bushels per capita, and potatoes from almost 3 to more than 4 bushels. Notwithstanding the increase in the price of farm products, the farmer, they say, "has realized a small net return on his labor and investment by reason of the increased cost of the articles necessary for him to purchase to carry on his business."

Eau Claire, Wis., Aug. 16.—Special to The Herald.)—Playing errorless ball, and with Cummings pitching in great form, the White Sox yesterday shut out the leaders by the score of 2 to 0. Cummings allowed the Schooners but five scattered hits, while the timely batting of Kohl and Holstrom gave the victory to the invaders.

In the first inning, Duluth scored through an error by Breyette, which allowed a runner to cross the pan, after two of the Sox had hit in the opening round.

The second Sox tally came in the seventh. In this round Kohl hit a long triple to center and scored when Altermott followed with a single over the infield.

In the eighth inning it looked as if the locals would tie up the score. In this round there was a runner on second and third with only one down. With Callahan, the breaker up of games, at bat, it looked as if the locals might pull out of the hole. Cummings struck Callahan out and the best Bailey could do was to hit to the outfield.

The hitting of Kohl and Holstrom and the latter's first base play were the features of the game. Kick made a great running one-handed stab of a drive from the bat of J. Anderson.

OUTCAST'S ERRORS GIVE VICTORY TO INDIANS.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Errors on the part of La Crosse enabled Red Wing to take the second game of the series from the Outcasts by a 3 to 2 score. The Indians secured but three hits off the delivery of Watson, but his team mates committed five glaring errors. The hits of the Red Wing players were mixed with the errors of the visitors. Good fielding alone saved Johnson.

EVERS STILL STAR OF FIRST MAGNITUDE

JOHNNY EVERS

Of the Chicago Cubs.

The Chicago National league team seem to have the call on the other teams of the National league for the pennant this season. Chance has got his team working well together and his pitchers have all rounded to form. The infield is as good as ever and is the same infield that played so important a part in the series with Detroit for the world's championship two years ago. Johnny Evers at second base is as lively as ever and is probably the best second baseman in the game today.

ALLEGRO IN THIRD PLACE

Duluth Boats Make Better Showing in First Regatta Race.

The Navaled Finishes Eighth in a Fleet of Ten.

Oshkosh, Wis., Aug. 16.—Marion Jean of Minnetonka, Cubanola of White Bear, and Keno of Minnetonka, were the winners in the first day's races of the thirteenth annual regatta of the Inland Lake Yachting association here yesterday.

Allegro of Duluth finished third in Class B, and Navaled, while coming in eighth, showed a remarkable improvement over her previous work and instead of being a very bad tail-ender, was less than a minute behind the seventh boat, on an average. The races were sailed in a northeast wind around a triangular course, of which the first leg was a dead beat in the eye of the wind, the second a beam reach, and the third a quartering spinnaker run. The wind was a trifle fresher than either of the previous racing days and the more favorable showing made by Navaled would substantiate the prediction that she needed a heavy wind to move her and that in case of a gale she will make good yet.

The contest was extremely interesting. There was hardly over a minute between the first and fourth boats at any time. Pats Fourth, Menasha, Marion Jean and Kathryn held the lead at various times, but the Minnetonka boat held it longer and owing to the disqualification of Kathryn won the race by a narrow margin over Menasha and Phantom. The race carried with it besides points on the championship, the Commodore O. L. Schmidt challenge cup, to be held by the winner for a year.

In the forenoon the race in Class B, the boats picked out their positions early in the first leg to windward, and they never changed thereafter though the intervals were drawn out on each leg.

Allegro got over the line even with Iris and only three seconds after the gun. For two tacks Iris led, but then Cubanola took first place and Allegro dropped to third.

Scout pushed the Duluth boat hard for a round and a half, but then Allegro began to gain and finished over a minute to the good.

Today's race will be windward or leeward and return. It is raining here at a late hour, which may flatten out the wind, if not it is likely to blow a gale.

RAGGED WORK BY WESTERN GOLFERS

Denver, Aug. 16. — Seldom has a tournament where golfers of national reputation gathered, shown such a reversal of form as shown on the first day's medal play for the Trans-Mississippi title.

Those who turned in cards below 90 for the 16 holes are practically certain to qualify for the first round of match play, unless another series of foozles and misplays attacks the field today.

Harry G. Legg of Minikahda, the present title holder, was the only starter who turned in a card below 80, his score of 77 leading the field.

The 18 holes of the qualifying round will be played today. The score by holes of the four low men follows:

Lawrence Bromfield, Denver Country club:

GRAND FORKS AUTOISTS UPON THREE DAY RUN.

Grand Forks, N. D., Aug. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—This morning the Grand Forks Automobile club left the city on its first annual tour, leaving for Grafton and Walhalla. The run will take the club as far west as Devils Lake, by way of Langdon, and it will take three days. The run is to boost for good roads.

Tennis at Newport.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 16.—The thirteenth all-comers tournament in the National Lawn Tennis championships was begun on the Casino courts yesterday. The only match played in the second that between McLoughlin of California and Grant of Washington, formerly one of the Southern doubles champions, was the feature of the day. McLoughlin won in straight sets. The big card today will be the match for the national doubles championship between Fundy and Hendricks of California, the challengers, and Alexander and Hackett of New York, the holders.

WILL DROP TWO TOWNS

Red Wing and La Crosse May Not Last Another Year.

Changes Will Be Made in the Circuit Before Next Spring.

With the season of the Minny league on the last lap, there are already indications pointing to material changes that will be made in the league before another year rolls around.

Down at La Crosse, the second largest city of the league, there are rumors crediting President Henry Rooney of that team with an intense desire to dispose of his interests in the team. The attendance at La Crosse the present season has been something to try the nerves of a saint on probation, and the officials of the club are said to be losing money every day the team plays at home.

In one of the games against Winona there were only 155 people in the stands and bleachers. This is said to be an example of the way the fans of the German village have been turning out to see the team play, notwithstanding the fact that at the present time La Crosse is playing the best ball of the season.

Red Wing will probably be dropped from the league at the next organization meeting of the directors. Baseball has not proved successful in the manufacturing village, and it has only been through the patriotism of the citizens of that little town that baseball was not allowed to die there the present season.

During the present year the best baseball played in this part of the country in years, has been seen in the eight cities of the league. Just at the present time the teams of the Minny league are playing better baseball than any minor class D league in the country. Many of the games of the past two weeks have been of the big league variety.

Baseball has not been as successful throughout the country the present season as was the case last year. This fact may be considered in accounting for the poor attendance at La Crosse and Red Wing. But the Minny league is a league that is bound to grow and prosper, if the game of baseball is played in the future that is being played at the present time, and it is only suggested that two weak sisters, such as Red Wing and even La Crosse has proved to be the present season, be dropped from the league.

La Crosse, for some years past, has been a dead one, as far as baseball is concerned. Even the placid papers of that quiet town will admit this charge. If the fans of a town of over 40,000 souls do not want baseball, it is time that their team was transferred to some town that appreciates the national game.

Duluth is ambitious in the baseball line. The fans hope for a downtown park some time in the future, and also want to get into just as fast company as possible. Towns that give the attendance that La Crosse and Red Wing do, are hurting the chances of Duluth and every other town in this league.

La Crosse has found it necessary to release one of its pitchers, for the reason that the team cannot afford to pay him a salary. That is given simply as an example of the poor attendance at La Crosse. Not much yell has gone out against La Crosse in the past, simply because the town is large and is also the center of Minny league affairs But, nevertheless, unless that town can support a baseball team, why continue in the league?

Duluth has applied for admission to the league, and early as it is to prophesy at the present stage of the game, it would not surprise many baseball men to see the Southern Minnesota town a member of the league next season.

NEW SCHELL BOAT IS DUE IN DULUTH.

Dick Schell's new motor flier is supposed to reach the head of the Lakes today.

The boat left Minneapolis last Thursday, but had been held up at the Minnesota transfer. Word was received that the boat would reach here yesterday, but nothing was seen of it. If the latest thing in motor boats arrived today it will very likely be afloat in the waters of St. Louis bay before evening.

Mr. Schell will want at least several days to get his boat in shape for the big race of next Saturday, when his boat will meet the Cook and Barnes boats. W. S. Jones is very busy the present week tuning up the Lake Geneva craft.

Even at the Twin Cities they are interested in th outcome of the race scheduled for next Saturday. The Schell boat made an enviable reputation at both Minnetonka and White Bear, and it is very probable that some of the motor boat enthusiasts of the two cities may come here to see the big race of next Saturdey.

Between now and Saturday every effort will be made by the three boat owners to get their boats in the best condition. Mack Cook has had his boat overhauled and placed in tip top condition. At least he will make a serious try for first place.

Kellys Win Game.

The Kelly Hardware Juniors yesterday defeated the Big Duluth Juniors by a score of 9 to 7, this being the fourth defeat in thirty games for the Big Duluth Juniors. A ninth-inning rally of six scores won the game. The batteries were: Kelly Hardware Juniors, Fegarty and McManus; Big Duluth Juniors, Unden and Johnson.

Rain Interferes.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 16.—Rain that fell steadily all night had stopped this morning, but it looked as if there were but small chance of the matches on today's card in the thirtieth annual lawn tennis championship of the United States being played.

Herald Juniors Win.

The Herald Juniors defeated the Aerial Tigers, 13 to 12, in an exciting ten-inning game. The game was played at Twelfth avenue east and London road.

Kendig Leads Canfield.

Frank Kendig last night got away with a lead in his pool match with Mose Canfield, running out 125 points while Canfield was stringing 77. Kendig was in splendid form, making a run of 30. Canfield's high run was 20. The match will be resumed tonight.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE.)

What's the Matter With Duluth?

Do the people in this city care for athletic sports?

The question came up during a conversation between two men who were discussing the question of rowing here. One of them held that the people of Duluth cared not, or knew not, of what the crews of the club accomplished at home or abroad.

That is going rather far; yet it has been made clear that the people of this city are very little interested in the events of the club, when it comes to rowing. There is baseball and hockey, also, and it might be said that the sport loving public, small as it is here, has shown very little interest in either of these games.

One of the reasons why comparatively so few oarsmen come out to try for the crew, is that so little interest is taken in rowing throughout the city. If greater interest was taken by the average citizen, certainly this interest would be contagious and would be communicated to the young generation.

One of the reasons why there is a very decided lack of interest in rowing here, is because so few regattas have been held in this city. Therefore, some of the blame for the apathetic spirit of the citizens of Duluth toward the king of water sports, may be laid at the door of the officials of the Northwestern International Rowing association.

In the past four years St. Paul has held two of the Northwestern regattas, Winnipeg one and Kenora one. The last regatta was held here so long ago that even the older members of the club have to stop and think before they can give the year in which the visiting oarsmen were entertained here.

The people up here have seen so little of rowing that they have never had the opportunity to become wildly interested in the sport. Anyone who has ever seen a regatta, generally wants to see another. There is no sight in this world much more picturesque or inspiring than a close race between two eights.

Next year the regatta will be held here. Probably a degree of enthusiasm will be worked up in the races, especially if the other events are also held here. But in the meantime, this fall and next spring and summer before the date for the holding of the regatta, the members of the club might be interested in some club races, such as are planned for several Saturdays of the remainder of the season.

There is no getting away from the fact, that here the good citizens are not so wildly interested in any sport as the cits of other cities are. But in rowing there are those who, lamenting the lack of interest, are inclined to agree that some of the coldness and aloofness may be the result of unfamiliarity with one of the greatest sports in the world.

Once let the members of the Duluth Boat club become interested in the club races, and let these races be interesting first, and it is a very good wager that the veranda dwellers will in the future, begin to manifest more interest in the holding of races between the different crews of the club.

Some of the burden of responsibility should be laid on those who have the racing events in charge.

Remember the Captain?

What do you think the dopesters are doing these dog days of idle August? Three little guesses and you are off. They are picking Capt. McLaglen, the jiu jitsu champion, as the lad to take the measure of grinning Jack Johnson. Smile, some of you.

Quite a few of the cits of Duluth will remember the picturesque captain. He was there, when it came to advertising himself. As a habitue of some of our cafes, as an exponent of the life merry and a teller of tales in which the brave captain was the main incident, the jiu jitsu man was a most capable hand. He never permitted conervational grass to grow while he was in the vicinity.

But as for fighting Johnson! If such a case of contemplated suicide took place, the thing should be done with artistic surroundings. A surgeon and ambulance, a reporter, to take the captain's last words, and some representative citizens, so that the poor captain would feel satisfied that the thing was quite proper, don't you know, should he on hand if the misguided man were ever persuaded to enter the ring with that grinning gorilla.

Some of us enjoyed the captain's exhibition of jiu jitsu. He mauled the poor little jap around the arena like a man taking morning exercise with a Scotch collie. Even at times the eyes of the small yellow man would pop with rage, or an excellent imitation, and he would, for the short space of a minute or so, make the tall and rather ungainly captain hunt the four corners of the ring.

You can imagine the captain cooped up in a high-roped arena with Lil' Artha. It would be quite as sad and pathetic as David fighting Goliath without his trusty slingshot.

These days must be very barren of real sporting palaver, when the space writers have to place the names of McLaglen and Gotch as possible candidates for the job of sending Artha to the repair shop.

Connie Is Simple.

Mr. Connie Mack, the genial and somewhat shrewd leader of the Philadelphia Athletics, upon being asked the best way to win baseball games, answered: "Play better baseball than the other team." The which would indicate that Mr. Mack is possessed of enormous powers of observation, and more, that he gets to the point of a question without much ado or the use of a great deal of extraneous matter.

Why Should They?

When Charles Comiskey built his new baseball plant, as they are pleased to call parks in this material age, he did not advance the prices. Some one remarked upon this, whereupon the genial mogul of South Chicago did reply: "Why should the fans pay for the park? With the brand of baseball the Sox have been playing the present season, some one might answer that there is no reason in the world why the fans should pay for the park or the cushions therein

These magnates are charitable—sometimes.

Steady, There, Parson.

A minister became unduly excited and called harshly and sternly on an editor of a paper, when he read the caption in the paper of a small New York town—"Lord is with the White Sox."

"Not if the White Sox play on Sunday," retorted the minister, and he then proceeded to call the editor for the statement.

It so happened that the Lord referred to in the caption, was Harry Lord, not the one that the impulsive minister imagined.

P. S.—Harry Lord makes lots of errors and was never known to perform a miracle.

A Good Sport, Somers.

Charley Somers of the Cleveland club only a year ago paid in all counting players, $17,500 for old Uncle Cy Young. Now he has suggested that the Ohio farmer retire after a benefit is given him at the close of the present season. It takes a real and somewhat classy sport to suggest retirement to a servant you have paid $17,500 for, and have received but little work from the investment.

Slyly, Oh You Gotch!

Dame rumor hath it that Frank Gotch, rassler by vocation, is at last to take unto himself a wife, which is well for any young man. The name of the lady is said to be Miss Gladys Ostrich. And it might be added that Gotch will be putting a feather in his cap, if he wins Miss Ostrich.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

JEALOUS MAN SHOOTS GIRL

Then George Ellison Blows Out His Brains on Ashland Street.

Louise Billel, One Victim of Double Crime, May Not Live.

Ashland, Wis., Aug. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a fit of jealousy George Ellison of this city shot Miss Louise Billel twice through the body last night and then blew out his own brains.

Waits in Alley for Victim.

The young couple had been keeping company and Ellison waited for her in an alley as she was coming home with a party of young people.

The shots were fired from the alley and the bodies of Ellison and the girl were found lying side by side.

She will probably die.

HE INVESTED $800 WITHOUT RETURNS

This Believed to Have Caused East Grand Forks Man to Take His Life.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Aug. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fact that he had done away with $800 during the past few months without receiving any benefits therefrom was the cause of the suicide of J. E. Hellerstadt, the local saloon owner over whom the Polk county coroner, S. Stenshoel, held an inquest yesterday afternoon.

Hellerstadt killed himself by hanging, his body being found three days after the deed had been committed. Up to a few months ago he resided in Washington and Oregon. Coming here he went into business ventures which proved disastrous and in despondency he killed himself. The verdict was one of suicide.

"GOVERNOR" PAQUIN BOASTS FINE FARM

One of Richest Polk County Farmers and Can Barely Sign His Name.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the unique characters in this section is Abraham Paquin, one of the pioneer farmers of Lambert township who is known as "The Governor", and so addressed by every man, woman and child within a radius of twenty-four miles of where his magnificent farm of 1,280 acres is located. He is one of the striking examples of illiterate men who have been signally successful. He can neither read nor write, with the exception of the recently acquired accomplishment of signing his own name, but he is one of the richest men in this section of the state.

He is now completing the largest and most modern barn in the north half of Minnesota. It is 110x90 feet and has a hay mow with a capacity of 200 tons. It is equipped with a furnace, and in the winter hot and cold water is on tap in every section of the big structure. He has several hundred fine dairy cows, and has both a creamery and a cheese factory of his own right on his farm, and buys all the cream his neighbors have to sell. He keeps from twenty to thirty men the year around and takes the greatest pride in keeping up his dairy herds. He also has a large number of hogs and is making money hand over fist. He takes great pride in his title, and personally looks after every detail of the work about his immense place. He handles from $4,000 to $6,000 per month in his regular business routine and has a fat bank account which is growing steadily.

BELTRAMI PLANS ON FINE DISPLAY

Substantial Sum Already Subscribed to Gather Exhibit for State Fair.

Bemidji, Minn., Aug. 16.—(Special to The Hearld.)—Three hundred dollars has been raised to date by W. R. Mackenzie for the Beltrami county state fair exhibit. The subscriptions are from towns and private parties and most of them have been made voluntarily. The money will be used to defray the expenses of collecting and arranging the exhibit.

Sunday, Mr. Mackenzie and Harold Dane, drove about twelve miles through the country north of the city aranging with the farmers to bring in their best produce the week before the fair. Several samples of rye, red top, and alfalfa were picked up, which indicate that these crops will be big ones this season.

Crops Looking Pretty Good.

Rye is found to have large, well-filled heads, although the straws are not as long as they were last year. The third crop of alfalfa will be ready to cut the last of this week, and red top has been in the barn for some time. Corn is not as high as it was last year and will be a little short for fodder, but the ears are large and well filled.

All of the small grains through this section have shorter straws than usual but the heads are exceeding all expectations. Potatoes are growing nicely and the recent rains have put them in excellent condition. Watermelons will be on the market in a couple of weeks, although they have been shipped in for almost a month. Sweet corn is coming on the market and is better than former years. Indications point to a better than normal crop in Beltrami county.

Following are the contributors to the state fair exhibit fund: Spooner town, $100; Blackduck town, $100; Crookston Lumber company, $25; T. B. Walker, $10; Bemidji Lumber company, $10; Joe Scribner, $10; Charles Nangle, $5; First National bank, $5; Northern National bank, $5; George Kiney, $5; H. E. Reynolds, $5; Farmers' Land company, $5; Bemidji Pioneer, $5; Carl Heffron, $5; Warfield Electric company, $5.

Contributing for County Fair.

Subscriptions to the county fair are coming in right along and the directors feel confident that this will be the best fair in the history of the association. The prizes which have been posted are the largest given of any county fair in the state, and are expected to draw out an extraordinary exhibit.

Farmers throughout the county are saving the best of their crop as it is harvested. They are also getting their animals into condition to enter them in the stock contests. Special attention is being given this year to dairy exhibits.

The money coming in from these subscriptions will go to pay the premiums and pay the expenses of running the fair.

MARINETTE LAWYER CANNOT PRACTICE

ALBERT E. SCHWITTAY.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 16.—Albert E. Schwittay, district attorney of Marinette county, was disbarred from practicing law in the state courts by the decision of Judge E. Ray Stevens, who sat in the case at Marinette. The court holds that the defendant does not possess the good moral character which is a requisite condition to his rightful continuance in the practice of law.

Forgery, libel, conversion of his client's money, acting on both sides of a case, and neglect of duty are among the charges brought against Schwittay.

MUCH WILD HAY IS BEING CURED

That Forage Promises to Be Red River Valley's Most Valuable Asset.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the most valuable assets of the Red River valley this year will be the hay crop. This condition exists in the face of the fact that the "tame" hay crop is generally very short, less than a half crop, with the wild hay crop on a good portion of the farms that are not entirely under cultivation, much less than a half crop.

Martin Widston, who edits the Warroad Plaindealer and a paper at Wauben, and who for the past couple of months has been covering the entire Ninth district in the interests of Congressman Steenerson, stated last evening that the total hay crop of the valley would be considerably greater than average. Mahnoman county, he stated, has five times the usual hay crop now in stack, most of which will be baled for shipment. Red Lake county will have double the average crop, the Beltrami section of Polk county has cut thousands of acres never cut before of wild hay, and Roseau county has at least a double tonnage from the swamps that have been cut.

VERY OLD CHICAGO MAN.

Alvin Austin, Aged 96, Is Revisiting North Dakota.

Grand Forks, N. D., Aug. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Enjoying the distinction of being one of the oldest men in Chicago, Alvin Austin, aged 96 years, is here visiting his grand son, R. E. Austin. There are three women in Chicago older than Mr. Austin, but he is said to be the eldest of the old men In 1882 Mr. Austin was a resident of Dakota, having extensive property interests at Cummings, Traill county, and he was the builder of one of the finest grain elevators constructed there.

INCREASE $16,000,000

Pierre, S. D., Aug. 16.—The total assessed valuation of the state, with the figures as completed by the state assessment board, will be $333,718,000. Of this amount $32,537,000 is corporate property, which is assessed by the state board.

This is an increase of a little over $16,000,000 over the figures of last year. As usual, the farm and mineral land assessments are the heaviest in the state, reaching to over $200,000,000, with the mineral lands listed at $3,690,000.

ONE MAN'S FINE PAYS EXTRADITION EXPENSES.

St. Cloud, Minn., Aug. 16.—Before Judge M. D. Taylor in this city, C. E. McMaster of the state of Washington pleaded guilty to obtaining money on a bogus check for $69.

McMaster was fined $450, which amount was paid, and reimburses Becker county for all expenses.

SHOOTS MAN WITH OFFICER'S WEAPON

Butte, Mont., Aug. 16.—Alleging that his home had been wrecked, Dell Reed, a prominent cattleman of the state, Sunday night on a crowded street shot and fatally wounded William Cohen and then calmly motioned to a policeman on the corner to place him under arrest.

Several minutes before the tragedy Reed had borrowed a revolver from Chief of Police J. J. Quinn, an old friend, on the pretense of "shooting a worthless dog which had been infesting his neighborhood."

In his cell Reed declared that he had shot Cohen as a warning to men not to steal the wives of other men.

SOO STEEL GANG LEAVES PLUMMER

Catches Up With Graders There and Goes to Ladysmith, Wis.

Plummer, Minn., Aug. 16.—The Soo steel gang that has been at work laying steel east of here during the past six weeks have completed all their work as far as the grading has been done. The steel is now laid out from this place a distance of thirty miles, but as the graders still have considerable work to do on this end, the laying of steel will have to be suspended.

The crew went from here to Ladysmith, Wis., where they will be kept busy the balance of the season.

The laying of steel on the Plummer-Moose Lake line will be completed from the other end and as there is less than fifty miles left to lay, the work can easily be completed this fall. If the grading had been completed as per contract the laying of steel would have been completed by Sept. 15, at the latest.

FINE WOODEN CARVINGS

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 16.—The most wonderful examples of the wood carver's art ever seen in the Upper Peninsula are being placed in the sanctuary of Trinity Episcopal church. These carvings complete the altar donation to the new Trinity church of Mrs. Carlos D. Shelden of Houghton and her daughter, Mrs. John D. Ryan of Butte, Mont. The carvings are the work of Alois Lang of Wausau, Wis., who is a brother of Anton Lang, the Christus of the Oberammergau Passion play production.

The donation of Mrs. Shelden and Mrs. Ryan includes the altar, chairs for the priest and the bishop and panelling in the sanctuary, all combined in one dignified piece of cabinetmaking. The carved panels are set into the upper portion of the sanctuary panels.

COUNTY BOARD UPHELD

In Refusing Court Commissioner Taylor of Aitkin Office Room.

Aitkin, Minn., Aug. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Court Commissioner Carl E. Taylor, who has filed for the Republican nomination for representative in the Ninth district, will have to furnish his own office, as Judge C. W. Stanton has upheld the Aitkin county board in refusing to furnish him quarters in the courthouse.

Through his attorney, J. Henry Long, Taylor brought proceedings to compel the county board of Aitkin county to furnish him with office room at the courthouse, claiming that he is entitled to the same by virtue of his office.

Judge Stanton decided in favor of the county, upholding the contentions of County Attorney Hallum, appearing for the county, holding that the county board has no right to furnish such office room.

GREENBUSH SCRIBE WEDS.

Northern Minnesota Editor Leads Bride to Altar on Friday.

Badger, Minn., Aug. 16.—Ernest R. Umpleby, editor of the Greenbush Tribune, and Miss Minnie Anita Hildahl were maried Friday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Hildahl, town of Ross. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. L. Tallakson in the presence of only immediate relatives.

After the wedding dinner the couple drove to Badger and boarded the train for the Twin Cities, accompanied by showers of rice and old shoes.

HOW BUFFALO BILL AND PAWNEE BILL HELPED DEVELOP THE GREAT WEST

The Niche in History Occupied By These Two Picturesque Characters.

Pawnee Bill a Bank President, Ranch Owner and Show Man.

MAJ. LILLIE (PAWNEE BILL).

Writers of poetry, history and romance have eulogized the love of different people for the home land.

The Frenchman's La Patrie; the Englishman's steadfast affection for the green fields of Merrie England; the Irishman's love for the green sod of the isle of Erin; the Polish exile's mourning for his shattered patrimony; the Teuton's fidelity to the Fatherland, have been for ages the theme of song and story.

Such feeling has been actuating races and nations of all time. But in no case has this sentiment appeared so strongly as among the American Indians who reverently regard the land from which they have sprung as the "Great Mother". This fidelity to local and steadfast devotion to the home of their youth is exemplified by the loyalty of Buffalo Bill and Pawnee Bill to the sections where their adventurous early lives were spent, and their continued efforts during all their wanderings and with their surplus accumulations lavishly used, to assist in the development of their beloved, the old West.

In youth they saw it in its primitive condition and with a loyalty that knows no bounds have stuck through trials, tribulations and hardships with a faith to be admired in a destiny now fructifying and repaying them by grandeur of progressive conditions even exceeding their fondest dreams. Chapters could be written upon the years of patience, toil and investment that through thick and thin they have patriotically shown their confidence in good results. Col. Will Cody spent years in assisting the development of Western Nebraska on the old fighting grounds where the contest between civilization and savagery took root—the Platte valley—and has seen it grow into the favorite centre of the Western empire state. He still retains his interest in it. Later, with his knowledge of the last isolated section known as the Big Horn Basin, up to 1895 almost uninhabited except by a few cattle and sheep raisers, Indians and wild game, he became the leader in its development, until it now promises to be the paradise valley of the republic. In the old strenuous days he led expeditions under the most famous generals and scientists there and in 1895 commenced a campaign toward its reclamation. It was essentially a part of the arid belt and when the Carey Arid Land Act was passed by congress, he was the first to get concessions from the national government and state legislature for experimental purposes.

The first canal built after the act was passed was the Cody canal, and was so successful as an irrigation problem in showing the possibilities that $300,000,000 was appropriated by the government for the many stupendous enterprises that are now under way. This was the leading factor in having the Burlington railroad brought over Big Horn mountain, 125 miles to the now booming town of Cody, Park county, Wyo., at the foot of the wonderland of America, the Yellowstone park. The town, hotels, coal lands, oil lands, bridges and agricultural land show remarkable advancements during the past few years and on every hand where evidences of the impetus given the cause of progress and advanced civilization, Bill Cody was the principal factor in having the government spend $3,000,000 in building the highest dam in the world, known as the Shoshone dam, two miles from Cody, which is 325 feet high, just completed. The immense lake, about to be utilized, will furnish happy hours for 10,000 families. This great irrigation work will stand as a monument with which Col. Cody's name will be associated during all future time.

Maj. Lillie's Work.

Col. Cody's youthful confrere, Maj Lillie, had similar strong motives and love and confidence for the once uninhabited vacuum in the Southwest known as Oklahoma, no man's land, and Cherokee strip on the borders of which he was raised and to which his restless spirit impelled him to roam until he became attached to the Pawnee Indian tribe and became a favorite scout and associate of the famed Maj. Frank North, while chief of the Pawnees, whom he succeeded. Years of travel did not wean him from his nomadic stamping ground of years gone by, and when the agitation for its opening up for settlement began he became one of its most persistent and consistent 'boomers" with Oklahoma Dave Payne, Capt. Couch, Sidney Clark and others, until the accomplishment of their object was finally reached and he can now contemplate Oklahoma with pride as the grandest new state in the Union. Familiar with its natural resources, confident in its future he was one of the first to "locate" on the then lonely prairies and after years of effort and devotion now finds himself one of the leading residents in the prosperous community called after him "Pawnee City," where he has large business interests, city residence, adjoining the town an immense agricultural farm, also a ranch, especially devoted to the raising of buffalo and one devoted to the cross breeding of bison and cattle after the methods of Buffalo Jones. Later he purchased a half million square of Indian lands by authority from the government and has just completed upon his property a colonial mansion. Pawnee Bill is the president of the Arkansas Valley National bank.

The business acumen he exhibits in all these lines and his since boyhood trail, like Buffalo Bill, of "Doing something" is an example for the youth of the day and shows what can be accomplished by energy and push, there being no better respected citizen in his home state than Pawnee Bill. To show the wonderful development of this baby commonwealth it is sufficient to say that the present census will show that it is possessed of 1,000,000 inhabitants and in the past ten years it has shown in crops alone, cotton, wheat and corn being the staple products, an increase from $40,000,000 to $123,000,000, jumping from twenty-seventh to seventeenth place in the productiveness of all the states of the Union.

When it is considered that its mineral resources developed and undeveloped occupy the attention of the government and of the financial world. Maj. Gordon Lillie can take some pride and pleasure in looking back to his early associations with this phenomenal baby commonwealth.

"How did you get the name of Pawnee Bill?" he was asked recenty as he stood in the center of the arena during the incoming of the big exhibition.

"Why, you see," sad the quiet little man, his calm brown eyes looking straight into those of the interviewer, "I was one of the original Oklahoma 'boomers.' In fact, I guess I am almost the only one of those prominent in that movement who is living today. I was run out of the territory at the back of a cart-tail, ahead of a squad of United States cavalry but I went back to Pawnee and still live there."

"Then too," he continued cooly surveying a group of cowboys who were tormenting a Cossak and motioning them to stop, which they did at once like a lot of school boys, catching the eye of the teacher, "I used to be government interpreter for the Pawnee Injuns."

"How many Indian tribal dialects do you know?"

"Let's see! Twenty-two? Twenty-three? No, twenty-four!"

"What do you do with the show?"

"Everything except play in it, I guess. I run the business end myself. I have to know every man and beast in the outfit, personally, and I guess I can tell you exactly what salary each man gets. I sign all the checks myself."

"Who keeps track of the supplies?"

"Why I do that myself," said the major. "I know just how many pounds of paint are necessary to cover the wagons and I look after all the details of equipping the trains. I test the quality of every blanket before we buy it. I have to know the cost of grub for man and 'critter' in every town we visit, and there are many of them."

"How many people do you feed in your grub tent?"

"Oh, about 1,100 every day."

"Do you know how many pounds of food it takes to feed them?"

"I should say I do. I have to. That is a big item of expense. It takes 1,000 pounds of beef, 550 pounds of pork, 500 of mutton and lamb, 100 pounds of coffee, 400 gallons of milk, 900 loaves of bread a day, etc. I plan all the meals with the head cook each day. I have to keep in close touch with the show doctor too. I think if you feed men well and look after them when they are sick, they appreciate it and work their best for you."

"What are your daily expenses?"

"It costs about $4,200 a day to run the show on the average."

"And how much do you take in?"

"Well last year, for instance, we took in nearly $2,000,000."

"Are the terms commensurate with the outlay?"

"That depends on the season. The weather has a great deal to do with it. If it is bad, we lose."

The Wild West and Far East will be in Duluth tomorrow. There will be no street parade and the performances will begin promptly at 2 and 8 p. m., at the fair grounds, Thirty-sixth avenue west and Third street, instead of Superior street and Twenty-ninth avenue west, as advertised.

"A GILDED FOOL" ATTRACTIVE BILL

Nat Goodwin Comedy Pleases Large Audience at The Lyceum.

The Forbes Stock company presented last evening, "A Gilded Fool," Nat Goodwin's famous comedy success. A large audience was highly pleased. The comedy had never been presented before by a stock company, and it is the first time it has been seen in Duluth.

"A Gilded Fool," is the concluding offering of the Forbes Stock company. It tells about a young man whose uncle leaves him barrels of real coin. The youth starts out to see how fast he can separate himself from his fortune. He is making good progress with the help of willing friends, until he meets the girl, Margaret Ruthven, and her contempt. Then it was "never again" for the "Gilded fool." He got into the straight and narrow path and acted as if he liked it. He begins a campaign to win the affection of the only girl in the world and he finally "comes back," but only after a series of humorous vicissitudes, which were greatly enjoyed by last evening's large audience.

Mr. Forbes' company is well cast for "A Gilded Fool." Miss Kate Woods plays the part of Jessica Rood, who is devoted to the cause of the heathen. Miss Woods does some of the best "character" work in her career in this city. Miss Desmond is a most attractive appearing as Miss Ruthven and Miss Watson is charming as the stuttering sweetheart of a guileless youth.

Mr. MacCurdy gives an excellent interpretation of a clergyman with a "mission." Frank Jamison and Norman Wendell comprising the law firm in which Short buys a membership, are entirely adequate.

Mr. Forbes plays the leading role with humorous understanding and sympathy. "A Gilded Fool" will be presented every evening this week except Saturday. Matinees will be given Wednesday, Friday and Sunday. A souvenir photograph of the company will be presented to patrons of the Friday matinee.

HIGH STANDARD OF VAUDEVILLE

Bijou Bill This Week Has Many Very Attractive Features.

One of the best programs of the summer season is the bill offered Bijou patrons the present week. Every act on the program is entertaining, and there is not a number on the program that is not up to the high standard set by the house.

One of the best numbers of the bill is the clever and at times remarkable dancing of John and Bertha Gleason and Fred Houlihan. This trio of dainty and skillful steppers do some dancing specialties that have never been seen in this city before. Especially is the work of Miss Gleason, who claims the title of champion dancer of the world, remarkable. In addition to her clever dancing, Miss Gleason is decidedly pretty.

Harry Bloom is called the "Prince of Song." Last evening he made good with the first nighters. He sings in the Yiddish dialect, and some of his songs are very funny. Bloom has few equals in his particular field of funmaking.

"The Night at the Lodge" is a farce playlet that is exceedingly funny in some places, and more than usually funny at every turn. Nat Leffingwell is featured in the playlet, assisted by Louise Myers and Allen Owen. The plot of the piece has to do with the dream of a man who is about to hitch into double matrimonial harness. The dream is acted out and affords ample scope for many comic situations.

The bill is opened by Celest, whose performances on the slack wire are a revelation in balancing. Some of the stunts performed by this remarkable equalibrist are truly wonderful and make the audience gasp with astonishment.

The most wonderful feature of the current bill is the work of the Cari Pantzer trio. This act consists of a gymnastic-parlor entertainment. Music of a classical nature accompanies some of the difficult feats of the act, the whole combining to make the act unique and original to say the least.

Pantzer is assisted by two women, one of whom plays the piano very well. Some of the tricks accomplished by the trio are decidedly novel as well as difficult. The act combines some comedy with some very remarkable gymnastic work.

James B. Adams has a good song the present week, while the motion pictures are the best seen at the theater for some time.

ITCHING RASH ON FACE AND NECK

Cured—Scratched Until Face was Mass of Raw Flesh—Used Cuticura and had First Good Night's Sleep in 3 Months.

"An itching rash broke out on my face and neck, so bad that I scratched it until my face was a mass of raw flesh which kept me awake all night. After going to my family doctor, he not helping me, I tried another doctor but without success. After doctors failing, a friend recommended the Cuticura Remedies. That night, after washing my face and neck with Cuticura Soap, I applied some Cuticura Ointment and had the first good night's sleep in three months. I used about two lots of Cuticura Soap and Ointment when you could not see a mark on my face or neck. I will gladly recommend the Cuticura Remedies to anybody. Wm. Silver, 346 West 38th St., New York, Mar. 1, 1910."

In another letter Mr. Silver says, "My case was of about two years' standing. After using Cuticura Soap and Ointment for about three days I saw a decided improvement and was entirely cured in two months."

For the prevention and treatment of itching, burning, scaling eruptions and the promotion of permanent skin and hair health, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are absolutely unrivaled in purity, efficacy and economy. A single cake of Cuticura Soap and box of Cuticura Ointment are often sufficient.

Sold throughout the civilized world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass. Mailed free, latest Cuticura book, a Guide to the Treatment of the Skin.

A LOUNGING ROOM, BUT NO LOUNGERS.

That is what the new Orpheum theater has.

On the second floor of the new theater is a beautifully furnished room, with thick carpets on the floor, soft, upholstered chairs and inviting lounges. It is a room about 15 by 30 feet, and would comfortably accommodate forty or fifty people.

But who is going to use it? That is the question that is puzzling the theater employes. There are no intermissions in the Orpheum program. One act follows closely upon the heels of another, and the people in the audience have no time to wander through the theater between acts. True, the room might be used as a place in which theater parties may assemble before the performance, but when the seats are purchased together, it would be just as easy for the members of a party to meet in the auditorium of the theater. Few people care to lounge around a theater after the performance is over. Therefore why the lounging room? But it is there, and it will stay there if anybody can find time to use it. There are also retiring rooms for ladies and gentlemen, but these are separated from the lounging room.

The new theater will be opened next Monday evening, and the seat sale at the box office will open Thursday morning at 9 o'clock.

ENGAGEMENT WILL LAST TWO WEEKS.

Harry Pierce and James L. Morrissey will bring their company, known as the Associate Players, to Duluth for a two weeks' engagement opening Monday, Aug. 22.

For the first week this excellent company will present Edwin Milton Royle's famous play, "The Squaw Man." This enterprising firm has given it a stage setting that places it on a level with any of the dramatic productions of the year. William Jossey, who was seen here last summer with Miss Maude Leone, will be seen in Dustin Farnum's former role of Jim Carson. Miss Blanch Douglas, a leading woman of considerable note, and who but recently closed a highly successful engagement as leading woman for Willard Mack in Salt Lake City, will be seen in the leading feminine role.

H. E. Pierce and company have surrounded these two well known players with a cast that is remarkable. The scale of prices that has been in vogue at the Lyceum will continue throughout this engagement. It is the intention of the management to bring this company in here at frequent intervals during the coming season.

NEW BILLS AT THE MOTION PICTURE HOUSES.

The bills presented for the first part of the week at the Lyric and Orpheum theaters are proving popular with the audiences. At the Orpheum theater the dramatic film presented is "The House With the Closed Shutters," which is a dramatic story most vividly shown in the pictures. Two comic films, "Ah Sing and the Greaser" and "Tommy Gets His Sister Married," make up the program with the songs by Miss Nelson.

At the Lyric Picture theater a Biblical story is shown on the films of "The Lord's Prayer." The dramatic film of "Under Both Flags," two comic films, "Pete Has a Good Time" and "Betty's Prank" and a scenic film, "Generiffe, the Gem of Canaries," make up the week's bill. Miss Erd is the soloist for the week.

WEST END FIRE THREATENS LUMBER YARD

Burning Hay Shed Causes Spectacular Fire at Midnight.

Fire destroyed a large hay shed next to the mill and yards of the Mullery-McDonald Lumber company at the foot of Twenty-fourth avenue west late last night.

The loss is estimated at $4,000, divided about equally between the shed and its contents. About fifteen cars of hay belonging to the milling company were destroyed and the building, leased from a concrete company, was razed to the ground. The cause of the blaze is unknown, but it is thought to have been started either by a spark from an engine or some one sleeping in the hay. The apparatus from halls No. 1, 2 and 3 responded. The fire was very stubborn and had to be watched all night. For a time it was feared that burning cinders might set fire to the mill and yards. Fortunately the breeze was not strong.

PETTY THEFTS ARE NUMEROUS

Numerous Articles Reported Stolen; Bicycle Theft Is the Latest.

The petty thieves who have made their appearance every summer in the West end for the past few years are in evidence again and the police are desirous of issuing a general warning to householders in this section of the city to keep their valuables well locked up after dark. A number of small thefts have been reported, the latest being that of a brand new bicycle from the porch of the boarding house at 2318 West Second street. The young man who owned the wheel had had it only two days, and it was taken shortly before midnight from the porch of his home.

The police believe that it is the ready access to Superior from this portion of the city which leads the thieves to operate here, it being very easy to spirit the stolen goods across the big bridge and dispose of them in Wisconsin.

A determined effort is being made to stop the practice both by carefully patroling the West end and keeping a close supervision over the bridge and its approaches, but householders are warned that these means are not always effective and are advised to keep their property well guarded.

WANT STREET REPAIRED.

Commercial Club Will Complain to Authorities About Superior Street.

It is expected that the West End Commercial club will at its next meeting take up the question of a thorough repair to West Superior street. This street was paved about four years ago and the paving looked fine for a while, but the specifications did not call for a sufficient foundation and as a result it has caved in very badly in some places and is now in very bad shape. It is expected that a committee will be appointed to interview the council and board of public works to see what may be done about the matter.

BRADLEY PRAISES NEW TARIFF LAW.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 16.—United States Senator W. O. Bradley was the principal speaker at the Fifth district convention of Republicans last night, which nominated J. Wheeler McGee of Louisville for congress to oppose Swagar Sherley, the Democratic incumbent, and Former Mayor Robert W. Bingham for judge of the court of appeals to oppose Shackleford Miller. Senator Bradley paid a high tribute to the Republican party and the administration of President Taft and referred to the fact that the deficit of $58,000,000 which faced the president when he entered upon his term of office had melted away and that there was now a surplus of $20,000,000.

"The tariff bill has brought prosperity," said the senator, "and is rapidly bringing more. The song of prosperity is marred alone by the usual discordant notes of the Democratic croakers and handful of insurgent Republicans, who arrogate to themselves all the wisdom and honesty of the great party to which they claim allegiance."

NEGRO PAROLED FROM MISSOURI PENITENTIARY.

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 16.—For the first time since Missouri has been a state, a prisoner whose sentence has been commuted from hanging to life imprisonment, has been granted a parole. The prisoner is Robert Gushenberry, a Clinton county negro, who, oleven years ago, was found guilty of murdering the city marshal of Cameron. Recently, while Governor Hadley was at Cameron, Circuit Judge Calvir and several citizens appealed to the executive to parole the negro, holding that he was innocent.

RUN OF WHEAT DEPRESSING

Arrivals in the Northwest Increase Sharply---Market Declines.

Rally at the Close Is Helped By Export Business at Seaboard.

Duluth Board of Trade, Aug. 16.—Wheat sold off today, declining sharply in the forepart of the session but rallying toward the close when the crowd became sold out. September wheat lost ⅝c, December ½c and May closed on a parity with yesterday. Cash wheat was 1c over September, oats ½c off, rye unchanged, barley 60@65c in place of 56@60c. Durum lost ½c.

Flax was weaker, September losing 3c, October 3½c, November 3½c, and December 2½c. Trading was light and was confined to the September and November option. There were a few sales of flax to arrive. The weakness of the market is indicated by the willingness of crushers to sell some of their old flax. Their stores are exceedingly small but the demand for oil is so small that the crushers think they have enough supplies on hand and can get rid of some of their old surplus which was purchased at prices considerably under present quotations.

The pressure of new wheat from the Northwest was a potent factor in sending values downward. While a comparison between the receipts of last year and this year may not be fair, as the run of stuff this year is much earlier than last year, yet the contrast shows that the run of spring wheat has started and that it is moderately heavy for so early in the year. The cash trade picked up slightly but the improvement was hardly perceptible. It was reported from Minneapolis that Southern Minnesota millers were in the cash markets there. It was reported that flour sales had improved, also.

Flour sales in this market are moderate, but are confined to the cheaper grades. There is very little future business in first class spring wheat flours. The export demand is almost nothing although a little business has been done recently. The big Minneapolis mills are doing a moderate business at low prices but the small mills are transacting only a scattered business.

Bradstreet's wheat showed a big increase and the enlarged supplies at primary markets had a depressing effect. The run of winter wheat showed signs of slackening, but it is continuing at a rate that is not causing the bull camp to shout itself hoarse for joy. The export trade seems to have fallen off and the bears claim that this has been the only factor that has held up wheat. They think this country will have enough wheat for its own uses and that values will not go on an unusually high plane unless a strong export business develops. They are inclined to discount the reports of a shortage of 100,000,000 bu. in France and they think the shortage in Russia has been over estimated.

Baltimore sold 20,000 quarters of red winter wheat today to the continent. It will be loaded early in September. It was reported that a cargo of winter wheat was sold at Chicago to go to Buffalo. These messages helped the rally toward the close. Traders also paid some attention to a report that the Roumanian crop estimates have been reduced. The bulls claim that this is a big argument in their favor as a reduced Roumanian crop will lower the available and near supply for France.

Strong influences are working for higher prices, but present developments are sufficient, apparently, to hold values in check. The world's situation has been reversed so suddenly that it is little wonder that sentiment in the trade is badly mixed and speculators are divided as to the future course of the market. The winter wheat crop was larger than expected and the spring wheat crop will be bigger than the early estimates. Neither of these outcomes had been expected confidently. The foreigner has found that he is not independent of American markets which is another fact that the market had not expected to materialize. The juxtaposition and the juggling about of factors of world wide importance has demoralized the speculative trade.

MARKET GOSSIP

On Flax.

Walhalla, N. D.—Flax will make from five to twelve bu an acre. The average yield will be about eight bu.

Rolla, N. D.—Flax near here will average six bu an acre, yields running from three to ten bu. The flax crop is in fair condition and is better than people expected a few weeks ago.

Antler, N. D.—The flax crop is in fair condition. There has been no thrashing here. Thrashing will start in about ten days.

Stirim, N. D.—No flax has been thrashed. The crop appears to be in a fair shape. Think it will make a fairly good yield.

Fingal, N. D.—The flax crop near here is practically a total failure. The yield will be negligible. Doubt if we have any flax to send out.

Minot, N. D.—Flax near here will average about five bu an acre. Some yields will be as high as fifteen bu an acre. What flax is left looks good but the stand is thin.

Aberdeen, S. D.—No flax has been thrashed. West of the Missouri river the flax is a failure. It will make a fair yield east of the river.

Minto, N. D.—There will be very little flax near here. It suffered from climatic conditions early in the year. Don't think we will get much more than seed.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: Wheat opened easy ⅜d to ½d lower being influenced by weakness in Winnipeg and pressure to sell Danube wheat. Following opening the nearby months steadied ⅛d to ⅜d on lighter offerings induced by the fact that firms with continental connections were buyers, and further reports that the import requirements of France were raised. Further pressure at midday was induced by increase in European visible. Toward midday there was some reaction on speculative realizing due largely to dullness and prices lost the advance with distant months under pressure. At this time market was dull and unchanged to ⅜d up from and ⅜d lower than yesterday.

Corn opened ⅛d lower on lower American cables, but later steadied on an improved demand for distant Plata cargoes.

European visible wheat 66,242,000 vs. 63,226,000. Increase 3,624,000. Last week there was a decrease of 2,320,000 and last year a decrease of 1,400,000, when total was 45,500,000.

Cargoes wheat arrived off coast 1, awaiting orders 4. In distant positions firm but inactive. Corn quiet buyers reserved.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Weak With All News Factors Against Rise.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—Wheat opened weak today with prices ⅛ to ½c off. Contributing factors to the bearish market were weakness in practically all the foreign grain centers, abundant domestic receipts and a suggestion of over stock at certain points.

Liquidation, largely in the nearer deliveries, was in evidence in the first hour and prices hugged the low points. September opened a shade to ⅛ to ¼@⅜c off at $1.02 to $1.01¾ and dropped in the first hour to $1.01⅛@¼, steadying at about the bottom. December sagged slightly more than September.

An increase of more than 8,000,000 bu in the world's visible supply caused further selling. Later the market recovered and the early losses were more than regained. The close was firm with September a shade up at $1.02⅛@1.02⅛@¼. December closed ⅛@¼@¼@⅜c up at $1.05⅝@¾.

Corn prices were also depressed at the start dropping from ⅛ to ⅝c and sinking still lower in the first hour as reports from different sections of the corn belt were received telling of rainfalls. The tenor of most of the messages was that a good crop is now assured. Prominent packing and commission interests were credited with buying on the dips, steadying the market somewhat September opened ⅛ to ⅝c lower at 63½ to 63c and slanted down to 62⅝c, resting at 62⅞c. The distant futures moved down more deliberately.

Oats opened a shade to ¼c off and wavered but slightly in the first hour despite the large receipts. Commission houses sold but met with ready purchases. Opening figures for September were ⅛ to ¼c off at 36⅜@¼c.

Advances in provisions was in response to decreased arrivals in the packing centers and an advance of 5 cents in the price of live hogs. Pork was the most active product and gained from 5 to 17½c. Offerings were light. Opening prices for the September products were: Pork, $21.77½, 17½c up; Lard, $11.90, 5c higher, and ribs, $12.00, 10c higher.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 16.—An easier tone ruled in the wheat market early today, but there was a partial recovery. Weakness early was due to a slightly easier tone in European markets. Minneapolis today received 267 cars of wheat against 75 a year ago, Duluth 178 against 3 and Winnipeg 124 against 12. September opened $1.11; high, $1.11; low, $1.10@1.10⅛; closed, $1.10¾@1.10⅞. Cotton Market.

New York, Aug. 16.—Cotton opened steady at an advance of 5 points on August but generally 1@5 points lower on easier late cables from Liverpool, official reports of rain at Houston and rumors that the drouth in the central part of Texas had been broken. There was considerable liquidation and while August held steady the rest of the list soon sold off to a net loss of 10@15 points. Early rain news from Texas was more or less conflicting and sentiment was consequently much unsettled, although spot houses bought at the decline.

Futures closed steady; closing bids: August, 15.71; September, 14.23; October, 13.57; November, 13.47; December 13.47; January, 13.47; February, 13.48; March, 13.52; May, 13.56; June 13.56; July, 13.56.

STOCK CLOSE IS STRONG

Belated Advances Are Made and Speculation More Active.

General Improvement Shown in the Market Tone.

New York, Aug. 16.—Opening prices in the stock market today were slightly irregular, but the changes either way were unimportant aside from the advance of a point in Anaconda and Colorado & Southern and a loss of as much in Canadian Pacific. Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Northern Pacific and St. Paul were among the representative stocks which were slightly lower.

Confident buying of several specialties had a tonic effect on the whole list, and there was a brisk rally in the Western railroad stocks. After the list generally had sold a large fraction above yesterday's finals, the demand lessened and there was a later reaction of about ½ in the standard stocks. American Beet Sugar fell back a point from its opening price on profit-taking sales, but the preferred moved up 2¾. Other gains reached were 1⅜ in Colorado Fuel and Central Leather and 1 in Reading and American Ice. Missouri Pacific yielded a point, but afterwards made up its loss.

Bull operators encountered no opposition in bidding up prices and on light dealings the list mounted up again to about the high level of the first hour or above. An inquiry for United States Steel, Amalgamated Copper and American Smelting contributed to the market strength. There was little interest manifested in the railroad list outside of Reading and Union Pacific. The reawakened interest in various specialties, while attributed to pool operations, has created a broader and more active market in stocks of this class for speculative ventures. International Harvester improved 1½ and Amalgamated Copper, United States Steel, National Biscuit, American Linseed preferred and American Telephone & Telegraph, 1. Louisville & Nashville dropped a point. Bonds were irregular.

A further outburst of strength placed practically every stock of consequence dealt in a point or more above where it left off yesterday. The metal group made a particularly good showing and there was also heavy and continued buying of Reading, Union Pacific and other railroad stocks. Reading got up 2½, Amalgamated Copper and American Smelting, 2¼; Union Pacific and United States Steel, 2; Atchison, Chesapeake & Ohio and Bethlehem Steel, 1¼, the preferred, 2¾; Great Northern preferred, Louisville & Nashville, Missouri Pacific, Rock Island, Republic Steel and United Copper, 1.

The market closed strong. Some belated advances were made in the final hour, Northern Pacific, Erie and various other stocks coming to the front. Speculation in general was more diversified and stronger than for a long time and reflected a marked increase in outside interest in the market. American Smelting jumped 3, Delaware & Hudson, 2½, St. Paul, Chesapeake & Ohio and Northern Pacific, 1¾.

TUESDAY, AUG. 16.

Now is the time to pick up Amazon-Montana Development shares. It looks like a big shipper of good ore in record-breaking time. Developments at this property in the last few days have gone far to prove the great future of this proposition and we cannot see why this stock should not right now be considered as an investment as well as speculation.

St. Mary should do better and when the big markets begin advancing you can look for this issue to advance. Red Warrior is now trading at $3, and this goes to prove that mines in the Star district are worth money when developed.

We are bullish on the Scotts. Mr. Hugo will soon return. They have news from the mine in office but until he returns we can find out nothing. They have been working on the 1,600 for almost two weeks and in those massive ledges and continual work in ore for that length of time must surely add some good news to that which we have already received from this mine.

CHOLERA SCOURGE GETTING WORSE

Children Are Starving in Parts of Russia, Says Professor.

St. Ptersburg, Aug. 16.—The horrors of the cholera scourge in Russia, according to Prof. Rein of the Red Cross, who has been sent by the government to South Russia to study measures of combating the disease, are steadily increasing. Children are starving in many instances. There is no indication yet of the epidemic diminishing.

INSURGENTS SWEEP CALIFORNIA IN THE VOTE AT PRIMARIES

Hiram Johnson Nominated for Governor By About 20,000.

Kent Leads McKinlay for Congress---Stephens Also Is Ahead.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 17.—Hiram Johnson, leading exponent of anti-machine doctrines, swept the field in the direct primaries, winning his party's nomination for governor by a plurality that will border on 20,000. Just how great was the extent of the disaster to the Stalwarts cannot be known until outlying districts have been heard from. Every indication points to a clean-cut declaration by the party for insurgency.

It is asserted that Johnson carried with him to victory two insurgent congressmen, William Kent and W. D. Stephens. For United States senator, Frank P. Flint, an advisory vote was recorded and while the returns are not complete, John D. Works, running with the same backing as that accorded Johnson, seems to have triumphed.

The Democrats entered the primaries with perfect harmony as to their nominees, Theodore Bell will make the fight against Johnson for election.

COPPER MERGER STORIES DENIED

Untermeyer Declares He Has Not Seen Ryan for Months.

London, Aug. 17.—The reports of conferences between Thomas F. Ryan, Samuel Untermeyer and other Americans now in London, which, according to reports, were for the purpose of arranging a big copper merger, are stated here to be entirely without foundation. Samuel Untermeyer today emphatically denied that there was any truth in the story or that there had been, to his knoyledge, any such conferences.

Mr. Untermeyer stated that he had not seen Thomas F. Ryan for months and that his presence in London was due to business of an entirely different nature.

It is generally believed that the reports of the copper conferences emanate from operators on the stock market.

New Steamship Line.

New Orleans, Aug. 17.—A direct steamship service between New Orleans and Dunkirk, France, will be opened up during next October by the French line, according to an announcement made here today.

CALL TEDDY "INSURGENT"

Political Leaders Interpret Statement Following Tuesday's Storm.

New York, Aug. 17.—There was marked calm today over the troubled waters of the Republican political seas, following the storm yesterday when the "old guard" in the Republican state committee voted down Theodore Roosevelt's name for temporary chairman of the coming state convention. No one was prepared to say how things would shape themselves in the days preliminary to the state convention, where the delegates, after all, will finally determine who shall be the teamporary presiding officer.

New York County Chairman Griscom, who presented Col. Roosevelt's name, says the fight will be carried to the primaries and to the convention.

Say He Is Progressive.

That Col. Roosevelt intends, as a delegate to the state convention from Nassau county, to urge a progressive platform and candidate for governor, is clearly indicated, politicians say this morning, in that portion of the colonel's statement issued last night. This was as follows:

"To the various persons who asked me whether I would accept the position of temporary chairman of the state convention I said that I would do so only if they were sure, after knowing my attitude, that they desired me, because my speech would be of such a character that it might help if the convention nominated the right kind of a man, on a clear cut, progressive platform; but that it would hurt if neither the right kind of a man were nominated nor the right kind of a platform adopted."

Sherman Goes to See Taft.

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 17.—Vice President Sherman arrived in Beverly shortly before noon today and proceeded at once to the executive offices, where he had a long conference with Secretary Norton prior to going to Burgess Point, to spend the afternoon with the president. Mr. Sherman, would not discuss the New York situation in any way.

Representative Nicholas Longworth of Ohio was expected to be present at the conference between the president and vice president this afternoon. It is rather significant that Mr. Longworth has been called into a number of conferences lately both with the president and with Secretary Norton.

News from the California primaries of yesterday was awaited with great interest in Beverly, but no comment was forthcoming.

BODY OF SUICIDE IS FOUND IN LAKE ERIE.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 17.—The body of a suicide, thought to be W. W. Thorne, 60 years old, of Detroit, was found in Lake Erie this morning. The man was well dressed. A morning paper dated Aug. 16 was found in the coat pocket.

MONOPLANE WINS DOUBLE HONORS IN AVIATION

BLERIOT FLYING MACHINE AT REST.

BLERIOT FLYING MACHINE IN ACTION.

LONG AERIAL RACE OVER

Half Paris Stays Up All Night to See the Finish.

Le Blanc Wins in Monoplane With Similar Fiyer His Only Rival.

Paris, Aug. 17.—Half Paris forsook their beds last night and remained in the streets until morning to watch the conclusion of the great cross-country aviation race, which was won by Le Blanc in a Bleriot machine. Aubrun, also in a Bleriot, was second, finishing twenty minutes behind the winner, although his total time in completing the course was somewhat longer.

Le Blanc's flight from Amiens, some sixty miles, was made in the same superb style as the previous laps in the race, in 1 hour and 28 minutes, making the total time for the 485 miles of the entire flight, 11 hours, 55 minutes and 59 seconds, an average of nearly forty miles an hour without making any allowance for detours or for the time spent in battling with a storm in the flight from Mezieres to Douai last Friday.

Aubrun completed the circuit in 13 hours, 27 minutes, 14 seconds. None of the other competitors completed the entire course, though Legagneux, who was forced to retire in the early stages of the race, finished with Le Blanc and Aubrun.

Seized By the Crowd.

There was a moment of tumultous cheering as Le Blanc appeared. As he swooped across the finish line like a giant hawk, alighting with the ease and grace of a big bird, the spectators broke through the line of police and bore the victor on their shoulders to Gen. Brun, the minister of war, who with his staff and other high officials had appeared at the finish to welcome the victor.

Such a gallery of spectators has never before been seen in Paris. Eiffel tower, like the house tops and other elevated points in the city, was black with people watching the finish through field glasses or with straining eyes.

On the field at Issey where the aviators finished, 200,000 spectators had gathered, the crowd including Prince Roland Bonaparte, Gen. Dalstein, the military governor of Paris, and hundreds of distinguished men and women.

AEROPLANE CARRIES TWO ACROSS CHANNEL

Deal, Eng., Aug. 17.—Moissant, the young Spanish aviator, today sprung the biggest sensation yet in aviation circles by flying across the English channel with a passenger in his Bleriot monoplane, as part of his aerial journey from Paris to London. It is a record that eclipses the earlier channel exploits of both Frenchmen and Englishmen, as no passenger was carried by either Bleriot, Delesseps or Rolls.

Moissant descended near here, having accomplished the flight from Paris to Calais and the journey across the channel with an ease and brilliancy rarely surpassed.

He is now preparing to continue the trip to London, the completion of which will bring him the cup and prize offered by a London newspaper for the course, and the proceds of the subscription raised in England for Grahame White, which the unsuccessful competitor in the London-Manchester flight generously offered as a prize for the Paris-to-London competition.

The last stage of Moissant's flight, the trip across the channel, was accomplished in a strong channel breeze, the wind being so high that experienced aviators looked upon the start as foolish. It was such a wind as repeatedly deterred Bleriot, Latham and other aviators from attempting the passage of the straits. He was unable to continue the journey to London, so numbed was he by the cold during the crossing of the channel from Calais, and landed near Tilmanstone, a short distance from Deal. The trip from Calais to Tilmanstone occupied approximately thirty-seven minutes.

DETROIT SHARES IN RICE MYSTERY

Murder Clew Is Said to Have Developed in That City.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 17.—Interest in the search for the slayers of William L. Rice today is divided between this city and Detroit, where County Prosecutor Cline and County Detective Doran went last night on a t[illegible] from James McDonald, chief of the Detroit detective department, that an important clew has developed there. Coroner Boesger resumed his inquest today.

SCANDALS MULTIPLY IN BROWNE TRIAL ON CHARGES OF BRIBERY

Fifty in Second Panel of Veniremen Say They Were "Approached."

State's Attorney Wayman Makes Sensational Charge in Court.

Counsel for Defendant Taken Into Judge Kersten's Chambers.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—When the sixth panel of veniremen called in the case of Lee O'Neil Browne reported today nearly all of them, as was the case with the fifth panel yesterday, admitted that they had been "approached" with reference to their possible services as jurors.

When Judge Kersten asked these veniremen who had been spokn to about the case to come forward the request was not clearly understood and only five men responded. His next request was more successful:

"Let those whose families have been visited by anyone with reference to this case come to the bench."

Fifty Out of Sixty-nine.

Fifty of the panel of sixty-nine arose. J. Tuttener, a member of the panel, said that his wife had been asked if he belonged to any reform or secret societies. Walter Elkline's father had been asked similar questions by two investigators. The stories told in court by all of those who came forward were of the same tenor. As fast as they made their admissions they were dismissed from the venire.

"I can prove that the defense has been systematically calling on all veniremen."

When the panel had been taken to the state's attorney's office there was a hurry call for a stenographer. A member of Mr. Wayment's staff said one veniman had been asked by an agent to "stick it out for Browne till h—— froze over."

DAKOTANS AT CAPITAL

Men From Both States Call at Interior Department.

Are Told Government Already Has Acted on Coal Lands.

Washington, Aug. 17.—A delegation from North and South Dakota headed by Governor R. S. Vessey of the latter state, conferred with interior department officials today regarding an order to look to the surface entry of about 1,000,000 acres of withdrawn coal lands in the two states. The Dakotans were informed that the department already had taken practically the action for which they had journeyed to Washington.

Temporary regulations have been issued explaining that the withdrawn lands are subject, under the law, to surface acquisition, reserving the coal for the United States. William B. Newman, law examiner of the general land office, they were informed, has been sent to Lemmon, S. D., the headquarters of the Dakota land district, to assist in expediting the settlement of the agricultural claims.

Associate Justice Hughes has leased a residence at Twenty-fourth street and Massachusetts avenue, northwest, and Associate Justice Lurton has leased one at No. 1721 I street, northwest.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 17.—Col. Thomas L. Livermore, first vice president of the Calumet & Hecla Mining company, severed his official connection of twenty-one years with the company at the annual meeting in this city today. Second Vice President Rudolph L. Agassiz was advanced to the first vice presidency.

Only half a dozen stockholders were present, in addition to the board of directors. The old directorate was re-elected. Resolutions on the death of Alexander Agassiz, late president of the company, were unanimously adopted.

VERY CLOSE RACE IN THE PRIMARIES IN NEBRASKA

Dahlman and Shallenberger Both Claim Nomination for Governor.

Cady Has Lead Over Aldrich for Head of Republican Ticket.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 17.—The meagre returns so far received from yesterday's primaries seem to indicate that the race between Governor Shallenberger and Mayor Dahlman of Omaha for the Democratic nomination for governor is very close. While Dahlman has carried this (Douglas) county by a 3 to 1 majority, returns from 129 precincts outside of this county give Shallenberger a small lead. Most of these returns are from the larger towns, where Dahlman's strength was supposed to be greatest. Both sides are claiming victory.

Cady for governor has a good lead over Aldrich for the Republican nomination, while Senator Burkett seems to have secured renomination by a good majority over Whedon.

For the Democratic senatorial nomination, Congressman Hitchcock leads Metcalfe, editor of Mr. Bryan's paper, more than 2 to 1 in the returns so far received Dahlman in the Lead.

Returns received by the Omaha Bee up to noon today seemed to confirm the earlier estimates of the results. With all but three precincts reported, Dahlman, Democrat, has 5,268 majority over Shallenberger in this (Douglas) county, while Cady, Republican, leads Aldrich, 2,482. For congress in the Second district, Judge Sutler, Republican, and Lobeck, Democrat, are nominated.

HARMON PLEASED AT END OF RIOTS

Conditions at Columbus Are Much Better Since the Troops Came.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 17.—Governor Harmon expressed himself today as well pleased with the good order that has prevailed since the calling of the troops in the street car strike. General Manager Stewart of the street car company said that he maintained order along his lines last night, while the cars were runnig without either the assistance of the national guard or the city police. He has a force of detectives from Cleveland.

AUTO UPSETS; MAN IS KILLED

Car Misses Bridge and Turns Somersault Into a Creek.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 17.—Charles G. Morris was killed when an automobile in which he was riding missed the approach of a small bridge early today in St. Louis county and somersaulted into a creek beneath. Three of his companions, badly injured, are in a hospital.

SAVE NEGRO FROM WRATH OF MOB IN WEST VIRGINIA

MINERS EXPECT ATTACK BY LEWIS

Ill-Feeling in Meeting at Indianapolis Is More Intense.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 17.—President Thomas L. Lewis will speak again today in the convention of the United Mine Workers to reply to the charges of a district official of Illinois, Secretary Duncan MacDonald. MacDonald, near the end of the session yesterday, made several charges against Lewis and stated that, for the good of the order, the president should resign.

As the convention proceeds, the ill-feeling between the Illinois delegation and the administration forces becomes more intense and the Lewis speech today promises to be more scathing than his speech yesterday.

The special committee investigating the objects of the call of the convention held sessions last night and will continue its work today.

PRESBYTERIANS WANT AID OF SIAM GOVERNMENT.

Washington, Aug. 17.—The executive committee of Presbyterian missions in Siam is seeking the aid of the American legation at Bangkok in obtaining a grant from the Siamese government similar to that given to the Roman Catholic missions, of a right to own lands for missionary purposes. A copy of the petition reached the state department today from the charge d'affaires of the legation at Bangkok.

Sheriff and Deputy Have a Hard Trip Through Forests.

Prisoner Is Accused of Attacking Man and Murdering His Bride.

Hinton, W. Va., Aug. 17.—Walking and driving across country and plunging through dark forest paths, Sheriff Wiseman and one deputy successfully evaded the mobs who sought information as to their whereabouts, and have landed Thomas Raymond, a negro, safely in the jail of Merce county, at Princeton, W. Va. The Fayetteville and Charleston companies of state troops, rushed to the city when a mob threatened to lynch Raymond, were ordered home today.

According to the messages received from Sheriff Wiseman, he and Gillah Townsley, his deputy, commanded a wagon after they had rushed Raymond past the mob which the Fayetteville militia had in check with bayonets last night. A twelve-hour drive over the roughest kind of roads followed, but by taking by-paths they escaped observation.

Raymond is accused of attacking and robbing John Alliss, Sunday night, and assaulting and murdering Alliss' bride of three weeks. A mob of 1,000 men held back the train on which it was planned to take the negro out of town.

WANT MEN IN THE SCHOOLS

Changes in Prospect in Normal Courses to Attract Them.

J. L. Washburn Is Presented With Loving Cup From Normal Board Associates.

Though no definite action was taken this morning, from the discussion which took place it seems very likely that at the November meeting of the state normal school board there will be some material change in the normal system with a view to attracting more young men into the schools and into the profession of teaching. The board realizes that it needs more young men in the teaching profession and seems willing to take radical measures to make the normal school courses more attractive to them.

One of the plans which met with favor from most of the board members this morning proposes to give full credit in the University of Minnesota for two years of normal school work after completing high school, and includes making such changes in the normal school curriculum as are necessary to make the university authorities willing to submit to this. This is along the lines on which the normal school board of Wisconsin has been working, the only difference being that in the plan discussed this morning the student would be required to enter the educational department of the university if he wished to get full credit for his normal work.

Another scheme advanced favored establishing a four-year course for high school graduates teaching regular college subjects, and leading to a degree recognized in the state schools as equal to a regular college degree, thus qualifying the graduate for a teacher in any of the Minnesota high schools.

The Pledge Discussed.

It was also proposed to do away with the pledge to teach two years, it being argued that this was a very powerful deterrent in keeping young men out of the normal schools. It was pointed out that young men in the normal schools would naturally drift into teaching without the pledge, and if teaching proved distasteful the pledge was broken with impunity and there was a resulting bad moral effect. Several instances were cited where leading educators of the state had entered normals elsewhere where there was no pledge, without any intention of teaching, and had become since very prominent in educational lines.

The state schools will hereafter recognize the work of the normal schools without examinations, as a result of a conference between the normal school presidents, and State Superintendent of Schools C. D. Schultz yesterday. High school graduates engaged in the work of the two-year course will be granted first grade certificates at the end of the first year without examination and students entering on the five-year or three-year courses without high school training will be granted second grade certificates after two years' work, upon recommendation of the presidents of their respective schools.

Bids Are Opened.

Bids were opened this morning for the erection of the new wings which it was proposed to add to the Duluth normal school. None of the bids came within the appropriation of $50,000 made by the legislature for this purpose. As a result Architect W. A. Hunt, who prepared the original plans, was instructed to prepare plans for one smaller eight-room addition on the west end of the school building, and work there will be proceeded with until the next session of the legislature, when an effort will be made to increase the appropriation before plans

This morning the quarterly reports of the normal school presidents were presented and accepted. The reports covered the work of the summer sessions and showed a vastly increased attendance and very good success in the work. The board unanimously voted to carry on the work of the summer twelve-weeks' session of next year.

C. A. Nye of Moorhead introduced a resolution providing for vacations for the school presidents during the school year, the time to be arranged by the committees at the various schools.

The following school committees were appointed by President Eli Torrance of Minneapolis this morning: Duluth, J. L. Washburn, C. D. Schulz; Winona, H. S. Somsen, H. E. Hoard; Mankato, John C. Wise, W. E. C. Ross; St. Cloud, Karl Matthie, J. L. Washburn; Moorehead, C. A. Nye, J. L. Washburn.

The legislative committee was also appointed today and includes Directors Washburn, Sampson, Nye and Matthie.

The normal school board adjourned at noon today, winding up its business until the November session. At 1 o'clock they met at the Spalding for lunch and President Eli Torrance presented a handsome loving cup to J. L. Washburn engraved "From his associates on the state normal school board, August, 1910."

Mr. Torrance paid a neat tribute to Mr. Washburn's work for the board and for the schools of the state, referring to him as the father of the Duluth normal school.

FIVE NEW TEACHERS

Several Changes Will Be Made in Duluth Normal Staff.

There will be five new teachers on the staff of the Duluth normal school this year.

Miss Martha E. Williams will be critic teacher for the seventh and eighth grades of the model school. Miss Williams is a graduate of the University of Chicago and for the past year has held a similar position in the normal school at Stevens Point, Wis.

Miss Adeline Cornish will be critic teacher for the fifth and sixth grades of the model school. She is a graduate of the River Falls normal school, and has had a year's work in the teachers college at Columbia university. She has taught in the schools at Madison and River Falls.

Miss Genevieve Taylor will be teacher of music. Miss Taylor was formerly connected with the public schools at Virginia, Minn., and now comes from Miss Crane's School of Music at Potsdam, N. Y.

Miss Effie T. Burche will be teacher of drawing and manual training. She is a graduate of the school of art and of the teachers' college at Columbia, and has been teaching in the schools of Anaconda, Mont.

C. E. Wallace, teacher of history and civics, comes here from Yankton college, Yankton, S. D. He is a graduate of the University of ansas, and is now engaged in taking his doctor's degree in the history department of the University of Chicago.

Miss Nellie Emmanuelson will succeed Miss Clara Murray as secretary to the president and purchasing agent.

FINE DISPLAY OF PRODUCE

The finest display of vegetables and greens seen in Duluth this summer was shown on the ground floor of the Armory at Second avenue east and First street this morning, upon the first day of the public market.

Several farmers came in with their wagons stacked with the products of the soil, every root and leaf of which were raised within a comparatively short distance of the city limits.

Women were the best customers, coming early and making liberal purchases. They secured bushels of new potatoes, baskets of beets, green onions, home grown celery, cucumbers, parsley, parsnips, lettuce, wax beans, green peas, turnips, and many others. The supplies were fresh and appetizing.

The market will be open every Wednesday and Saturday until the close of the season.

THAT ASSESSMENT MESS

STATEMENT BY ASSESSOR

C. L. Rakowsky Says Errors Are Due to Former Mistakes.

Claims County Board Passed Up Same Errors in 1908.

City Assessor C. L. Rakowsky declares that most of the errors in the assessment which are being brought to light, have been overlooked by the county board of equalization in past years and have been carried along from year to year.

He states that if the assessment of the county board was correct in 1908, the present assessment is correct, as it was made on a percentage basis of the 1908 assessment as placed upon the books by the board and County Auditor Halden, and that if the 1908 assessment was wrong, the present assessment must necessarily be wrong.

Assessor Rakowsky says emphatically that the assessment contains many errors, and that there is great need of a revaluation. He asserts that there are thousands of mistakes remaining to be discovered.

He was asked today to make a statement giving his side of the assessment muddle. It is as follows:

"It is very gratifying to me to see that County Auditor Halden so actively engaged at this time in getting the 1910 assessment before the people showing up the great discrepancies and errors that exist, inviting the taxpayers to drop in and get relief, giving in detail every possible mistake to the newspapers and magnifying the enormity of the failure of the assessment, and sincerely hope that it will be given the greatest publicity. I am also very glad to see this come about, because I have strongly advocated a revaluation and have drawn attention to the discrepancies in the assessment.

"Now some people may believe this assessment reflects upon myself as assessor alone, but I believe they will think differently when they find that the assessment of 1910 is based with some exceptions upon the assessment of 1908, as equalized by the county board of equalization in 1908, when that body, under the direction of County Auditor Halden, who has had fourteen years' experience in making assessments, reviewed and equalized and placed the said assessment upon the books of 1908.

"If the county boards and Halden's assesment was correct in 1908, then the assessment, as made by myself, ought to be fairly correct now, as it was made on a percentage basis of the 1908 assessment as placed upon the books by the county board and Mr. Halden. If the board's and County Auditor Halden's assessment was wrong in 1908, then the assessment must necessarily be wrong now, for no man could dare to tackle the assessment in any other manner unless he had time and money to make a thorough revaluation.

"Are there errors in the assessment? I should say so! There are very many, and more and more are coming to light through the publicity given the assessment. Some of these are old-timers, and fortunately a great many will be caught sooner or later. You will find that most of these errors were overlooked b ythe board of equalization in previous years and were carried along from assessment to assessment.

"Among the many errors to be found in the assessment, let the following be an example: A clerical error in the corner lots upon which the board of trade and Wolvin buildings stand, which have been given great publicity for political reasons I believe, is such a glaring one that no one could fail to see it, and when the owner of one of the adjoining lots called my attention to the fact that the corner lots were assessed lower than inside lots I told him that it was a clerical error and immediately wrote the board of equalization about it and asked them to correct it. There are thousands more yet to be discovered.

"I would like to correct an impression made through the newspapers that steel plant property up the river is assessed lower than all surrounding property. You will find that it is assessed, with exception of everal tracts which are assessed lower on account of topography, at from $100 to $125 per acre, while surrounding property is assessed lower, with the exception of platted property adjoining, which has been assessed higher on account of values placed upon individual lots instead of acres.

"The assessor, whoever he is and no matter how wise he may be, will always be the one who is kicked and abused whether he is to blame or not, unless some day the necessary amount for a revaluation shall be provided for him, and may God speed that day.

"I sincerely wish that County Auditor Halden, with his many years of experience, who is so skilful in managing the county board of equalization, would pass a resolution which that body should have caused to be adopted long ago, urging that a revaluation of the entire city be made, so that at last justice and right may prevail and both poor and rich may be treated alike, basing the assessments on actual values of property, and also hope that County Auditor Halden and the board of equalization will make a good job of the assessment, so that the next assessor will have a better time.

"I also desire to offer my services in giving any assistance I can do to bring about this result."

GAYNOR SOON TO BE OPERATED ON

New York, Aug. 17.—A quiet and restful night left Mayor Gaynor still further improved today, and his physicians have now the strongest belief in his complete recovery. The temperature, pulse and respiration are practically normal and there are no indications of infection. The physicians issued the following 8 o'clock bulletin:

"Mayor Gaynor passed a very good night. He has slept well and enjoyed his breakfast and he is gaining in strength. Temperature 99¼; pulse 70, and respiration 16."

It is now generally believed that the mayor will undergo an operation for the removal of the bullet just as soon as his physicians feel that he is strong enough. The operation will be simple, it is said, and will be attended by little danger, if any.

CHAIRMAN LORD HERE

In Conference With County Auditor Halden on Assessment.

More Inequalities Showing Up As Board's Review Progresses.

Samuel Lord, chairman of the tax commission is in the city today and was closeted nearly the entire day with County Auditor Odin Halden in the rooms formerly used by the St. Louis county courthouse commission.

The St. Paul man would say nothing about the assessment or its inequalities. He would not say that he was here looking the books over and he would not say that such was not the case. He said that he had nothing whatever for publication, but it is known that he and Mr. Halden were closeted with the assessment blanks spread before them.

As the blanks are further condensed and the work of the board of equalization progresses, the large number of mistakes and inequalities becomes more and more noticeable. It isn't necessary to go over the list and pick out the mistakes. They appear in almost alphabetical order.

The list shows that in a great number of instances, injustice has been done. Concerns which have branched out during the past year, moved into new quarters in some instances and done nearly double the business of 1909, are now assessed lower than they were in that year. Others which have gone along without any seeming increase have suffered an increase in assessment.

In the mercantile line it is known that a great many have doubled their business during the past year. Many of them have had the best year in their history. Even with this condition true, the assessments are lower than they were in 1909.

Some of the assessments have been raised but in nearly every instance the raise has been misplaced.

A list of some of the large business firms, their assessments in 1909 and in 1910 follows:

VICTORY FOR THE BISHOP

"Independent" Trustees Enjoined From Holding Services in Church.

That no congregation is really Catholic unless that congregation adheres strictly to all the rules of the church, is the grist of a decision handed down this morning by Judge Dibell of the district court in the case of Anthony Koneczny against August Kolenda, Joseph Wahzah, Stanislaus Kocinski, John Budynski, Frank Glapa and Andrew Ryczek.

The case has been dragging through the courts for some months. The trouble arose over the fact that a portion of the congregation of the West end Polish Catholic church quarreled with the bishop and ousted the priest, whom he had appointed to the church.

The court finds that the St. Peter and St. Paul Roman Catholic society was incorporated in 1897. He finds that the defendants in the action are the trustees and that for some years regular services were held which were in every way in accordance with the Catholic faith and belief. Soon after the incorporation of the society the bishop appointed a duly ordained and consecrated priest to minister to the congregation.

From the evidence presented in the case the judge finds that only one with full power as an authorized and consecrated priest can have the right under the general laws of the church, to officiate at regular services.

At the time of the dispute over the priest, between the trustees of the church and the bishop, the bishop was asked to remove the priest, who at that time had charge and appoint in his stead another. The bishop refused to do this and the trustees took things in their own hands and ousted the priest.

The bishop of the Duluth diocese refused to appoint another priest to fill the vacancy and another dispute arose over the title to the property.

Part of the congregation were with the bishop in his belief that he should hold title to the property and others sided with the trustees.

The trustees permitted services to be held by other than a regular priest and in this they were at fault, according to the decision.

In his conclusion the judge states that judgment may be entered for a writ of injunction under the seal of the court enjoining the trustees from causing or permitting religious services other than those provided for under the creed and faith of the Roman Catholic church and under the auspices of a duly ordained priest, to be held.

A stay of twenty days is given with the decision.

NOT MAN SOUGHT.

An Austrian giving his name as Nick Sagarovich was arrested by the policemen on the Bowery beat yesterday on suspicion of being the murderer of Jure Karakas, who was stabbed to death at New Duluth a week ago Sunday evening. He was taken to the hospital, where Mrs. Karakas, declared that he was not the man wanted. She was stabbed twice, but is on the road to recovery. It is not now thought that her wounds will be serious. Pavo Todorovich, the murderer, sunk his knife into her shoulder and back before attacking the husband.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

Fremont Republican Wants to Vote for John Lind for Governor — Congressional Contests in Minnesota — Hibbing Tribune Reviews Postoffice Contest in That City—Senatorial Fight in Sixty-first is Spirited.

In a dispatch from Portland, Or., John Lind is quoted as saying that he refused to discuss politics. This is not surprising, but anything about John Lind is worth printing.

He Wants To Vote For Lind For Governor

Another story is to the effect that Mr. Lind admitted he was undecided what he will do about the nomination. This remark is said to have been made after he had been in conference with John E. Burchard of St. Paul, who was a member of his staff when he was governor.

The Aitkin Independent publishes a communication from D. M. Scriven, for many years a Republican, which shows what a hold John Lind has on the voters of the state. The communication follows:

I voted for Fremont at the birth of the Republican party, and am still a Republican, but I want to vote for John Lind for governor, and have faith to believe that I will have the privilege to do so. Mr. Lind is an honest, honorable, as well as a modest man. He abhors the idea of going into a political campaign for himself. For that noble principle I admire the man. The people of a government by and for the people, must select and elect their own officials. Until they do so this phase of government by and for the people, is a sham and a delusion. For any man so elected by the people, though he may not desire the office, there is a duty he owes to country and his fellowmen. To be elected in this way is something new in the present age, and has the ring of true honor to himself and for the people, an honor so true and clean that no money can buy.

* * *

Contests in Minnesota congressional districts are assuming form and the rival candidates show signs of activity all along the line. In the First district the Insurgent Republicans are working industriously in support of Sidney A. Anderson as a candidate for the Republican nomination, and Judge H. L. Buck of Winona, who will be the Democratic nominee, is going over the district, sizing things up in preparation for the fight on Congressman James A. Tawney, who is expected to defeat Anderson at the primaries.

Congressional Fights Getting Warmer.

"I consider the fighting will be good this fall," said Judge Buck at Owatonna several days ago. "I will be plain and explicit in stating my views on public questions and let the people decide for themselves. I stand for tariff revision downward, true economy in conducting the public business, and in fact I regard my interests as the interests of the people."

The Owantonna Press speaks of Judge Buck as "a man eminently qualified to serve the people of the state and nation," adding:

Judge Buck is in truth the embodiment of a frank, outspoken conviction that fairly rings with clear, broad, progressive ideas of the functions of good government. He voices the best ideas of the day along the lines of law that will protect the good and eradicate the evil in our government. He is no timeserver; as he is fearless in his censure of the wrongdoings of public servants, apostles of all parties, be they Democrats, Republicans or Socialists, so does he heartily commend their every act tending to the public good, regardless of their party allegiance.

In the Second district, the Republican candidates for the nomination are becoming involved in an almost bitter controversy, with the Ellsworth men finding fault with Col. Ward for his supposed stand-pat leanings, although the Fairmont aspirant professes to be just as insurgent as his St. James rival. Congressman Hammond, who will be the Democratic nominee, is content to await the opening of the campaign after the primaries, with every reason to hope for re-election over whom ever may be nominated by the Republicans.

In the Third, Charles R. Davis is unopposed. He is so thoroughly insurgent that the Democrats are not against him and the stand-pat Republicans do not care to conduct a forlorn hope fight against him.

Fred C Stevens hasn't an opponent in the Fourth, and it is getting late for any one to enter the race for the nomination. However, Hugh T. Halbert may decide to shy his castor into the ring as an insurgent.

In the Fifth, Frank M. Nye has trouble on his hands. Albert H. Hall is the candidate of the progressives and he will have a lot of help in his fight, as prominent Republican insurgents are coming into the Minneapolis district to help him beat Nye, who is expected to call on other stand-pat Minnesotans to aid him. Among those who will be drafted for service on the Nye side is Clarence B. Miller of Duluth, if he can get away from his own bailiwick long enough, after the Oklahoma investigatio nis ended. Elnar Hoidale will be the Democratic candidate.

P. H. McGarry is causing some alarm in the Lindbergh camp in the Sixth. He is making a more effective campaign that had been expected by the insurgent candidate's friends and is working his gladhand overtime in his effort to gain the nomination as a stand-patter. The Democrats will not oppose Lindbergh if he is renominated, which seems likely.

Miller of the Eighth not only has threatening opposition for the nomination in the candidacy of Alex McKnight, but confronts a formidable opponent at the polls in November should he be renominated. Judge Jaques has made remarkable progress as a Democratic candidate and is confident that the voters of the district will turn to him as the representative of their own true sentiment on public issues.

In the Ninth, it is a fight between Halvor Steenerson and H. O. Bjorge with the present congressman seemingly having the advantage. Senator Sageng, who has been considered a possible candidate on the Democratic ticket, has filed as a candidate for re-election to the state senate.

* * *

Commenting on the platform of another congressional candidate, the Marshall News Messenger remarks: "With the default of parties in supporting platforms when occasion offers, and of congressmen when elected doing exactly opposite what they pledged, as did Clarence Miller of Duluth, it is not strange that people take little stock in pre-election promulgations."

Miller Hit at Home and Abroad.

The Marshall paper is not published in the Eighth district, but apparently Mr. Miller's congressional record has been scanned and understood in Lyon county as well as in St. Louis county.

The Hibbing Tribune pays editorial attention to the appointment of Thomas Godfrey as postmaster of that town, saying that when asked several weeks ago if the rumor of the approaching appointment were true, Mr. Miller denied that it was. After congratulating Mr. Godfrey, the Tribune says:

Harking back to the last congressional campaign it will be remembered that Tom was then an enthusiastic supporter of Mr. Miller's opponent, J. Adam Bede. It is hard to guess whether in the postoffice matter it was his political pull or Mr. Miller's proverbial lack or honor and backbone, or both, that entrapped the latter into repudiating his promises and turning down a half dozen men, each and every one of whom gave the present congressman loyal support and by whose efforts he received such a handsome majority over his opponent in Hibbing two years ago.

Early in November last year Mr. Miller, in plain and unmistakable language, promised Mr. Pfremmer, of the Tribune, the postoffice appointment. He made this promise after spending several months inquiring into the situation and with a full knowledge of the opposition that more recently has been successful in coercing him into his present action. Mr. Pfremmer has letters from Mr. Miller that will verify this statement, and more than that the congressman told several people in Hibbing, Duluth and elsewhere that he had decided to recommend Mr. Pfremmer.

If Mr. Miller had any valid reason for repudiating that promise we challenge him to produce it. But, even admitting that he feared Mr. Pfremmer's political enemies, and preferred to placate them instead of keeping his obligations, there can be no excuse on Mr. Miller's part for turning down any one of the five other candidates, to every one of whom he was indebted for political support, and appointing a political enemy to the position.

As far as Mr. Godfrey is concerned The Tribune has no grievance against him. He had a right to go after and get the postoffice, and now that he has it we wish him good luck. But we consider that Mr. Miller has been anything but honorable in the matter and we have taken the liberty to impose on the good nature of our readers just long enough to tell him so openly and publicly.

* * *

The senatorial fight in the Sixty-first district is getting lively. Senator A. L. Hanson, who is being opposed for renomination and re-election by Albert Berg of Spooner, who is a former secretary of state, seems to be on the defensive. He has issued a lengthy statement to the voters of the district in which he quotes his platform of four years ago. Then he goes on to say that he has remained true to every pledge made then and has been a consistent booster for Northern Minnesota.

Hanson and Berg Have A Lively Fight.

In his opinion, opposition to his re-election is based on his action in opposing the county bonding bill and favored county option in the last legislature, adding:

I know that I am criticized as not having accomplished anything and the reasons assigned are that I am not a good mixer and that I create antagonism. I believe I can say without fear of truthful contradiction that I supported as much legislation in the interest of the people and opposed as much that was against their interest as any member of the senate. I believe, too, that I can count as my personal friend every member of that body who stood for the legislation in the interest of the people.

If you shall again decide to nominate and elect me to represent you I will continue to stand for such legislation as will be for the best interests of this district and state.

Senator Hanson pledges himself for reapportionment, state land reforms, drainage and road building and, in general, the objects sought by the Northern Minnesota Development association. However, he objects to the state advertising scheme, saying that if the money were spent for the benefit of the people now living in that state, so that they may be made prosperous and contented, the problem of securing new settlers will solve itself.

The Itasca News of Deer River inclines to the Berg side of the controversy, saying:

"That the North is putting up its best men for the legislature is evidenced in the case of Beltrami county, having for its leading candidate for the lower house Albert Berg of Warroad, ex-state treasurer. Albert's a big one in more than averdupois measure."

Iver A. Krohn of Shevlin, editor of the Herald of that city and a merchant, has filed as a candidate for the house from the Sixty-first district. D. P. O'Neill of Thief River Falls is his opponent for the nomination. He is for reapportionment, good roads and "anything and everything that will upbuild Northern Minnesota."

PREVENTED FROM TAKING OWN LIFE

Herman Mack, a laborer, tried to drown himself in the slip at the foot of Sixth avenue west yesterday afternoon while in a fit of drunken despondency, but was prevented by Frank Shaw, a seaman from the steamer Lakeland.

Shaw jumped into the water fully clad when he divined the man's intentions, and managed to keep his head above water until others came to his assistance. Harbor Master Thomas Burke also went after Mack, but Shaw was closer and reached him first.

Mack announced his intention of ending his life in the waters of the harbor at Northern Pacific dock No. 4, but was stopped by men in the neighborhood. He then staggered over to the Omaha slip and deliberately let himself down into the water in full sight of a dozen spectators.

The tug and vessel men threw lines and life preservers to the would-be suicide, but he refused to help himself. When Shaw reached him he made use of the proffered assistance and in a short time Mack was hauled to the dock.

It is claimed that Shaw has saved other lives in the water in the past. His home is at Port Huron, Mich.

When Mack had been hauled to the dock the police were called. He was locked up at headquarters charged with drunkenness.

"FRANKS" ARE ABOLISHED

The high cost of living was jacked up a little higher today on the Board of Trade when members who enjoyed "franking" privileges from the Western Union and the North American Telegraph companies were forced to return their cards.

The interstate commerce commission recently decided that the telegraph companies could not give their customers any favors that less fortunate folk had to pay for. The ruling became effective today. The telegraph companies besides not being permitted to furnish "franks," cannot provide any free quotations.

It has been the custom of the companies to furnish the prices on wheat in the Winnipeg, Kansas City and St. Louis markets and the New York close without charge. The quotations were posted at the counters and everybody had access to them. The courtesy of the telegraph companies was optional with the managers who were after business. These quotations will not be furnished any more. The private wires of brokers and commission houses do not cross the lines of the interstate commerce commission and will continue to carry any quotations of outside markets that may be desired by the lessees. The quotations of Chicago, Minneapolis and Duluth are posted in the trading room and are paid for by the Board of Trade.

HAWKERS MUST MODULATE VOICES

Mike Mainella is so enthusiastic in calling out the good qualities of the vegetables and fruits which he peddles from his wagon that Court Officer Jensen arrested him this morning for disorderly conduct. It is claimed that he has been told several times to tone his voice down to a reasonable degree, but he has failed to do so. He entered a plea of guilty when arraigned in police court. The case was continued until tomorrow morning in order that the court may get reports from several witnesses before finally disposing of it.

MOTORIST ACQUITTED.

Charles Johnson Found Not Guilty of Speeding His Machine.

Charles Johnson, arrested on the charge of speeding his automobile on East Superior street, was found not guilty in police court by Judge Cutting after a trial. The city's only witness was Patrolman Wood, who made the arrest, while the defense had several witnesses who denied that the machine was going over fifteen miles an hour. The officer thought it was going about thirty-five miles an hour.

ANNEXATION OF KOREA IS NEAR

Tokio, Aug. 17.—The long-awaited annexation of Korea by Japan is about to become a reality, according to special dispatches from Seoul, published today by the Tokio press. The dispatches announce that the final negotiations for the annexation were begun yesterday by Lieut. Gen. Viscount Terauchi, the Japanese resident-general in Korea. The resident-general then outlined the conditions upon which Japan will sign the agreement for annexation.

It is believed the negotiations with the members of the Korean cabinet will be concluded in two or three days and that an early conclusion of the act of annexation may be expected. The Hochimaincho Dempo and other papers are issuing extra editions with the Seoul dispatches.

REPORT ON SIERRA OUT

First Annual Statement to the Stockholders From Duluth Company.

To Develop Producing Mine Is Aim, Says President Cotton.

The first annual report of the Sierra Consolidated Mines company was mailed to stockholders yesterday from the offices of the company on the fourteenth floor of the Alworth building.

The Sierra was organized in September, 1909, and the report is for the fiscal year ending June 30 of this year. Besides owning many mining claims in the district of Rayon, Chihuahua, Mexico, the company controls 100,000 acres of valuable pine lands and several water rights and mill sites. More than a score of the company's claims were productive before the consolidation of the component properties. Thirteen of the mines cover an area of more than four miles long by two miles wide. The company's holdings occupy fifty square miles.

A careful examination of the claims has been made. After a geological study of the camp and its ore-bearing fissures it was decided to undertake actual development at the Matulera, Belen and Santa Eduviges mines. The reports says that 2,796 feet of development work had been completed by June 30. "The work has not been done with the idea of disclosing the ore bodies immediately, but with the idea of making a thorough development of the whole of these mines at this time," says the report.

By June 30 the development work had exposed a tonnage in the Matulera mine of between 40,000 and 50,000 of an average grade of $10 per ton. The company expects to strike other indications of valuable ore in the Matulera tunnel in the near future. Other work, it is expected, will not bring results until the expiration of about a year. The shaft between the Santa Eduviges and El Refugio claims is cited as an example.

The company has perfected most of its titles and is rapidly completing the work so that there will be no flaws in the titles to any of the property.

Costs are being reduced rapidly. The lumber cost has been cut down from $60 a thousand to $19 a thousand.

In concluding a summary of the company's mineral reserves and the nature of the development President J. B. Cotton concludes: "The development of producing mines, yielding gold and silver and remunerative to stockholders is the ultimate aim of the management and in choosing our present plan of attack we have had due regard to the advisability of selecting some points which give promise of quick returns as well as some which will take longer time with greater possibilities."

The company's mill of twenty stamps and accessories will be used entirely for experimental purposes as it is not in condition to warrant using it to treat the regular tonnage. With the present equipment the company has recovered 81.6 per cent gold and 73.8 per cent silver from the ores. "A comprehensive study of these ores and the experimental work in reference to that treatment will doubtless result in effecting a saving ultimately of greater percentages of gold and silver even with the use of the present mill," says the report. When ore tonnages have been disclosed sufficient to warrant their construction, new mills and plants will be erected.

At present the Ocampo camp is ninety-seven miles by trail from Minaca and 110 miles by wagon road from Temosachic. Direct railroad communication between El Paso, Texas, and Temosachic will be established by the end of the present year.

The financial statement of the company is exceedingly favorable. It shows the assets to be $652,224.98 in excess of liabilities. On June 30 the company had $338,846.31 cash in its treasury. The stock of the Sierra Mining company cost the Sierra Consolidated $1,456,802.03 and the mining company has received $136,749.67 from the parent company for development work. The capital stock of the Sierra Consolidated is $5,000,000 divided into 500,000 shares of a par value of $10 each. The company has issued 75,000 shares of full paid stock and 223,000 shares and 225,500 shares of part paid stock at $6, making a total issue of 300,000 shares.

A Kimball Pipe Organ has been installed in our new store, the largest and most attractive music house in the city.

We cordially invite all music lovers to come and hear the new pipe organ played between the hours of 2 and 4 p. m. daily.

Many piano purchasers have taken advantage of the special allowance of 20 per cent on all first payments ranging from $20 to $40, and this together with the saving of the retailer's profit of from $150 to $200—because they bought at factory store prices, saved those who bought at least $155 to $210 on a strictly high-grade piano.

We have a large assortment of slightly used pianos, some nearly new, of various makes, which were taken in as part payment on a celebrated

KIMBALL PIANO

Remember, this special allowance of 20 per cent lasts only to Sept. 1.

An Example of Probation Work.

About two years ago a young man in this city committed forgery. He raised a check and tried to pass it. He was not successful, but the crime was committed, and he became liable to a state prison sentence. He was just 21 years old. That was his first false step. He had fallen among bad companions and had learned to drink. His family was respectable people. He had a sister who took her savings and traveled 1,500 miles to help him. He was not a bad boy, and never had been. What should have been done in his case? This is what Mr. Norton did: He learned all the facts and recommended a parole. The court investigated and came to the same conclusion. The boy was allowed to go free on these conditons: He had to go to work; keep away from the saloons and bad companions, and report once a month to a probation officer. Now see how it worked. He reported regularly for two years. He kept his promise about the saloons, and associates. He became a good citizen. He worked and he saved his money. Last winter he received a small legacy. He put that with his earning and bought himself a ranch in Texas, and he is making good with it. After that the case was dismissed, his slate was wiped clean and he was told to go ahead. In that case, Mr. Norton helped make a man instead of a criminal, and that case is merely one of a type. Was his judgment good or bad? As County Attorney, did he do the right thing? If you think that is the way to handle these matters, you can show it by casting your vote for John H. Norton for County Attorney.

LEAPS FROM A WINDOW

Mrs. Knight Evades Husband's Attack By Hazardous Jump.

Terrified Children Telephone Police That Mother Is Murdered.

Terrified by the thought that their father was killing their mother, the little children of Nelson C. Knight, Forty-first avenue west and Eleventh street, telephoned to the West Duluth police station last evening, appealing for help.

Believing that a murder had been committed, Sergeant Bradley and Patrolmen Sass, Setterquist, Monahan, Peterson and Barber left for the Knight home. When they arrived there they found Mrs. Knight in the kitchen suffering from many injuries and bruises.

After having been beaten and choked she told the officers, she broke away from her husband, who followed her, and in order to evade him, she leaped out of the window, and fell eighteen feet, landing on the stone covered ground.

She complained to the officers that her back was severely injured, while many bruises to other parts of her body were received. Her condition is said to be serious.

But no trace of her husband could be found. After looking about for some time, the police located him, huddled under a seat in one of the buggies, in the wagon shed some distance away from the house. The police reported that he was in a drunken stupor.

Mrs. Knight refused to make any complaint or swear out any warrant against her husband, and pleaded that he be let alone. The officers, however, arrested him, on the charge of drunkenness.

CANADIAN NORTHERN MAY RENT ITS HOUSES.

West Duluth people are wondering what the Canadian Northern Railway company is going to do with the many houses which will have to be moved from the right-of-way. Some time ago more than fifty families were ordered to vacate the houses, and since then they have been busy trying to find suitable quarters.

The company officials have not stated what would be done with the houses, although it is understood that most of them will be moved upon other property that the company purchased, and be rented. When the Wisconsin Central road entered the city it sold all the houses on the route at auction, but the Canadian company does not seem so inclined. It has many lots, which it was forced to buy, of which it can use only a small fraction, and there seems to be an inclination on the part of the compaany to move the houses upon the unused portion.

HERSTAD'S ASSAULT CASE NOW ON TRIAL.

Erling Herstad will be tried on the charge of assault this afternoon before Judge Flack of the West Duluth justice court and a jury. The complaining witness is Nels Nelsons, who is the owner of a house on Forty-fifth avenue west, who alleges that Herstad attacked him. The accused man was employed as a carpenter on the house and while so engaged controversy over some matters arose, which resulted in the alleged assault. Herstad was arrested several days ago and when arraigned pleaded not guilty. He demanded a jury trial.

Ball Team Gives Dance.

The Fairmont football team gave a dance last evening at Wade's hall, which was largely attended. The hall was artistically decorated with the team's colors. Another dance has been planned for and will probably be held two weeks from last evening. The team is giving these dances to raise money and also to promote the social side of the organization.

HEAVY DOOR SMASHED; PUZZLE: WHO DID IT?

The West Duluth police are trying to solve a mystery. Some time during the night the big door in the entrance to Wade's hall was torn from its hinges and smashed. This door, costing $20, had just been put in the day before. It is a heavy oak door, very solid, and of an artistic design.

Many are of the opinion that the door, having been left open after the dance last evening, was blown about by the heavy wind and that on account of its weight, it was knocked so hard against the casings that it loosened from its fastenings. Others, however, believe that some one deliberately broke it. Still others have advanced the theory that some party had been locked in the hall, either by mistake or through a joke, and that they had broken the door to get out. No one has yet reported that any persons were locked in, however.

Claims Another Victim.

Edith Ohman, the 1-year-old daughter of Jacob Ohman, 117 South Seventy-first avenue west, died last evening of cholera infantum. The funeral was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence and interment made at Oneota cemetery.

CROPS ARE FINE AND FAIR WILL BE GREAT.

H. R. Patterson, formerly of West Duluth, and A. H. Gerlack, both of Barnum, where they have large farms, were in the city this morning in the interests of the Carlton County Fair association. The fair this year, they say, will be the best ever held under the auspices of the association, and some fine exhibits are expected. Early in the season the crop outlook was bad and many of the farmers were greatly discouraged, but within the past few weeks there has been much rain, which saved the crops, and a good production is expected.

MET WITH SUCCESS

MRS. BRIGGS MEETS AND INTERESTS THE LADIES OF CITY.

At the Free Baking School in Session at K. P. Hall, Over Kelley Hardware Store.

Mrs. Briggs, the lecturer and illustrator at the free baking school, certainly did take the ladies of Duluth by surprise. Her success was instantaneous, judging by the enthusiastic interest of the large number of ladies present. There is no mistake about Mrs. Briggs being an expert in her work; she is simply wonderful. The baking school is sure to be popular with the housewives of Duluth, as there is so much that is practical and useful in every-day baking taught by this expert. Everything she does in her work is explained in an understandable way. As each recipe is put together, the consistency of the dough, as it should be, is shown and you are told how to control the temperature of your own oven to secure results that are unfailing and satisfactory. It is noted in the work of this expert that she has no failures in baking. She serves what she bakes to the ladies present as it comes from the oven. The K. C. Baking Powder, used by Mrs. Briggs in her work, certainly gives an astonishing result, if the food baked by it is any criterion to go by. Ladies who have tried this modern, never-failing powder are generous in their praise of it and are advising their neighbors and those they are interested in to order a 25-cent can from their grocer and insist on his sending it to them at once. The "Cook Book," which goes free to users of K. C. for the return to the baking school of the certificate found in each 25-cent can, is the most valuable ever written by Mrs. Hill. Special subjects for Thursday: Lady Baltimore Cake, Gold Cake, Nut Bread and Plain Cookies.

DRINKS ACID AND HANGS HIMSELF

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 17.—The body of Peter Clausen, 54 years old, was found at sunrise in Layman's cemetery, Cedar avenue and Lake street. The body was hanging from a tree, the feet barely touching the ground. An empty carbolic acid bottle was lying to one side. The man apparently put the noose around his neck, drank the acid and raised his feet from the ground.

Clausen had been in Anoka for three months. He has six sons and six daughters. A letter to one of the daughters, Mrs. Amanda Foss, 3112 Twenty-second avenue south, Minneapolis, was found in his pocket. Mrs. Clausen has been dead three months. The letter was turned over of Deputy Coroner H. W. Quist.

The Minnehaha police were notified that the body was in the cemetery, and sent an officer to investigate. Despondency over the death of his wife is advanced as the explanation of the suicide.

BRITISH CRUISER IS AT HONDURAS

New Orleans, La., Aug. 17.—A special from Ceiba, Spanish Honduras, under date of Aug. 12, says:

The British cruiser Scylla, Capt. Thesiger, dropped anchor in the harbor here today and local government officials are said to experience great trepidation over the outcome of the visit. The arrival of the Scylla is said to be due to a call from the British vice consul following alleged persistent ill-usage of British subjects.

Capt. Thesiger is reported to have made peremptory demands for indemnity for the killing a Jamaican negro, Alexander Thurston, a British subject; for the punishment of his slayer, and for the punishment of Honduran officials who are charged with ill-treating British subjects since the last visit of the Scylla, when a warning was given by Capt. Thesiger that full protection of them must be given.

FAST TENNIS IN PROSPECT

Some fast tennis is in prospect for Saturday afternoon at the boat club when the team of eight players who are to go to the state tournament to be held on the St. Paul and Country club courts Saturday, Aug. 27, will play off an informal tournament as a sort of warming up for the big event.

One purpose of Saturday's play will be to select partners for doubles in the St. Paul event, and most of the matches played will be doubles. The men are working out regularly and are getting considerable snap into their work. Saturday's matches should develop some of the most interesting tennis of the year.

Ed Ingalls has been selected to take the place of Powell Grady, who was one of the original eight picked for the St. Paul trip, but who could not go. The other men who will go down to the state tournament and who will take part in the play here Saturday are: Lauren Kennedy, Max Washburn, C. K. Dickerman, Ralph Davis, Walter Amundson, C. C. Colton and Carroll Graff.

IMPERSONATED THE MAYOR

New York, Aug. 17.—Acting Mayor Mitchell today flatly denied that he had done anything to stop the Lang-Kaufman fight at the Fairmont A. C., other than to formally notify the police commissioner that the law must be observed. Now the police would like to know the identity of the individual who hired a room opposite the Fairmont club and told Inspector Hussey and the police that he was Acting Mayor Mitchell and wanted the fight stopped.

"The story that I hired a room near the clubhouse or was anywhere near the scene," Acting Mayor Mitchell said, "is absolutely untrue. Mrs. Mitchell dined with friends until 10:30 o'clock and I was home in bed at 11 o'clock.

"If anybody impersonated me I would like to know who it was, so that I can proceed against him."

A SPECIAL TREATMENT FOR SKIN DISEASES

General Remedies Usually Are Useless for Eczema, Scrofula, Etc., Which Are Now Cured by Zelmos.

This is the day of the specialist. Any one who suffers from torturing and disfiguring skin diseases knows very well that it is a very serious matter, and also knows that special treatment is necessary.

It has been the custom for so long for the usual salves, lotions etc., to be recommended for any kind of skin troubles that those who suffer from Eczema, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum, Barber's Itch, Pimples, Carbuncles, etc. have come to the conclusion that there was no cure for these distressing diseases.

Zelmos is the name of a new preparation, and it means new hope for those who suffer from the disfiguring and irritating affections of the skin, most of which troubles come from impurities in the blood.

Zelmos Salve gives quick relief from the terrible itching. Zelmos Tablets combine the active principles of the best blood purifiers with the most effective vegetable laxatives in minute quantities.

Zelmos is the most effective treatment for skin diseases and eruptions ever offered to a suffering public. It gives almost instant relief from Sunburn, Chafing and Prickly Heat. CROP CONDITION IS VERY GOOD, SAYS CHICAGO BANK

Business Situation Is Declared Sound, in Annual Report.

Summary Includes Statement on Automobile in Trade.

THE SEASON'S CROPS.

Oats will exceed last year's crop, which was above the average.

The wheat crop this year is slightly lower than that of 1909.

Corn will be a much better crop than was harvested last year.

The cotton crop this year will be 700,000 bales more than a year ago.

Because of an excess of animal foods it is believed that more farmers will keep stock and that meat will become more plentiful and possibly lower in price.

Satisfactory crop reports from every corner of the United States and a healthy spirit pervading businesses and industries of all kinds throughout the country leads the Continental and Commercial Bank of Chicago in its annual crop and business report, just made public, to prophesy that there will be an abundance of wheat, corn and other foodstuffs when the harvests have been garnered. It prophesies that business prosperity will continue unabated.

While climatic conditions this year have not been as favorable in some sections as heretofore, there appears to be an abundance of all crops except hay, which was hurt by the drouth. The nation's food supply is assured on as generous a scale as ever and prosperity, as it is affected by that element, could find no excuse for failure.

Business Conditions Sound.

General business conditions, despite many disturbing elements which have appeared during the last year, seem to be on a thoroughly sound basis.

The necessity of a central banking reserve as a means of steadying the financial fabric of the nation is urged and the effect, if any, that the automobile has had on business conditions is discussed at some length.

"Nature," says the report, has not been prodigal in her yields of grains, forage, vegetables and fruits, but has given us harvests this year ample for the requirements of the country, without exhausting the supplies from former harvests. The year has been propitious at times, and, as usual, capricious in localities. While the Southwest suffered discomfort in small yields on account of the drouth last season, the Northwest has been the sufferer this season.

"The winter rigors greatly reduced the increased acreage in the winter wheat section, but the yield of the remainder was far above the average, and what at one time promised to be a calamitous wheat crop ended in a generous one in this variety of the chief breadstuff.

Total Grain Crops.

"Reports indicate a total wheat crop of 657,000,000 buhsels, or 80,000,000 bushels less than last year's record production, but equal to a ten-year average production.

"Corn promises a yield of 3,000,000,000, or 225,000,000 bushels above the previous season and 25 per cent over a ten-year average crop.

"The oats yield will exceed last year's excellent production with a total of 1,071,000,000 bushels, 200,000,000 bushels over the ten-year average.

"Barley will equal last year's crop of 128,000,000 bushels, and rye will exceed the previous season, being 31,500,000 bushels, comparing with 30,000,000 bushels. The total production of these grains is 4,906,000,000 bushels, while the ten-year average is 4,431,000,000 bushels.

"Cotton condition indicates a crop of 11,000,000 bales, or 700,000 bales above last year.

"There has been a small shortage of hay over most of the country, but this great forage crop is up to the average of 60,000,000 tons and the supplies from former years are estimated at equal to a full year's demand.

Potatoes Above Average.

"Potatoes are smaller in yield—again the influence of the alternate cold and dry seasons. While the production will fall below last year's excessive crop, the total will be above the ten-year average of 278,000,000 bushels, and there is no cause to anticipate excessive prices or famine shortage of supply.

"The automobile looms up as one of the issues of the day. The growth of the industry is one of the phenomenal developments of the time and could have occurred only in a time of great general prosperity and when the surplus earnings of the people as compared with former times were very large. At any period prior to ten years ago, the expenditures of the last year upon automobiles would have been inconceivable.

"There is an overwhelming volume of opinion that even now this enormous outlay is an extravagance which the country can ill afford; that it is affecting other lines of trade unfavorably, and has been an important factor in the stringent monetary situation of the present year. The industrial and social progress of a people is based upon the accumulation of capital, for which there is a never ending demand to finance the new inventions and enterprises which the brain of man is constantly planning. With capital increasing faster than population there is bound to be rapid improvement in the condition of the masses but without new capital pressing for investment, the demand for labor slackens and industry stagnates.

"On the other hand, the friends of the automobile claim, undoubtedly with some warrant, that it is not a mere toy or luxury, but a valuable utility; that it is a great time saver to the busy man and that its influence upon the public health is important."

Staggers Skeptics.

That a clean, nice, fragrant compound like Bucklen's Arnica Salve will instantly relieve a bad burn, cut, scald, wound or piles, staggers skeptics. But great cures prove it's a wonderful healer of the worst sores, ulcers, boils, felons, eczema, skin eruptions, as also chapped hands, sprains and corns. Try it. 25c at all druggists.

GIVES DINNER FOR PARTNER

W. E. Richardson Entertains Prominent Men in Honor of F. A. Day.

W. E. Richardson gave a dinner last evening at his home, 2521 East Second street, in honor of his business partner, F. A. Day, who will leave today for an eight months' trip around the world. Mr. Day has been in Duluth for the past twenty-five years and has been a prominent figure in its business life during all that period. He is now planning to take a well-earned vacation, and the dinner given last evening was in the nature of a farewell.

Sixteen prominent men of the city, Mr. Day's personal friends, were present at the affair and joined in wishing him a great trip.

GERMANS ARE GUESTS OF DULUTH BOAT CLUB.

The Duluth Boat club extended its hospitality to a group of ten of the students from the University of Commerce at Cologne, Germany, who were here yesterday, and they enjoyed a swim at the Oatka clubhouse.

Most of the members of the party were young men, not more than 22 years old. They are an athletic lot and pulled off some rather startling swimming stunts.

JAPANESE COLLEGE GRADUATE LOCATES HERE.

Genkwan Shibata, a Japanese young man, who has been an instructer in the commercial division of the extension department of Wisconsin university, has decided to make his home in Duluth. He has taken a position with an accountant in the Phoenix block.

Mr. Shibata has lived in this country for nine years. He speaks and writes English fluently. He went through a high school and Wisconsin university in six years, and was elected a member of the Phi Beta Kappa and the Beta Gamma Sigma fraternities. He is said to be an able young man and he went through the university with flying colors.

Last year he took the university baseball team to Japan, but he did not feel at home, as he had become Anglicized in thought, speech and manners.

"I seem to have nothing in common with my native country," he said today. "I intend to stay here, although, of course, unforeseen events may cause me to change my place of residence. I like Duluth and have met many fine fellows. I am staying at the Y. M. C. A., and hope to continue to live there if the association can give me accommodations."

Mr. Shibata was a classmate of C. T. Anderson of the Marshall-Wells company, and it was through the efforts of Mr. Anderson that the young Japanese came here.

Chu was a prosperous restaurant keeper of Chinatown.

Two arrests were made—Tom Yuen and Lee Fat, both said to be Ong Leong tong members. Both were locked up charged with homicide.

NOTABLES ON NORTH WEST

Actress, Earl and Governor of Indiana on Passenger List.

Crew Clashes With Strike-Breakers on Freighter at Soo.

With May Irwin, comedienne; the Right Honorable Henry James, earl of Euston and most eminent and supreme pro grand master of the Knights Templar of England and Wales, and Governor Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana as headliners on her passenger list, the steamer North West arrived in port last night with a big crowd of tourists.

All three of the celebrities returned when the big white boat left later in the evening on the return trip. The earl of Euston did not leave the boat and declined to be interviewed, saying that he was entirely worn out by his arduous work while in attendance at the Chicago conclave of the Knights Templar. He was accompanied on the trip by Thomas Frazier, K. C. T., great marshal; H. J. Horner, acting grand master's banner bearer, and John Ferguson, acting great aide de camp. At the boat last night T. W. Hugo, Arthur Mitchell, N. H. Wilson, M. M. Gasser, R. R. Grant and Jesse Norton, representing the Duluth Masons, paid a purely social call upon the visitors, the short time that the big boat was in port rendering any more extensive entertainment program impossible.

Governor Marshall took the boulevard drive last night and expressed himself as greatly impressed with the city and its advantages. He absolutely refused to talk politics as he said that the present excursion was designed to get his mind entirely off his political cares.

At the Soo on the way up the passengers were entertained by a lively battle between the crew of the big passenger boat and the strike breakers on the freighter William Mather while the boats were lying side by side waiting to be sent through the lock to Lake Superior. The crew of the North West started the cry of "scab" and the resentful deck hands on the Mather retaliated by sending a goodly portion of the Mather's coal supply hurtling through the air toward the North West's lower deck. The crew of the North West retaliated with bottles and the battle was hot and heavy for a time, only ceasing when the boats drew apart after entering Lake Superior.

On Lake Superior Carl Y. Eddy, new wireless operator, shipped at the Soo, was put through a stiff initiation by members of the crew in the fan tail. Rumors of the affair say that Eddy got a course of sprouts that would turn any of the secret society initiation teams green with envy, but he took the gruelling in fine style and is now one of the most popular members of the North West's crew.

The North West had one of the biggest loads of passengers of the season last night and the managers of the big boat report that the traffic has been increasing heavily all season. She will make her last trip to the Head of the Lakes, Sept. 6, and advance bookings indicate that the remaining trips will be the biggest of the season.

McMillan brought his hand near one of the high voltage separators on the third floor and the general current broke from the machine, passing through his body and out through his feet.

A fellow workman immediately broke the circuit and McMillan fell unconscious to the floor, the workman believing him dead.

In a few minutes, however, he sat up and was found uninjured except that his hand and foot were burned.

SEE KELLEY'S DISPLAY OF VILLAGE BLACKSMITH CUTLERY

Village Blacksmith Tools and Cutlery are made by the "hand-process." Hand-made tools are always far more superior in those essential lasting qualities which are not found in machine-made tools.

OUR VILLAGE BLACKSMITH WINDOW

Our unique window displays have caused much favorable comment this summer.

Perhaps you remember our "Motor-boat window" and our "camping-out window?"

This week it's the "Village Blacksmith Window," and we want you to see it.

Just take a walk over to the store and look at it, even if it should be a little out of your way.

Examine Village Blacksmith Knives and you may notice they probably lack the "uniformity of finish" found in machine-made goods; but remember that the FINISH can never replace the "soul of steel" which can only be brought out by careful hand working.

Village Blacksmith Cutlery shows painstaking shaping and grinding, done by hand, so as to preserve the life and temper of the steel.

TRY THIS DINNER

Cream of Asparagus Soup.

Take the tough part of a bunch of asparagus, cut in small bits and cook in a little water until tender. Mash through a coarse sieve and return pulp to the water. Add a pint of cream sauce and mix well. Season to taste and serve with croutons.

Fish—Broiled Bluefish.

There is no more perfect way to cook bluefish or mackerel. Take half of a good-sized fish rather than the whole fish, clean, wipe and put in boiler (kept for fish). Cook the flesh side first until it is brown. Then turn and cook the skin side until it is crisp. Season with salt and pepper, spread with butter and sprinkle with a little minced parsley. Garnish with slices of lemon.

Vegetables—Raw Potato Hash.

Chop one pint of pared potatoes. Soak for five minutes and drain. Put into the frying pan enough lard or cottelene to grease the pan well. Add a little onion to the potatoes and a tablespoon of stock or water and put in the pan. Cover well and let cook on back of fire for twenty minutes very slowly. Bring forward, remove cover, let brown till crisp, then fold and serve as omelet.

Dessert—Strawberry Ice Cream.

Mash one quart of fresh strawberries, add one cup of sugar, and when dissolved, squeeze out the juice through cheese cloth. Dilute with one pint thin cream or cooked soft custard. Add more sugar if needed and freeze as usual.

THE EVENING STORY

Sheik Mejdel's Daughters

By Ralph Marshall.

Five girl-children had Almaz borne Mejdel, her husband, and never a son amongst them. Already had Abd-el-Saba, the Sheik of another and not too friendly tribe, woven derisive verses about it, teaching his people to sing that Mejdel was not "The Father of Women." And Mejdel's hot blood, ever ready to boil, has well-night boiled over, and more than once had his lean, brown fingers picked hungrily at the khangar in his girdle. Allah had seen fit to give Almaz another chance of retrieving her name. Patience, then! They who waited would see. Even at this moment she lay in one corner of the tent gripping the wrist of a middle-aged, unwieldy woman, who crouched motionless beside her, but uttered no cry; for what is written is written, and it is useless to complain.

Gathered upon his haunches Mejdel sat outside on the warm sand and waited. Though he held his sebiel in one hand he did not smoke—a sure sign that his frame of mind was unusual.

Two ragged musicians who had wandered from another part of the encampment, hoping shortly to proclaim upon their unlovely instruments the advent of the much-desired, squatted beside him; but though they exchanged guttural jokes with one another, they did not venture to address Mejdel.

Here and there naked children rolled and chuckled and pelted one another with handfuls of their native desert. Even the untidy camels had ceased to grumble, and, stretched out in grotesque abandonment, were devoting their energies to succulent heaps of Nile clover.

But Mejdel saw none of this. He was watching five small figures in the far distance—five small figures which toiled up from the green-fringed Nile waters a mile away and were like unto so many steps in the matter of height. The largest was but a slip of a girl with a form that only whispered of approaching womanhood, and the smallest had but recently mastered the art of walking and carrying at all. On the head of each rested an earthenware kulla. And he watched, Mejdel's eyes narrowed perceptibly, and the grin on his face became more sinister—for the five water-bearers represented the five heinous offenses of Almaz, his wife.

Truly had she come under the power of the evil eye. Some witchcraft was at work, willing to produce naught but her own sex. Well, well, this should be the test; if she gave him a sixth daughter he would know that her case was hopeless. Five times had he forgiven her because of her wondrous beauty and the graceful trick she had of pleading with him, but Abd-el-Saba might taunt him till the tongue in his mouth rotted away if he let his heart grow soft for the sixth time. She had been of an alien tribe, but he had greatly desired her, and against the advice of his elders had taken her for his own, and contrary to the usages of his people had never since cast eyes upon any other woman. And he worshiped her still—yes, despite the five little figures that loomed more distinct each second, he worshiped her still. But, after all, what is love to derisive sneers of an Abd-el-Saba or the pity (which is worse) of one's own people? Yes, if she repeated her offense, she must die.

Quite suddenly from within the largest tent came a shrill, peculiar cry, half wail, half twitter, and the elderly woman waddled out and made towards him. Still twittering, she stooped twice, and scratching up a few grains of sand placed them on the wide parting of her grizzled hair.

"Speak!" commanded Mejdel, gramly, but without even glancing in her direction.

"Alas! my lord!"

She crouched at his feet and bending down raised the hem of his abba to her lips.

"Is it a girl-child?" Mejdel looked sideways at her, hissing the words from between his clenched teeth.

"May my lord have pity!"

Mejdel answered not—only his narrowed eyes became mere slits as he rose, and brushing her aside, passed swiftly between the tents. No one addressed him—there was nothing to be said, and, besides his face did not invite conversation. At length he reached the fringe of a palm grove, to one of the trees of which his favorite stallion—a full-blooded chestnut—was tethered. Casting himself upon his back he urged it into a gallop. It was saddleless, and save for its rough halter, bridleless, too; but its wild unhampered freedom matched his mood, and he let it carry him away from the palm trees—away from everything out upon the vast sea of sand, whither he would.

How long he fled through the space he could not have told. He found they were back in sight of the tents once more. The moon had risen, and stars like unto studs of living sapphire in a setting of dull blue velvet blinked down at him.

All at once the tum-tum of the zummara, mingled with a rasping of a darabukeh, smote faintly on our ears. A look of fiendish rage darkened his face. It was not seemly that his people should rejoice on the night of their chief's humiliation. He threaded his way with a gliding feline movement between the silent tents until he came to his own. Here he paused, and the breath of his nostrils hissed to and fro in the extremity of his amazement.

Were they simply bent on insult? Was Mejdel, the well-beloved, sunk so low as to become a mere butt for the vulgar jesting of the sons of his own race? He knew not how to act; pain, anger and surprise had robbed him of worthy speech. Then, as he hesitated, from out of the tent there stole towards him again the fat, square figure of the woman who had kept her vigil by the side of Almaz. This time she did not grovel, nor did she sprinkle her pitiful locks with sand. "May the days of my lord be as white as milk!" she cried.

"May thy days be white also!" she was answered by the sheik mechanically; then he made an impatient gesture towards the musicians who were capering and grimacing with every possible sign of excitement. "What means this?" he demanded hurriedly.

"If it pleases my lord to listen?"

"And it seems good to thee to tell?" He grabbed the formality and fixed his proud black eyes upon her almost entreatingly.

"Allah has indeed shown mercy—so are the spirits of evil driven forever from the dwelling of my lord."

"Ah! He hah taken the girl child?" Mejdel spoke with a vindictive snarl. What greater mercy could Allah show?

"Surely he hath done a more gracious thing—he hath sent thee a man child also, so that the line of mine lord may be never cut off from among his people. Thou hadst but gone one short hour, when—"

So absolutely unexpected was the news—such a complete and utter revolution—that Mejdel, strong savage as he was, would have fallen had not he clutched at the tent pole for support.

With a muttered exclamation, and wholly disregarding the cringing demands for baksheesh set up by the minstrels, he stooped to enter the tent.

His fierce face was illuminated, his thin lips trembled. Scarcely did he dare to believe even yet that the woman spoke truly. Almaz lay back on her pile of cushions, covered with a rug of camel hair.

Even in the dim light there was something triumphant in the outline of her olive face and small, recumbent figure.

"Hail, my lord!" she whispered faintly; and drawing back the rug she showed him two tiny yellow forms nestled together at her side.

Taking his hand in hers, she laid it as in benediction upon the head of one infant, and darker, bigger head of the two.

Then all the former passion for her surged back into Mejdel's heart; the pride of race, the realization of his fondest hopes, gave back to his deep voice something of the young lover again.

"Diamond is thy name," he whispered fondly, "and a diamond art thou indeed—the brightest ornament in thy husband's crown—for thou has taken away his reproach; against the spells of iniquity hast thou fought and prevailed," and his shaking fingers strayed proudly over the face of his son.

Almaz sank back and lay regarding them both with her shining, sunken eyes.

"Hast thou pardoned me, O my lord?" she asked, and her voice was eager, though fainter now than before.

"Pardoned thee? Almaz, my Flower of the Desert!" He laid his hand upon her hand and found to his sudden discomfort that it had grown icy cold. Fearful of he scarce knew what, he threw himself down at her side and wound his arms about her. But Almaz did not notice it—she was beyond noticing anything ever again.

WHY WIVES ENVY HUSBANDS

By ALVA ARMSTRONG.

Sometimes when the husband has departed for his morning train, the wife in the little house thinks of the day's work before her. He has gone to his work—and the day in front of her suddenly becomes a tremendously dull, monotonous catalogue of things to be done.

It is then that she envies her husband.

Why? The answer is interesting to work out, for after the first glow of wonder and delight that young married people feel (this cannot, in the nature of things, last very long) nine-tenths of the married happiness depends on the proper understanding by a wife of her husband's worries and difficulties in life, and in the proper understanding by a husband of the troubles and perplexities of the little woman left at home for so many hours together.

I hold no brief for either as against the other. An independent income smoothes the difficulties, but, for the most part, in this working world, the path through the years, either the wife or husband, is not at all an easy path.

The wife feels that her work is confined within such narrow, monotonous limits. The husband's work is monotonous, too, but to nothing like the same extent. He puts in certain hours at his office. But, unless he is the sort of man that his fellow-men dislike, he can and does have some pleasant breaks in the routine of the day.

He can linger after lunch for a comfortable and enjoyable talk with a chum.

At home, now, there are very few breaks in the day like that for the working wife. The work goes on all the time. Certainly a friend or two may drop in, and are welcomed, for afternoon tea. Many even small houses that is very nice and pleasant; but the point is that, unless there are servants, for the wife such a diversion means absolute extra work. And when there is a baby? How often can a woman with children get a quiet hour really to herself? His friends, too. How she envies her husband in his relation to the question of friends! Think for a minute. How many women do you know who are fortunate enough not to possess real pals? Very few. In his ordinary business work the husband meets a man for about ten minutes, and a little talk or friendly argument in that time is a pleasant remembrance throughout the day, even if the man is only an acquaintance met by chance.

The husband can continue to lighten his business day with many little diversions of the kind indicated. The wife seldom can.

I know a good many husbands who would be most surprised if they were suddenly told the number of games of billiards they have played in, say, six winter months.

But the wife envies him most of all when he comes home in the evening with an air of having been tremendously busy all the day. He has earned the right to be tired. He actually expects a comment of sympathy from her.

As he sits down to read the library book (in which is her bookmark) he heaves a sigh of content.

But for her—there is the baby to be put to bed, and afterwards tiny clothes to be mended or made—this and that worrying thing to be done.

For woman's work is never done. Never!

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Hints on Preserving.

The first step for success in the preserving of fruit is to have everything absolutely pure and clean; and to see that all the jars are sterilized so that no bacteria remain to promote molding and fermentation. The modern patent fruit jars are the best to use. They will with care last many years, the rubber rings only having to be renewed about every other season. To clean the jars first wash them in hot soapsuds, then rinse in clean water in which a little bicarbonate of soda has been dissolved; this will sweeten them by removing any taint that may remain in them. See that all covers, rubber rings, etc., fit perfectly. If bottles are to be used have plenty of fresh corks and sealing wax at hand.

To Keep a Good Color in Fruit.

To prevent discoloring and tastelessness in preserved fruit use porcelainlined or aluminum utensils. The ideal preserving pan is broad and shallow. Have a wooden spoon or spatula for stirring, a wooden masher, clean cheesecloth and an asbestos mat to avoid burning. The last article is more or less necessary, especially in cases where the cooking is lengthy. Always use a silver knife when cutting fruit. When paring peaches, pears or apples, drop the pieces into cold water to which a few drops of vinegar have been added. Plums or tomatoes peel more easily if first immersed in boiling water, then quickly dropped into cold and drained off.

Selecting the Fruit.

Take care that each plum, apple or whatever the fruit may be, is perfectly sound, not too ripe, and in every way excellent in quality. A decayed spot, small though it may be, will often produce fermentation; therefore carefully pick and wash over all fruit before preserving it. The best way to wash small fruits, such as raspberries, damsons and so on, is to put them into a colander and pour cold water slowly and gently over them, allowing them to dry thoroughly before using.

Sugar in Jams.

Sugar is not absolutely necessary for the preserving of fruit; on the other hand it is apt to keep its shape better when cooked in a syrup than in water alone. However, fruit without sugar retains its freshness to a greater extent. Always cook fruit slowly, so that it may remain as whole as possible and retain its juice and flavor. Hasty boiling cracks it and permits the juice to escape. If possible do the jamming on cool days. The jars may be sterilized by boiling them in water for twenty minutes.

Putting the Fruit Into Jars.

When the fruit is ready for bottling wring a soft towel out of tepid water, fold it into several thicknesses, and lay it in the bottom of a basin. Remove a jar from the hot water in which it has been sterilized, place it on the folded towel and proceed to fill with the fruit. When the jar is full slip a heated silver knife around the inside of the jar and through its contents, thus allowing the air to escape and the fruit to settle. Add a little more hot juice; wipe off the moisture, adjust the rubber ring after dipping it in hot water and fasten down the screw top as tightly as possible. If there is any doubt about the jar being air tight reverse it a moment or two and see if any air bubbles through the fruit.

THE WILD WEST SHOW ARRIVES

No Parade Held---Last Appearance of "Buffalo Bill" in Duluth.

Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Pawnee Bill's Far East, two mammoth shows in one, arrived this morning from Minneapolis via the Northern Pacific railroad for two performances at the fair grounds. The first will be given at 2 o'clock and the second at 8 p. m.

Like a veritable army, although on a most peaceful mission, the Buffalo Bill-Pawnee Bill combination entered Duluth. Seventy-eight 60-foot cars brought the 1,100 men and women and 700 horses whose services are required in the enterprise, which is twice the size of an ordinary circus.

Immediately after the work of unloading began and a long procession of wagons drawn by the finest of draught horses and mules, attracted the curious attention of thousands of pedestrians. Several hundreds of eager boys were early on "the lot," as the show grounds are termed in the parlance of the show world, volunteering their services in the erection of the twenty-two tents which house the various departments of the combination. Most of them were an interference, but in compliance with the strict rules of Maj. Gordon W. Lillie (Pawnee Bill), business director of the show, they were treated with tolerance by the "razor backs," and canvasmen and allowed to help to their hearts' delight, although most of the "help" was generally an interference.

In Minneapolis and St. Paul, whence the show comes, thousands were turned away at every performance, notwithstanding the seating capacity of the great arena in which the twenty-seven nationalities included in the entertainment do most of their "stunts."

No parade was given for a twofold reason. In the first place men, women and horses are working at full tension. When a parade is given and they are kept out in the morning sun for two or three hours, they return to the show grounds in a listless condition, with the result of indifferent subsequent performances, which is not fair to the public that has paid money for advertised merit. In the second place a parade is a detriment to the retail commercial interests of a city. The railroads bring in thousands of excursionists from the agricultural districts, and these line the sidewalks to await the parade, impeding traffic and preventing the merchants from enjoying their usual commercial benefits. Where no parade is given, the railroads, never altering their schedules, bring in the same number of excursionists, who, knowing there is nothing in the spectacular line to be seen before afternoon, disperse and visit the stores, making purchases which increase the profits of the merchants. Many letters of commendation have been received by Col. William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) and Maj. Lillie from the leading merchants of the important commercial centers of America, who realize the wisdom of the parade's abolition.

This is Buffalo Bill's positive farewell. He appears seven times in the arena at each performance, but will never return to any of the cities included in the present itinerary. He is here on his last visit to say goodbye once and for all to his friends, young and old. For many years the old scout has come here, always to find a cordial welcome. As he bowed from the arena, he merely bowed "good night." When he leaves this time it means "goodbye," as Buffalo Bill positively will never appear in this city again.

SEASON RESERVATIONS AT THE ORPHEUM.

Preparations have been made at the new Orpheum theater for season reservations.

In other cities on the Orpheum circuit, there are many patrons of the house who reserve two or four seats for a certain performance every week. In this way they avoid the trouble and annoyance of telephoning or going for their tickets and they always have the seats they desire. Already several applications have been made for such reservations, but no seats will be set aside until after the box office opens Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. There have been several applications to reserve boxes for the opening but these have been turned down, and all will be treated alike on Thursday.

Preparations are now practically complete for the opening. Morris Meyerfeld, Jr., president of the Orpheum circuit, is expected here from San Francisco, to attend the first performance. He will be accompanied by Martin Beck, general manager, and Charles E. Kohl, one of the heaviest stockholders in the company. These three men are three of the most prominent figures in the vaudeville business of the present day.

Yesterday a fire drill was held at the theater for the benefit of the employes of the house, and every exit in the building was thrown open thirty-five seconds after the alarm was given. This fire drill is a feature of all the Orpheum circuit theaters, each employe being assigned certain duties in case an alarm is given. The Duluth theater is probably one of the safest in the Northwest. It has exits to the open air on all four sides.

The last of the workmen are expected to leave the building today, and it will then be turned over to a corps of cleaners and sweepers, to be in readiness for the opening performance next Monday evening.

Mrs. Fiske.

In the history of the stage in America, certain characterizations have been associated in the public mind almost exclusively with their original creators and of these there is no example more conspicuous than the "Becky Sharp" of Mrs. Fiske. Temperamentally, almost ideally, suited to the role, Mrs. Fiske has brought to its delineating that keenness of analysis and that photographic fidelity of realization of which she is so complete a mistress, with the result that "Becky Sharp" as a stage figure will ever stand side by side with the "Becky Sharp" that Thackeray drew. Her performance is said to show to a nicety every shade of the volatile Becky's character, and to be one of the most deftly, and yet completely filled out pictures that mimetic art has ever painted. "Pillars of Society," Ibsen's scathing arraignment of hypocrisy and false standards of living, will also be presented during Mrs. Fiske's engagement.

GOOD CLOTHES NEEDED FOR "A GILDED FOOL."

Gus A. Forbes has ordered some very nifty clothes from his New York tailor and he is hoping that they arrive before the end of his present engagement. As Chauncey Short in "A Gilded Fool," Mr. Forbes could go to any length in swagger dressing for Chauncey is a new rich young chap who is quite crazy about the latest things in fashion.

Mr. Forbes has ordered the newest thing in waistcoats. It is of white satin with his monogram embroidered in palest lavender at the lower left hand side. "It's a very nifty thing in waistcoats," said Mr. Forbes today. "And although conservative dressers will probably not go very dippy over monagrammed waistcoats they are just the thing for Chauncey Short."

Chauncey is delighting Lyceum audiences this week. He is the sort of chap who becomes keen about the new features of beau like dressing. In the first act of "A Gilded Fool" he dresses himself with much care and when the job is apparently completed he turns to his valet and says "Bring me some rings, my hands are cold." His man brings the rings and Chauncey plies them on, but later when Margaret eyes them with disfavor he takes them off and gives them away with the resolve never to wear them again.

Incidentally the women of the company are wearing some lovely gowns this week, as the play is laid in New York society life and the action permits of the feminine folk wearing their prettiest. Miss Fiske's gowns are not exactly pretty, but they make a hit.

"A Gilded Fool" will be given every evening except Saturday. A special Friday matinee will be given in place of the regular Saturday afternoon performance and a picture of Mr. Forbes and the company will be presented the guests. The season's engagement closes with the Sunday afternoon and evening performances.

Has Peppermint Farm.

Miss Blanche Douglas, leading woman of H. E. Pierce & Co.'s Associate Players, who open an engagement at the Lyceum next Monday in "The Squaw Man," is the only woman in the world to make a success of growing peppermint for the market, a business heretofore controlled exclusively by mere man. She has improved upon methods employed by the best growers in several instances, and her forty-acre farm near New Rochelle, N. Y., is one of the best mint producers in the world. Last season she employed eighteen men to care for the same, the crop being the largest she had ever raised since embarking in this interesting business some five years ago.

Miss Douglas is considered one of the best stock leading women in the country, having headed companies in nearly every important city. Last season Miss Douglas played opposite to Mr. Willard Mack in Salt Lake City. Miss Douglas will be seen in "The Squaw Man" next week.

If your "big think" just now is about clothes, you'll find "thought food" in plenty in the ads.

MARINE

SISTER SHIP TO THE OLCOTT

New Steamer William B. Dixon Will Be Launched Soon.

The steamer William B. Dixon, a sister ship of the William J. Olcott, the second of three new freighters that are being constructed for the Pittsburg Steamship company, will be completed some time the present week by the Great Lakes Engineering works. According to the officials of that concern, all that remains to be done is the fixing of the date for the launching of the vessel.

The new vessel is of a 12,000-ton type, 607 feet in length over all and has a beam of 58 feet. The depth of the boat is 32 feet.

The W. J. Olcott was launched last month and is almost ready for delivery. It is believed here that the Olcott will be placed in service the present season. The W. P. Palmer is the third of the vessels that are being constructed for the Pittsburg company. It is expected that the Palmer will be ready for launching in a month.

PROMOTIONS ARE MADE.

Resignation of T. H. Little Causes General Shift in Customs Force.

A number of changes in the personnel of the force in the Duluth customs office have been made as the result of the resignation of T. H. Little, deputy collector of the port and cashier of the department. W. S. Petty has been chosen to succeed Mr. Little. Donald C. McKenzie, for a number of years customs inspector on the steamer America, will succeed Mr. Petty on the dock.

C. V. Carr, who has been wireless operator on the D. G. Kerr of the Wolvin line is scheduled to take Mr. McKenzie's place. He has not yet taken the civil service examinations, but will be appointed to act as customs inspector at once, and will take the examinations this fall. He will act as wireless operator for the United Wireless at the same time.

WILL OPEN BIDS FOR DREDGING.

Bids will be opened tomorrow by the United States engineer's office here, for the dredging of 94,000 cubic yards of dirt at Portage Lake. It is estimated that the job will come to approximately $20,000. The bids will be opened tomorrow morning, and according to the statements of the engineer's office, work will be started on the dredging just as soon as the contract is awarded.

RAILROADS

FAILS TO FIX UP TERMS.

Attorney Seeks Vainly for Adjustment of Millers' Rates.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 17.—J. H. Marble, attorney for the interstate commerce commission, who came here from Washington in an effort to settle differences between railroads and Ohio valley shippers and millers regarding the revision of milling and shipping-in-transit rules, failed to bring about an amicable adjustment and another conference will be held here in September. If a satisfactory settlement is not made then it is said the interstate commerce commission will be asked to settle the whole question.

After Sept. 10, they will be at home at Calgary, Alberta, where Mr. Weaver will be connected with the land department of the Canadian Pacific Railway company. Miss Munro is well known in Duluth.

Murders Man With Shears.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—During a quarrel today between two prisoners at the city prison, commonly known as the "Bridewell," William Meyers was stabbed with a pair of shears and instantly killed by William Jones. Both are negroes.

"He made me so mad that I just grabbed the shears and made a plunge at him," explained Jones.

The weapon reached Meyers' heart. He was serving a sentence of one year, while Jones was in for ninety days.

MUST BE CORRECTED.

While the county board of equalization faces a problem of great difficulty in the equalization of the assessments in the city of Duluth, it is one that must be met and solved.

Though the city assessor had a year and a half in which to make the original assessment, the board has but a few days to bring it to such a state of equality that it is likely to stand the scrutiny of the courts. Yet that must be done, for on its face it is doubtful if the assessments would survive a test in court, so gross are many of the inequalities that have developed.

It is impossible to leave untouched the most glaring of the inequalities that exist, and if these were all the problem would be easy. After a few days' study, however, members of the board report that their task practically involves doing the work over again if anything like a reasonably just assessment is to be made.

And such an assessment must be made if the city does not wish to have its tax collections delayed by lawsuits precipitated by those who are injured by the unequal assessments that are said to exist.

THE MINNESOTA STATE FAIR.

By the way, don't forget to consider the attractions offered by the Minnesota state fair when you plan your September doings The fair will be held during the week beginning Sept. 5, and it will be crowded full of entertainment, pleasure and profit.

The Minnesota state fair has long been acknowledged to be the greatest state fair in the country, and this year, under the reorganized board of managers, it promises to be bigger and better than ever before. Charles P. Craig of Duluth, a new member of the board, has charge of the department of agriculture, which is the backbone of the fair, and it is said that his efforts will result in making that important division more fully representative than it ever has been before—which was to be expected of Mr. Craig.

The program of entertainment is too long and too varied to be named here, but it is enough to say that it offers something for every taste, and that those who go to the fair—and all should go who can—may be assured that it will be well worth their while.

LABOR AND POLITICS.

The labor unions of this country have for years pursued a policy of nonpartisanship. Members might belong to any party they pleased, but officially the labor organizations preserved an aloofness from party politics that has seldom been broken.

It has been the idea of Samuel Gompers, for years the active head of the American Federation of Labor, that it was enough to support labor's friends in whatever party they might be, and that while the federation might reasonably take action upon policies, it should never take official part in party campaigns.

Whether this policy was correct or not, of late there has been a tendency to break away from it. The ranks of organized labor are permeated with Socialism, many workers having come to the conclusion that neither of the old parties offers any remedy for the economic injustices that prevail, and that privilege seems about as safe under the government of one party as it is under the government of another. However, until recently there has been little prospect of an official indorsement of Socialism by organized labor, and perhaps there is no such prospect now.

However, the Chicago Federation of Labor is about to refer to its members the important question of what that body should do in politics, and the referendum is based on the proposal of the federation's political action committee that the organization should go actively into politics.

These three questions are to be submitted:

Shall organized labor indorse and co-operate with the Socialist party?
Shall organized labor form an independent labor party?
Will you abide by the majority vote given on these questions?

There is nothing here about retaining the old Gompers policy of "rewarding our friends and punishing our enemies." The proposal is a clear cut alternative between affilliation with the already organized Socialist party and the formation of a new labor party, independent of all existing parties.

It may be that by indifference to the referendum the members of the Chicago federation will indicate their preference to let matters drift along as they have in the past. It may be, on the other hand, that economic pressure has created such eagerness among the workers to better their condition that lively interest will be taken in the referendum and a full vote will be called out.

In the latter event the referendum will be exceedingly interesting and its result will be watched with keenest concern. The workers of the country as a rule take strong and intelligent interest in political and economic questions. A man proposing a reactionary economic doctrine in a labor union meeting would experience about as intelligent a cross-questioning and debate as he would find anywhere. The union laborers and the farmers of this country are in many respects the best equipped thinkers upon such subjects to be found outside of educational circles.

The alternative that is being laid before such a jury, therefore, is unusually and piquantly thought-compelling. We shall be greatly interested in the result of that referendum.

ROOSEVELT REBUFFED.

Reading between the lines, it seems rather clear that President Taft had an idea that by making Roosevelt temporary chairman of the New York Republican state convention, he could at one stroke cement the breach in the party and heal its wounds.

The "old guard," however, had control of the state central committee, and by a vote of twenty to fifteen it rejected the Colonel, and then by a unanimous vote picked Vice President Sherman, smug, sleek typification of the partnership between greedy big business and corrupt commercial politics.

Mr. Taft is indulging in a vain hope if he thinks "harmony" is possible. The breach between the progressive and reactionary forces in the Republican party is not to be bridged. It is an irreconcilable conflict for a place which it is absolutely impossible for both wings to occupy at the same time.

On the whole, the rebuff of Roosevelt by the "old guard" is pretty good news. It will help bring matters to an issue. It will tend to fix the place of Roosevelt in the conflict, by forcing him to take definite stand on the side of the progressives.

Several things may happen to the progressives in the Republican party. They may be defeated and thrown out, as the organization would like to do; they may—though that is a remote possibility—gain dominancy in the party organization; they may sheer off and form a new party; or they may join the Democratic party.

One thing, however, is certain: the situation cannot remain as it is. No party can exist long when half of it is pulling ahead and half is pulling back.

A DIFFERENCE OF OPINION.

It is curious what a difference of opinion there is between the majority and minority members of the senate committee on the cost of living. The majority, made up of reactionary Republicans not one of whom emits a single gleam of progressive tendencies, went three times around Robin Hood's barn to show that the high cost of living is due to anything but the tariff and the unregulated trusts, and then went back around three times more to show that the cost of living isn't high, anyway.

The report of the minority, published in The Herald last evening, says that the tariff and the trusts are the two chief malefactors, and that "they are of our own creation or permission."

That sounds like the result of an honest attempt to find out what is the matter. The majority report sounded suspiciously like a labored attempt to cover up the real trouble.

THE SURPLUS IN THE STATE TREASURY.

Minnesota is feeling pretty fat and prosperous these days, with a big surplus stored away in its treasury and so much money on hand that it will not be necessary to levy much of a state tax for next year outside of the taxes fixed by law.

We would call to the attention of those who are jubilating over it, however, the fact that this surplus came into being between sessions of the legislature.

Also, we would commend to their consideration the fact that it is a pretty long and deep surplus that is able to exist longer than the next session of the legislature. In fact, the state will be lucky indeed if that surplus is spent wisely, not to speak of honestly.

A surplus is an excellent thing for an individual, but it always seems to be a bad thing for a public organization like a state, a county, a school district or a city. It tempts to extravagance. Too often it tempts to corruption. For instance, Pennsylvania, by a system of indirect taxation, piled up a handsome surplus in its state treasury, and then built a state capitol. Before the nasty mess was sealed up, the treasury was drained and the jails were full of public officials, while others escaped jail only by taking refuge in suicides' graves.

The best way to have a state, a county, a city or a school district is to keep it a little "hard up." Not really poor, but in such shape that it has to figure anxiously to make receipts balance expenditures. Spending other people's money is the easiest thing in the world, and when there is a lot of it to be spent it is very dangerous.

There is another danger, too, that in spending this surplus the legislature may place the state upon a new scale of expenditure that it will be hard getting down from again, and that will mean higher state taxes than ever after the surplus is gone.

Some are predicting that the surplus, with the new state revenues that created it, will result in making it possible to abolish the direct state tax altogether.

It is to be hoped that that will never come about. Tax theorists, a few years ago, advocated raising all state revenues by indirect means and abolishing the direct state tax. It was due to such ideas that the tax amendment recently grafted into the Minnesota Constitution was proposed. Now, however, after there has been opportunity for experiment, taxation experts pretty generally advocate retaining the direct state tax, even though it be made a small one. Pennsylvania, it must not be forgotten, has no direct state tax.

The value of the direct state tax is two-fold: It keeps the state interested in local assessments and it keeps the individual taxpayer interested in what is done with the state's money.

If there is no state tax the state loses interest in local assessments, which give powerful local interests a chance to induce too-liberal local officials to lower their assessments.

If there is no direct state tax the individual taxpayer, paying nothing directly into the state treasury, loses his interest in state economy. He forgets, of course, that even though indirect taxation provides all the state's money, the consumer pays it just the same through the rates he pays to railroads and other corporations upon which the indirect taxes are levied.

"BEATING THE BEEF TRUST."

To the Editor of The Herald:

Your editorial quotes John H. Schofield, secretary of the United Butchers of America, to the effect that an attempt will be made to organize independent co-operative slaughter houses, rendering plants and tanneries, and also states, "this movement will enable the retail butcher to operate independently. We purpose to kill all our cattle and to market the by-products. With the great profit that would accrue from the by-products we would be able to retail meat to the consumer at least 50 per cent cheaper than the prices now asked, and still make a good profit."

The tenor of the article seems to be based upon the idea on the part of Mr. Schofield, that the retail butchers shall form a trust of their own in opposition to the beef trust, buying direct from first hands, cattle on the hoof, etc., establish their own stockyards for the slaughter and distribution of fresh meats, etc, the assumption being that the retailers would save enormously through such methods of independent buying. To me this idea seems to verge upon the ridiculous. Those who know anything about the operations of the beef trust and their finances are aware of the fact that the packers have at their command fully $1,000,000,000 worth of capital. Their interests are not only in beef, but also in railroads, and banks, and real estate, etc. One need not go a stone's throw to also find how intimate the relations are between the beef trust, the oil trust and the sugar trust. They are all parts of the same brood. Does Mr. Schofield seriously believe that he can line up the retail butchers of America to compete with the beef trust? Is he not aware of the fact that an attempt on a small scale was made in Kansas City some years ago by the butchers of that city? Does he remember what the Armour Packing company did to the retailers at the time? The writer admits that even at this late date there is room for more slaughtering establishments and knows that the beef trust interests won't worry very much over the trade that these independent butchers would get for themselves. But, speaking from a knowledge of the meat business, having been in it myself, I deny absolutely that the independent slaughtering establishments would be able to sell 50 per cent cheaper to the consumers, and make a margin out of it themselves. The retailer is not in business from a humanitarian standpoint. He is in it only for the profits he can make out of it. Furthermore, it is a well known fact that independent establishments see to it that they squeeze as high a price out of the consumer for the products they handle as do the trusts.

The purpose of Mr. Schofield is not one of a nature that aims to bring about material benefits for the consumer. Of course, the principal of cooperation is in line with modern evolution. The tendency of the time is towards centralization of effort, maximum of results, minimum of waste. The time is almost ripe for the consumer as a consumer to go into business on his own account and organize the distributive vocations along lines that will enable him to get all of the profits that now go to the retailers. The interest of the retail merchant, whether operating as an individual, or in combination with others is diametrically opposed to the interest of the ultimate consumers. The most costly factor of present day distribution of commodities is the middleman's part of it. Real co-operation is the kind that will benefit all of the people, a combination that will unite producer and consumer into one common bond. Nothing else will do, nothing else is practicable to present day needs.

RANK INJUSTICE IN SIDEWALK ASSESSMENTS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I have been trying for some time to find some reason or logic in the present method of making assessments for sidewalks on the avenues in the more central part of the city, and on the streets in West Duluth, that is, where the sidewalk is not in front of the lot assessed but along the side. I have not been able to find any reason for the present procedure, and take occasion to bring it before the people through your Open Court column, in hope that some explanation may be forthcoming.

As you are doubtless aware, when a sidewalk is laid by the city as described, beside the lot, the whole cost of the assessment is thrown upon the lot owner nearest the street. The owners of lots toward the center of the block bear no share of the expense. It is different when a street assessment is made. Then, while the corner lot owner pays more, as is right, than the others, property owners through to the center of the block bear a share of the expense which is supposed to be proportionate to their benefit from the improvement.

Why is this different? Simply because the street assessment on one lot would be confiscatory in a large number of cases, while a mere sidewalk assessment is not. There is no difference in principle. The benefit to the central lot owner is just as real when a sidewalk is installed as it is when the street is paved. Yet he bears no share of the expense, simply because in a majority of cases the corner lot owner can stand it.

That is true, I say, in a majority of cases. But there are a lot of cases where it is a rank injustice. For example, in the western part of the city, West Duluth, the lots are only twenty-five feet in width instead of fifty, as uptown. Their value is much less by virtue of their situation, and then is cut in two by the size of the lot. To require a lot owner who holds a 25-foot corner lot in a remote section of the city to pay for a concrete walk beside his property is often practically confiscatory. I never heard of a case where this was done, but supposing a man owned a 10-foot strip next the street, would the total cost of the improvement be assessed to him? To be consistent with the other policy, he would be required to pay the whole cost of the sidewalk.

It seems to me that some change should be made in this system of assessment. A PROPERTY OWNER.

SAFETY DEVICES FOR FERRY BRIDGE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Would it not be well, from time to time, as repairs or changes are being made on the aerial bridge, to make it as far as possible fireproof? For should it be struck by a passing boat, or should a fire start while the car was loaded and over the water, a panic would surely occur, and there would be no means at hand to take care of the crowd. The car is far from being fireproof and is just as liable to take fire from its own electrical equipment as a street car, or by the flaming gasoline of one of the many automobiles that cross each day. The fire department records of this city and of others show fires from these causes.

It should be equipped with about the following: Fifty life-preservers, several fire buckets with long ropes, two or three axes, several fire extinguishers and rope or other ladders long enough to reach to boats in the water below. CITIZEN.

Profits of the Home Garden.

Atchison Globe: This morning S. R. Beebe went into his garden and spent an hour digging 5 cents' worth of potatoes from two rows. Then he was compelled to pay 10 cents to have his shoes cleaned on coming downtown.

THE OTHER WOMAN.

Smart Set: It was two months since Mr. Cortwright had died suddenly while downtown—died before his wife, hastily sent for, could reach his side. She had never since seen the little woman into whose home her dying husband had been borne, and whose word of sympathy as they met at the door had so reached the heart of the sorrowing Mrs. Cortwright. For two months the stricken woman had kept herself alone, apart from the world, in her silent home on the avenue—the home whose every luxury spoke to her of the dead man.

During their life together he had been calmly courteous, never evidencing a love that went beyond his conception of "what was proper." Sentiment had no place in his mind or heart, and he was proud of the fact. When her heart had found, too late, its chance for happiness she had put it aside; but her loyalty had brought no word of appreciation from her husband. She had merely done what was proper, he said. Still, for these two months she had mourned him sincerely.

Now a note from Mrs. Cortwright's lawyer asked her to come to his office to consider some final questions concerning the estate.

Janet went to see him. For a while he talked details of mere routine. Then, "Another thing," he added. "I am sorry that I have to tell you, Mrs. Cortwright, but—a woman has been here to see me. She asked for money—promised her, she said."

"A woman!" Janet murmured. Then the truth broke over her.

"She had a paper to show. It proved the promise.

"What did she look like?" Janet asked.

The lawyer had expected something else. "She was a small woman," he answered.

"Dark hair, comely little figure, lurking eyes?" said Janet very rapidly.

"You have seen her, then?" the lawyer asked her in surprise.

"I kissed her," Janet said.

He did not know exactly what to say. "Well—about the money?" he ventured.

"Give it to her. Give her all she asks." A strange smile swept over Janet's face. "Let us do the proper thing," she added.

"I hardly think the woman will be troublesome."

Janet did not seem to hear. "Money —" she murmured. "I could forgive her if only she had loved him."

She went home to her mansion on Riverside Drive. There was a tumult in her. She rushed up to her own boudoir. Her tall cheval glass met her coming. Her pulse was beating wildly as she looked upon that comely form of hers demurely dressed in mourning. Fiercely she felt the horrid incongruity of what had been her life. She tore off her pretty mourning hat, stabbed it with a hatpin and flung it far across the room. Then she looked up and down that black form in the mirror and laughed uproariously.

The Future of Insurgency.

Harper's Weekly: What is to be the final outcome of their movement so far as party politics, party divisions, are concerned? One thing at least is reasonably certain. Insurgency cannot continue indefinitely to retain its present character; that is to say, it cannot continue indefinitely a mere insurrection or revolt inside the Republican party. Considered as a struggle for control and direction of that party, it must either fail or succeed. If it fails, that party will remain the conservative party of the country—the party of property, the party, as the phrase is, of order. If it wins, the character and animus and policy of the whole party will be so changed that there will be a question of whether or not it can still be regarded as the true conservative party of the country. In that case, and in that case only, the true insurgents may be expected to remain in it. For if the stand-pat faction, the Aldrich-Cannon faction, shall continue to control it and dictate its policies, it is hardly conceivable that men like Cummins and La Follette and Bristow will continue indefinitely to belong to it; for in their warfare against the leadership and those policies they have fairly burned their bridges behind them. They are liberals, and liberals of a radical rather than a moderate sort. In all modern representative governments the permanent party division is pretty sure to be, broadly speaking, between liberals and conservatives. Sooner or later our own party divisions will doubtless take that normal character; and when they do it is impossible to doubt that these Western leaders and their following will be found on the liberal side, while men like Aldrich and Cannon and their following will be on the conservative side, whatever the mere party names may be. It probably depends largely on the results of the present effort to regenerate and purify the old Democratic organization whether Democracy or insurgency will give form and leadership to the true liberal party in the alignment of the long future.

The Gentleman's Game.

If you ever quailed under the withering glance
Of a man with a cap and a pipe
And a drooping mustache and some white flannel pants,
You would feel like a penn'orth of tripe.
And the best way to feel like a penn'orth of tripe
Is to butt into him with the cap and the pipe,
At the tea interval when he's just about ripe,
And say something tart about cricket.

If you want to be frozen stiff where you stand
When it's ninety degrees in the shade,
Just swarm on a bunch of the Derbyshire brand
Where this form of religion is played—
Just say it out loud so's they'll hear what you say,
Cut loose in a coarse and irreverent way
'Bout something you don't understand in the play—
Some flippant remark about cricket.

If you want to be held in the deepest contempt
As a rotter, a mucker, a cad,
Just come to the wicket and make an attempt
To put their old game to the bad.
Just make it a point to declare that you know
Nothing about and care less for the show,
Then bring down your hoof on some Britisher's toe
With satirical cracks about cricket.

It's the rummiest form of the tail-twisting thing,
The vulgarest kind of display,
To the eyes of the singers of "God Save the King"
Who are much on the popping crease lay—
This attempt to make gibes on this sacred antique
That starts in on Monday and lasts through the week,
This abstract idea of sport, so to speak—
This condition of mind they call cricket.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

•••The stone quarries at Fond du Lac, as at other yards around Duluth, are employing more men this year than ever in their history. The three at Fond du Lac now give about 150 men steady employment, besides the railway crews taking away the stone.

•••F. A. Bean, the Faribault miller, has made a contract with the St. Louis Land Improvement company to build a mill for him at the company's townsite. For about five months he has been endeavoring to get some Duluth or Superior company or syndicate to put up the cash for a mill.

•••Nearly all the papers that have commented on the late visit of Proctor Knott to Duluth have rolled out the phrase "Zenith City of the Unsalted Seas," always crediting to the witty Kentuckian. It may therefore be of interest to again state that Knott never used the phrase, in fact, had never heard of it when he delivered his speech in 1871, though it was coined nearly a year before. Dr. Thomas Foster, then publishing the Duluth Minnesotian, first evolved the taking title, and its reception was so flattering that it at once stuck. Dr. Foster was father of C. H. and E. H. Foster, still residents of Duluth, and he himself was a short time ago publisher of a paper in Alexandria, Ky.

•••In addition to the steel plant, the Lancaster Steel Roof company's plant now located at Lancaster, Ohio, will be moved to Duluth and located at the Ironton suburb. This company now employs twenty-five men, but with its new plant at this city will employ at least 100 men. It manufactures steel roofing in sheets eight feet long and two feet wide.

•••Bishop McGolrick is determined to keep abreast of the times at every point. The latest venture is a reading room in Catholic association hall, where all who wish may while away an occasional leisure hour at some interesting reading.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Teddy and His Tricks.

Litchfield Independent: It is given out that Theodore Roosevelt will make campaign speeches in Massachusetts in aid of Senator Lodge for re-election, and in Indiana for Senator Beveridge. As Senator Lodge is a standpatter and Beveridge an insurgent, it looks as though the foxy ex-president is trying to keep solid with both elements of his party.

Explains the Uppers.

Winona Independent: The United States Shoe Machinery company has a capital of $20,850,518 and its profits for eight years, ending with the last day of the year 1909, amounted to the gigantic sum of $28,411,135, or more than 135 per cent or 17 per cent per annum. That helps some to understand how it is that some other folks are on their uppers.

Right Church, Wrong Pew.

Perham Enterprise: If Senator Crane wished to learn how the people of Minnesota feel towards Taft and Aldrich, he should have gone outside the confines of the Twin Cities.

Little Falls Transcript: Almost anyone can evolve a theory to account for the increased cost of living, but what the country wants is a reliable and innocuous recipe for reducing it.

But You Can't Always Place Him.

Moose Lake Star-Gazette: It is sometimes very difficult to find your congressman when you visit Washington, but it is always easy to find him when he is at home seeking re-election.

Ann and Mother Earth.

Red Wing Republican: A great controversy is now raging among scientists as to whether the earth is 50,000,000 or 70,000,000 years old. This has the stupendous conundrum, "How old is Ann?" beaten to a frazzle.

The Judiciary and the Bosses.

Hinckley Herald: It is to the interest of all, to note closely the personalities and characteristics of the men who are now being appointed as supreme judges of the United States. In recent years there have been times where justice was really more uncertain and delayed than it would be in the Turkish empire. Our judges should not be connected with the boss business in politics.

An Inveterate Borrower.

Elk River Star-News: The state treasury is overflowing with ready money, the amount on hand being near $3,000,000. In a couple or three months the state will be borrowing money, however.

What Is Insurgency?

Judson C. Welliver in Hampton's: It must be kept very clearly in mind that the new insurgency—the insurgency that has taken on its present form and force since Roosevelt left the country—is not partisan. It cannot be partisan, because there is no party that fits it. Just now it is looked upon too commonly as a revolt of Republicans against their party's leadership. But if you will go back to the people you will find that it is as much Democratic as Republican. Texas, torn by Bailey and anti-Bailey factionism; Florida, with Broward and Taliaferro fighting for control; Tennessee, with party lines destroyed in the contest for and against the Patterson machine—these all tell the story of the same inspiration and purpose that have produced Cummins and Dolliver in Iowa, Bristow in Kansas, Foss in Massachusetts, La Follette in Wisconsin, and Beveridge in Indiana.

No, insurgency is not a party affair. It is a national arousal of conscience It is the world-old fight of the many for an even chance with the few. It is a contest of classes as truly as was the fight for Magna Charta; a contest of the unprivileged against the privileged. It proves that the world moves.

Insurgency recognizes that political feudalism has been succeeded by industrial feudalism. It would arouse the people to realize this and to remedy it. It is optimistic enough to believe that if the people of King John's day could win freedom, those of the twentieth century can do as much.

We will understand the real significance of the new movement when we realize that all these insurgents, by whatever name they call themselves, today are fighting for the same end: The overthrow of money control of our affairs.

Should the Judge Be a Dummy?

Chicago Record-Herald: A New York appellate court has reversed a verdict on the ground that the trial judge made certain improper remarks during the progress of the case before him. He had cross-examined witnesses in a way to show his distrust of their testimony. He had rebuked counsel for "enlarging and enlarging," indulging in flippant and foolish talk and assuming that the judge was a dummy and would not open his mouth to direct the trial into its orderly channel.

Why should a judgment be reversed for such reasons as these, if as a matter of fact the evidence sustained it? If the trial judge was right, the rebuked lawyer had no grievance, and neither had his client.

In England the trial judge takes a very active part in the handling of the case. He is entitled to question witnesses and admonish counsel. We may not be ready to give judges the same right and power they enjoy in England, but to insist on their being mere dummies, reduces them to the position of dummies.

Our judges notoriously stand a great deal of nonsense and clowning from attorneys They are deterred by fear of "error" and reversals from enforcing dignity and decorum, or even ordinary efficiency, in the conduct of the cases. Strong men on the bench can get better than average results in spite of "exceptions" and objections, but strong men are rare. Provision should be made by statute against reversals on account of judicial remarks which are warranted and which do no real injustice to the losing side.

"Oh, you forgot, eh?" she sneered "Well, I'm going to teach you a lesson that you won't forget soon. You have proposed to me for the last time."

When the harnessmaker is strapped he buckles down to business.

Farmers are compelled to get in their hay before it begins to rain pitchforks.

Perhaps a spinster has refused more than one opportunity to make herself unhappy.

A man may be able to suffer in silence as long as he has no occasion to visit a dentist.

No woman cares to play second fiddle; nothing less than the title of first assistant violinist will satisfy her.

Isn't it queer how much better looking some women get to be shortly after they break into the widow class?

It sometimes happens that the man who is imbued with the idea that he is his brother's keeper can't even keep himself.

THE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL

Begins its seventh successful year on Sept. 6th with a complete staff of specially trained teachers, who cover the work of the grades together with those studies that fit for college—geology, physics, chemistry, history, English, French, German, Latin and Greek. It prepares for business and for life also.

The classes are small and the course of study broad and elastic. The needs of the students are paramount, and a disciplined mind rather than an informed mind is its aim. Its teachers, except in the primary grades, are men.

We have satisfied others; we will satisfy you.

Minnesotans' Protests to Indian Bureau Win Delay in Order.

Washington, Aug. 17.—Saloons and liquor interests affected by the recent order of the bureau of Indian affairs extending prohibition on ceded Indian lands in Minnesota, have been given until October 15 to comply with its provisions. The original date set for its enforcement was Sept. 15. The order gave rise to numerous protests, coupled with requests for its revocation or modification, and Acting Secretary Pierce of the interior department postponed the date of its operation.

The order refers to lands adjacent to the Leech Lake and White Earth Indian reservations forbidding the introduction of intoxicating liquors in order to protect the Indians. The principal protests have been received from Moorhead, Minn.

ETHEL ROOSEVELT HAS GONE TO GLACIER PARK.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 17.—Miss Ethel Roosevelt, daughter of Former President Roosevelt, was in Minneapolis recently. Miss Roosevelt and her party slipped through so quietly that it was not until they had arrived at Dalton, Mont., that it was known that she had been here. The party passed through Minneapolis last Friday, en route for Glacier National park, Mont.

ROOSEVELT LAUDS SOUTH

Sends Letter to Southern Commercial Congress Official.

New York, Aug. 17.—In response to an invitation to address the Southern Commercial congress at Atlanta in the spring of 1911, Theodore Roosevelt has sent a letter to Charles Hall Davis, chairman of the congress, at Petersburg, Va., in part as follows:

"My Dear Sir: It is not possible as yet for me to answer definitely; but I believe that on my trip to California next March, I shall pass through the Southern states, and I hope that it can be arranged that the Southern Commercial congress then hold its meeting in one of the cities through which I am able to pass. If so, it will be a very real pleasure to me to be present and to say all that I can in behalf of this admirable movement.

"More and more the former misunderstanding about the South is tending to disappear, and you and your associates have set in motion a force that will have much to do with the complete dissipation of this misunderstanding.

Real "Solid South."

"Every good American must hope to see a real 'Solid South,' in the sense of solid business prosperity in the South; for all good Americans now realize that the prosperity of any part of the country helps the prosperity of the whole, and the prosperity of the whole will grow faster and stand on the most durable foundations only when we effectively realize that the words 'south,' 'north,' 'east' and 'west' have only a geographical significance.

"This nation is thrilling with ideals at this very moment; and these ideals relate to constructive work in the future. The South must do its full share in realizing it, and from now on it must participate in full in the solution of all the national problems. The statue of Gen. Lee, in Confederate uniform, stands in the halls of congress today, and his memory is honored no more by the South than it is by the North, and in the North and in the South alike, I think we are now learning to apply absolutely in good faith the great words of Grant, 'Let us have peace.'

Part Played in Nation.

"The part played by the South in the constructive statesmanship of our nation during all our earlier years was of incalculable weight and value. I firmly believe that the time has now come when the South's influence will again be felt, not only in constructive statesmanship, but in the enormous field of constructive business endeavor. No part of our country has seen much more progress than the South has made in the last twenty years along material lines; and I believe the next twenty years will see a greater progress.

"You need more people; but like the rest of the country, you need that those people should be of the right sort. Feeling this way, I naturally sympathize most cordially with every purpose of the Southern Commercial congress in its efforts to make the South know itself; and to make both the South and the nation realize that a greater nation will be developed from the development of a greater South.

"With hearty good wishes, faithfully yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

COSTS $7,000 TO FIGHT FIRES

Daily Expense of Work in Glacier Park Is Estimated.

Washington, Aug. 17.—Because of the serious forest fire situation in the new Glacier National park in Montana, Acting Secretary Pierce of the interior department today requested Chief Clerk Clement S. Wicker, who is now in the Yellowstone National park on a tour of inspection, to go to the new park to assist Supervisor Logan in handling the situation. Because of the extensive acreage of the Glacier, it is difficult for one man to supervise the fighting of the fires.

The cost of fighting fires on the national forests in the Missoula district is $7,000 a day, according to estimates which have been receved by the forest service.

The Best Hour of Life

is when you do some great deed or discover some wonderful fact. This hour came to J. R. Pitt, of Rocky Mt., N. C., when he was suffering intensely, as he says, "from the worst cold I ever had. I then proved to my great satisfaction, what a wonderful Cold and Cough cure Dr. King's New Discovery is. For, after taking one bottle, was entirely cured. You can't say anything too good of a medicine like that." It's the surest and best remedy for diseased lungs, Hemorrhages, LaGrippe, Asthma, Hay Fever—any Throat or Lung Trouble. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

SAY MEN SET FIRES TO GET JOBS FIGHTING THEM.

Portland, Or., Aug. 17.—Forest service officials are known to have obtained direct evidence that serious forest fires in the Northwest have been set by men who later secured employment as fire-fighters. It is believed this became a common practice in many districts.

ADMITS KILLING HIS WIFE WITH HAMMER.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 17.—Philip Ashby last night sought the sheriff of Benton county at Camden and confessed to murdering his wife and burning the body with their home in this county. He says he brained his wife with a hammer, and claims he was demented at the time. Neighbors had believed his story that she was unable to escape from the burning house.

STATE CALLS ON WILEY TO TESTIFY

Chief Chemist Is Ordered to Obey By Higher Court.

Washington, Aug. 17.—National and state authorities clashed here yesterday over the benzoate of soda question when Dr. Harvey W. Wiley and several members of the bureau of chemistry declined to testify before a special commissioner for Indiana, which state is attemtping by court proceedings to prevent within its borders the manufacture and sale of foods containing benzoate of soda or any other except the so-called natural preservatives. An appeal to the supreme court of the District of Columbia, however, brought an order from Judge Barnard compelling Dr. Wiley and the others to testify.

When Dr. Wiley declared that federal experts could not be called upon in a state case, Attorney General Bingham appealed to the acting secretary of agriculture, who refused, after consultation with the solicitor of the department, to compel them to testify. Whereupon the appeal to the district supreme court was made.

CITY ATTORNEY KNOCKS SCHEME

Crookston Official Against Council Going Into Investigation Work.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—City Attorney Charles Loring told the council last night he was too busy with his other duties to embark into any investigating business, especially when spite work was back of charges made. This statement was made in dealing with charges sprung at a prior meeting that certain aldermen were interested in city contracts. He advised the council, if it desired to dig up illegal bills that had been allowed, to appoint an auditing committee to do the work. He did not believe that any claim was made that the bills paid heretofore to aldermen, or the bills held up at the last meeting were fraudulent, but on the contrary that the city had value received for every bill rendered. As a result of his attitude the bills for groceries for the poor, furnished by a firm in which Alderman Hughes is interested, and the bill for cement sidewalk intersections by a firm in which President of the Council Husse is interested, were ordered paid and the controversy ended. The council meets as a committee of the whole Friday evening to go over the plans and specifications for the paving to be done, after which the contracts will be awarded.

BEAR DITCHES AUTO IN THE MAINE WOODS.

Bangor, Me., Aug. 17.—Colliding with a large black bear in the highway in the town of La Grange, a motor car in which were Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Hopkins and John P. Fassett, all of New York, and Miss Marian Gordon of Philadelphia, was ditched by the roadside. The occupants escaped uninjured and the bear disappeared in the woods.

The car was running at high speed when the bear rose up on its haunches directly in the middle of the road. There was not room to pass and the car struck the surprised animal squarely, carrying it along growling on the hood of the car until a bad place in the road bounced it off. In falling the bear went under the wheels and the car was ditched.

As soon as the party discovered that the bear was as frightened as they were and was making tracks for the woods, they righted the car and proceeded to this city on their way to New York.

SCHOOL HISTORIES MUST BE INTERESTING.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—School histories which are limited to records and facts, presented in uninteresting style, are to be barred from Chicago schools, according to a notice from Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of schools and president of the National Educational association. Mrs. Young notified publishers that histories for use here must be written entertainingly and with an effort at literary merit and sparkle.

"I don't remember a line of the histories I studied," she declared, "and when I completed school and began reading interesting books, the facts thus presented made a much more lasting impression."

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE TO BE BURIED SATURDAY.

London, Aug. 17.—Florence Nightingale will be buried with the simplest ceremony, Saturday, at Wellow, Hampshire, where her parents are buried. A memorial service will be held at St. Paul's cathedral at noon, at which time the king will be represented. There will be a very large gathering of military men. The war office is arranging the details of this service.

Some of the newspapers have suggested that the body be borne through London on a gun carriage to the railway station to enable the public to testify to their respect for the "Angel of the Crimea."

BOY DRAGGED IN SEA TIED IN CANVAS SACK.

Mobile, Ala., Aug. 17.—The United States marshal has been authorized to arrest J. Henry Steeves of the fishing smack Arabella and the entire crew, charged with inflicting corporal punishment on John Roguls, a 15-year-old boy. The lad alleges that the master and crew marooned him on an uninhabited island in the Gulf of Mexico after beating him and dragging him in the sea behind the stern of the vessel, tied in a canvas sack.

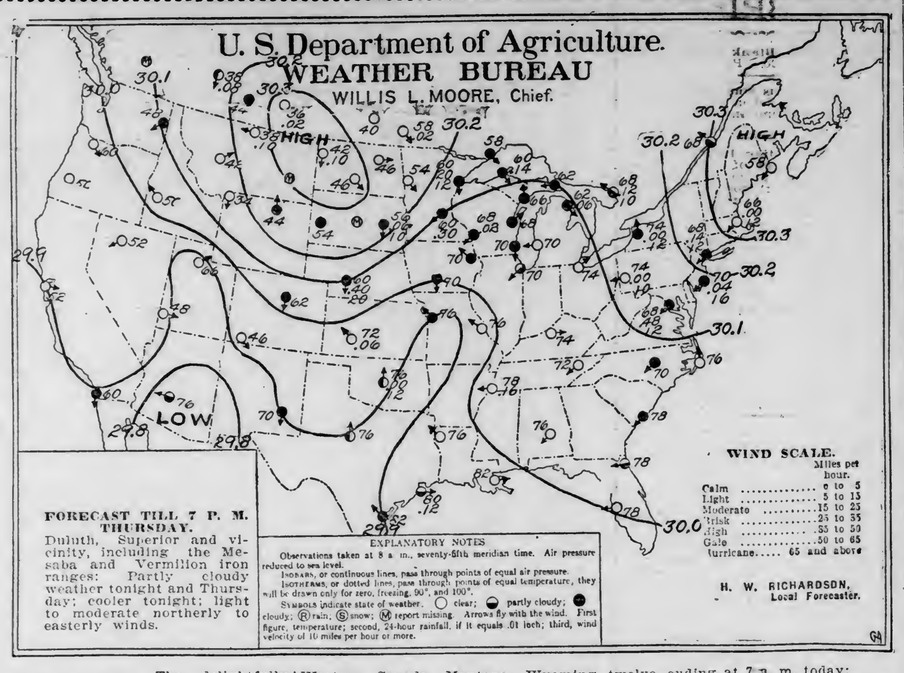
OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER



COLDER

The delightfully cool, clear weather continues, in spite of predicted showers. The clouds cleared away yesterday, and this morning broke fine and cool. The weather man looks for a little cooler weather tomorrow.

A year ago today it was fine and warm. The sun rose this morning at 5:06 and will set at 7:18, making fourteen hours and twelve minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The low pressure area central yesterday morning to the northward of Lake Superior has disappeared. During the last twenty-four hours, however, this disturbance, in connection with another overlying the extreme Southwest, caused light to copious showers in the northern lake region, Western Canada, Montana, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, Arkansas and Western Tennessee. The Northwestern high pressure has advanced its center to Western North Dakota and is attended by a low temperature condition, which covers all of Western Canada, Montana, Wyoming and the Dakotas. Frost occurred this morning at Yellowstone and Swift Current. Indications favor generally fair and cool weather at the Head of the Lakes until Friday morning."

WEST END ALUMNI MAY ORGANIZE

Former Students of Gustavus Adolphus College to Hold Reunion.

Efforts to Form Association Will Be Made in West End.

Efforts will be made at a reunion of former students of the Gustavus Adolphus college to be held Tuesday evening at the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church, Twenty-third avenue west and Third street, to form an alumni society for the northwestern part of the state. This alumni organization is to include graduates residing in Duluth, Superior and the ranges, as well as those living in Carlton county.

The reunion to be held Tuesday is being given under the auspices of the Kabita club of the West end church, which has issued invitations to all the former students in this district. After the program, which has been arranged, refreshments will be served by this society, in the church parlors.

In the northwestern part of the state there are several hundred former students of this college, many of whom are prominent professional and business men. At the reunion, it is expected that a large percentage of these will be present.

If the organization of the alumni can be made successful, it will be planned to hold annual reunions. Governor Eberhart, who is an alumnus of the Gustavus Adolphus college, will be elected an honorary member.

At the reunion, Rev. O. G. Olson, pastor of the West end church, will deliver the address of welcome. The literary and musical program will include speeches by Clarence Magney, Duluth; Peter Nehlin, Virginia; Mr. Sandquist, Carlton; Rev. O. Nelson, Superior; recitation by Mr. Bergquist of Bovey; reading by Miss Elizabeth Berg; festive poem by Hjalmar Swanson, and music by Prof. Lundholm of Duluth and Prof. Swanson of Superior.

CLUB WILL GO AFTER CHAMPIONSHIP TEAM.

At a meeting of the Adams Athletic association to be held Tuesday, plans will be made for the football team which will represent the organization this fall.

More than sixty members of the association have played ball, and nearly all of these are out after positions. With this number to pick from, it is believed tht the association can turn out a winning team.

A manager and a captain will be elected at this meeting, and then active steps will be taken to make up a championship team.

Only two of last year's players, Ed Nelson and Ralph Whittle, will not be with the team this year, they being out of the city on surveying crews. Otherwise, it is believed the team will line up as last year.

HOUSEHOLD REMEDIES

Which have stood the test of time deserve a place in the medicine chest of every family. Mothers are today administering to their children the remedies their grandmothers used.

For thirty years, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been curing the women of this country from the worst form of female ills, and merit alone could have stood such a test of time and won such an enviable record.

STUDENT-PREACHER TO ADDRESS CLUB.

The Men's club of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church will meet Friday evening at the church parlors, and Victor Lindeblad, a theological student, who has been an assistant during the summer to Rev. O. G. Olson, will give an address on "The Purposes of the Society". Conrad Swanson, a deacon of the church and a lay preacher, will also speak.

Beckman Laid Away.

Funeral services over the remains of John Beckman, who died at his home, 419 North Twentieth avenue west, were held this afternoon at 1:30 from the undertaking room of Olson & Crawford, and at 2 o'clock from the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church. Rev. O. G. Olson, pastor of the church, officiated. Interment was made at the Lutheran cemetery.

UNITED WORKMEN WILL PICNIC IN WEST END.

The annual picnic of the Ancient Order of United Workmen will be held tomorrow at Lincoln park. The state grand master workman is expected to deliver the principal address of the day. The program will include speeches by prominent Workmen, sports of all kinds, and a ball game between different lodges.

To Hold Lawn Social.

The Dorcas Society of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church will hold a lawn social tomorrow evening at Lincoln park.

RETURN TO WORK SEPT. 6

Schools Will Open Tuesday After Labor Day This Year.

Teachers Will Be Assigned to Different Schools Next Week.

Less than three weeks are left for the Duluth youngster to enjoy himself. Tuesday, Sept. 6, the day after Labor day, the schools of the city will be in full swing.

When the roll call is completed and returns are received at the superintendent's office next day, it is expected that close to 14,000 students will have been registered for work during the year. Last year the number ran well over 13,000 and at least 500 more are being prepared for this year.

Two new schools will be in operation, the new Washington building across from the high school, and the new Fairmont building, erected to replace the frame structure destroyed by fire last year. Both are thoroughly modern and will be complete to the smallest detail on the day school opens. With these two schools in operation Mr. Denfeld stated this morning that he did not believe there would be any congestion. The situation in the western part of the city, where the schools were required to take over the children from the Fairmont school will be relieved of this additional burden.

The assignment of teachers to the various buildings is not complete yet and the list will not be published until the latter part of next week. It is the aim of the school authorities to let the teachers know to which building they are assigned about ten days before the opening of school, and the early part of next week will be devoted to organizing the force. By Thursday every teacher will know to what school she is to be assigned.

The first teachers' meeting, which will be attended by practically the entire teaching force will be called in the assembly hall of the high school Saturday, Sept. 3, when the work for next year will be thoroughly discussed.

As far as is known at present, there will be no changes in the teaching staff at the Central high school except for the resignation of Principal George W. Buck and the installation of his successor, Prof. Leonard W. Young of Evansville, Ind. Mr. Young will arrive in Duluth ready for work about Aug. 25. It is rumored that on account of ill health, Prof. A. U. Crull of the history and civics department, will be unable to return to work here this fall, but the board of education has received no definite notice to this effect.

Changes in the teaching staffs in the various schools have been minimized as much as possible and most of the students will see familiar faces across the teacher's desks when they return for work. At present it is not expected that there will be any changes of the principals in the grade schools of the city.

To Remove Superfluous Hair

Dr. Duvall, the eminent physician, says: "I consider DeMiracle the only safe, sure and radical cure for that very common and objectionable trouble, superfluous hair." DeMiracle is totally different from the powders, pastes and other remedies, which simply break the hair off, making it grow heavier than before after each removal. Booklet containing full information of this remarkable treatment, with testimonials of physicians, surgeons, dermatologists, medical journals, prominent magazines and newspapers, will be mailed free, in plain sealed envelope, on request to DeMiracle Chemical Co., Park Ave. and 129th St., New York.

No honest dealer will offer a substitute on which he makes more profit. DeMiracle is sold at all good stores, including

OPEN STRONG; WEAK AT CLOSE

Coppers Decline in Sympathy With Amalgamated---Curbs Dull.

The copper market opened strong, but liquidation developed in Amalgamated and that stock declined slightly and then moved nervously within a narrow range for the remainder of the session. The action of this leader had a depressing effect on most of the other coppers which were nervous and erratic. Some of the strong stocks in which there are special features acted well despite the uncertain tone in the East.

The announcement that a copper combine was not in the process of formation put a slight damper on the market because of its sentimental effect. It will be remembered that last spring the professionals used the proposed combine as an argument on the bull side, but it was without the effect that had been expected of it.

The foreign visible copper supply on Aug. 15 was 96,727 pounds, a decrease of 2,512 pounds within the last two weeks. Sales of copper for domestic delivery recently have been moderately good and a decrease in the domestic supply is looked for this month. The international stock of red metal amounts to about 387,000,000 pounds, compared with 303,000,000 pounds a year ago, and increase of about 84,000,000 pounds. The copper trade is still hampered by an unwieldy supply above ground. Owing to the reduction in production in this country within recent weeks it is hoped that a big inroad will have been made into the combined American and European stocks before the end of the year.

The local market was somewhat duller than in the last few days. Offerings were extremely scarce and bidders did not care to raise their quotations on account of the spotted condition of the Eastern market. However, the specialties acted well and some of them scored fair advances. Red Warrior continued on its upward movement and closed at the day's high point. This stock sold at $3, the highest point in its latest reaction from the low levels during the recent depression which affected all stocks. Bids were in excess of offers. Amazon showed strength selling at $3.50 and then at $3.75. Keating was slightly stronger, selling early at 94c and then at 95c. Copper Queen sold at 29c, 30c and back to 29c. Dunn sold at $3.25, $3.31¼ and $3.25.

Butte Superior was traded in more heavily than at any time since the new stock came upon the market. Sales were made at $10.75 and $10.43¾. Calumet & Montana sold at $1.06¼ and Calumet & Corbin at 47c, Calumet & Sonora at $12.50, National at 24c, St. Mary's at 27c and North American at $3.

Amalgamated sold at $67.50, $67.12½, $68 and closed with sales at $67.50. Butte Ballaklava sold in Boston at $12, Butte Coalition at $19.75, $19.50 and $19.62½, Giroux at $7.25 to $7.12½, Greene at $7.75, North Butte at $30.50 to $31.25 to $30.50, Superior & Pittsburg at $12 to $12.12½.

SCHOOLS OPEN SEPT. 6.

Only Three Weeks of Vacation Remain for Superior Children.

The Superior schools will open this fall on Tuesday, Sept. 6, Monday, Sept. 5, being Labor day. The new high school will probably not be ready until about Sept. 16, and will not be opened until then, the students there having only one week's vacation at Christmas to equalize the school year. Nelson Dewey high school will open on Sept. 6 with the grade schools. The Wisconsin Point school project was abandoned at the meeting of the board last night, the report of the investigating committee showing that there are not enough children desirous of attending school in the vicinity to warrant its establishment.

COUNCIL MEETING.

Superior Aldermen Commence War on Railroads at Weekly Meeting.

The city council last evening unanimously ordered the city attorney to commence action at once requiring the railroads to vacate the street ends on the harbor now occupied by them. This is the first serious step in the campaign to break the strangle hold of the railroads on the harbor front.

Members of the Commercial club traffic commission were present at the council meeting and told of the work which was being done by the commission in regard to securing better rates than the present unfair ones to the Head of the Lakes. The council appointed a committee of three to confer with the commission and with the legal department on the question.

A resolution providing for the construction of a new bridge over the Nemadji river between the East end and Allouez was introduced by Alderman Idler and referred to the street committee.

Club Must Post Lights.

It is expected that a resolution will be introduced at the next meeting of the Superior council compelling the Gitchi Nadji club to keep danger lights posted at its breakwater in the upper harbor after dark. The breakwater is said to be a considerable danger to launches operating in the upper harbor. An investigation will also be made to see if the club has not extended its breakwater beyond the dock line, in which case it will have to be shortened.

W. J. Richards Here.

W. J. Richards, vice president and general manager of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal company was in Superior yesterday inspecting the new $1,000,000 coal dock of the company, which is nearing completion. He expressed himself as well satisfied with the work on the dock.

Road Done Oct. 1.

County Road Commissioner Morriset reported yesterday that the new "steel plant road" extending from a point west of South Superior to the approach to the new interstate transfer railway bridge over the St. Louis river at the steel plant site would be completed about Oct. 1. The road is considerably more than half done, including grading and bridging.

O'Malley-Mawdsley.

Miss Katherine O'Malley and William J. Mawdsley were married last evening at Sacred Heart cathedral at 7 o'clock. Rev. Father P. A. Lee performed the ceremony. Mr. Mawdsley is employed with the Great Northern Railway company here and Miss O'Malley has been employed by the People's Telephone company as chief operator.

Wed in Superior.

Joseph Fournier and Miss Jessie Babcock, both of Duluth, secured a marriage license this afternoon in Superior, and upon a special dispensation were married immediately by Judge Larson.

Four Officers Discharged.

Four patrolmen were discharged from the force today, not having secured confirmation to their appointment by the chief. The men were William Donbino, Nick Nason, Charles Halbert and Ed Angvick. Halbert is an old man on the force, having served several years. The other men had been on the force but a short period.

BRIEF INTERVIEWS WITH ZENITH CITY VISITORS

GREAT OPPORTUNITY FOR A BEAUTIFUL CITY.

Karl Rehorst, deputy mayor of Cologne, Germany, who was in the city yesterday with a group of students and professors from that city, said that Duluth has opportunities of city planning and development in the way of beautification such as are presented in few cities in the world.

When Mr. Rehorst talks of city planning and improvement he talks by the card, for as deputy mayor of Cologne he has charge of this department of municipal activity at home. With the hill, the bay and the ravines Duluth possesses charms that makes his hands itch to get to work.

"As in all the American cities I have visited," he said, "I think you make a mistake in laying out your streets so straight. They are like streaks up the hill, when in my opinion they should be winding avenues. Your parks are beautiful. Everywhere in America so far, I have found lovely parks. In fact, the park systems alone and by themselves, are better than can be found in European cities, as a rule. But the streets here, they are not so pleasing."

There are thirteen mayors of Cologne, each elected for twelve years. One is the lord mayor, and then there are a dozen of the garden, or deputy variety of mayors, each having directly under his control some distinctive department of government.

STUDYING DULUTH'S WATER SYSTEM.

Oscar Hulberg of La Crosse, Wis., who has been in the city for a few days, takes a lively interest in municipal and county government problems. He is a member of the La Crosse county board of commissioners and has been instrumental in bringing about the establishment of a county school of agriculture at Onalaska, in his home county, besides taking a leading and effective part in the agritation for better roads. La Crosse county now has a large mileage of ideal roads.

While in Duluth Mr. Hulberg made inquiries into the success that has been achieved in the administration of the municipally owned and operated light and water plants. He said the showing made in the recent annual report was a remarkable one and a strong argument for municipal ownership of public utilities. Mr. Hulberg had a large number of copies of The Herald containing this report sent to leading men of La Crosse, where public ownership of the lighting system is being agitated.

This being his first visit to Duluth, Mr. Hulberg devoted much time to sight-seeing and declared that Duluth is as interesting a city as he has visited.

"WEALTH PLASTERED ALL OVER DULUTH."

"Wealth seems to be plastered all over Duluth," was the comment of Richard D. Dawkins of the Toledo, Ohio, engineering force when asked what he thought of the Zenith City. "Prosperity and commercial enterprise are apparent on all sides. Duluth is bound to be one of the biggest towns in the country. Everything is hustle, hustle. Everybody seems to be in a hurry, with something to do." Mr. Dawkins came to Duluth on one of the lake freighters and he declared that the trip was one of the most delightful experiences he has ever enjoyed.

EASY TO HANDLE SPEEDERS HERE.

"Speeders can't very easily get away from the officers here," remarked Lieut. Thomas Garvin of the Minneapolis police force this morning at headquarters, where he dropped in for a chat. "If the speed maniacs manipulating the levers of the buzz wagons want to turn off they either have to go up hill or down into the lake." Lieut. Garvin is one of the oldest and most proficient officers on the Flour City's force. He has had a wide experience and has won his way up from the ranks. He is in Duluth for a short visit and in the course of his work has made several friends among the Duluth police authorities.

SUICIDE REPENTANT.

Man Who Tried to End Life Sentenced for Drunkenness.

Herman Maki, who tried to end his life in the Sixth avenue slip yesterday afternoon, declared at the police station this morning that he has a strenuous desire to live. When told what he had done he cried that he wants to stay on earth as long as he can. He claimed that he was very drunk, and that if he attempted to commit suicide by drowning, it was because he didn't know what he was doing. Judge Cutting gave him ten days straight in the county jail to meditate upon the benefits of existence.

JOSTEN RESIGNS AS CLUB STEWARD.

Charles R. Brown has taken the position of steward at the Duluth Commercial club and will succeed Charles Josten, who will retire from the stewardship at the end of the month. Mr. Brown has been connected with the club for some time, having charge of the lobby desk. Miss Mabel Bordleau, who has been his assistant, has succeeded Mr. Brown.

Mr. Josten will leave Duluth in about a month and will travel in the West, with the object in view of becoming a permanent resident of one of the Western states. He has been an efficient steward and has devoted his time and no inconsiderable talents to many lines of effort in behalf of Duluth and St. Louis county.

Mr. Josten's plans will not be determined upon until after the state fair. He is extremely interested in seeing St. Louis county adequately represented at the great exposition and will remain in the state until after it has been held, assisting in many ways to attain the desired results.

Crippen Ready to Sail.

Quebec, Aug. 17.—Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve are ready to leave for England on an hour's notice. Jailer Morin today purchased at the dentist's request three second-hand novels which Crippen expects to read on the way over.

EARLY USE OF IRON.

Chicago Tribune: The iron age is commonly believed to have begun in Africa or Asia. The latest investigations prove that it was not worked in Egypt until the ninth century before the Christian era, or in Libya until 450 B. C., that the Semites adopted its use still later, and that it has been known in Uganda only within the last five of six centuries. In China iron is mentioned in 400 B. C. Bronze weapons were employed in China until 100 A. D., and in Japan until 700 A. D.

According to a Mr. Rideway, who has investigated this subject, the metallurgy of iron must have originated in central Europe, especially in Noricum, which approximately represented modern Austria and Bavaria. Only at Hallstett and in Bosnia and Transylvania, from which countries the Achalans and Dorians are supposed to have migrated to Greece, are found evidences of a gradual introduction of iron, at first as an ornamental applied to the bronze, which it ultimately displaced. Everywhere else iron was introduced suddenly, a fact which implies a foreign origin.

Meteoric iron was known in Egypt in remote antiquity, but no doubt it was worked as flints were worked, by cutting or chipping, and was not smelted. In other words, it was the metallurgy, not the knowledge of iron, that originated in central Europe.

ARRESTED FOR SNEEZING.

The Queen: The most silent town in Europe is (or rather was until recently) not Bruges apparently, but Driesen-Vordamm, in Brandenburg. Here the municipal regulation with regard to street noises are so strict that a visitor a short while ago was fined five marks for sneezing out of doors. The stranger refused to pay, and though assured that this small fee saved him from the properly deserved punishment of prison, he remained unmoved by the expression of generosity and preferred to argue the matter out in the local courts. He was eventually acquitted, but since the verdict the head of the police of Driesen-Vordamm refuses to answer for order in the streets of that locality.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

NEW POINT IS RAISED

Another Problem in New North Dakota Counties Choosing County Seats.

Stanley, N. D., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Complications seemingly arise at every turn in the organization of new counties in North Dakota, a new one exceedingly difficult of solution having just popped up in Mountrail, Burke, Renville and Sheridan counties that will very likely reach its final settlement in the courts. It involves the manner in which the names of cities aspiring to become county seats can get their names on the ballot.

There is apparently no provision by the laws of the state for the placing of the names on the ballot. In the early or temporary organization, a temporary county seat is provided for by the county commissioners, such county seat to remain as the seat of government till an election can be held.

Many Aspirants for Honor.

In the several counties in which the question has been raised, there are from three to five cities aspiring to the honor, but they are at a loss to know what to do in order to get their claims for recognition on the ballot. Counsel has been retained in some of the places and efforts are being made to reach a settlement of the situation so that the county officials having charge of the election will know how to proceed.

New Counties Name Candidates.

Bowbells, N. D., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because Burke and Renville counties were organized after the recent state primaries, the county committees of both counties have launched county tickets, naming candidates for each office to be filled. This action was taken in lieu of the fact that the primary was not held. In Burke county only one change on the Republican ticket was made from the list of officers appointed by the commissioners of the new county.

SCHOOL BOARD IS DEADLOCKED

Crookston School Governing Body Cannot Agree Upon a President.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the meeting of the school board yesterday afternoon, after five votes had been taken for president, no change was shown in the result, three for F. R. Hamel and three for G. S. Chesterman. As a consequence of the deadlock no business could be transacted and the firms doing contract work for the board, although clamoring for money, could not be given 1 cent on their estimates. The situation, as the time for opening the school year approaches, is getting more critical. The board adjourned until this afternoon and in the meantime strenuous efforts will be made to break the deadlock in the interests of the general public.

ACCUSED BREAKS DOWN.

Woman Alleged to Have Killed Husband Shows First Feeling.

Libby, Mont., Aug. 17.—The trial of Mrs. Vera Prosser, charged with shooting her divorced husband, Reese T. Prosser, while on a Great Northern train near Libby, June 1, has commenced in the district court before Judge Erickson.

County Attorney Maiden, when the case was called, asked to amend the complaint by inserting words to the effect that Prosser died from his wound on June 1. This was objected to by Attorney T. D. Long, but the objection was overruled, and Mrs. Prosser was rearraigned and pleaded not guilty to the amended information. Up to this time Mrs. Prosser has apparently been in good spirits, but immediately after the reading of the amended complaint she broke down, sobbed, almost fainted and had to be taken from the room by the bailiff. This was about an hour after court convened, and her condition was such that the trial could not be proceeded with, and an adjournment was taken until 1:30 p. m. Several witnesses for the defense from Seattle have arrived.

Train Kills Old Man.

Sentinel Butte, N. D., Aug. 17.—L. W. Burge, aged 82 years, was crossing the tracks as a freight train carrying a load of stock rushed through the town. The old gentleman got bewildered and without a moment's warning the train caught him, tossed him in the air, the body landing on the cowcatcher, and carrying him some eight miles without the trainmen having the slightest knowledge of their death-dealing work.

BULLET IN HIS LEG

Received By Little Falls Man From Careless Shooter.

Little Falls, Minn., Aug. 17.—Ignatz Walkoviak of the West side, is nursing a wound in one of his legs sustained Sunday afternoon when a bullet fired by a reckless shooter along the river bank hit him in the limb.

Without any warning four shots were fired and three bullets were heard whizzing past the two men's heads. The fourth bullet plowed its way into Dalkoviak's left leg above the knee.

A physician was called but an attempt to dislodge the bullet with a probe was of no avail as it had passed into the member too great a distance. By an X-ray examination the bullet was located lodged near the bone and it was determined by the physician to allow the pellet of lead to remain where it had lodged and give nature an opportunity to apply her own remedies and safeguards.

Already the senior class of last year's high school has signified its willingness to donate $50 for the fund and this money is now available. It will require $200 to secure the two legs.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Attorney and Mrs. George A. Bangs have arrived home from Milwaukee and Chicago. While at the K. P. meeting at Milwaukee, Mr. Bangs was elected as a member of the board of control of the insurance department for six years, receiving 123 votes out of a total of 152 cast.

Mandan, N. D.—Prof. N. C. McDonald, well known in educational circles throughout the state, has accepted the appointment of superintendent of the city schools here. He was superintendent of the Lidgerwood city schools for six years and organized their first high school class which had the largest enrollment on a percentage basis of any school in the state and stood at the top as a whiner in the state declamation contest.

Fargo, N. D.—Herman Cook of Valley City, a feeble-minded youth about 21 years of age, came to Fargo to claim a bride and take her home with him. The police were notified by the Valley City authorities to be on the watch for him and send him home immediately upon his arrival. They caught the unfortunate lad and put him on the Valley City train.

Hazelton, N. D.—Mrs. August Strong, residing about eight miles north of town, died of infantile paralysis after a short illness, lasting only three days. Mrs. Strong got up apparently in good health and during the day she dropped to the floor stricken with the fatal disease

Garrison, N. D.—The 7-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. John Belesch, living near Endres, about nine miles from here, met a tragic death by drowning in a pail of water.

Anatomical Developing and Adjusting Couch.

The above is a cut of the anatomical developing and adjusting couch used in my office, by means of which the human spine, together with every ligament and muscle attached thereto, is thoroughly massaged and the intervertebral cartilages again brought to their normal size, thereby opening wide the spinal foramen through which all the nerves pass from the spinal cord to the various parts of the body. The health of the body depends upon the freedom of action which nature has through the nervous system—if there is any pressure or any interference with any of the nerves, wherever those nerves end there is disease, consequently the health of your body depends largely upon the normal condition of the intervertebral cartilages, as it is not only their function to make the spine elastic and supple, but also to keep the vertebrae sufficiently separated so that there is no pressure upon the bundle of nerves or the blood vessels which supply the spinal cord with nutrition and pass in and out of the same foramen with the nerves.

This treatment is absolutely painless, and while you are laying there taking it easy, you are inhaling the strengthening and invigorating ozone, of which you have heard so much through the columns of this paper of late.

The machine is my own invention, and there is no other place on earth where you can get the treatment as it is given in this office.

Eau Claire, Wis., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eau Claire closed the series with the White Sox yesterday by defating them by the score of 4 to 2. Nicholson was on the mound for Eau Claire and proved almost invincible, holding Duluth to four hits and striking out nine of the visitors. Worman started well, but the leaders got to him after the early innings.

Duluth's first run came in the third on a triple by J. Anderson and a double. A double and single in the fourth accounted for the other run of the Sox.

A pass and two singles gave the first run to the locals. Two more runs came in the fifth on Kohl's error and doubles by Kick and Breyette. The leaders' last run came in the seventh on DeHaven's triple and Nicholson's infield out.

Except in the third and fourth innings Duluth could not fathom the curves of Nicholson. Both teams played great games in the field, Kohl's misplay being the only error of the day.

WEIDEL HOLDS OUTCASTS TO SOLITARY HIT.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Weidel of Red Wing held the Outcasts to one hit in yesterday's game, the Indians taking the contest by a 2 to 1 score. A pass and some slow fielding on the part of Red Wing accounted for the only run scored by La Crosse.

Whittaker was invincible after the opening inning. In this frame three bases on balls, followed by a single, counted for the only runs scored by the Indians.

Malloy was chased from the game by Umpire Anderson for disputing a decision. Gorman was also plastered with a fine. Score:

Batteries—Weidel and McNutt; Whittaker and Wais.

WAUSAU TAKES THIRD STRAIGHT FROM SUPERIOR.

Wausau, Wis., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Wausau made it three straight from Superior yesterday, winning the third game of the series by the score of 1 to 0. In the third inning Walliser made first on a scratch, was sacrificed to second and scored the only run of the game when Du Chien doubled to right. Both sides played errorless ball and some brilliant fielding stunts were pulled off. The Red Sox could do little with Fennell when a hit would have counted for a run. Score:

Superior	0	4	0

WINONA WINS AND TIES WITH ROCHESTER.

Winona, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Winona won and tied yesterday in the double-header with the Rochester Surgeons. The first game went to the Pirates by the score of 4 to 2, and was slow and uninteresting throughout. The second game was called at the end of the tenth inning because of darkness, neither team having been able to push a man across the plate.

Baillies and McNeil engaged in a pitching duel in the second contest, the Winona hurler allowing only one hit, while five scattered blows were gathered off the benders of the Rochester star.

The first game was won through the ability of the Winona hitters to bunch hits on Young. Parker, the new twirler for Winona, was strong throughout. Score:

First game—	R.	H.	E.
Rochester	2	6	2
Winona	4	7	2

Batteries—Young and Fischer; Parker and Stark.

Second game—	R.	H.	E.

FRERKER WINS JUNIOR SINGLES

Youngster Captures Tournament From Duby in Straight Sets.

The junior single tennis tournament of the Duluth Boat club was won yesterday by Walter Frerker, who took three straight sets from Lawrence Duby, the scores being 6-4, 7-5, 6-3. The winner of the tournament receives a gold medal from the club, while a local firm also gives a tennis racquet.

The junior double tournament will start within a few days. Some of the entries are already in. Those who wish to enter the tournament should send their names to Gene Stillman, William Craig or Coolidge Le Suer.

It was announced yesterday that Grady and Graff, last year's winners of the club doubles, and challengers the present season for the city championship doubles, may be unable to represent the Boat club at the state tennis tournament. If the clever pair are unable to make the trip, it is very probable that some other players will be chosen in their places.

Favorite Wins.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Bashti, ridden by Shilling, and favorite in the betting, easily won the Spinaway stakes for 2-year-old fillies here yesterday. Shilling took her off in front at the start and she quickly opened up a big lead. At the turn into the stretch Shilling was easing her up. August Belmont announced that the rich Matron stakes, which was run at Belmont Park last year, will be run off at Pimlico, Baltimore, this fall.

Toledo Club Gets Bonnin.

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 17.—The Toledo club of the American association has purchased Outfielder Bonnin from Canton of the Ohio-Pennsylvania league.

Bouts Announced.

New York, Aug. 17.—It was announced in New York that Sam Langford and Joe Jeannette had been matched to fight twelve rounds at the Armory Athletic club in Boston on Sept. 12 and that Jeannette would also take on Morris Harris of Philadelphia for ten rounds at the National Sporting Club of America, this city, on Aug. 26. All three are negroes.

GOOD SEASON FOR LEAGUE

The Minny Organization Has Played Faster Ball Than Last Year.

Many Players Are Being Considered for Trial in Faster Company.

(BY BRUCE.)

Judging from the players that have already been selected for promotion from the Minnesota-Wisconsin league to higher baseball company, the season that is drawing to a close has been productive of even faster ball than was the first season of the Minny league.

Callahan and Kading of the great Eau Claire team have already been sold for a good financial consideration. So eagerly were these men sought after that no chances were taken on the draft system, both Kading and Callahan being purchased for a high price, considering that the Minny league is class D baseball company.

When the drafting season opens it is certain that there will be quite a few of the stars of this league called for higher duty. Some of the players will undoubtedly come back to minor company after a tryout next spring; but some of them should prove plenty fast enough for faster baseball than is played in this league.

Koepping of the Pirates should leave the league this season. Those who have watched the little Dutchman play throughout the present baseball period are confident tha tOtto will make good in the Western league, which is a class A organization. At least Otto should be promoted to the class B grade of baseball. Sioux City would have made no mistake in retaining the man who has played great ball for Winona all through the present season.

Young De Haven of Eau Claire is another second baseman who may get a trial in faster company. Several of the scouts have reported favorably on his ability, and he may leave the league via the draft route.

De Haven is just a youngster. He replaced Tommy Schoonhoven at the second station, the freckle-faced manager taking up his duties from the bench. De Haven has fitted into the Eau Claire infield like a piece of machinery. The Schooner inner works has been made faster for the presence of the newcomer, for he is one of the fastest and most hustling and ambitious kids in the league.

Anderson's Chances.

Our own G. Anderson might get a trial. He is a youngster and has shown a world of improvement the present season. For a while George was about the only ball player on the team. The fans got in the habit of saying, "Let George do it."

Anderson is awfully fast and is the kind of a player that learns rapidly. Another season in the league would make him luscious ripe; yet from the reports of a scout who visited Duluth, it is easy come to pass that the stubby one will get a chance in the higher ups next season.

Old Biddy Dolan of Wausau, the disconcerted hitter of the Lumberjacks, has actually been considered for the St. Louis Americans. The age of the veteran is the only thing against him. Perhaps, after all, he will get a trial in one of the big shows.

The present season Dolan is playing about the best ball of his checkered career. The answer is very simple—Biddy has been a very, very good boy. Always able to clout the spheroid, this has been one of the very best seasons the ancient one has enjoyed. How old is he? Biddy won't tell.

Was it not for his crabby and sometimes buggy disposition, Col. Nick Carter, formerly of the Eau Claire bunch, might go to faster company at the end of the season. Here is one of the best gardeners in the league, but—.

Every once in a while you will run across some baseball player who is mouldy in his gear box. Rube Waddell and Bugs Raymond furnish two very eminent examples. They say that Carter is of the same tribe. Eau Claire let him scamper, though he was playing great baseball, for the Schooners. Scouts are very careful to inquire closely about the disposition of baseball players, so that these little eccentricities of the colonel's will probably prevent him from progressing very far on the baseball ladder of fame and fortune.

The Pitchers.

Russ Bailey might get another trial in faster company. Last season with Milwaukee he just fell short of making good, and there are some other A. A. managers who might like to give the large boy a chance.

Baillies of Winona has pitched some mighty sweet baseball the present season, as instance his one-hit game of yesterday. Frank is a very good, consistent twirler, and some manager might do well by giving him a trial. Weidel of Red Wing is another boy who has shown well in the box. Our own George Dauss would have undoubtedly gone back to the A. A. at the close of the Minny season, or even before, had he not been so unfortunate as to run afoul of a very serious illness. Poor George, eh?

McNell of Rochester is a very promising twirler, and it would not surprise the fans of this league if he made good in faster company, were he given the opportunity.

McCulloch of Superior would probably have gone up had he not met with the unfortunate accident of breaking his leg. He was playing almost as good ball as big John Kading at the time of the mishap.

Bancroft of the Red Sox is a hustling player that should at least make good in a class above the Minny league. Was it not for the fact that Brakeman Mike Breyette of the Eau Claire team was coming down the ladder, and is getting rather old, he might get a chance in higher baseball society. The effect of winning has acted like wine on the little man, and he has played the best baseball of his career the present season.

Taken all in all, in and out and on both sides of the argument, the ball that has been played the present season is faster than the brand of last year's vintage.

To be very frank, the Eau Claire team, which seems quite apt, Willie, to cop the gonfalon, is a better organization than the Duluth pennant winners of last season. The Schooners are one of the fastest minor league teams in the country today.

Last season we excelled in the pitching box and in the superb ability of our first line of defense. Our outfield was rather to the punk brand. Not one of the gardeners of last season was good enough for the team the present season—and see where we are standing.

Eau Claire has a great all-round team. That is where the strength of the aggregation lies. There is not a weak spot on the whole nine.

No catcher has been developed the present season that has the shining ability of Baron Otto Mueller. The minors develop a catcher of his ability about every ten years. It is doubtful if there is a pitcher in the league the present season the equal of Wilbur Schardt or George Dauss. No third baseman has appeared that has anything on young Mr. Breen.

But, on the whole, the article of ball is faster, and all of the teams have gone at a more consistent gait. The Red Wing Indians, the last team in the race the present season, are faster than either Superior or Wausau of last year's race.

The league is very fast, and it would not surprise the fans in the least to see a number of men selected for higher company trial.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE.)

Forward the Address.

Next Tuesday Bosher Bill Lang and lumbering Al Kaufmann will meet in New York for the next to the throne championship. The man who gets the worst of the meeting, may be counted temporarily out of the running for the high and coveted honor of meeting Lil' Artha, though in these days of clever managers and also clever promoters, it is a very poor fighter who cannot secure a return encounter.

Now why not go about this job in a very thorough and artistic manner—this task of getting some man to lick the very annoying smile from the system of Artha. Like the Pennsylvania, Artha has a large system. Why not organize a society for the promotion of a white champion? What's the harm?

Let every one interested in the desire to see Artha whipped, go around and keep a weather orb well trimmed for the deep chested hero that may lurk in our very midst.

A general field secretary of the society for the promotion of the supremacy of the white race, might be appointed, and he could travel around on Pullmans to different sections of the country, by his cheery and somewhat present presence thus stimulating interest in the hunt for the geek to trim Artha.

If you were an active member of the society, brother, and you observed a husky coal heaver plodding dully at his somewhat weary task, you might step up to the wagon, even though the soot was thick, and politely inquire if the said coal heaver had any ambition to rise above his station in life.

You should be polite, for that is one of the prime requisites of the society. Also, if the coal heaving chap should fail to understand your original inquiry, get down to earth, and ask him if he has ever had any relish in knocking the blocks off fellow mortals.

If he answers you with impulsive warmth, and also sticks out his jaw in an aggressive and pugnacious manner, you will calm him, and then get his name and address. Send his address to the field secretary of the White Race Supremacy society, and on his trip to the section of the country where the promising coal heaver lives, he can arrange to give the chap a tryout.

Thus, you see, we would have a large class of candidates aspiring for the tanning of Artha. We would not have to depend rather forlornly on the prowess of only Bosher Bill Lang or lumbering Al Kaufmann.

Interest in the hunt for a white champion would grow by leaps and bounds. Tottering elderly gentlemen would amble over to the edges of their back fences, and inquire of their neighbor: "Do you know as where there is a likely young chap who can fight?"

The spirit of '76 would be reincarnated. We would figuratively buckle on the spyglass of Mars and nation-ally go looking for a fighting man. We would be doing the job up right, and when the hero at last made his appearance, he would have the entire backing of the White Race Supremacy society.

This pinning our faith and hopes on two rather bum fighters, is not the proper caper. Let the society get together and permit the search to go on, and one of these days some poor but husky coal heaver will rise up and smear soot, not to mention mud, on the escutcheon of Lil' Artha.

Watch Them Go.

With that hearty salutation of his, Mister John J. Desmond occasionally calls attention to the progress of the White Sox, which, gentle brother, has been much more difficult than the progress of patient Pilgrim.

"Quite so," as they say.

The Sox have arrived, though they have been somewhat delayed. They are playing the best ball in the league at the present time, and we are inclined to agree with the poet chap, that the might-have-been dope is very sad at times.

However, the season is short and the chance to pay homage to a team that has at last arrived, will only be open for a few sweet fall days. It is up to the fans to pay the team that kind and undivided attention upon their return to the Head of the Lakes, that a hero receives upon reaching the scene of his early and unceasing struggles.

Yes, you bet, the Sox are entitled to a royal reception. When we think of the record made by those lauded gentlemen from Superior, during the past ten days or so, we thank goodness that Duluth has an aggregation that is coming, not going.

There is a chance for the Sox to land in the first division. If the present stride is maintained, the Sox should win the majority of their games from now to the end of the season. We should give the team credit for the courage to make a strong finish after a rather disastrous start, and the fans should feel that it is up to them to run out and give the team the reception that it deserves.

Boost the Sox—they have it coming.

The wonder grows as to the slowness of the football rules officials in sending forth the new rules. It might be suggested that the rules committee was ashamed of the rules. It has been officially denied that any member of the rules committee is in favor of the suffragette movement. It would be gathered that the members of the committee are heartily opposed to all violent movements.

Down in Cleveland they are planning for a Cy Young day. All of which would remind the unblased that Uncle Cy has had his.

Those in the know, and there are a few wise people in Philadelphia, say that it was not because Sam Langford was afraid of Al Kaufmann that he failed to mix with the man from California, but rather because Sam believed he would make more money by having the mill held in New York. Poor Philadelphia! It has been a case in the fighting game before, of take what the other cities do not want. Some day the game will close up there, and then the ivory domed fighters will be sorely perturbed.

Mr. Thomas Shaw, whilom plunger and plain race track gambler, after losing $200,000 has decided that he will quit plunging and go to speculating. Mr. Shaw is not the first to see the distinction.

Since some earnest preacher has declared that baseball is to have a regular and recognized place in Heaven, some of the fans and enthusists should be a little mite more careful in their conduct. You know, boys, if Heaven is to be favored with the game, it is hardly probable that the other place will have any more exciting game than duck on the rock. That would make the punishment quite complete.

No one has seen E. W. Walker, stroke of the bantam four, wearing his little Winnipeg cap since the race of last Saturday. Why? Is it too small?

Some one has suggested that the junior eight get out and practice some before the return race of next Saturday. The suggestion is one that might be given a small amount of consideration by the members of the crew. The crew really ought to win one race before the bay is closed.

THE FINISHES WERE EXCITING

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 17.—A large and enthusiastic crowd and fast time marked the opening of the Great Western race meeting here yesterday. The weather was almost ideal, and the track was very fast. Although each of the three regular races were won in straight heats, the contests were all close and the finishes exciting.

The most interest centered in the special race between Minor Heir, Hedgewood Boy and Lady Maud C. Just as they received the word, Lady Maud C., driven by Walter Palmer, went to a break. Minor Heir at the pole carried Hedgewood Boy to the quarter in 29¼; to the half in 59¾; three-quarters in 1:31½. Turing into the stretch, the pace increased, and the crowd expected to see a mile very close to two minutes. Just before he reached the seven-eighths station, Minor Heir broke. Hedgewood Boy followed suit. Minor Heir caught first and won by a nose in 2:03½. Experts agree that had it not been for the break, the time would have been 2:01 or better.

FIGHT FANS WERE DISAPPOINTED

Acting Mayor of New York Stops the Kaufman-Lang Bout.

New York, Aug. 17.—Three thousand fight fans who had assembled at the Fairmont Athletic club here to see Al Kaufman and Bill Lang, the big Australian fight ten rounds, were disappointed last night when the club management announced that the bout was off.

John P. Mitchell, the young president of the board of aldermen, who is acting as mayor during Mayor Gaynor's illness, had notified the club that he would not permit the fight to be held. The police had surrounded the place and although four preliminaries were held unmolested, the orders from the acting mayor were so strict that the main contest was abandoned.

Kaufman was already stripped for battle and was in the ring when the announcement was made. Lang stood near him garbed in a bath robe. Notwithstanding its disappointment the big crowd was good-natured and, while there were a few hoots, filed out in an orderly manner.

MUCH INTEREST IN THE OUTCOME

Tennis Enthusiasts Flock to Newport to Witness Championship Doubles.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 17.—The grandstand was crowded today by tennis enthusiasts who flocked to the casino courts to see the three time national doubles championship winners, H. H. Hackett and F. B. Alexander of New York, defend their title against the Chicago winners, T. C. Bundy and Trowbridge Hendrick of California. Bundy and Hendrick became the challengers by surviving in the tournament at Chicago Aug. 2 and 3 between the players of the South, West and Middle West.

The weather was almost perfect for good tennis, a cool wind blowing across the championship court that had been made firm by the rain of yesterday.

There were six matches remaining in the second round of the all-comers' singles tournament when play began and when these were decided the third round was started.

FITWELL TEAM PREPARING FOR CLOQUET GAME.

Manager Frank Sears of the Fitwell team reports that his aggregation is out every evening, practicing for the game of next Sunday with the Cloquet team. The two teams will meet at Athletic park for a side bet of $100, and the game promises to be one of the most interesting ever played at the Head of the Lakes.

Cloquet has won two games the present season from the Duluth outfit, but the Duluth boys claim that they were never given a square deal and can reverse the result with a fair umpire in charge of the game. The Cloquet management has come forward to meet the statement of the Fitwell manager, and the winner of the game next Sunday should have no excuse to make.

The teams will line up the same as in the other games played the present season.

Leahy Attempts Suicide.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 17.—Thomas Leahy, a former catcher on the St. Louis Nationals and on the Indianapolis and Minneapolis teams of the American Association, attempted suicide at his home last night by cutting his throat with a razor. It is thought he will recover. Despondency over an injured leg, which prevented his further playing, it is thought, led to the attempt.

LEGG PLAYS GREAT GOLF

Minnesota Man Duplicates His Score of 77 for Denver Course.

Champion Is Matched With Harrison of the Des Moines Club.

Denver, Col., Aug. 17.—According to the pairings in the first round of match play the trans-Mississippi golf tournament today, play promises to bring out some of the hardest fought games of the week. H. G. Legg of Minikahda, is expected to dispose of Harrison of Des Moines and his way to the semi-finals probably will not be seriously disputed except by the winner of the Fairbanks-Fisher match which will eliminate at least one of his most dangerous rivals.

Bromfield of Denver, second in the qualifying round, will have to meet a veteran at tournament play in A. W. Copp of Denver. The two have fought it out before this year in the Colorado championship when Bromfield defeated Copp in the first round. Legg is suffering from a very lame foot and is under a doctor's care. His lameness may seriously hamper him in the match play.

The second round of the trans-Mississippi golf tournament yesterday was another triumph for Legg, who duplicated his score of 77 for the course, made in the first day's play in the second round of medal play, making his total 154. His nearest rival for medal play honors was Lawrence Bromfield, the 19-year-old Denver schoolboy, who followed an 80 yesterday by the score of 79 today, finishing the qualifying round with a total of 159.

J. A. Austin of Happy Hollow, Omaha, furnished the surprise of the day when he turned in a card of 78 after making 93 yesterday.

Although Legg's superiority in medal play was clearly shown, he is by no means certain of retaining his title. Half a dozen of the first flight are capable of giving him a hard battle for first honors. Although he played good golf in the qualifying round, Bromfield is hardly thought to be capable of making Legg extend himself in match play.

YACHT RACES AT MARBLEHEAD

A Series of Five Events Between American and Spanish Boats.

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 17. — Spain and America met today in the first of a series of five races for the Sonder yacht supremacy of the North Atlantic for 1910. Each country was represented by a team of three yachts based on the German type of boat which has proved so popular at Kiel and Marblehead during the last four years.

The Spanish team was made up of the Chonta, the Papoose and the Mosquito II, while the three defenders of President Taft and Governor Draper cups, which are the principal trophies for this year's racing, were the Beaver, Cima and Harpoon. According to the conditions of the International Sonder yacht rules, the yachts were built in the country which they represented and manned entirely by Corinthian crews. The skippers were: Luis de Arana on the Chonta; Javier Pena on the Papoose; Manuel Corral on the Mosquito II; C. H. W. Forster on the Beaver; Guy Lowell on the Cima, and C. F. Adams, second, in the Harpoon. With the exception of the Papoose and Mosquito II, the yachts were sailed by their owners.

The President Taft cup will go to the yacht first winning three races, while the Governor Draper cup will be awarded on points. The Eastern Yacht club, which has joint control over this year's international races with the Federation of Spanish Yacht clubs, also offers first and second prizes for each race day.

While the best of feeling prevailed between the yachtsmen and good sport is the aim of each side, the Yankee tars are rather anxious to retrieve the defeat in Spain three years ago, for the queen's cup, although several minor trophies were brought back after the races at Bilbao and San Sebastian.

CAN WOMEN EVER LEARN BASEBALL?

"The fact that Duluth's players in Eau Claire just now, recalls to my mind an amusing conversation that took place at the local grounds recently when the same two teams were opposing each other here," says Harry Pierce of the Lyceum theater, who is bringing his company, known as the Associate Players, to Duluth, opening next Monday night in "The Squaw Man."

"Women are more intelligent on the average than men. Of that I am convinced. Why won't women, then, learn to understand baseball? I had the pleasure of escorting our leading woman, Miss Douglas, to a game at the local grounds recently. I asked her if she cared especially for the game, and she replied: 'I love baseball, I love especially to watch the man at the bat. It is so cute, too, the way he keeps hitting the ground gently with the bat's end. Why does he do that, though?'

"'Well, you see, Miss Douglas,' said I, 'the worms have an annoying habit of coming up to see who's batting, and that naturally puts a man out a bit; so he just taps them on the head lightly and down they go.'"

Herald Juniors Win.

The Herald Juniors defeated the Cascade Juniors yesterday by the score of 14 to 3. The game was played on Tenth avenue west and Third street. The features of the game were four double plays, made by the Heralds. The lineup of the Heralds was as follows: Kall, catcher; Azine, pitcher; Carson, first base; Walt, second base; Gotkin, third base; Herwitz, shortstop; Campbell, center field; Mason, left field; Bakken, right field.

EVELETH HAS BIG BANQUET

Given at Glode Hotel in Honor Governor Eberhart and Party.

Eveleth, Min., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—It was considerably after midnight when the banquet given at the Globe hotel last night to Governor Eberhart and party, who are looking over state ditches and state mines in this section broke up. It was one of the most notable affairs of the kind ever held in this section.

The governor and his party were met at Virginia yesterday afternoon by local automobilists and were brought here about 4 o'clock. They went over to the farm of William Haenke at Wolf, considered one of the best in the state.

Governor Compliments Eveleth.

In the evening the Fayal band played for some time on Grant avenue, and then marched up to the Glode hotel. Governor Eberhart was called upon to speak, being introduced by ex-Mayor Smith. The governor spoke briefly on the immense wealth of this part of the state and told of the agricultural possibilities of the county. He congratulated the city on its fine schools, second to none in the state. He spoke of the splendid growth of the city since he was here last. He referred in complimentary terms to Walter J. Smith of this city, nominee for state treasurer. He said the drainage commissioners on the range were to find out the possibilities and needs of this part of the state. He said that they had profited much by their trip and that the state officials would do all in their power to help St. Louis county get its just share of the state's aid. He spoke for a little while to the children, who surrounded him and told of their opportunities.

About 11 o'clock in the evening the doors of the banquet room at the Glode hotel were thrown open, and about 150 representative men from Eveleth, Gilbert and Virginia sat down to a sumptuous repast, the only banquet given the distinguished visitors on the range. Though arranged for in a hurry somewhat by the business men, the banquet was well appointed.

Toastmaster J. C. Poole as toastmaster called upon Mayor Saari, who welcomed the visitors on behalf of the city. He said it was the business of the city attorney to do the speaking for the city as the mayor belonged to the working end of the city. State Auditor Iverson spoke very forcibly on the greatness of the northern part of the state and said that the present trip of the state officials would be of lasting benefit to all concerned. "There are many 'live wires' from this part of the range. You have young, forceful young men. They have the energy which will lead on to victory."

Father Floyd Praises La'e Governor.

Father Floyd then told some very good stories and referred to his being a Democrat. "This is a good crowd in which to take up a collection," was the first expression and one that took well. He spoke feelingly of the late Governor John A. Johnson.

Governor Eberhardt who was then called upon spoke of his pleasure in being in Eveleth and of the hearty reception accorded him and other state officials.

"I believe a governor who goes out and mingles with the people does more good for the state than one who sits at his place in the state capitol. Though the dignity of the office may suffer," he said. "The man who goes out gets to know the people as they are." He touched upon the kind of people found on the range and of the great agricultural possibilities of the country. "We have no room for knockers in this state," declared the governor. "The reason the range towns are growing so rapidly is, that men are up here who do things. I hope the time will come when agriculture will be taught in every school in the state."

Attorney General Talks.

Attorney General Simpson spoke briefly on the complexity of the administration of the law. "What may be ultimately right in one part of the state may be wrong in another part of the state," he said. "It is easier to get a meeting of the state officials here tonight, than it is in St. Paul."

Immigration Commissioner Welsh spok of the work that has been done toward a better feeling between the northern and southern part of the state. "The real worth of the state will come from the tilling of the soil," he declared. "No state has the opportunities offered by the state of Minnesota. Business interests should take a lively interest in the agricultural possibilities of the county."

Secretary of State Schmahl spoke very effectively on what the southern part of the state can do towards helping the northern part. "The state officials will do what they can in that regard," he said.

Assistant County Attorney J. P. Boyle spoke eloquently on the kind of men to be found in Northern Minnesota, and of the feeling that exists among them for doing work. Declaring all successful men are those that work." In regard to sectional feeling, he said, "We should all be Minnesotans. It is only with that spirit that the state can go ahead."

Assistant Attorney General Weeks' comments of pleasantry on the officials' trip and of the chance to meet men who are directing things on the range. General Manager Frank Webb of the Republic Iron & Steel company, now of Gilbert responded in a few words when called on. Land Commissioner Arland of the Iron Range told of the agricultural possibilities in the county. Rev. R. C. Johnson told several good stories which were much appreciated. The banquet broke up at an early hour with the singing of "America."

PAVING REQUEST IS TURNED DOWN

Virginia Council Declines to Accede to Petition of Property Owners.

Virginia, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The property owners of Poplar street, who are anxious to have seven blocks of that street paved with creosote blocks this year will have to wait until another year as the city council last night, because of lack of funds, turned down their petition asking for the improvement.

Cement curbing and gutters were ordered along the street, however, and the water company was instructed to have the service connections put in preparatory to paving next year.

The Oliver Iron Mining company offered to lease a site for an incinerator for a period of twenty years, but the council has under consideration a proposition to purchase a site.

Must Get Right-of-Way.

The Virginia Lumber company offered to construct a new road further south than the present one, but the council requested the company to secure a legal right-of-way for the proposed road.

The Virginia Electric Power & Water company was instructed to provide power for the white way which is to be ready for a distance of five blocks on Chestnut street in a few days.

An anti-spitting ordinance was passed, the maximum fine being $50 for spitting on the sidewalks or in public buildings, the alternative being thirty days in jail.

W. MULLIGAN NEW ALDERMAN

Is Chosen By Eveleth Council to Fill Vacancy in Third Ward.

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The council meeting was cut short last night on accouit of the banquet to Governor Eberhart. The bids for the culverts were received but no bid was accepted. George W. Mulligan was appointed alderman of the Third ward in place of Jacob Saari, the present mayor. The rules and regulations for the fire department were accepted.

The city clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for taking down the old 100,000-gallon water tank on Pierce street. The mining company does not think much of the tank for fire protection in the Adams location. Eventually a larger pipe than at present will have to be run to the location for fire protection. The meeting was adjourned until tonight, when the culvert bids will be acted on and the estimate and plans for the laying of water mains in Central Addition No. 2 will be received and bids advertised for the work.

GETTING READY FOR THE PAVING

Improvement of Central Avenue, Nashwauk, Will Soon Begin.

Nashwauk, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village has completed the grading of First street under the supervision of John Berguson and grading of Third street is well under way. A three-foot fill is being put in on lower Third street. The catch basins have been replaced on Central avenue and everything is now in readiness for paving, which will be commenced in a few days.

P. J. McGuire has moved into the new residence owned by Markus & Jaffe, located on Third street.

The Butler brothers will stop stripping work here within a few weeks and their force of men will go to Buhl, where the company will work until spring, when work will be resumed here.

Hayes Bros. are selling out their stock of horses and vehicles preparatory to retiring from the livery business.

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. M. Cannon of Shelbyville, Ill., who has been appointed principal of the high school, will arrive soon to be present at the opening of school Sept. 6. He is a graduate of De Pauw university at Queencastle, Ind., and has a life state certificate from Illinois. WILL DISCUSS BRIDGE PLANS

Hibbing Council and Mining Companies Trying to Reach Agreement.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The demand for a bridge or viaduct over the strippings tracts of the Winston Dear company and the stripping from the Sellers pit at the West street crossing for the Morris location road, was forcibly brought before the village board last night and it was made apparent that because of the heavy traffic such improvement is necessary.

As the road to Chisholm is to be abandoned it will be necessary to reach locations east of town, to cross the strippings named, and as there are many trains on the tracks, danger to life is ever present. It would cost the village about $11,000 to build the bridge and the railroad about $11,000 to raise the tracks. A meeting will be held tomorrow evening when representatives of the mining companies will be present and discuss the subject.

Discuss Pest House Plans.

Plans for the proposed new pest house were examined and discussed. There will be three divisions, one for smallpox patients, another for diphtheria, and another for scarlet fever patients, with separate apartments in each division for male and female patients.

The municipal fines for the week ending Aug. 13 amounted to $270.15, and the village receipts for the month of July were $3,5,684.64.

E. C. Kleffman, W. C. Barrett, Peter Bardessona, Peter McHardy and J. J. Cox were given a permit to erect a three-story building 50 by 85 feet on Third avenue. The proposed building will form an addition to the Oliver hotel, about doubling its capacity. The contract for the construction of the building was let tonight to C. A. Arlander for $18,943.

The clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for the construction of a sidewalk from McKinley street to Brooklyn addition, a distance of half a mile.

The clerk was instructed to write Prof. Charles of the state board of health, asking as to the course to pursue relative to Penobscott creek, into which a village sewer empties, after which it crosses between First and Third streets between the villages of Hibbing and Alice.

AURORA LIGHTING PLANS PROGRESS

Bonds Accepted and Work on Village-Owned Plant Going Ahead.

Aurora, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village council has been notified of the acceptance of the bonds authorized at the recent election by the state board of investment. The bonds are in the sum of $10,000 and the money will be spent for electric lighting.

The work on the plant is being rushed with all possible speed. The power house is ready for the machinery, the poles are up and the wire has been shipped. The dyanmo and other heavy machinery will be on the ground within thirty days and it is expected to have lights by October or sooner.

PLANS ARE APPROVED.

For New High School to Be Built at Aurora.

Aurora, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Architect Anthony Puck of Duluth has been here conferring with the school board and submitting the plans for the new high school building. The board approved the plans in every particular and will soon be ready to commence the erection of the building.

The building will be strictly modern in every particular without frills or fancies and when completed will be one of the most beautiful buildings in the state.

PRISONERS GET WHISKY.

Passed Through Bars By Wife of Jail Inmate.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The practice of friends or relatives of persons confined in the city bastile passing articles through the bars to the accused is becoming so common that the city will probably take steps to have a wall built around the jail. The wife of Dan Droback, one of the men arrested in the French location, for assault in the second degree, was arrested yesterday on the charge of passing a bottle of whisky through the bars to her husband. The hearing of Broback and Pete Valvaich, the others arrested with him, set for yesterday was continued until today.

BRIDEGROOM ARRESTED.

Eveleth Couple's Honeymoon Is of Short Duration.

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Married on Monday, locked up in jail on Tuesday for being drunk was the sudden shift of affairs in the life of Wilfred Mongreau. He and Emma Gorman, late of Duluth, were married Monday despite objections raised by the bride's sister, the claim being made the bride was not of legal age and that the bridegroom was already married. The bride is said to have refused to live with Mongreau and then he took to drink to drown his sorrows. He emphatically denies the report that he has another wife. He will be arraigned in police court today on the charge of being drunk.

FIRES VILLAGE LOCKUP.

Inmate of North Dakota Jail Tries to Burn Way Out.

Sheldon, N. D., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Confined in the small local jail, for disorderly conduct, John Burke adopted a unique manner in attempting to gain his freedom, and in which he came nearly losing his life. After being locked up Burke set fire to the small jail, but soon raised cries of distress which brought assistance, just in time, as he was in a precarious condition when rescued.

SECRET SERVICE MAN TAKES BOGUS MONEY.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Aug. 17.—A find of $160 in counterfeit money made in this city recently by police officials was investigated yesterday afternoon by Frank Sommer of St. Paul, a member of the federal government's force of secret service men. The entire find of spurious coin was taken in charge by the official and he has taken it to St. Paul with him, where further investigations are promised. The counterfeit money was found in a tin box on the bank of the Red river, where it had been secreted.

CHILEAN PRESIDENT IS DEAD

—Copyright, 1910, by George Grantham Bain.

PEDRO MONTT,
President of Chile.

Bremen, Aug. 17.—The death of of President Pedro Montt of Chile, in this city last night was unexpected. He was preparing for bed when he was seized with cramps of the heart and died almost instantly. His wife was with him at the time.

It was a few minutes before 12 o'clock. Almost all the members of the presidential party were still up, engaged in conversation with Senor Besa, secretary of the Chilean legation at Berlin, and other attaches who had met President and Mrs. Montt here on the arrival of the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse from New York.

Had a Hard Day.

The president of Chile had had a tiring day. He arose at an unusually early hour, and about 10:30 received the visit of the members of the Chilean legation at Berlin and a number of officials of the North German Lloyd line. He conversed with animation until he took the train for Bremen, where he was welcomed by a deputation from the senate.

He was entertained as the guest of the city at luncheon and was driven around Bremen in the afternoon to see the sights. The president had been invited to be the guest of Emperor William at the autumn review of the German army, where he was to have luncheon with his majesty.

The body of Senor Montt has been embalmed and probably will be taken to the Catholic church of St. Johannes, where it will rest until its final disposal has been decided upon. The members of the late president's suite are of the opinion that the Chilean government will send a warship here to convey the remains back to Chile.

Saw Gaynor Shot.

New York, Aug. 17.—President Montt left New York just a week ago yesterday after one of the most stirring experiences in his career. That same morning he had seen Mayor Gaynor shot down on the deck of the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, had witnessed the struggle with James J. Gallagher, the would-be assassin, and had departed on the Kaiser feverishly excited over the occurrences, as were most of the other passengers aboard. A sufferer from heart trouble, it is not improbable that his sudden death may in some measure be attributed to the strain of that occurrence.

Store-news is your news!

Grand Forks Bond Election.

Grand Forks, N. D., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.) — September 12 will very likely be the date for the special election to be held here for the purpose of voting on the issue of $40,000 in bonds for the construction of a new city hall. The council meets Friday evening to fix the date. A building costing $60,000 is to be constructed and the work of laying the foundation and erecting the basement walls will be undertaken this fall.

S.S.S. CURES ECZEMA, ACNE, TETTER, POISON OAK, ETC.

Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Poison Oak, Pimples, etc., show that some unhealthy humor or acid impurity is diseasing and corrupting the circulation, so that instead of supplying nourishment and strength to the skin, it is continually pouring out its acid and unhealthy accumulations. Salves, washes, lotions, and other external applications, may relieve some of the itching and other discomforts caused by skin diseases, but such treatment has no effect on the blood, where the seat of irritation lies, and therefore cannot cure. A thorough cleansing of the blood is the one and only cure for skin diseases; every particle of the cause must be driven from the circulation. S. S. SPOT WEAK; VALUES FALL

Northwestern Wheat Movement Is Heavier---Durum Strong.

Duluth Board of Trade, Aug. 17.—Cables were mixed today, but the market paid little attention to foreign news until toward the close, when there was a slight reaction after the day's decline. The bulge was caused by covering on short accounts. Cables from France were less favorable. The increasing run of wheat in the Northwest and a sick cash market caused values to open weak and crumble. The cash premium for No. 1 northern was shaved to ½c over the current contract today. It was 1c over September yesterday.

Reports of export business caused some covering also toward the close. Chicago wired that 40,000 bu of No. 2 red winter wheat had been sold for shipment from Chicago. The export business here was confined to a small amount of durums.

Values in American markets are getting close together. This market is still much higher than Chicago but the discrepancy is not so pronounced as at other periods in the last few weeks. The Southwestern markets have also crept closer to the Chicago current contract.

The Northwestern weather map was somewhat wet today, showing scattered showers in the three states and Canada. The bulls believe there has been sufficient rain to delay the movement of spring wheat to primary markets.

September wheat lost ⅝c, December ½c and May ¼c. Cash wheat closed ½c over September. Oats lost ⅜c, rye was 1c up, barley was unchanged and durum gained ¼c.

Flax was dull and the undertone was weak, offers being small but larger in volume than bids. A station in Saskatchewan reported frost last night but no frost occurred in any of the three states. The market was not affected by the report from Saskatchewan. September lost ½c, October 1c, November 1c and December 2c.

Wheat opened easy and declined on lower cables and heavier receipts of wheat in the Northwest compared with a year ago. The discrepancy is due to the earlier run this year. The winter wheat movement is declining slowly and the daily totals are not showing up so favorably in comparison with last year as the winter wheat movement at this time last year was just getting under way.

The cash markets were depressed and prices were weak. The demand was poor and trading in spot stuff was dull. The mills did not seem to care for offerings which were small. Milling interests at the Head of the Lakes have done a moderate export business in clears in the last few days and the export demand is said to be good especially from Denmark, and the Scandinavian peninsula. The United Kingdom is taking small lots, also.

The marketings at elevators and stations in the Northwest are said to be confined chiefly to wheat that is sold under pressure. Farmers are selling a small amount to pay for thrashing. Some stations say farmers are putting their wheat in storage and are buying futures. Others report that farmers are marketing a moderate amount of old grain as they have been convinced that they will have enough for seed. There is very little new stuff being marketed and sales to arrive are small. The movement will be earlier this year than usual, it is believed, but the bulls are confident that the farmers will not send much new stuff to market and the offerings will be confined to old wheat which the farmers held in store until an adequate seed supply had been assured. Many country banks in the Northwest are pursuing a policy which may force renters and new settlers to liquidate their wheat but the established farmer is in good financial shape, generally, to hold his wheat.

Small flour sales to the East were reported by Minneapolis today. A wire from that market said that the business is dropping off again and the recent spurt appears to have been only temporary.

Cables from France said that weather conditions are unsettled. The Paris market closed higher. Unsettled weather in Germany forced an advance at Berlin. A cable from Rosario, Argentine, to Slaughter said that weather is unfavorable and drouth continues in the provinces of Sante Fe and Cordova. Predictions of rain were not fulfilled and the weather is unfavorable.

Hans Simon, American representative in the United States for Dreyfus & Co., of Paris, France, who left here for New York several days ago, by way of Chicago, is quoted by the Chicago American as saying that France will be compelled to import 30,000,000 bu of wheat. He said the stories that a shortage of 100,000,000 bu exists are exaggerated. It was a Dreyfus cable, however, received at Duluth that made the first claims of the sensational deficit in the crop. Mr. Simon told the American that there will be very little durum wheat in the Northwest available for export as the Northwestern millers will use it generally, because of the difference in the price between that wheat and other descriptions.

Flour Situation.

In the last week or two export sales of soft winter wheat flour have been made for the first time within a year, roughly estimating. The business was not extensive, but it was encouraging as indicating future possibilities. The absence of a foreign outlet has been the weakest feature of the flour trade and one which has given American millers considerable concern. The revival of export trade is the most important recent development in the condition of the trade. If the foreign demand should become broad it would cause an advance in prices, but much more business must be done abroad before the effect on the situation becomes pronounced.

There have been rumors of flour sales by Northwestern millers for export, but it is difficult to obtain confirmation. A feature of the local trade in the last week was the loading of flour made at the Head of the Lakes for shipment to Panama. It was reported at the close of last week that Minneapolis mills had sold considerable flour of a low grade for export, but no confirmation of the rumor was received here.

Trading by domestic buyers is quiet, the partly to higher prices asked by most millers and to the fact that buyers in many instances have covered immediate requirements. The advance has been small but buyers do not appear disposed to follow it. The demand for winter wheat, both hard and soft, has been fairly active and while no large lines have been recently ordered by buyers the trading in a moderate way has been general. It included nearly all grades from patent down to low grade. Strong straights and pastry flour seemed to comprise the bulk of the business.

The market for spring wheat flour continues depressed. There have been sales of small lots for shipments, but there is no interest in flour for future shipment at prices quoted. There is a noticeable disinclination on the part of jobbers to contract for full shipment and few mills are booking business beyond Sept. 1. Buyers are demanding lower prices than the mills will accept. Buyers are disposed to hold aloof in the expectation that the market will reach a basis on which they care to do business within the near future or before their necessities become acute. Many say that if prices continue around the present level they will buy only as their needs dictate, carrying their hand-to-mouth policy indefinitely.

Many people believe that prices of spring and winter wheat flours are too far apart and that there must be a readjustment, as circumstances do not warrant the prevailing difference. Buyers hold that the readjustment must come by a decline in the prices of spring wheat flour rather than by an advance in the prices of winter wheat flour. On the other hand the millers claim that requirements for consumption will become sufficiently urgent in the near future to force buyers to take on supplies at the market price.

MARKET GOSSIP

On Flax.

Harvey, N. D.—Flax is running about 3½ bu an acre. It will yield from 1 to 6 bu an acre. Some fields will not be cut as the Russian thistle was especially pestiferous in this neighborhood and overran many fields to the almost total destruction of the flax.

Stanley, N. D.—Flax will make an average yield in the neighborhood of Stanley of 6 bu an acre. As thrashing has not started this is merely an estimate. The crop is in poor condition.

Larimore, N. D.—The flax crop in this vicinity is almost a total failure. The yield will be so slight as to be almost negligible. Don't think we will get our seed back.

Marion, N. D.—No flax has been thrashed. The crop is in very poor condition. It is almost a total failure.

Cooperstown, N. D.—Flax will make a yield of about 6 bu an acre in this neighborhood. It will run from 5 to 10 bu an acre. The crop at the present time looks fair. As there has been no thrashing it is impossible to make a moderately accurate estimate but 6 bu an acre is the average guess of the farmers in this vicinity.

Wishek, N. D.—The flax crop is exceedingly poor and will make a greatly reduced yield. It is impossible to tell what the yield will be. There has been no thrashing. Some people think the crop will make 6 bu an acre and others think 4 bu will be the maximum.

Ellendale, N. D.—If flax averages 1 bu an acre in this part of the state it will do better than many farmers expected a few weeks ago. Many fields will not be cut. Others may go as high as 4 bu an acre. The concensus of opinion places the prospective yield at between 1 and 2 bu an acre.

Gackle, N. D.—Flax will make an average yield near here of about 3 bu an acre. According to present indications the crop will run from 1 to 6 bu an acre, with an average of 3 bu. It is making a poor stand and some of it is so short that it will be difficult to harvest it.

Wheat and Other Grains.

Harvey, N. D.—Barley will average about 5 bu. an acre, Durum wheat 2½ bu., spring wheat 2 bu. Some fields of barley will run as high as 15 bu., Durum as high as 10 bu. and spring wheat as high as 8 bu. Farmers say that between 75 and 78 per cent of the crop will not be cut. About 50 per cent has been or will have been plowed up.

Stanley, N. D. — Spring wheat will make a yield of from 5 to 10 bu. an acre with an average of about 7 bu. Durum wheat will average 9 bu. an acre, the yields running from 7 to 10 bu. Barley will make an average yield of about 11 bu. These are estimates as there has been no thrashing.

Larimore, N. D.—Spring wheat will make about one-fourth of a crop near here. It will run from 4 bu. to 10 bu. an acre. Durum wheat will yield between 2 and 5 bu. with an average of about 4 bu. an acre.

Marion, N. D. — Wheat has made a very thin stand, but it seems to be excellent in quality. It is running from 2 bu to 17 bu. an acre according to thrashing returns and is averaging about 5 bu. Durum wheat is running from 2 bu. to 12 bu. and will average about 5 bu. Oats and barley are almost total failures. As thrashing has just started it is impossible to give an accurate statement of the yields in this vicinity.

Cooperstown, N. D.—The wheat crop will be exceedingly light, but the quality will be good. There has been no thrashing. According to information from farmers the prospective yield of spring wheat is from 5 to 20 bu. an acre with an average of 8 bu., Durum wheat 5 to 20 bu. an acre with an average of 9 bu., barley 3 to 12 bu. with an average of 5.

Wishek, N. D. — Barley will make about 5 bu. an acre, spring wheat 6 bu. and Durum wheat 9 bu. We will get about half of a wheat crop, but the quality will be first-class.

Ellendale, N. D.—Barley will probably make 4 to 10 bu. an acre with an average of 7 bu, spring wheat 2 to 10 bu. an acre with an average yield of 5 or 6 bu. The quality of wheat will be fair. There has been no thrashing.

Gackle, N. D.—Barley will make 3 bu., spring wheat 2 bu. and Durum 5 bu. an acre on an average. Yields on the best fields will run as high as 10 bu. for barley, 10 bu. for spring wheat and 15 bu. for Durum wheat. Farmers give these estimates, but think the farmers are long wheat and are slightly underestimating their probable yields.

F. E. Pierce received a letter today from A. L. Wood, who farms on a large scale near Rothsay, Minn. Mr. Wood said that threshing is in progress and wheat is running from 6 bu to 15 bu an acre, with an average of from 7 to 9 bu. It is of excellent quality and tests from 57 to 60¼ pounds and docks about one-half pound. Oats is making a yield of from 7 to 15 bu an acre. Flax and barley, said Mr. Wood, are practically failures.

Broomhall cabled: Wheat opened dull but steady, ⅛d lower to ⅛d higher. The steadiness in America yesterday caused lighter offerings. Following the opening an easier feeling developed and prices declined ⅛d to ½d with some profit-taking. Toward midday the market again reacted, with fewer sellers and a slightly better demand for Canadian and Plata parcels. The market on the whole was dull and lacked important features. At this time the undertone was easier and ⅛d to ¼d lower than yesterday. Corn unchanged; advanced ¾d on a good inquiry for Plate parcels at higher prices, and shorts covered freely. Wheat cargoes arriving off coast, nil; awaiting orders, 4. In distant position quiet, holders unchanged, but demand limited. Corn steady with fair demand.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Prices Decline at Opening With Foreign Markets Weak.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Wheat prices declined at the start today from ⅜c to 1c, the distant futures leading in the downward trend. The large stocks continued to be the important bear factor. Buying credited to packing interests and prominent grain concerns stayed the decline in the first hour. Foreign weakness was marked. September opened ⅜c to ⅝@¾c off at $1.01¾ to $1.01½. December at the start was ⅜@½c to ⅞@1c off at $1.05¼ to $1.04¾. Fluctuations kept within the opening range.

The market kept within narrow limits and closed weak, with September ⅝@¾c off at 62¾c. December closed ¾@⅞c off at 60½c.

More rain in the West, improving the prospect of a good crop, had a bearish effect in the corn pit and prices opened weaker with wheat the initial decline being from ⅜c to ⅝c. Selling was scattered and of the scalping variety. Figures sank slightly below the opening but worked back to the start in the first hour. September opened ⅜c to ½c off at 63c. December started ⅜c to ½@⅝c off at 60⅞c to 60¾c.

Fluctuations continued narrow. The close was weak, with September ⅞c to ⅞@1c off at $1.01¼. December closed ⅞c to 1@1⅛c off at $1.04⅝@1.04¾ to $1.04¾@1.04⅞.

Oats declined in sympathy with wheat and corn, the present enormous stocks proving too heavy a load for the bulls. At the opening December showed a gain of from a shade to ⅛@¼c which was quickly lost and the winter option sold off ⅛@¼c in line with the other deliveries. September opened ¼c to ⅜c off at 36c to 35⅞c and kept within the opening range in the first hour.

Little interest was manifested in provisions and the figures fell off generally, lard being unchanged at the start and the other products from 7½c to 17½c down. Opening prices for the September products were: Pork, $21.37½, 17½c off; lard, $11.92½ unchanged, and ribs $11.97½, 7½c off.

Cotton Market.

New York, Aug. 16.—The cotton market opened today at an advance of 4 to 9 points on August and of 11 to 22 points on later months as a result of active covering and fresh buying for long account, inspired by a bullish private condition report and continued dry weather in parts of the Southwest. Realizing was heavy at the advance, and after the first rush of covering was over the market became a little less active with prices easing off 3 or 4 points.

Futures closed steady; closing bids: August, $15.90; September, $14.37; October, $13.70; November, $13.62; December, $13.62; January, $13.61; February, $13.62; March, $13.68; May, $13.72; June, $13.72; July, $13.72. Spot closed quiet, 20 points higher; middling uplands, $15.90; do gulf, $16.15. No sales.

STOCKS GET STRONGER

Final Hour Brings Expansion and Covering By Shorts.

Earlier Trading Is Affected By Offerings for Sale.

New York, Aug. 17.—Business at the outset today was on a large scale, and although prices were only slightly changed at first the market soon took a decided dip downward. Canadian Pacific yielded 1½, St. Paul 1¼ and Amalgamated Copper a point.

Speculation was very irregular, the list alternately advancing and declining, but the fluctuations in the market leaders did not exceed a fraction except in a few instances. There was a continuation of yesterday's sharp advance in some obscure stocks. St. Louis Southwestern preferred improved 3 points, Republic Steel preferred 1½ and Delaware & Hudson, Rock Island, Western Maryland preferred 1½ and Delaware & Hudson, Rock Island, Western Maryland preferred, the American Smelting stocks, American Agricultural Chemical, Great Northern ore certificates, United States Realty and Third Avenue 1.

Much disappointment was felt over the action of the market. Bulls were confident that yesterday's demonstration of strength would be continued and were disconcerted when they found there was plenty of stock for sale in the opening dealings.

During the early part of the second hour the market receded further, but toward noon the list hardened gradually with prices averaging below yesterday's closing. Federal Mining preferred moved up 7¼, Pacific Telephone 1⅜, Republic Steel and Allis-Chalmers preferred 1½ and Pacific Mail 1. Losses reached 3½ in Pacific Coast Line, 1½ Sloss-Sheffield Steel and 1 in Northern Pacific Bethlehem Steel preferred and La Clede Gas. Bonds were irregular.

The market closed strong. Increasing strength was shown in the final hour. Business expanded greatly and there appeared to be urgent covering by shorts in various quarters. Gains of from 1 to over 2 points were pretty generally made throughout the list. Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis jumped four points, Delaware & Hudson, Republic Steel preferred and National Lead 2½, Pacific Mail 2¼, and Rock Isalnd, Missouri Pacific and Westinghouse Electric 2.

AUGUST 17, 1910.

Some mines make good in a short time. We refer with pride to the Amazon - Montana - Development Company's mine near the big tunnel in the Amazon district in Montana. They have already opened up a big tonnage of high-grade gold, silver and lead ore. Mr. William T. Smith, the president, will bring this mine into the shipping class in a very short time. He certainly is enthused and has a right to be, for did not the Comet, back of this property take out $14,000,000 worth of ore. It looks now as if Amazon will sell at $20 or better a share. All the brokers have orders for this stock. You can readily understand with the Bailaklava boys back of it, and with such a mine, the stock has got to move toward higher levels.

Red Warrior is strong, and with any good local market, St. Mary's should begin to be very active.

BELVIDERE BROOKS OFF HIS BASE.

F. W. K.: Col. Belvidere Brooks, general manager of the Western Union Telegraph company, with headquarters in New York was a recent visitor in Los Angeles. While walking up Broadway with W. L. Lamb, local manager, Mr. Brooks remarked repeatedly on the glorious climate and also on the fine appearance of the women he saw thronging the street and stores.

Out of a big emporium came a dashing brunette, of Juno-like form, head up, breast out, eyes bright, her whole ensemble breathing the joy of life. As she sailed by the two gentlemen, with a long, swinging graceful stride, she nodded and smiled brightly at Mr. Lamb.

"Whew!" whistled Brooks. "What a form! what eyes! what grace! Indeed, there is an object lesson on your beautiful climate. Puts me in mind of the remark the old judge made in the play 'The Danites:' 'It's all owing to the glorious climate of California.'"

Mr. Lamb looked up at his general manager and grinned.

"Get back on your base, Brooks, or you will be put out," he said. "You are to be commended for the evident sincerity of your admiration for the young lady we just met, but you are off on climate conditions. That young lady is a relative of mine, and she hails from Arkansas, the most mosquito-bitten, malaria-laden hole on God's green earth."

Then Brooks began looking for a place where they didn't sell dry goods.

LONGWORTH TURNS UPON CANNON AFTER MEETING WITH TAFT AT BEVERLY

BEGINS THE REAL FIGHT ON SPEAKER

Statement Is Believed to Reflect Views of the Administration.

Ohioan Present During President's Interview With Sherman.

Cannon Refuses to Answer Anybody But Taft Himself.

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 18.—Reflecting the views of the administration, it is generally believed, Nicholas Longworth of Ohio today gave out a statement in which he says he will never support Speaker Cannon again and that he does not believe Mr. Cannon ever can be re-elected. This is regarded as the beginning of the real fight on Mr. Cannon.

It had been regarded as significant that Mr. Longworth had been called into all of the recent conferences of a political character held by President Taft. Mr. Longworth was present yesterday afternoon when the president and vice president talked together.

Sherman Against Speaker.

It was reported then that a statement adverse to Mr. Cannon was being prepared in quarters close to the administration, and it was also intimated that Mr. Sherman, who, like Mr. Longworth, has always been a supporter of Mr. Cannon, has become reconciled to the fact that Mr. Cannon must go.

There may be further significance in that fact that Representative Longworth is going to Oyster Bay on Saturday to spend several days with his father-in-law, Col. Roosevelt. The fact that he was present at the interview between Mr. Taft and Mr. Sherman and that he is going to Oyster Bay is taken here to mean that a close understanding between Beverly and Oyster Bay as to recent events in New York is to be reached.

Statement in Full.

Mr. Longworth's statement in full is as follows:

"Beverly, Mass., Aug. 18, 1910.

"In view of Mr. Cannon's unequivocal declaration that he intends to be a candidate for speaker of the next house, I think it is incumbent upon those of us who are candidates for membership in the next house, who have made up our minds upon our course of action and have positive views on the subject, to state our position publicly. Had Mr. Cannon not made this announcement, and had it remained doubtful whether he would be a candidate or not, it was my in-

PLANS DEFENSE AGAINST ENEMY

Gen. Murray Is Working on Coast Artillery Needs in the East.

New York, Aug. 18.—Brig. Gen. Arthur Murray of the coast artillery, is in New York preparing for an extended trip of coast defense inspection which will extend from Portland, Me., to the most southerly point on the Gulf of Mexico.

The main purpose of the trip is to determine just what is necessary in the way of additional coast fortifications to place the nation in such a position that it may feel safe from successful attack by an enemy. With this data collected he will go before the various committees in congress and ask for the needed funds.

LIGHTNING FIRES BIG OIL PROPERTY

Oklahoma Fields Suffer Damage Amounting to $150,000.

Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 18.—Approximately $150,000 worth of oil and tanks in the Oklahoma fields were destroyed by fire during a severe electrical storm late yesterday, according to advices received here this morning.

A mile and a half northeast of Kelfer, a 55,000-barrel steel tank of the Kansas & Oklahoma company was struck by lightning and burned. A short distance to the north two 160,000-barrel tanks went up in flames and still further north another 55,000-barrel tank was lost. In the same field three 1,600-barrel wooden tanks were consumed.

LET OUT 111 VENIREMEN

Judge Kersten Finds Six More "Approached" in Browne Trial.

Says Somebody Is Making Travesty of Law's Administration.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Judge Kersten, in whose court Lee O'Neil Browne is up for retrial on a charge of buying votes for Senator Lorimer, was compelled today to dismiss six more veniremen. This makes 111 veniremen dismissed from the last three panels upon their own statements that they have been "approached" with reference to their possible service as jurors.

"I do not know who is tampering with the veniremen," said the court. "I do not takes sides, but someone is doing corrupt work. I sincerely hope we will find out who is guilty and that they will be brought to the bar of justice. They are making a travesty of the administration of the law."

Reply by Erbstein.

The court's remarks were addressed to the lawyers and veniremen generally. Attorney Erbstein answered:

"I will say that investigators for the defense have not gone near the homes of veniremen. Yesterday I told our agents that they must not do so or I would bring them into court. The power of the state attorney's office has been used to discredit the defense. There is a plot on foot to that end."

State's Attorney Wayman had ascended the bench and was sitting near the judge when Mr. Erbstein concluded his remarks.

"Tommyrot!" was all the comment the prosecutor made.

T. G. Mathers, chief justice of the king's bench of Manitoba, a guest of Judge Kersten, was an interested spectator during the proceedings.

Is Up to Wayman.

Judge Kersten declared that further investigation of the alleged attempts to influence veniremen is up to the state's attorney. The latter declared that he is trying to secure the names of the investigators, from whom he says he hopes to learn the names of their employers.

APPLY ESPERANTO TO BIG BALL GAME

Cleveland and Washington Pitchers Try to "Frapumo" Batters.

Washington, Aug. 18. — Group meetings of Esperanto societies led the program for today, the fourth of the session of the sixth International Congress of Esperanto.

In the afternoon the delegates are scheduled to witness an example of the great American game as shown by the Washington and Cleveland baseball teams. Umpires' decisions in Esperanto and books of baseball rules printed in the international language and to be distributed among the delegates have been arranged so as to make them feel at home. For many of them it will be the first ball game they have ever seen.

Whether the ordinary "fan" will take to the umpires' shout of "frapumo" in place of the familiar "strike," will be shown today and will prove a severe test for Esperanto.

RELIEF FOR PENSIONERS

Rural Mail Carriers Hereafter Can Execute Vouchers.

Authority Before Given to Postmasters Is Extended.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, Aug. 18.—Hereafter all carriers in the rural delivery mail service will be required to execute vouchers for United States pensioners residing on or contiguous to the routes served by them. For this they are to receive from pensioners a fee of 25 cents for each voucher executed.

To facilitate the execution of pension vouchers, congress passed a law in 1894, empowering fourth class postmasters of the United States to administer any and all oaths required to be made by pensioners and their witnesses in the execution of pension vouchers. Due to the establishment and extension of rural delivery, 23,550 fourth class postoffices have been discontinued, and these discontinuances have taken away from pensioners a convenient means of executing their vouchers and in many instances they now have to travel long distances to find some person authorized to execute vouchers.

Authority for Carriers.

In order to afford relief to pensioners, provisions conferring that authority upon rural letter carriers were embodied in the pension appropriation bill for the present fiscal year, which was approved June 25, 1910.

A circular letter giving information and instructions upon the subject will be sent to all postmasters at rural delivery offices, for the guidance of rural carriers.

Mike Madden of Superior Is in Jail at Stillwater, Minn.

Is Accused of Stealing Registered Envelope Containing Notes.

Stillwater, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mike Madden is in the local jail awaiting a hearing before A. E. Doe, United States commissioner, on a charge of stealing a registered envelope addressed to the postmaster at Superior, Wis. In the envelope were notes to the aggregate value of $15,000, addressed to the Superior State bank, and another addressed to Miss Hannah Lawson, 1614 Seventh street, Superior, Wis.

The complaint was made by J. M. Dickey, assistant United States attorney, and the arrest was made by Deputy United States Marshal Wells. The man was brought to this city and taken before United States Commissioner Doe. The government asked for a continuance of the hearing until next Tuesday, and Madden was committed to the local jail in default of $5,000 bail.

Madden is 21 years old and formerly lived at Hinckley. He has been employed about the postoffice at Superior.

SEEK WRECK OF BURNING BALLOON

German Police and Foresters Get Report From Wood-Cutters.

Dessau, Germany, Aug. 18.—Police, gendarmes and foresters are searching the hills and forests in this vicinity for the remains of a balloon and its probable passengers, which was last night seen flaming in the sky. Some wood cutters, at dusk, saw a burning balloon drifting over the wooded hills at a considerable altitude, finally falling rapidly. They notified the authorities in Dessau, who sent out searching parties.

St. Paul Bank President Given Thirty Days for Speeding.

Frank W. Waterman Pleads Guilty---Has No Option of Fine.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank W. Waterman, president of the Ramsey County State bank, was given a straight sentence of thirty days in the workhouse, without the option of a fine, by Judge Finehout in police court today for speeding his automobile in the city limits above the limit allowed by law.

Mr. Waterman and companion were returning from Minneapolis last night, and near the corner of Milton street and University avenue ran into a buggy containing two men. The buggy was upset and the occupants slightly injured.

After the accident, Mr. Waterman attempted to get away from two motorcycle policemen who saw the collision, and would have succeeded, but the police telephoned to a branch station and mounted police were sent out to intercept the automobile.

In police court today Mr. Waterman pleaded guilty and said he was ready to take his medicine.

ATTACK DIAZ FROM AMERICA

Mexican Liberals Insist They Will Publish Paper in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 18.—In case the Mexican Liberals recently released from the prison at Florence, Ariz., publish a paper in Spanish here and send it into Mexico with articles attacking the Diaz government, an effort will be made to extradite them, according to Juan B. Isabel, member of the Mexican congress. Senor Isabel arrived here yesterday. Once in Mexico, he says, the men will be tried for insulting President Diaz.

Guiterrez de Lara, one of the Liberals, is apparently unterrified in the matter. When informed of the action he said:

"The first copy of 'Regeneracion' will appear Sept. 3. Every issue will contain articles against the Diaz government, and we expect that copies will go into Mexico."

The Mexican consul in Los Angeles will attempt to hinder the issuing of "Regeneracion" by requesting the postal authorities to forbid its going through the mails as second class matter.

AGENT IS DISCHARGED FOLLOWING A PROBE OF HIS DEPARTMENT

IMMIGRATION AGENT DISCHARGED

WILLIAM H. DEAN.

William H. Dean No Longer in Charge of Immigration Office.

Admits Violation of the Rules But Denies Other Charges.

Deputy, Acting as Detective, Filed Complaint Against Him.

United States Immigrant Inspector William H. Dean has been discharged by the department, and the office turned over to Inspector Spawn of Sault Ste. Marie.

It has been rumored for some time that Mr. Dean's resignation was to be demanded by the head of the department, and the move was not unexpected.

Mr. Dean was charged with neglect of duty and falsifying the records of his department. He is claimed to have certified to meetings of the board of immigration, composed of himself, the collector of customs and a deputy collector, which were never held. The board is supposed to pass upon all cases where an immigrant is held up. Mr. Dean, it is claimed, certified to meetings of this board which neither the collector or his deputy knew anything about.

He admits this charge, but claims no injustice was done by it to any immigrant, and that it was done for the purpose of expediting business.

It is understood, however, hat there were more serious charges connected with the affair. About six weeks ago Harry Edsell, Chinese inspector in charge of the Canadian border force, was in the city and conducted a detailed investigation of the work of the local office.

Detective in Office.

George W. Moore had been quietly added to the inspecting force of the office several months ago. Mr. Moore came here as an immigrant inspector but his real duty was to keep a watchful eye on Mr. Dean.

To do this Mr. Moore was well equipped. He came here fresh from Texas where he was so effective in unearthing an underground railroad system of smuggling Chinese into the country that the mayor of one of the border towns was forced to quit the country, and Mr. Moore was fired at three times on his farewell trip to the railroad station en route to Duluth, by friends of the smugglers. He had a considerable reputation as a gunfighter and detective.

While performing his duties as inspector here, Mr. Moore was quietly gathering information. He got a number of affidavits relating not only to Mr. Dean's official conduct, but regarding his private life, in Duluth, which, if substantiated, according to Mr. Moore, would have been sufficient to necessitate Mr. Dean's resignation.

RAILROAD LOSES OUT

Coal Car Distribution Case Decided By Traffic Commission.

Ruling Is Virtual Victory for the Mining Companies.

Washington, Aug. 18.—Distribution of coal cars by railroads among the mines along their lines must be made, according to an opinion handed down today by the interstate commerce commission, in accordance with "an equal or a justly ratable use of the facilities of an interstate carrier," and with "the assurance also that no other shipper shall fare ratably better at the hands of the carrier."

The opinion was rendered in the case of the Hillsdale Coal & Coke company against the Pennsylvania Railroad company. The question at issue has been for several years under consideration by the commission and by the United States courts, a difference always having existed between the railroads and large shippers of coal as to the proper distribution of cars among the mines.

Against the Railroad.

In effect the decision of the commission is against the railroad. It is held that the defendant's rule "providing that the capacity in tons of such 'assigned' cars shall be deducted from the rated capacity of a mine in the distribution of 'unassigned' cars, is unlawful and discriminatory." It is announced, therefore, that the rule unduly discriminates against the complainant and other coal operators similarly situated, and is in violation of the law.

THEFT LAID TO LA CROSSE MAN

W. W. Schall Is Accused of Embezzling Street Car Company Money.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 18.—A warrant was issued today for W. W. Schall, secretary of the La Crosse & Onalaska Railway company, charging him with the embezzlement of $640.47 of the funds of the company. The line in question is a small one connecting La Crosse and Onalaska.

Mr. Schall is also secretary of the La Crosse City Railway company, which operates the local traction system, and it was admitted today that his affairs in that office were also under examination.

Dr. Luis F. Corea Is on His Way Back From Nicaragua.

New Orleans, Aug. 18.—Dr. Luis F. Corea, former Nicaraguan minister to the United States, will arrive in New Orleans from Nicaragua next Tuesday, according to messages received here today. Much interest is attached to Dr. Corea's return because it is stated he held a number of conferences with President Madriz of Nicaragua. It is believed the attitude of the United States has been fully presented in these conferences and that the position of Madriz has been set down in a communication now in the hands of Corea.

Sulphur, Okla., Aug. 18.—J. F. McMurray, whose contracts with the Indians allowed him 10 per cent attorney's fee on the sale of $30,000,000 worth of land, is the subject of an investigation by congress, went on the stand before the special congressional committee today.

Mr. McMurray described his contracts as "a plain business deal."

Douglass, with three others, was driving the car at a rate said to have been fifty miles an hour, when the machine skidded on a curve and overturned into the ditch. MEET AFTER SIX YEARS

Peter Ljustina Finds His Missing Wife in Duluth.

Assault, Instead of Loving Greetings, Features Their Reunion.

Married six years ago in Austria and separating after a short period, Peter Ljustina met his wife unexpectedly in Duluth last evening.

The reunion was not a happy one. Neither was glad to see the other, it is claimed. The wife received a severe beating and the husband landed behind the bars at the police station after their meeting. Love and kisses were not featured.

The husband told his story at headquarters. He claimed that he found the girl he wedded in Austria, leading a life of shame in this country, and that he was so angered that he could not resist taking the law into his own hands. Another Austrian, who asserted that he knew the facts, stated that Ljustina's statement was correct.

Ljustina said that he married his wife when she was but 15 years of age, and that they had lived together but a few months when he decided to come to this country. He stated that he had heard of the good wages to be made on this side of the sea, and that he left to earn the money with which to erect and maintain a comfortable home for both of them. He said that he sent her money regularly, and kept up a steady correspondence. But he alleges that without saying anything to him she dropped completely out of his life, coming, as he afterwards learned, to this country.

During the interim he neither heard from her, nor saw her, he claimed. When he came to Duluth he found her in a boarding house, he said, and was convinced that she was not true to him, and had been leading a life of shame for some time past.

The charge placed against Ljustina last evening was assault, but he was not arraigned in police court this morning. The authorities stated that in view of the circumstances they would not bring him into court unless his wife swore out a complaint against him. The officers said that they would not push any case against him.

ELKS AT MINNEAPOLIS.

Seventh Annual Meeting of State Association Is on.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Minneapolis is given over to the Elks of Minnesota who are holding their seventh annual session of the state association here.

Last night the Elks were entertained at Wonderland at a military demonstration, Companies A, B, F, I and N of the National Guard furnishing the entertainment.

Tonight will be "Rube" night, Governor Eberhart and other prominent ones being among the attractions.

There is a representative attendance from the different lodges of the state.

The business session of the association will be held tomorrow morning and the women accompanying Elks will be given an automobile ride in the meantime.

The afternoon will be devoted to a social reunion, a visit of inspection to the site of the proposed Elks' building at Second avenue south and Seventh street.

The evening will be spent at Wonderland, when members of the St. Paul lodge are to pay their visit postponed last night because of rain, bringing with them the Minnesota state band.

The officers of the state association are: J. G. Armson, president, Stillwater; Ripley B. Brower, vice president, St. Cloud; W. H. Rendell secretary, Minneapolis; Samuel Donaldson, treasurer, Faribault; J. J. Nolan, sergeant-at-arms, Brainerd, and Rev. Mr. Marshall, chaplain, Cass Lake.

Building a Camp Fire.

The success of outdoor cookery depends largely upon how the fire is built and how it is managed. A camper is known by his fire. It is quite impossible to prepare a good meal over a higgledy-piggledy heap of smoking chunks, or a great bed of coals that will melt anything. In making up your list of supplies for the camping trip, be sure to include Golden Grain Belt beer, as the water supply may not be the drinkable kind. This beverage is a valuable aid to digestion, as well as a tonic and health-maker. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing company.

TICKET BUYERS FORM LONG LINE

Big Crowd Waiting to Get Seats for Orpheum Opening.

When the box office at the Orpheum theater opened this morning there was a line in waiting that stretched from the theater down to the corner of Superior street, and some distance along that thoroughfare.

The line began to form before daylight this morning, and it kept steadily growing up to 9 o'clock.

It was 10:30 before any progress had been made in reducing the length of the line, newcomers taking the places of those who had been served.

The line was a good-natured one, and no attempt was made to break it up or "rush" the box office.

But few seats were left at noon, and the sale for the other days of the week began.

The opening performance will be held Monday.

RAPID ADVANCEMENT OF VERY HIGH CLASS RESIDENCE PROPERTY; FINE LOCATION

The vicinity between Congdon park and the Country club is the scene of great activity, where 100 men and fifteen teams are getting in readiness for the sale, starting Saturday, Aug. 27, what is one of the finest residence properties in the Northwest.

Crescent View Park lies on a level, high ground and runs from First street to Sixth street and between Thirty-fifth and Thirty-seventh avenues east, every lot of which commands an extensive view of the lake.

The bulk of work being done at present is the parking of the property and grading and leveling the boulevards to streets and avenues. The parking is being done in a thorough manner, the brush being cleaned away and the young trees left standing. Every inch of the ground is gone over with yard rakes, so that when completed each lot in itself looks like a small park.

The attractive piece of work in progress is on the gateway entrance, which is an entirely new affair, there being nothing like it in the way of an entrance to high class residential property outside of some of the largest cities of the country.

The rear of the property has many large and beautiful trees. The lay of the land is unique, apparently no expense is being spared by the owners in making this one of the most beautiful residential properties that has ever been offered in the Northwest for high class residences.

Certainly no other high-class property has been offered at the prices and terms that are being asked for these fine tracts. Many restrictions are placed on this property, the class of residences to be constructed, etc.

Expert landscape architects were brought direct from the East and laid off this property according to the topography of the grounds.

With the quality of this superb homeland and the nearness to the city it completely outclasses all other real estate propositions than can ever be offered in Duluth.

MRS. FISKE AND HER INTEREST IN HUMANE WORK.

Mrs. Fiske, whose prominence and interest in humane affairs are almost as great as they are in those of the stage, recently completed arrangements that prove the depth of her feelings for the dumb creation and entail a business sacrifice that is an innovation in the affairs of any charity.

After somewhat lengthy negotiations with the managers who held them, she finally succeeded in cancelling her engagement contracts for the first ten days in December next, so that she can take charge of and appear in connection with a national Kirmess to be given in Kansas City during the week of Dec. 5 for the humane societies of the country.

This gifted and great-hearted woman recently appeared at a benefit in Los Angeles for the local branch of the national society, and a few weeks previous gave a special performance in Boston in the interests of the animal rescue league before one of the largest and most representative audiences ever gathered within the walls of the famous Hollis Street theater, and as a result several poor worked-out and decrepit horses are now standing knee-deep in the clover fields of a New Hampshire farm, never again to know the clang of a fire alarm or the early dawn activities of a city milk route.

Mrs. Fiske will appear at the Lyceum Saturday.

SOUVENIRS OF THE FORBES COMPANY.

Following the custom popular wherever there is a stock company about to close its season, Mr. Forbes will present a picture of his company to every guest at the Lyceum tomorrow at the special matinee performance of "A Gilded Fool. This matinee is given in place of the regular Saturday matinee and the advance sale for the performance promises to eclipse all former records. This will be the opportunity for the week and matinee girls to say farewell, as Mr. Forbes and his company will close their engagement with the Sunday afternoon and evening performance.

"A Gilded Fool" which was Nat Goodwin's play, has never before been seen in Duluth and it is being received with great favor. The audiences during the week have been most enthusiastic and the humorous situations of the play and the delightful role of Chauncey Short in which Mr. Forbes appears is proving a happy selection for his farewell week.

"A Gilded Fool" will be given tonight and tomorrow afternoon and night and the engagement will close with the Sunday afternoon and evening performances.

Mr. Forbes will go from Duluth directly to Brooklyn and will open there Sept. 3 at his theater where he will play for the winter.

SPEAKS REAL UTE IN "THE SQUAW MAN."

Frederick Monley who plays "the Indian Chief" in "The Squaw Man", which will be seen at the Lyceum next week, has accomplished a task that few men would have undertaken. In this play Edwin Milton Royle, the author, has made his Indians speak only in their native language, the Ute tongue, having their words translated by an interpreter.

"I don't know whether any other actor had to create his language as he went along," says Mr. Monley, "but that is what I have to do. I never believe in doing things by halves. Of course I presume I might have employed almost any gibberish and no one would have known the difference, but Mr. Royle said he wanted me to speak the Ute and that's what I am doing. Ute is not a written language but Mr. Lewis has made for himself a glossary of several hundred words representing them as nearly as possible by a phonetic system of his own invention. Here is a sample.

"Nar-ra-wup" .....Do business
"Caru" .....Sit down
"Quop" ..... Tobacco
"Re-as-poo-noo-knub" .....
..... Be on your guard

It might be of interest to many to know that Mr. Monley was instructed in the Ute language by Baco White, a full blooded Ute Indian who is the United States government interpreter on the Ute reservation.

FALSE EVIDENCE PROVES COSTLY

Peddler Heavily Fined for Attempt to Besmirch Officer.

Mike Mainello, the wagon peddler, who was arrested yesterday morning for calling his wares on the street in a disorderly manner, was given the limit in police court this morning. Judge Cutting imposed a fine of $100 or sixty days in the county jail. The extreme punishment was meted out not solely because of the offense, but for what the court stated were false statements made when he was arraigned yesterday. At that time he stated that Court Officer Jensen called him a "dago — — —," and that the policeman tried to induce him to give him some fruit. The court also criticised him for bringing his small daughter into court to perjure herself in his behalf. The officer produced witnesses to testify that he had used no abusive language and that he had not asked Mainello for any favors.

CHAUFFEUR ON TRIAL AGAIN

New Case Being Heard---Appeal From Former Conviction Pending.

John T. Dohm, arrested several days ago for the second time on the charge of exceeding the speed limit in the city limits, was placed on trial in police court this morning.

The state completed its case and the defense will likely finish this afternoon. It is alleged that he was traveling faster than fifteen miles an hour on First street. Dohm was sentenced to fifteen days in the county jail in June upon being found guilty of speeding. The case was appealed to the district court. E. J. Kenny, attorney for Dohm, stated this morning that the case will be dismissed as the legal requirements were not complied with by the city, the arrest being made without a complaint. If the city so desires it could try Dohm again on the old charge when the action in district court is dismissed.

DULUTH VETERANS WILL GO TO DENVER.

The reunions of the different organizations which participated in the war with Spain, the Philippine troubles and the Boxer uprising will be features. Col. Roosevelt will be the principal speaker the afternoon of the first day.

DELIGHTFUL LAKE and RIVER TRIPS

FAILS TO FLY INTO LONDON

Chicago Aviator Has Hard Luck on English Flight.

Moissant Has Record for Daring in Latin America.

Chatham, Eng., Aug. 18.—John B. Moissant, the Chicago aviator who is attempting to fly from Paris to London, descended for the second time today near here, breaking the propellor and part of the frame of the machine in making the second landing. The accident was due to a quick turn made to avoid striking a group of trees. The broken parts must be replaced from Paris, and a resumption of the flight to London before tomorrow is improbable. Neither Moissant nor his mechanician was injured in the accident.

The good fortune which accompanied Moissant in the earlier stages of his flight from Paris and on his record-breaking journey across the channel with a passenger seems to have deserted him with his arrival upon English shores. Motor defects in the aeroplane, which had yesterday worked without a slip, forced him to make two successive landings when about half way on the course between London and Tilmanstone, where he ascended at 4:50 this morning. In his first descent, a mile from Sittinghourne, about thirty-five miles from London, he just missed the mouth of a deep chalk pit, a fall into which would have meant death for the aviator and his mechanician.

Has Reputation For Daring.

New York, Aug. 18. — In Nicaragua and the various other republics of Central America, where many Americans of adventurous spirit have staked their lives and reputation on their quickness with a gun, John Moissant bears a reputation savoring of romance. Stories of Moissant were told here today by former residents of Central America.

At the time when Moissant was sojourning in Honduras it was told by a Nicaraguan, a tramp steamer loaded with a cargo valued at something like $100,000, was cast ashore during a storm and abandoned. That night, in the teeth of the gale, Moissant made his way alone to the steamer in a small dugout and took possession of the vessel.

In the morning the captain, accompanied by members of the crew, rowed out to the ship, which had withstood the pounding of the sea and wind, but which was held fast on a sunken reef in the outer harbor. They were halted by a shot from Moissant's revolver. There was some parleying and the ship's skipper rowed back to shore to inform the American consul and the authorities that Moissant claimed the ship and her cargo as salvage and had threatened to "blow the head off the first man who tried to come aboard."

Shot Through Leader's Hat.

There was a second expedition to the ship, this time with the American consul and some native soldiers; but Moissant refused to be impressed, and to show his sincerity of purpose, shot a hole through the sombrero of the native commandante. The expedition returned to shore for reinforcements of artillery, but during the night another storm, more severe than the first, swept the harbor and completed the wreck of the tramp.

When daylight broke the vessel was seen to have foundered. Moissant was taken off later by the American consul, who had seen him lashed to the topmost rigging of the steamer, which emerged only a few feet above the water.

Previous to this exploit, Moissant appeared in the news columns as heading a rapid fire gun for the Nicaraguans in an attack on Salvador during one of the recent outbreaks there.

Interests in Salvador.

The Moissant brothers, George, Alfred and John and two sisters, for many years had interests valued at several hundred thousand dollars in Salvador. In 1907, George and Alfred were arrested and imprisoned on charges of aiding and abetting the revolutionists of Salvador and with having secreted the revolutionary general, Escalon.

The third brother, John, was actively implicated in the movement against President Figueroa. When the revolutionists were repulsed by government troops at Acajutla, John Moissant fled to Nicaragua. His brothers later were released, but their property was attached by the government and as a bond to prevent their escape from the country.

Two years later John Moissant headed a large filibustering expedition against Salvador from Nicaragua, but it was nipped in the bud by the prompt action of Commander William S. Benson, United States navy, commanding the cruiser Albany, who threatened to sink the vessel in which the filibusterers proposed to land on Salvadorean territory.

ONLY ONE OF HIS KIND.

During the second Cleveland campaign, Col. John P. Irish, the golden-tongued orator, and Judge Kinne of Waterloo, Iowa, the man with lungs of brass, were stumping Iowa in behalf of the Democratic candidate.

They were driving in a buggy on the road to Sidney, a young city in the southwestern part of the state, when they came to a fork of the road where there was no sign board. Which turn to take was a question, as they had barely time to make the town anyway.

"There's a farmhouse over there a bit. You sit still and I'll go over and ask questions," said Irish, and climbing out he started for the desired information. He got it, and on his return saw the horse, evidently frightened at something, tearing down the road at runaway speed. Instead of trying to stop the horse, Judge Kinne dropped the reins, climbed over the seat and dropped off the back of the buggy into the road.

When Irish caught up to him, the judge was busily dusting himself off after his roll in the roadway, not in the least disfigured by his acrobatic stunt.

"You're on the right fork of the road, all right, Judge, but why didn't you hang on to the horse?" asked Irish, laughing heartily.

"Why didn't I hang on to him?" rumbled Kinne in his deep sub-cellar voice. "I'll tell you why I didn't, my Christian friend. There's lots of horses in this world, but there is but one Judge Kinne." F. W. K.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

LEGG AND DENVER SCHOOL BOY

Will Fight It Out for Trans-Mississippi Golf Title.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 18.—With all but eight of the big field of 192 starters in the trans-Mississippi golf tournament eliminated, the play today narrowed down practically to a contest between Harry G. Legg of Minikahda and Lawrence Bromfield, the Denver school boy. Legg has turned in two cards of 77 in the qualifying round and Bromfield followed an 80 in the first round by a 79 in the last part of the qualifying round and a 79 yesterday in his match with A. W. Copp.

Bromfield's way to the finals is clear with the possible exception of W. M. Sheehan from Des Moines, whose play has all the experts guessing.

With the elimination of Fairbanks and Fisher in the first two rounds, Legg's course to the semi-finals is assured in spite of the fact that he is limping badly. Doctors have ordered an operation on his foot. Legg has staved them off fearing that an operation would eliminate him from the match play rounds and has the foot dressed every day between matches.

Legg's prediction of his own play has been remarkable. He believed that he would make a score of 154 in the qualifying round and that 153 would not be made.

AMERICANS WIN SECOND

Spanish Boats Are Outclassed in Sonder Class Races.

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 18.—The Harpoon, owned by C. F. Adams 2nd, today won the second race of the Spanish-American Sonder boat series over a twelve-mile windward and leeward course, in a seven-knot breeze. The Cima was second, the Beaver third, the Chonta, the first of the Spanish boats, was a good fourth, the Papoose, a poor fifth, and the Mosquito II was two and three-quarter miles astern, sixth.

NEW ZEALANDER WINS SCULLING CHAMPIONSHIP.

Livingstone, Rhodesia, Aug. 18.—The sculling match for the championship of the world between Richard Arnst of New Zealand and Ernest Barry of London, was won today by Arnst, the champion, by two lengths.

The race was rowed upon the Zambesi river, a short distance from the famous Victoria Falls, over a course of 3½ miles. The stakes were $2,500 a side.

FOUND A BURIED TOWN.

Kansas City Star: Every once in a while excavation in Southern Arizona results in the discovering of a buried village. The most recent discovery of this kind was made by Frank C. Erwin at his home, fourteen miles from Cochise.

Three miles from his ranch Erwin started to dig an irrigation ditch. Only a few feet under the surface he began to uncover utensils of a shape and material which indicated that they had been used by a race probably as old as the Cibolas, that strange people whose "Seven Famous Cities" was the lure that brought Father Niza and the negro Estevanicio from the Spanish mission at Callacan north along the Sonora river to the old city of Tabac, near Tucson, which expedition was the beginning of civilization in Arizona.

After digging deeped, Erwin came across a wall, which he followed for twenty feet. Further investigation brought to light hundreds of bones well preserved, and one skeleton being intact. When an attempt was made to take up the skeleton it fell to pieces. Among the treasures unearthed was a slab on which were written curious figures representing men and birds and animals. Erwin took several of the relics into Tombstone and will send others to the Smithsonian institution.

ENCOURAGED BY PATRONAGE

The Success of Duluth's Public Market Seems Assured.

The success of the public market at the Armory yesterday has greatly encouraged the agricultural department of the Duluth Commercial club and it is expected that the market Saturday will be liberally patronized. It will open at 7 o'clock a. m.

Among the gardeners who brought stuff to yesterday's market was a boy who lives in the vicinity of Tenth avenue east and Tenth street. He loaded his hand cart with the produce of his garden and hauled it to the Armory, where he did a lively business. Three gardeners from Hermantown showed a fine assortment of stuff.

"People who desre to buy produce right from the soil, without the danger of bacteria and other contaminations, have an opportunity at this market of buying direct from the producer," said A. B. Hostetter, agricultural secretary of the Commercial club, today. "The stuff is fresh, clean and excellent in every respect. Hotel and boarding house people might patronize the market to advantage, thus eliminating the middleman to the extent made possible by the market."

TO AWARD PRIZES FOR GARDENS

Work of the Youthful Corn Growers Will Be Judged.

In May the Commercial club distributed sweet corn seed among 140 boys and girls living in the city limits who desired to enter a contest in corn growing. Within a few days a committee to be appointed by the club, will visit the plots where the corn has been grown and award the prizes.

A few days ago the club sent out return cards asking the contestants to advise A. B. Hostetter as to what success they had, and forty of them have replied, giving briefly the story of their venture into agricultural pursuits. Contestants who have not sent in these replies should do so at once. Otherwise their gardens will not be visited by the committee and they will miss a chance to participate in the prizes.

The awards will be made on these points: number of hills, number of stalks, general condition of the plot, including neatness, absence of weeds, etc. There are three prizes of $3, $2 and $1, respectively. The contestants are to profit by the sail of the corn they have grown, and it would be desirable to market the stuff in the public market at the Armory after the awards have been made.

RAILROADS

SOUTHERN ROAD IS TO GO AT AUCTION

International & Great Northern to Be Sold on Sept. 15.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 18.—Announcement is made this morning by Master Commissioner William H. Flippen that he has set Sept. 15 as the date for the sale at public auction of the International & Great Northern Railroad company and its properties. The sale will occur at Palestine. A recent order by the United States district court here empowered the master commissioner to arrange for the sale "without valuation, appraisement, redemption or extension and with all the monuments of title."

The sale is the result of litigation pending in the federal courts for several years.

IOWA TOWNS SAY RATES ARE UNFAIR

File Complaints With the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Washington, Aug. 18.—Through Attorney General Byers of Iowa and the state railroad commission, allegations were made to the interstate commerce commission today that the interior towns and cities of Iowa are being compelled by the railroads to pay excessive and exorbitant freight rates from points east of the Mississippi river.

It is alleged in the petition, which is filed against the Chicago, St. Paul Minneapolis & Omaha railway and other interstate lines, that the freight rates from Peoria, Ill., and other points to interior towns in Iowa are discriminatory and unlawful. The commission is urged to readjust the rates on an equitable basis.

HER SAFE COURSE.

Spokane Spokesman-Review: Mrs. Wilson's husband was often obliged to travel on business, and frequently did not reach home till after midnight. His wife had been in the habit of sleeping peacefully at these times, but a number of burglaries in the neighborhood during one of Mr. Wilson's trips had disturbed her calm.

On one night of his return, Mr. Wilson was stealing carefully up the front stairs so that his wife would not be awakened, when he heard her voice, high and strained.

"I don't know whether you are my husband or a burglar," came the excited tones, "but I am going to be on the safe side and shoot, so if you are Henry you'd better get out of the way!"

You'll never need to buy anything that cannot be bought to best advantage in a store that advertises.

CARRY FIGHT TO SARATOGA

Political Friends of Roosevelt Meet at Sagamore Hill.

Ex-President Refuses to Talk of Meeting---Griscom Is Warlike.

Oyster Bay, L. I., Aug. 18.—A hurried conference was held at Sagamore Hill today between Theodore Roosevelt and a number of his close friends. William Loeb, Jr., collector of the port of New York, came from the city in an automobile. Lloyd C. Griscom, chairman of the New York Republican county committee, came on an early train. Congressman W. W. Cocks, representative from Mr. Roosevelt's district, also went to Sagamore Hill.

Mr. Griscom said he could not discuss the reason of his visit to Mr. Roosevelt.

"After the meeting of the Republican state committee on Tuesday you said that the fight in behalf of Col. Rosevelt would be carried to the Saratoga convention. Does that still stand?" Mr. Griscom was asked.

Fight Will Come.

"It does," he replied.

Col. Roosevelt refused to talk politics.

L. N. Steele secretary of the Republican committee of Alabama, Joseph Thompson and Emmett O'Neill, all from Birmingham, Ala., arrived here today to ask Col. Rosevelt to visit Birmingham on his trip across the continent, which begins next March. They came as representatives of the Birmingham Businessmen's league and the chamber of commerce.

"Buffalo" Jones, who recently returned from a trip to Africa, where he spent some time lassoing lions, also visited Col. Roosevelt today.

SUPERIOR GETS NEXT MEETING

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 18.—The Wisconsin Paid Firemen's association today elected Thomas A. Clancy, chief of the Milwaukee department, president; Fred J. Colton of La Crosse, vice president; Ole Norman of Superior, Wis., secretary, and J. H. Krats of Manitowoc, treasurer.

The next state convention was awarded to Superior.

COTTAGES FOR OLD PEOPLE

Will of Thomas E. Wells Provides Homes for Aged Couples.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Ten cottages to be occupied by old married couples, and to be used under the direction of the Old People's home, are provided for in the will of the late Thomas E. Wells, who was president of the Independent Packing company and a prominent member of the Board of Trade. The estate is valued at $600,000, the bulk of which goes to the widow.

CANADIANS WANT THE "RETURN" WORK STOPPED.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 18.—A deputation from the Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce and Grain exchange called on Consul-General Jones of the United States today and asked him to bring to the attention of President Taft the organized campaign inaugurated in the United States to induce Canadian settlers to return to the United States.

THINGS AS THEY ARE.

"Those of us who are fortunate enough to possess normal eyes are apt to feel instinctively that we see things as they are. This is a mistake," says a writer in the Century. "The appearance of the world at large is merely the result of the circumstance that the human eye perceives only a comparatively small part of the total radiation which comes from the sun or is given out by a lamp.

"To make this a little clearer we may consider one of the oldest experiments in optics, the passage of a ray of light through a prism. When a beam of sunlight passes through a prism of glass, such as is often found on old fashioned chandeliers, the rays are spread out, forming a spectrum, which we see as a rainbow colored band upon the wall.

"The colors of the spectrum merge into one another by insensible gradations, though the older physicists were in the habit of recognizing seven—red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet. These colors which the eye perceives are by no means the only ones present in the spectrum. If we perform the experiment in a dark room and place a photographic plate in such a position as to receive the image of the spectrum we find that it extends to a considerable distance beyond the violet.

"In other words, there is a region beyond the violet which the eye cannot see, but which the sensitive plate is able to photograph. This region is termed the ultra violet, and the light from virtually all sources contains a greater or less amount of this ultra violet light.

"The only difference between this ultra violet light and ordinary visible light is in the length of the wave, which is, in fact, the only difference between the different colors of the visible spectrum. If instead of using a glass prism for forming our spectrum, we use one cut from a quartz crystal we find that the ultra violet spectrum is very much longer, which shows us that the shortest waves of light are not transmitted even by the clearest glass.

"If your eyes were sensitive to this region of the spectrum instead of to the other the appearance of things would appear black, our windows would be as opaque as sheets of iron and polished silver would resemble anthracite coal. In other words, things appear as they do merely from the circumstance that in the process of evolution our eyes have developed a sensibility to a certain region of the total spectrum of the light which comes to us from the sun.

"If we have used an ordinary photographic plate in our experiment we shall find that it has received no impression from the red and yellow parts of the spectrum and very little from the green. The plate therefore suffers from the same defect as our eye; it is sensitive only to a limited region Recently, however, means have been found of rendering plates sensitive to the entire visible spectrum, and to a certain extent to the infra-red, or the extension beyond the red analogous to the one beyond the violet.

"With a photographic plate rendered sensitive to the entire spectrum we could obtain an idea of how things would appear if our eyes were sensitive to regions other than the one adopted by nature by excluding from the lens of the camera all rays other than the ones with which we wish to operate. This is done to a limited extent every day by all photographers, who employ color screens in their work and it is well known that increased contrast can often be obtained in this way.

"If, for example, we attempt to photograph white clouds against a blue sky without the use of such a screen we get scarcely any trace of the clouds at all, whereas if we place a yellow glass in front of the lens the clouds come out snow white on a very dark background. We can see this same effect by viewing the clouds first through a piece of deep blue glass, which is what the photographic plate 'sees,' and then through the yellow plate.

"I have found that in general most white garden flowers are black, or nearly so, in ultra violet light. Next summer I am going to raise some white flowers under glass which will screen them from the ultra violet rays during their development and see if this makes any difference; for it has recently been found that the color of flowers is related to the color of the light which falls upon them."

ABROAD WITH A SUIT CASE.

"If you are reading up for your trip in Europe next summer, you will notice that most of the guide books advise one to dispense with a trunk and take only hand luggage," says a writer in the Woman's Home Companion. "Do so by all means, but remember that numerous pieces of hand luggage are more vexatious than one trunk.

"A girl I know compressed her entire baggage into one suit case, not a leather one, but a light wicker telescope with strong shawl straps and a comfortable handle. A tiny padlock was fastened securely through the strap when it seemed wise. To make the case fairly damp proof she covered it neatly with dark green denim, which matched her traveling suit in color.

"A folding umbrella was slipped lengthwise under the straps at the top, her raincoat when not in use was strapped flat on the side; there was room in the case for her short jacket. Instead of the inevitable handbag a leather side bag with several pockets held the needed tickets, cards, keys and so forth.

"Inside the outer part or lid of the case she tacked a piece of denim with fitted pockets of different sizes to hold not only toilet articles, such as soap-box and brushes, but her drinking cup, sewing and writing materials and all small things. Instead of unpacking this when she reached each place she simply lifted the lid off into a drawer and used the articles from there, replacing each after using, so there was no waste of precious time collecting little belongings at each departure.

"In the other side of the case were the tight rolls of underclothing; over them she laid two dimity envelopes the size of the case, in which were her extra blouses and the silk gown. For these crepe de chine and Shimpan silk packed most satisfactorily without wrinkles.

"Having a raincoat and the silk skirt, she found her one cloth skirt quite enough, and also only one petticoat, which was of strong silk lined throughout with tan muslin; on the inside of it she sewed two large flat pockets with buttoned flaps, which on short excursions held a veil, extra handkerchiefs and even her light rubbers."

For some reason or another, the thing sought may be cheaper at one store than at another—than at any other. Herald ad-readers buy "in the light."

Why Not Own Your Home?

We Will Lend You the Money at
5% SIMPLE INTEREST

Money invested in house rent receipts is a poor investment, and one that you will never derive any future benefits from. Anybody can pay rent, but it takes energy, economy and determination to own a home. We will lend you the money to buy, build, improve homes or lift mortgages anywhere in the Union. For each $100,000 borrowed, you pay us $7.50 per month, together with 5 per cent interest on yearly balances; giving you 10½ years in which to repay loan, with the privilege of taking up all notes or as many as you wish at any time, and by so doing you would get a discount of the 5 per cent interest on all notes taken up before maturity. We allow six months' grace in case of adverse circumstances. Now why do you pay rent when our plan will enable you to own a home with the money you spend for rent?

On receipt of this coupon, properly filled out, we will mail you full particuars in regard to our method of loaning money, or, better still, come to our office and let us explain to you our liberal proposition in detail.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

What Minnesotans Think of the Rebuff of Roosevelt by the "Old Guard" in New York—Otter Tail County Excited About a Plan to District the County for Legislative Election Purposes—Cal Stone to Have Opposition—Political Notes.

Progressive Republicans of Minnesota are generally quoted as saying that they believe it's a good thing the "old guard of New York politicians turned down Theodore Roosevelt when he offered to serve as temporary chairman of the Empire state convention, because it brings him into action of a positive nature. The progressives were not the only ones to express satisfaction, however. Chairman E. E. Smith of the Republican state committee, who has never been accused of belonging to that wing of the party, said in St. Paul yesterday that Roosevelt's statement will help the Republicans in Minnesota. Frank A. Day said the statement meant that a third party would be formed. Senator Clapp refused to talk.

Roosevelt and Minnesotans.

Congressman W. S. Hammond of the Second district said:

Mr. Roosevelt's statement naturally arouses hope that he will be with the men who favor progressive policies and the divorce of politics and business in the nation as well as the state.

Of course, the situation in New York is not the same as the situation in the nation. The issue there is opposition to the organization and a revolt against boss rule. In the nation at large there is a fight against the organization and the dominance and control of the Republican party by the interests. With this is involved opposition to the tariff schedule through which certain interests profit at the expense of the people.

Therefore, a citizen of New York might be a progressive for the state campaign and yet not join hands with the progressives in national affairs. From Mr. Roosevelt's statement it is impossible to say whether he is a progressive for New York alone or for the nation at large. I sincerely hope the latter is true.

Alex G. McKnight, Representative Miller's rival for the Republican nomination for congress in this district, said:

It is what I predicted when I read the accounts of the convention. I said if they give Roosevelt a slap in the face they'll start something. This is the result. We know now where he stands if there was ever any doubt about it.

This statement unquestionably means the triumph of the progressives over the regulars, regardless of what may be said in the future. I was reasonably sure of this victory before, but the position taken by Mr. Roosevelt cinched the matter.

I am also delighted to note the success of William Kent over Duncon McKinlay in California. This is another triumph for the progressive ideas, and is a move to higher and better things in politics on the Pacific coast. Minnesota will show a like advance next fall.

The belief seems to be general that Col. Roosevelt will soon come out in the open as a leader of the progressives, without any thought for the effect this may have on the fortunes of the Taft administration.

Frank J. Clemans, brother of Rev. E. C. Clemans, superintendent of the Minnesota Anti-Saloon league in the Duluth district, has filed as a candidate for the house in the Thirty-sixth district, which is the Seventh ward of St. Paul. This means that there will be a county option fight in the "swell" ward of the capital city. Mr. Clemans' opponent is Cal E. Stone, who served in the last legislature with suave distinction. Mr. Stone is one of the ablest and most popular members of the lower house, and it is certain that Mr. Clemans can not win without an unusual show of strength.

Cal Stone Has An Opponent This Time.

Mr. Clemans has of late taken a more or less prominent part in St. Paul politics, his activities being largely centered in the law enforcement movement. He is an advocate of prohibition, but has identified himself with the Republican city organization.

He is now a member of the Republican city and county committee and trains with the Halbert insurgents.

"The representative district plan" is exciting much interest in Otter Tail county, where the candidates for legislative honors are being polled on the proposition. In a communication to the Fergus Falls Free Press, "Citizen" discusses the subject as follows:

Otter Tail County Has A Local Issue.

Otter Tail county contains sixty-two congressional townships; is 42 by 54 miles in extent, its population at the last census was 48,229, including the hospital inmates, and it elects one senator and four members of the house to the legislature.

There is only one other senatorial district in the state that elects four members of the house at large; this is the Forty-first district, which consists of the Fifth and Sixth wards of Minneapolis, a territory of about one-third the area of the city of Fergus Falls and with a population of 46,190.

Continuing the communication reads:

There is perhaps a little excuse in a district so compact as the one just mentioned, to elect the house members at large. But no such reason would apply to Otter Tail county with its immense area and comparatively sparse population, of different nationalities and creeds. Even the city of Fergus Falls, county seat and common railroad center, has only about one-tenth of the population of the county, excluding the state hospital patients.

Other things being equal, it would appear that if a majority of the people of this county desire, this change should be made. You may load down the safety valve till the engine explodes; but the most of us would prefer to see the county divided into legislative districts rather than into a few little counties.

Our county officers, and I think that as a whole there are none better in the state, are mostly from Fergus Falls. They naturally gravitate that way. They are elected at large and are the servants of the whole country. On the other hand, each county commissioner is elected from his own particular district. He is known personally by the voters of his section of the county, and there seems to be no good reason why this should not be the case as to members of the legislature.

Better to vote for one man that you do know, than for four that you do not know.

The most serious objections that have been urged to this plan of division of representation is that it might result, some time, in the election of a member who might be a Democrat, or who might be opposed to county option. But in politics as in mathematics, a straight line is the shortest distance beween two points, and it is always best to do what we know is just and right and leave the results to that over ruling power to whom all our little plans must seem liks the labor of a colony of ants.

In stead of the "Special Interests" finding it easier to control the election of legislative members in a small district where every voter knows his man, they can work much more effectively in the large district, where the candidates are unknown to the majority of voters. This is so patent a fact that it needs no supporting argument.

Opposition to the district plan is centered at Fergus Falls, and Elmer E. Adams is held responsible for much of the feeling against the scheme. Mr. Adams is said to be actuated in his opposition by a fear that the cause of county option would suffer should the new idea take form. The fight may involve the senatorship, which lies between Wright and Sageng as it looks now.

The Virginia Enterprise, avowedly favorable to the candidacy of P. R. Vail for re-nomination as Republican candidate for the state senate, makes editorial note of fact that James P. Boyle of Eveleth has filed for that nomination and pays him a graceful compliment. Says the Enterprise:

Virginia Paper Pays Boyle a Compliment.

"The decision by Mr. Boyle was made after many conferences with friends in various parts of the district, and while recognizing that in Senator Vail he has an opponent well worthy of his steel, he feels optimistic as to the outcome of the battle of ballots on Sept. 20."

Continuing, the Enterprise says:

Mr. Boyle is a comparatively new comer to the range, a young man who has made good in his chosen profession and who has made many friends among those with whom he has come in contact. It had been the hope of some that he might be induced to file for the county attorneyship, while others saw for him clear sailing toward a seat in the house, but the beacon light of the state senate led on as the logical stepping stone to higher planes, and he hearkened to the voice of those who saw for him a promised future of political elevation and who saw in him a promising opponent to the present incumbent of the position.

But in Senator Vail he will find an opponent who will "make him go some" if he would land right side up at the close of the contest, a man who enjoys a personal acquaintance with a great percentage of the voters throughout the district and who, in addition thereto, is backed by a legislative record on which he seeks the approval of electors.

The Virginia Virginian says of Mr. Boyle's candidacy that it is warrant for the belief that the senatorial contest will be a spirited one, adding:

Mr. Boyle made up his mind to file some time ago and tendered his resignation as assistant county attorney in order to devote his whole attention to the campaign. His resignation was not acted upon and he later decided not to become a candidate. After Dr. H. F. Welfick's refusal to run it placed a different complexion on matters and during the past two or three weeks Mr. Boyle has been interviewed by many who insisted upon his entering the race. He finally consented and from now until the primaries, Sept. 20, will devote his energies to corralling as many votes as possible. There are none who dispute Mr. Boyle's ability and in case he is so fortunate as to poll a greater number of votes than Senator P. R. Vail he ought to make good at the capitol.

Reports from different parts of the district indicate that Mr. Boyle's strength is great and growing and that he goes into the fight with every reason to hope for victory.

• • •

Virginia Virginian: "County Commissioner Neil McInnis was in the city during the week and while here met many friends who will work for his re-election to the office which he has ably filled for a number of years. Mr. McInnis is familiar with the needs of his district and during his term of office has been able to secure large appropriations for roads which lead to the farming sections. He was a constant worker for the new court house now being built in Virginia and Virginians generally feel kindly toward him and many have expressed regret that opposition has sprung up in this city against him."

• • •

J. P. Thon of Steele county, has announced his candidacy for the state senate. He agrees, if elected, not to be a candidate for a second term, in view of the fact that it has been the custom in the county for the past sixteen years" to give the senator but one.

• • •

It is probable that L. H. Rice of Park Rapids will not make a personal campaign for the Republican nomination for the house in the Fifty-third district, because of business engagements. He pledges his "hearty and strenuous support of all measures which will bring to the people of Northern Minnesota the fullest measure of happiness and prosperity."

• • •

M. L. Nelson of Isanti, is mentioned as a possible Democratic candidate for the senatorship in the Forty-fifth district. He hasn't said anything about it, to date.

• • •

Because of his attitude on reapportionment and other issues, Sam Y. Gordon of Brown's Valley, Republican nomineee for lieutenant governor, is being called "Square Deal Gordon," which hadn't ought to hurt him a bit in the campaign.

• • •

A. J. Rockne, speaker of the house two years ago, has filed as a candidate for state senator from Goodhue. He said some time ago that he intended to do it. His opponent for the Republican nomination is W. H. Putnam of Red Wing, an optionist, whose views on this issue are directly opposed to those of Mr. Rockne.

• • •

O. B. Ekman of Roseau, formerly a member of the legislature, is a candidate for county treasurer of Roseau. L. P. Dahlquist is opposing him for the Republican nomination.

• • •

T. M. Ferguson of Barker, candidate for the house, puts a 1-mill road tax first and reapportionment second in importance in announcing his candidacy. He was an efficient member of the house two years ago and is expected to have no trouble in getting back.

• • •

G. H. Mattson of Roseau, who was a valuable member of the house in the last legislature, announces his candidacy for renomination and re-election and in his platform espouses reapportionment and other features of the Bemidji and Crookston convention resolutions.

DIVORCEE DESPONDENT

Deserted By Man Who Infatuated Her, She Tries Suicide.

Mother of Three Children Is Saved From Leap Into Lake.

Infatuation for a man she met for the first time, a little more than a week ago led Myra Auger, a divorcee and mother of three children, to attempt suicide last night. She was prevented from jumping into the lake and today says she doesn't care for the man any more and has decided to live.

Mrs. Auger came to Duluth from Sheboygan. Her children are in North Carolina. A week ago last Saturday she met Arthur Ledsworth in Duluth and fell in love with him at sight, she says. They have been together since then. Last night Mr. Ledsworth told her that love's sweet dream was over. He was wide awake and was going to be on his way.

"Good-bye to you," said Arthur, in effect.

"Good-bye to life," said Myra, and she started to put that sentiment into effect.

The woman walked rapidly to the lake front and was followed by Capt. Thompson, government inspector, who was suspicious of her hasty actions. She had reached the end of the canal pier and was about to throw herself into Lake Superior when the captain intervened and shooed death away.

Taken to the police station, the woman told her story, bewailing the stern cruelty of life, but this morning she was in a more tolerant frame of mind and saw enough advantages in being alive to continue in that state.

Mrs. Auger was taken to the Bethel, where she will be cared for.

STOLEN HORSE FOUND.

Animal Taken at Hector, Minn., Recovered Thirty Miles Away.

Hector, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The horse which was stolen from Pete Hauer's barn north of this place was found by Mail Carrier Buchanan of Litchfield about thirty miles from its home. The horse was wet with sweat when found. An auto stopped in front of the Hauer barn the night previous to the theft but on members of the family arising and going to the door the occupants of the auto were heard to say, "They're getting up." The auto contained two men and they motored away immediately. No trace of the thief has been found.

MIKKELSEN IS RESCUED

Arctic Explorer Is Found Wrecked on King Williams Land.

Danish Party Reports Partial Success of Search for Erichsen.

Copenhagen, Aug. 18.—Capt. Elmar Mikkelsen with his expedition, which sailed June 20, 1909, on the Danish Arctic ship Alabama to search for the bodies of the Erichsen Greenland expedition, were wrecked during the winter on the coast of East Greenland, according to advices received here today. Capt. Mikkelsen and the entire party were saved and succeeded in effecting a landing on Shannon island off the coast of King Williams Land. From this point they were recently rescued by another ship.

News of the escape of the party and their rescue was brought to Tromsoe by a steamer cruising in the polar sea.

The expedition for which Capt. Mikkelsen was searching when the Alabama was wrecked, was that of Myllus Erichsen, who perished in November, 1907, while trying to return from the north coast of Greenland by way of the inland sea. He was accompanied by Lieut. Haven and Lieut. Broenlund. The latter's body was found in an ice crevice near a depot of the expedition and was buried there, but the other bodies were not found owing to the heavy snowfall.

DOCTORS DENY GAYNOR RUMORS

Say Wounded Mayor Passed Good Night and Is Comfortable.

New York, Aug. 18.—Mayor Gaynor passed a good night and was comfortable, the physicians said this morning, after they came from the sick room of the wounded executive. The alarming reports that the mayor's condition was more serious than the bulletins of the physicians indicated and that serious complications were threatening, were again denied by the doctors.

One report had it that the lodgment of the bullet in the throat was causing a paralysis, but this the attending physicians said was not true. The mayor early today told one of the doctors that he was feeling fine. The mayor is permitted to see no visitors.

Private Secretary Robert Adamson asserted today that the alarming reports regarding Mayor Gaynor were without foundation.

Horses Stung to Death.

Fertile, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—A team of Western horses belonging to H. B. Hogenson, mail driver, ran away yesterday and colliding with three hives of bees were attacked by the bees and stung to death. It was the horses' first trip and proved to be their last.

FAREWELL TO OLD SCOUT

Buffalo Bill Says Goodbye to Many Admirers in Duluth.

Two Enormous Crowds Pack Tent at Wild West Exhibition.

The Buffalo Bill-Pawnee Bill shows played to capacity crowds twice yesterday. The feature was the farewell appearance of the famous scout Buffalo Bill. The noted Indian fighter waved good-by to the crowds from a "spotlight" of red fire.

The rough riding, bronco busting, lassoing, marksmanship and other features of Western life of another day were vividly pictured. There were several new fatures, including a push ball contest between cowboys and Indians on horseback. The Indians held up a stage and the cowboys and army men drove them back and defeted them afterward.

The show is clean and educational. Men dressed as cowboys and soldiers from various nations gave thrilling exhibitions of bareback and fancy riding on single horses and horses driven double and triplicate.

Expert sharpshooters broke glass balls and other objects as fast as they were thrown into the air. Balls were hurled aloft, several at a time, and the marksmen shot them to pieces before they touched the ground.

The bareback riding and the formations of the riders in groups was one of the best features of the show. Men who had been crack cavalry riders in the United States army gave evidences of the riding ability which has made some of Uncle Sam's regiments famous throughout the world. Bedouins and riders from the far East, men who served in the army of the czar and adventurers who fought in revolutions in South America gave examples of native riding which were replete with sensational incidents.

The old stage coach was trekking slowly across the plains when a band of Indians swooped down upon it, killed some of the occupants, the driver and guards after a fight and made away with the booty. From over the hill appeared a single cowboy scout. Following were a detachment of soldiers and cowboys who routed the Indians after a sanguinary conflict. This reproduction of events of earlier days was one of the big hits of the show.

Although the show arrived in town late, the afternoon performance went through without a hitch. The evening show was even better.

UNDER ARREST IN GERMANY

Former Duluthian Said to Be Facing Charges Abroad.

S. C. Jackson, formerly a Duluth lumberman, is said by a Seattle newspaper to be under arrest in Germany charged by the police with obtaining large sums of money under false pretenses.

It is stated that he went abroad to float a $5,000,000 company to develop large properties in which Murray & Co. of Seattle, were heavily interested. At the time he was sent abroad by Murray & Co., Jackson was president of the company, but the claim is now made that he has been thrown out entirely and the concern reorganized. A German count with whom he associated himself is also said to be under arrest on charges similar to those preferred against Jackson.

While in Duluth Mr. Jackson was superintendent of the Cranberry Lumber company when the firm operated a mill at Ashland. Later he was associated with the McCord Lumber company and helped promote the Clark-Jackson company, which had a mill in the West end. Following is part of the story told of Jackson's career abroad:

"Jackson went abroad as the promoter for a company to exploit vast timber interests on Vancouver island. He was employed by Murray & Co., who have offices in the Maynard building, to interest the necessary capital and float the $5,000,000 development concern. He is charged by the German police with obtaining thousands of marks under false pretenses, and a German count with whom he formed a partnership is also under arrest.

"Murray & Co. state that they have had advices that Jackson is in trouble abroad. They say that they have reorganized their company and cast him out since hearing reports on his conduct. E. R. Murray said last night: 'He's in trouble; we have nothing to say. He has not robbed us, but he is no longer connected with us. His action has hurt our venture, but it will go through in spite of that. S. C. Jackson has nothing to do with us now, although we sent him abroad. We are awaiting advices now as to the nature of the charges against him.'"

WED AT MINNEAPOLIS

Miss Stratton Becomes Bride of W. W. Burris.

The wedding at Minneapolis yesterday of Miss Alice Stratton and William Wayne Burris was of much interest to many Duluth people, as the bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Burris of this city and Miss Stratton was a guest here last week at the wedding of Miss Kathryn Burris and Edward Bradley.

The wedding of Miss Stratton and Mr. Burris took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stratton of 1004 Mount Curve avenue. Fifty guests were present for the ceremony and reception which followed. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ethel Stratton. She wore a gown of white messaline satin with pearl trimmings. Her veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white rosebuds and sweet peas. The groomsman was Samuel Hoyt.

At the reception which followed, Mr. and Mrs. Burris of this city received with Mr. and Mrs. Stratton and Mr. Burris and his bride. Miss Frances Burris of this city was also a guest at the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Burris left for Pixley, Cal., in the San Joaquin valley where they will be at home.

TEMPERANCE TALK.

Tells of Progress of the Movement.

Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, state president of the Georgia Women's Christian Temperance union and one of the prominent temperance lecturers of the country appeared in Duluth last evening at the First Methodist church. Mrs. Armor visited Duluth a year ago at the time of the annual state convention and her visit this month is under the auspices of the state and local W. C. T. U. societies.

The speaker dwelt in detail upon the disastrous effects of the liquor traffic on all concerned and pointed out the necessity of the county option platform being adopted. Mrs. Armor urged the peple of Duluth to assume their duty, responsibility and obligation in this matter.

"The earnest hope of the Women's Christian Temperance union in the future," said Mrs. Armor, "will be to keep pushing and urging, with faith, love and prayer, until they carry the fight for county option, and that they may live to see the day the liquor traffic may go down with a crash."

HERALD EXCURSIONS

Will Be Continued Two Weeks Longer.

The Herald excursions, which have brought pleasure to thousands of Duluthians during the summer, will be continued during August, two weeks of which remain. There are few Duluthians who have not added to the pleasure of a summer at home by taking advantage of these delightful and inexpensive excursions made possible through The Herald.

The last outings for the season will be held as follows: Monday morning of next week and also of the week following, which will be the last of August, the river trip will be taken. The boat will leave the dock at 9 o'clock for the beautiful trip up the St. Louis river to Fond du Lac. This trip is wonderfully popular with mothers and their children. The scenery is beautiful, and the day in the open among picturesque and historic surroundings is an education and a delight to the little folks. The round trip, which is usually 50 cents, is only 25 cents for The Herald excursions. Many mothers are planning to take advantage of this outing either Monday, Aug. 22, or the following week, before their little folks must return to school.

Tuesday of next week and also on the following week the all-day trip cruising along the south shore to Port Wing will be held. The boat will leave at 8:30 a. m. for the all-day trip. The afternoon excursions, planned particularly for the pleasure of busy people, will leave the Booth dock at 4 o'clock Tuesday, Aug. 23, and also Aug. 30, for the trip to Two Harbors, returning to the city at 9 o'clock. These are the only week-day lake excursions at this end of Lake Superior, and during the

HINTS FOR LUNCHEON

Chocolate Soup.

Grate a quarter of a pound of chocolate, add three pints of boiling milk, sweeten to taste, and boil for fifteen minutes. Thicken with the yolks of three eggs beaten smooth with half a cup of milk, and add a pinch of salt. Serve with slices of fried bread.

Creamed Shrimps.

In preparing the shrimps make the white sauce much thicker than usual, allowing two tablespoonfuls of flour and one tablespoonful of butter to each half pint of milk; season with salt, pepper, mace and lemon juice. One and one-half cupfuls of sauce will be sufficient for a can of shrimps.

White Cherry Salad.

Use large white canned cherries. Take out the seeds and into each cherry insert a filbert. Serve on a lettuce leaf with a sweet mayonnaise dressing. This is a delicious as well as a pretty salad.

Dessert—Strawberry Sponge.

Mix one pint of strawberry pulp and juice with a half cup of sugar. Cover half a box of gelatine with a quarter of a cup of cold water and soak until soft; then add a quater cup of hot water, dissolve and strain into the fruit. Stand the bowl containing this mixture in a pan of cracked ice, and as soon as it begins to thicken, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of four eggs.

THE EVENING STORY

THE LADY IN BLUE

By J. F. MacNamara.

I had always regarded my friend, Frank Denman, as both sentimental and impressionable. Many a time had I to listen to his rhapsodies describing some fair charmer whom he had met at the home of some of our mutual friends. Never did man for the time being believe more sincerely that he had met the only girl he could ever love. But, alas for the fickleness of Frank!

So it was that on one summer's morning, as we were walking down together, I was not surprised when I had to listen once more to the praises of a lady fair. This time it was more romantic than usual, because the object of his admiration was unknown to him. He had only seen her from afar, and this was the story: Passing a certain private hospital one day, his eyes fell on a lady, who evidently becoming convalescent, was anxious for a sight of the world outside, and so she was reclining on a couch near a window, with a book lying idly in her hand.

Repressing Frank's excitement, I compelled him to walk along in the manner of a sane person, and then we came opposite the window in which I was to see the vision which had evidently been haunting the memory of the days and nights of Frank's existence.

Glancing upwards in a hurried manner I saw the face of a girl of about 21 who had evidently but recently recovered from some severe illness. It was as he had pictured her, even though his language had been so glowing. Garbed in a blue costume—not being learned in the ways of Worth I cannot tell either the exact hue or the style—it was, at all events, while simple, a very becoming one.

"Now, what do you say?"

I could only answer. "She is very beautiful, indeed, but what good is that to you? You do not even know her."

"Well," he replied, "I shall find some way of learning who she is and of becoming acquainted with her."

"I hope so," I replied, "and I wish you luck."

A week later Denman burst into my apartment one day.

"She's gone," he cried.

I knew he meant the charming patient, and then he told me that he had been passing by the hospital, as usual, but for the last couple of days no sight could be had of her whom I had called "The Lady in Blue."

In all consciousness he could not walk into the house to inquire about her identity, and he appealed to me as to what he was to do.

"Wait," said I. "It may be that she is ill, and you may see her tomorrow or the following day."

Now, I was just then going away for a holiday, and, interested in Denman's infatuation, I asked him to write to me.

Then I departed for the seashore. I shortly tired of reading, and began to watch the sea striking the rocks with a dull roar when between my line of vision a figure stepped into view about which there seemed something familiar. Surely, it was "The Lady in Blue." Momentary as had been my glimpse of her, I felt I was not mistaken, and on looking again I found I was right.

With her was a lady whom I knew, a Mrs. Joyce, and in a moment I was being introduced to Miss Madeline Moore.

Miss Moore's manners were as pleasing as her looks. Altogether unconscious of her beauty, she was so natural and so simple one forgot to be overawed by her eminence amongst her sex.

Miss Moore and I were soon friends.

That night I telegraphed to Frank to come, although I did not tell him why, and the next day he arrived.

Together we had a long walk by the cliffs from George's Head, and arrived back at our hotel just in time for dinner. I took my usual place, and, of course, Denman was beside me, and opposite to me was Miss Madeline Moore, "The Lady in Blue." It was quite dramatic when Denman, looking up, saw to his amazement the lady about whom his thoughts had been so much centered.

As soon as he found opportunity he whispered, "Do you not recognize her?"

I answered: "Yes, I do, that is why I wired to you to come down here."

It was no longer in my mind to harry Denman's feelings further, so when Miss Moore came out for an afternoon walk I introduced Frank Denman to her.

When evening fell there was a gathering in the drawing room for music. I was not slow in letting it be known that my friend Frank both sang and played well. Indeed, he was rarely gifted in that way. Possessed of a very thorough knowledge of music, he played the piano and violin with unusual brilliancy, and wac lucky enough, in addition, to own a tenor voice of great purity and sweetness.

After his first song he was compelled to sing again and again, and we had a succession of Scotch, Irish and English ballads, all of which he rendered with the sympathy and understanding of the true musician. It was evident, whether Miss Moore had any similar accomplishments, that she could appreciate good singing, and when he was by her side afterwards I could hear the simple but earnest words in which she expressed her pleasure.

Next morning Frank and I were early away for our morning swim, and going from and returning to our hotel he would do nothing but talk of Miss Moore. Now, he was eligible enough for any girl who had not unusual expectations, so there was not much to deter him on that score, and it was perhaps unkind when I damped his pleasing anticipations.

"You know so little about Miss Moore," said I, "and what if she were already engaged. It is not a far-fetched thought when you think of what she is and that there have been others on whom she has shed the light of her countenance."

His face fell as the suggestion suddenly struck him, and he was undoubtedly troubled. It was some moments before he spoke.

"It is true," he replied, "but I sincerely trust not. Now that I have come to know her, my heart is firmly fixed on winneg her, and it would be a grievous disappointment, indeed."

"Well, don't be cast down, old man, she may be so far fancy free, and you can at all events try your luck."

"I shall," said he, with an air of determination.

When he arrived at the hotel we encountered Mrs. Joyce on the piazza. After some ordinary gossip Mrs. Joyce turned on Denman and said in a tone of mock seriousess.

"I'm afraid you are carrying on a naughty flirtation with Miss Moore."

"Oh," replied Frank easily, "some folks look upon all seashore affairs as naughty."

"Especially when the lady happens to be married!" put in Mrs. Joyce.

"That's another story—when the woman is married," Denman said.

"Mrs. Fitzgerald is married" said Mrs. Joyce with a friendly smile.

"Perhaps she is; I do not know her" said Frank.

"Not know her!" exclaimed Mrs. Joyce with uplifted eyebrows.

"I may have forgotten her?" said Frank in a puzzled tone.

"Surely you haven't forgotten her since last night.

Frank started.

"Why yes' continued Mrs. Joyce. "You know Miss Moore is an actress. In private life she is Mrs. Fitzgerald. Perhaps I should have told you before that Miss Moore is only her stage name.

SENSE IN SHORT SENTENCES

What we need most is not so much to realize the ideal as to idealize the real.

In youth we feel richer for every new illusion, in maturer years for every one we lose.

Nature is methodical and doeth her work well. Time is never to be hurried.

It is better a man should be abused than forgotten.

The chapter of accidents is the longest chapter in the book of life.

That which we acquire with the most difficulty re retain the longest, as those who have earned a fortune are usually more careful of it than those who have inherited one.

The most difficult part in the comedy is that of the fool, and he must be no simpleton that plays the part.

Applause is the spur of noble minds; the end and aim of weak ones.

No man ever thought too highly of his nature or too meanly of himself.

It is a way of calling a man a fool when no attention is given to what he says.

The first duty of a woman is to be pretty.

Wise men read all of your private history in your look and gait and behavior.

What is birth to a man if it shall be a stain to his ancestors to have left such an offspring?

Our body is a well set clock which keeps good time; but if it be too much or indiscreetly tampered with the alarm runs out before the hour.

DRYNESS AFFECTS REDSKINS.

Not Dancing With Vim Shown When They Had Liquor.

Cass Lake, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—A band of Indians, numbering about thirty, has been holding pow wow in the ball park, yelling and pounding the old native drums. Many townspeople attend the ceremonies, which are participated in by Indians from the near vicinity of Cass Lake. Some of the older citizens here state the dances are not indulged in with as much vim as those of a few years back, when the Red Men were able to procure a good supply of booze and kept up their jollification all night long for a week at a time.

The street towards where the new Soo depot is to be located, has been graded this week and presnts a better appearance. A new cement sidewalk will also be constructed along the street.

Was Nearly 101.

Negaunee, Mich., Aug. 18.—John Schneider, an old resident of Little Lake, died on Tuesday. Had he lived until Sept. 3, next, he would have been 101 years old. He had never had a doctor since infancy. He was an inveterate smoker. Schneider worked about his farm every day until last Saturday. He was an old veteran, a native of Bucyrus, Ohio, where the interment will take place.

Cass Lake Vs. Bagley.

Cass Lake, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The strong Bagley team will play the Cass Lake nine on the local grounds Sunday. The Bagley team is newly organized and presents a strong lineup. The Cass Lake team is making a good record this season and the boys have lost only four games all season.

Lewis Will Be Nominated.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 18.—The Republican county committee last night indorsed Vivian M. Lewis of Passaic county as a candidate for governor. This action assures his nomination, as it pledges the big Essex county delegations and gives him a majority of the convention.

BLOOD WILL TELL

By CLARA PALMER GOLTZINGER.

"It is not what you were, but what you are today," sounds good and proves true in eighteen cases out of twenty, but blood will tell, as also environment and will power, force and the keynote of self control and ethical culture—one's disposition.

All the education on earth will not completely change the real nature or disposition of an individual. Now, by that I do not mean that we cannot change the outward appearance of what we truly are, or that it is impossible to learn to control much of what by nature we are inclined to say, or feel, or do.

We can gloss over, change appearances of, hide emotions, cover up hatred, temper or most any mean evidence exhibited in a mean disposition, but—"An Indian is an Indian unto death."

What I mean by saying that we cannot alter the fact that we have a mean disposition is simply this: If we are born from the commonest of peasant ancestry, for example, and grow to girlhood, then womanhood, without any extraordinary effort toward education, moral improvement, better environment and ethical and social culture, and then, say, at the age of 30 suddenly become possessed of a large fortune, we generally indicate most conspicuously by the very manner in which we use our wealth, brag about it, press it upon others, buy our way with it and exhibit it, that we never, never were born in the new atmosphere.

There is an old and ugly, but true, saying that "You cannot make a sealskin purse out of a pig's ear." Neither can we completely hide our true natures, no matter how much polish, education or fortune we may suddenly acquire.

We may do wonders in improvement and toward swindling society into believing that we are born aristocrats and financial monarchs, but truth is truth and all the affected veneer in this universe will not quite completely cover the great fact that when we are least on our guard, sometimes, our true nature is bound to assert itself.

It is well, therefore, that we recognize the value of living as well, as nobly and in as refined a manner as possible because of the debt we owe to posterity. Mental education is much of the keynote concerning the disposition of the following generations

Seamless shoulders and sleeves are features of most of the newest dresses.

Draped sleeves are as scanty as graceful folds will permit.

On some smart blouses military effects with braid and buttons find many admirers.

Rough straw braiding, cut to resemble moss, is very attractive, and needs little trimming.

The trimming for a large hat, the brim curving up at the left side, is a bunch of white roses and black velvet ribbon tied around the crown at the right side.

Crepons of all descriptions are used for fashionable wear, those with serpentine effects being among the newest.

Those composed of silk and wool cling gracefully to the figure, while possessing the delightful gloss of silk.

Among the many new materials for blouses is a new sort of net or grenadine of extraordinary elasticity, resembling a knit fabric.

Beautiful tablecloths with inset centers of real Irish lace are no longer novelties confined to the rich. They are to be seen on every other dinner table of note. As often as not, these are further enriched with a deep border of insertion to match the centerpiece, the table napkins being fashioned with lace borders to match.

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

WRITTEN FOR THE HERALD BY REV. J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: AUG. 21. Matt. XX, 17-34: Jesus Nearing Jerusalem.

THE CONNECTION.

From the parable of the man who did such an unusual thing in hiring men to work the one last hour of the working day and in paying them the same as those who had worked all day, Jesus goes right on toward the city, though he was down near the Jordan at the time. There two experiences of His form a very fascinating study.

THE LESSON.

I.

Forewarning the Disciples, 17-19: "And as Jesus was going up to Jerusalem, he took the twelve disciples apart, and on the way he said unto them: Behold, we go up to Jerusalem; and the Son of man shall be delivered unto the chief priests and scribes; and they shall condemn him to death, and shall deliver him unto the Gentiles to mock, and to scourge, and to crucify; and the third day he shall be raised up."

1. Protection—He knew they could not understand it all, yet He told them what was going to take place in Jerusalem. They could not think it was literally true, though he had told them several times in the past six months, each time adding details. Though they would not anticipate it, they would remember when it should come, that He had told them. That would help them some. From the hills, east of the Jordan, they could see "the mountains round about Jerusalem" and it was a good time to tell them. Taking them apart by themselves would give impressiveness to His words. But they seemed deaf and blind.

2. Forethought—It was a sort of foretaste. He could not keep His mind from the tragic future and He not only longed for their protection against sudden panic, but for their sympathy in these dark hours. He saw the rejection by His own nation and assistance given them by their Gentile rulers, for the Jews could mistreat Him in every way, except by death. The consent of the Roman government must be given to that. Two things gave Him joy and poise—the fact that His surrendered life was to secure life to men, that His suffering was their salvation, their ransom from the thrall of sin; and that He was to win a victory over death and hell by His resurrection.

Right and Wrong Ambition. 20-28.

"Then came to him the mother of the sons of Zebedee with her sons, worshipping him, and asking a certain thing of him. And he said unto her. What wouldest thou? She saith unto him, Command that these my two sons may sit one on thy right hand, and one on thy left hand, in thy kingdom. But Jesus answered and said, Ye know not what ye ask. Are ye able to drink the cup that I am about to drink? They say unto him, We are able. He saith unto them, My cup indeed ye shall drink: but to sit on my right hand, and on my left hand, is not mine to give: but it is for them for whom it hath been prepared of my Father. And when the ten heard it, they were moved with indignation concerning the two brethren. But Jesus called them unto him, and said, Ye know that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and their great ones exercise authority over them. Not so shall it be among you: but whosoever would become great among you shall be your minister; and whosoever would be first among you shall be your servant; even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many."

1. BAD—When he had told them, in several different ways, that there was to be no splendor nor worldly honors; still here they are, bowing to Him, as to an earthly monarch, and they and their ambitious mother are asking Him for the highest honors, while the others are jealous and angry. Judas expects to become secretary of the treasury. It is good to have ambition, to aspire to a high place, but not when it is in direct violation of the Master's instructions, and unbrotherly and selfish generally. They thought because they were such favorites with Him and so closely related to Him, probably cousins, they could count on His favoring them.

2. GOOD.—He tells of a good ambition—to use whatever social or personal or official power they have for the purpose, not of mastering men, but of ministering to them. The usual principle among men was the former; His was the latter. Other great ones are served; He serves and His death on the cross is the completed service of all. The anger and jealousy between them at that moment showed the evil of such ambitions. The ten were angry with the two, not because their request was wrong, but because it went in first. We are a poor enough lot at best. We want high seats, not to render humble service to others but to receive humble servility from others. Christ has to do us all over. The world is surely learning the lesson, yet very slowly.

III.

Light to the Blind. 29-34.

"And as they went out from Jericho, a great multitude followed him. And behold, two blind men sitting by the wayside, when they heard that Jesus was passing by, cried out, saying, Lord, have mercy on us, thou Son of God. And the multitude rebuked them, that they should hold their peace; but they cried the more, saying, Lord, have mercy on us, thou son of David. And Jesus stood still, and called them, and said, What will ye that I should do unto you? They say unto him, Lord, that our eyes may be opened. And Jesus, being moved with compassion, touched their eyes; and straightway they received their sight, and followed him."

1. INSTANCE.—An instance was awaiting them. Between the old town so prominent and afterwards became so famous, that he alone is mentioned by of Jericho and the new they met these two blind men, though one of them was some of the writers. Here on his part it is to serve in returning sight, not to be served with adulation and fawning; on the part of the disciples, irritation at the interruption and noise.

2. WAYSIDE.—This healing of the blind men was less important than His coming achievement to Jerusalem, but, because He was to do the latter, He was able to do the former. No one is ready for the great sacrificial task unless He is willing to do the little self-giving and tender ministries. Had He not been willing to heal the blind man, He would have been unfit to be the world's Saviour. Suffering because of sin and for sin, He is able to succor the sinner and the sufferer.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

Let us suppose that there is an umpire, and many good athletes enter the lists. Two of the athletes, who are very intimate with the umpire, approach him and say, "Cause us to be crowned and proclaimed victors," on the strength of the good will and friendship between them. But he says to them, "This is not mine to give, but it is for them for whom it has been prepared by their efforts and sweat."—Chrysostem.

Missionaries are ambitious not for adventures or honors or wealth or ease, but for larger fields of service, for more difficult tasks, for greater victories. The very magnitude of the problems and tasks set them attract strong men. The sacrifice involved in drinking the cup of Christ, the suffering awaiting those who share his baptism, does not discourage but allures them. The uplift of the negro in America and the negro in Africa are tremendous problems, and demand sacrifices in those who would solve them. One missionary to Africa writes: "I have dwelt four years alone in Africa, have been thirty times stricken with fever, have been attacked by rhinoceri and lions, have been ambushed by natives, have eaten everything from ants to rhinoceri, but I would gladly go through the same experiences again for the joy of teaching those people to know the Savior who gave his life a ransom for them."—Pierson.

The surest way to get up is to serve yourself up! The real great men of all ages have been those who have served their fellows. Serve men, and men will honor and enrich you. Trolley, telephone, phonograph. Machines of all sorts, sewing, mowing, hoeing. The world has only a contempt for merely rich men. They die and there are sneers, but no tears. As I write, two very wealthy men have just died. Of one the newspapers say little and give a list of the clubs he belonged to. Of the other, George C. Thomas of Philadelphia, columns are taken to tell of the splendid service he did for God and his fellow-men.—Ridgeway.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1. How did Jesus know what was ahead of Him?
2. Why were the disciples unable to believe Him?
3. Where did they get the idea of a temporal kingdom?
4. How is Christ a ransom for our sins?
5. Ought any one ever to tell of the way he ministers to others?
6. Ought we to ever desire place and power for any other motive than that of service?

SHAVING FEVER HITS THE MEMBERS OF BOXCAR CLUB

Municipal activity of late has been manifested in cleanup days, days devoted to the general brightening of the city; but a cleanup that has no official name, and one that was quite unexpected, was the "Tonsorial Reform Wave" that struck the members of the Boxcar club this morning.

To shave indicates some mild form of ambition. Many who have watched the movements of the members of the Boxcar club have never for one moment imagined that any of the club members were imbued with that disturbing element of success.

"Ambish" compels one to move, and to do something; the members of the Boxcar club have in the past generally lain idle, and have only moved when the arm of the law gently or sternly propelled them.

Therefore, when workers on the docks this morning beheld the members of the club, across the slip, engaging in the art of having an adornment of several weeks removed, there was a gasp. And when, Bill, a dock worker gasps, you may know that the gasp is worth gasping.

The whys and wherefores of the general cleanup of the members of the club, may never be learned. It was a shave soiree that will long be remembered on the dock. Men stopped work—though that is not unusual—and gazed in wonder at the shaving fest across the narrow slip of water.

It all started when "Long-neck Louie" came down from the busy mart of West Michigan street. Louie has a girl that "hashes" in a restaurant on the Bowery, but that is neither here nor there. He came meandering down from the Bowery, and sat wearily down with the other members of the club. Louie is awfully fond of club life; he hangs around the club all hours of the day, except when he passes the weather con talk with the red-headed girl, up there on Michigan street.

Louie came ambling down the street, and having seated himself, careless like, happened to draw a razor from his pocket. It may have been that "Long-neck Louie" was going to take his bright-locked steady to a moving picture show; or it may have been for other reasons—leastwise, Louie had the razor, and in a moment of thoughtlessness he exhibited it to the sharp gaze of one of his fellow club members.

Someone suggested that he would like to shave, the experiment being very novel, and one that had not been tried for some weeks back.

The protests of "Long-neck Louie" were in vain. The razor might have been sharp, and as Louie contemplated the wire-like beards of the members of the club, he must have felt for the razor.

His protest was in vain. Someone produced a can, that once might have been the custodian of any of at least "fifty-seven" varieties, and an old piece of soap and a tooth brush that had gone into retirement, and the shaving soiree was on.

There must have been fifteen or sixteen of the most prominent clubmen present when Louie ambled back from the visit to the red-headed palate servant. As far as is known, every one of these members was tortured by having several weeks' growth of face stubble removed. How the ones that came along toward the end of the "next" line stood it, is a mystery. How the razor stood the test of endurance, is another mystery of equal depth.

When the whistle announced to the working world that it could have a brief respite the shaving party was still at its height. Like other parties, several people were cut.

Some of the laborers on the docks forgot their lunches, so interested were they in the reform of the club members. Some ambled over on the deserted quay where the club members held forth, to get a near-up view of the party.

It was worth the walk. One clubman acted as the mirror rack, by holding up an old piece of glass, for his shaving brother to gaze into as the occasion demanded. Another member obligingly rushed the purity "can", industriously beating the small remnant of soap with the Mexican brarate tooth brush—i. e., it was of the near-hairless variety.

The shaving may extend into the afternoon. They were going fine at noon. Those who had been shaved unconsciously, quite, assumed an air of increased dignity, and one newly-shaved member cast a bleared eye of disdain on one member who was hidden behind a bunch of facial verdure.

Cause and effect is a subject that historians have written deeply of. Therefore the effect of the shaving can only be guessed at. Being cleaned up, the members of the club may feel like starting something. If there is any kind of celebration this evening, and any of the club members are mixed in it, the trial of "Long-neck Louie" razors may be held responsible for some of this breaking loose.

ABANDONED LUNCH BASKETS WOULD FEED A SMALL ARMY

After a big picnic day on Park Point there are usually enough lunch baskets and sufficient lunch contained therein to feed a small army.

At the main office of the Interstate Traction company there is a sight each Sunday morning that would delight the heart of a Weary Willie if he should happen to wander in and cast hungry eyes about.

Packed all over the office are the baskets, each with a label telling what car and at what time it was picked up and each containing its own share of left over dainties.

Let it be said that these baskets are forgotten by the people in their rush for the aerial bridge. After a big picnic day there will sometimes be as many as seventy lunch baskets forgotten. When one of the party goes back to get the basket he has to search through the seventy or more.

"It is funny, but only once did I ever know a party to forget a basket that was full of picnic produce," said one of those at the office the other day. "They hang onto the 'full lunch basket' like grim death, but after the merry feast, no one cares to be bothered and as some, or I should say, a great number, of the baskets are never called for, it is my opinion that some of them are intentionally left on the cars. If given the right to go into the baskets, but few of our men would have to carry their lunch."

It is the same way with the Lester Park, Fairmont park and other street car lines. Park Point is the most popular picnic ground about Duluth, however, and for this reason, the line on the other side of the canal handles most of the near-empty lunch baskets.

One May Overcome

constipation permanently by proper personal co-operation with the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, when required. The forming of regular habits is most important and while endeavoring to form them the assistance of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is most valuable, as it is the only laxative which acts without disturbing the natural functions and without debilitating and it is the one laxative which leaves the internal organs in a naturally healthy condition, thereby really aiding one in that way. To get its beneficial effects, buy the genuine manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is never classed by the well-informed with medicines which make extravagant and unfounded claims to cure habitual constipation without personal co-operation.

Master Butchers Favor Closed Season on Calves and Lambs.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Resolutions urging the repeal of the import tax on cattle, the 10-cent oleomargarine tax and a closed season on calves and lambs in order to reduce the high cost of living, were adopted here by the United Master Butchers' association at the closing session of its convention. The high cost of living was blamed on the scarcity of cattle, and to obviate this the butchers agreed to work for a law prohibiting slaughter of calves and lambs during March, April and May.

COLONY OF MECHANICS

Coming From the East to Locate in St. Cloud.

St. Cloud, Minn., Aug. 18.—Through the efforts of Father Kromolicki, pastor of St. John's Cantius church in St. Cloud, this city will within the next three months receive an increase of seventy-five or more families to be numbered among its permanent residents.

They will come from New York, Pittsburg and other Eastern cities. As the newcomers are mechanics and skilled laborers, permanent work has been secured for most of them in advance of their coming by Father Kromolicki, who has greatly interested himself in their behalf. Considerable building activity is naturally looked for here soon in order to provide suitable dwellings for the expected families.

FRAME NEW LAW FOR COLORADO

Democratic Senators Agree on Initiative and Referendum Items.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 18. — Nineteen Democratic senators, constituting a majority of the senate, bound by a written pledge to vote for measures determined upon by the majority of the caucus, have agreed upon the terms of the initiative and referendum bill to be placed before the senate.

The bill provides that legislation may be initiated by the people upon a petition signed by not less than 15 per cent of the total vote cast for governor at the last election. This 15 per cent must come from at least two-thirds of the counties of the state, each county being represented in the petition by not less than 15 per cent of the total vote cast for governor by that county.

The same percentage and the same restrictions in the referendum are provided. In both initiative and referendum 51 per cent of the vote cast for governor must figure in the balloting and a majority of the 51 per cent will carry or defeat the legislation at issue.

YALE MAN'S LOVE AFFAIR IS AIRED

Factory Girl Wife Wants Alimony If Hill Gets Divorce.

New York, Aug. 18.—Court proceedings heard here revealed the romance of a Yale graduate and a working girl. Justice Paige, in the supreme court, heard argument by counsel for Mrs. Matson B. Hill of New Haven, formerly of this city, on her application for alimony pending decision of the husband's suit for divorce.

Mrs. Hill in an affidavit says her husband is a son of Matson Hill, a wealthy Chicago real estate operator, and a graduate of Yale, class of '03. She was a factory employe, she says, but he paid ardent suit and they were married in this city in July 1906. Hill, she charges, forced her to keep the wedding secret, and finally sent her home, then sued for a divorce on statutory grounds. Mrs. Hill denies the accusations.

NO UNUSUAL DRAIN ON BANKS TO MOVE CROPS.

Washington, Aug. 18.—Reports from the West and the Middle West now seem to indicate that the probabilities of a heavy drain on the Eastern banks to pay for the crop movement, which will begin within the next few weeks, are reasonably remote.

Some time ago it was predicted that the Western banks, because of heavy loans, would have to draw more heavily than usual on their Eastern connections. Fears were expressed that because of the large amounts of money which had been diverted to the development projects and investments in unimproved lands in the West, the movement of money from east to west would be greater than usual.

Those who have been watching the situation and comparing their own observations with reports from the financial centers of the Middle West, now think the crop movement situation is entirely normal. The preparations which have been made to meet the movement, supplemented by the events of the last few weeks, are said to preclude any unusual situation.

Feet So Sore Couldn't Walk Down Stairs—

TIZ Cured Her Quick

If you have sore feet, tired feet, sweaty feet, lame feet, tender feet, smelly feet, corns, callouses or bunions, read what happened to Mrs. Crockett of Jeffersonville. TIZ DID IT. Mr. Crockett says: "After the second treatment she walked down stairs one foot at a time. She has not been able to walk down stairs before in past five years, except by stepping down on each step with one foot at a time. This is remarkable. Send five more boxes."

No matter what ails your feet or what under heaven you have used without getting relief, just use TIZ. It's different. It acts right off. It cures sore feet to stay cured. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. TIZ cleans them out and keeps them clean. You will feel better the first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. TIZ is for sale at all druggists, 25c per box, or direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

FRED B. JAMES IS SOON ACQUITTED

Jury at Virginia Decides Killing of Metsapelto Was Accidental.

Virginia, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alderman Fred B. James of Ely, charged with manslaughter in killing Andrew Metsapelto April 4 last, was acquitted in district court yesterday afternoon. The trial lasted only a portion of the day and the jury was out only about an hour.

James was acting as game warden at the time of the tragedy and Metsapelto, together with another man, was doing some illegal fishing in Lake Vermilion near Ely. The two men were in a boat and James was on the bank awaiting the men to land. When the men saw James they turned the boat and started further out into the lake. They were told by James to come ashore and upon their refusal to do so the game warden fired a shot which struck Metsapelto and killed him almost instantly. James claimed that he did not shoot to hit either of the men, but that the shot struck the side of the boat and glanced up and struck Metsapelto. He claimed that the shot was purely accidental and the jury believed his story.

It is expected that this week will wind up the cases to be tried here when the court will adjourn to Hibbing for the balance of the term.

INSPECTOR RESIGNS FOLLOWING A PROBE OF HIS DEPARTMENT of the case, as the "jewelry affair." According to Mr. Moore's story some time ago there came to Duluth a woman who had just come to this country from England. Shortly after arriving in New York she discovered herself short of funds and pawned some jewelry in order to secure railroad fare to Duluth. The pawnbroker cheated her badly, it is claimed, and she pawned jewelry worth upwards of $150 for about $15.

Upon arriving here and after working some time she became desirous of redeeming the stuff. She interviewed Mr. Dean about the question and he told her that as he was going to New York shortly he would get the jewelry for her. As a result she gave him the pawn ticket.

So far the stories of the affair as told by Mr. Dean and by Inspector Moore are identical, excepting in regard to the value of the jewelry, which Mr. Dean says was worth but a small sum. From here they diverge widely. Mr. Dean says that he got the jewelry as agreed and returned with it. After returning here he claims, he found that the woman was not "good" for the amount the pawn ticket called for and he refused to give up the articles until paid.

The Inspector's story relates a flat refusal to deliver the jewelry.

Another feature of Mr. Moore's story includes the finding of a registration on one of the Booth line boats of the names of "Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dean." Mr. Dean not having a wife in Duluth, the particular charge included in Mr. Moore's report to the government in this instance being that Mr. Dean accepted transportation from the Booth line people. Mr. Dean denies both charges and states that while the trip was taken, there was no registration such as described, and that on the trip he and the woman in the case, were ably chaperoned by a well-known and respectable married couple of this city.

Mr. Moore also claims to have discovered an attempted assault on Mr. Dean in his office, with intent to kill, by a Duluth man, who has since died, the assault being provoked by alleged irregular relations between Mr. Dean and the man's daughter. Mr. Dean denied these relations and presented an affidavit from the young woman in support of his denial.

Moore Arrested.

In his stay here Mr. Moore slapped the face of one of Mr. Dean's warm friends who had taken it upon himself to write a letter denying Mr. Dean's guilt and roundly scoring the investigators. As a result Moore was arrested for assault on a warrant sworn out by the man assaulted. He pleaded not guilty and when the case was called it was found that Mr. Moore had been transferred to Port Huron.

The rest of the charges, Mr. Dean says, are the fabrication of his enemies here and he claims to have led an exemplary life outside his office.

tention not to commit myself before election as to whom I should or should not support for speaker. But since Mr. Cannon, in his speeches so far in the campaign, and in his recent declaration, has made his candidacy for the speakership an issue, I for one do not propose to dodge that issue.

Will Oppose Cannon.

"I shall oppose Mr. Cannon's election as speaker, and I shall do so in the manner that I consider proper and effective on the settlement of controversies in my party, namely, in the Republican caucus.

"I made up my mind before the adjournment of the last session of congress that Mr. Cannon could not be re-elected speaker, and my opinion has been strengthened since through correspondence and talks with my colleagues.

"I am not referring to those who have openly opposed him in the past but to those who, like myself, have supported him.

"I am absolutely convinced if there is a full attendance at the Republican caucus that Mr. Cannon cannot be again elected speaker.

"I have genuine affection for Cannon as a man, and the highest respect for his splendid fighting qualities. I have supported him five times for the speakership, having voted four times for his election, and once against his removal, but I cannot do so again. I repeat that I shall oppose the re-election of Mr. Cannon to the speakership, and that I am firmly of the opinion that his re-election is impossible.

"I want it especially understood that I say this solely on my own responsibility and upon the suggestion of no one else."

Significance is Seen.

Mr. Longworth said today that he had hesitated as to whether he should give this statement out here at Beverly, where he is sojourning, or whether he should wait until he returned home to Cincinnati. The fact that the statement was given out immediately following the conference at the summer white house yesterday regarding plans for the coming congressional campaign is taken here as indicating that President Taft as well as Vice President Sherman is behind the movement to eliminate Mr. Cannon.

"Will Not Fight Windmills."

Danville, Ill., Aug. 18.—Speaker Cannon, when shown the dispatch from Beverly, regarding the statement given out by Representative Nicholas Longworth, said:

"Mr. Cannon declines to answer any statement which Mr. Nicholas Longworth may or may not have made until he sees it. I do not answer any statements which I believe to be fakes that mischievous parties make.

"It is time enough for me to answer the president of the United States if he has any statement to make touching on the Republicanism of the speaker of the house of representatives when he makes that statement under his own hand. I will not fight windmills filled by breezes blown from lungs of political or personal enemies or cowards."

WHO PAYS THE TARIFF TAX?

Do you remember the old argument about who pays the tariff tax?

Republican high tariff advocates said that the foreigner paid it. When you put a high duty on an article, you raised the price of that article—they admitted that then, though many of them deny it now when they deny that the tariff is the cause of the high cost of living—but it cost the American people nothing because the foreigner who imported the taxed goods had to pay it.

Maybe he did, but of course he added it to the price he charged you for his goods, so you paid it in the end, whatever the tariff advocates asserted.

Not only that, but you paid it again on goods made here and not imported at all. Working behind the tariff wall which kept prices up, American manufacturers combined to put their prices up to the level of that tariff wall. Really, the tariff taxes are heavier on this account than they are on account of importations. That is why, though the tariff tax amounts each year to $5,000,000,000, the government's revenue from tariff taxes is only a little more than $300,000,000—less than 6 per cent of the whole.

Nevertheless, Republican tariff advocates declared that the foreigner paid the tax, and that the protective tariff was all gain and no loss whatever because it only "stuck" the foreigner, not the American consumer. Some of them still persist in that claim.

Solely that that silly theory may be laid to rest forever, let us quote high authority on the subject—the highest possible authority on the protection side—none other than Nelson W. Aldrich, senator from Rhode Island, Boss of the Republic, vice regent for Special Privilege and most potent maker of tariff laws.

In defending himself against the Bristow charge that he had a selfish interest in fixing the rubber schedules because of his interest in the rubber trust, Senator Aldrich said that his company dealt in crude rubber only, that crude rubber is free, and that therefore the charge was false. Of course the more profitable the rubber manufacturing business, the more profitable is the crude rubber business in which Aldrich is heavily interested, but that is aside from the present point,

Rubber—raw rubber—is free, so that Mr. Aldrich's company has to pay no duty on the commodity it deals in. Manufactured rubber is protected, so that the manufacturers to whom Mr. Aldrich sells crude rubber may enjoy large profits and thus be able to buy much crude rubber.

This is Mr. Aldrich's explanation of why crude rubber was left free:

> If this important raw material should be placed on the dutiable list, the duty would clearly be added to the cost of the rubber to the manufacturer or consumer.

So the consumer does pay the tax, after all. Aldrich says he does, and that he left crude rubber free of duty not that his company could buy it more cheaply, but that the duty might not be added to the expense of those who buy rubber shoes, rubber dolls or rubber bands.

Aside from the final admission that the consumer pays the tariff tax, Mr. Aldrich's consideration for the consumers is affecting; but the consumers will wish that he had showed equal consideration as to articles in the importation of which he is not personally interested.

THE AEROPLANE IN WAR.

Glenn H. Curtis, the aviator who has been making some interesting experiments tending to show how easy it is for an aeroplane to destroy a battleship, contributes to the Columbian magazine an interesting explanation of how the airship is going to move the theater of war from the water to the air.

"My machine," he says, "could carry about one hundred and fifty pounds of explosives. If we were flying at an altitude of eight hundred or a thousand feet, and if we had a tube from which to shoot them, we might have a good chance to hit a target as large as the deck of a battleship. However, the wind conditions have a good deal to do with it; in my maneuvers with an aeroplane the wind conditions present a very serious problem. Then there are other circumstances that make this new form of target practice quite different from any other. But America is famous for its marksmanship, and it will have to come in play here as well as in other fields."

Though he is enthusiastic about the prospects of the aeroplane in war, Curtiss admits difficulties. While the sea breezes are steady, the land breezes are warm and when they strike the cool air of the water they cause rising and falling currents which make mechanical flight more difficult. Landing after the attack, especially when it is necessary to alight on a vessel, is another problem, though Curtiss believes it quite possible. Again, it will be necessary to learn how to arise from the water with an aeroplane, a problem not yet solved.

Mr. Curtiss admits, too, that while "you can do great stunts with a flying machine, it is almost uncertain in advance just what you can do, because there are so many conditions you cannot fix in flying." "There is more luck about navigating the air," he admits, "than there is in traveling on the ground. Air, though unseen, is our best friend and our worst enemy, and it is so because of that very quality, for we are working in an element that we cannot see. That is why men will have to be educated to know when the weather conditions are right for flying, and when to go and when not to go—and this last is often the most important. There is a weather instinct; animals have it, especially birds."

Mr. Curtiss's article shows that there is much to be done before the aeroplane becomes a formidable figure in war. War-making that depends on luck and a weather instinct that thus far is the exclusive possession of animals will be very unreliable.

Then, too, a thought is suggested by Curtiss's recent experiment in dropping oranges on the decks of vessels to show how easy it is to hit a boat with a bomb. Suppose an aeroplane warrior did land a bomb on a ship's deck and that the bomb exploded and destroyed the vessel. What would happen to the aeroplanist when the mighty upheaval of air caused by the explosion struck his craft?

YESTERDAY'S PRIMARY ELECTIONS.

The reactionary organization of the Republican party and its big business associates seem to have been the principal victims of yesterday's primary elections, with Mr. Bryan coming in for his share of the jolting.

In California the result of the Republican primaries is distinctly encouraging. Hiram W. Johnson, the insurgent candidate for the nomination for governor, who made his campaign as a protest against the domination of public affairs by railroad and corporate influences, swept the state, carrying in with him the full insurgent state ticket. His regular Republican opponent, though backed by the usual organization influences, failed to carry a single county.

William E. Kent, a fine, upstanding citizen with a record of public service in which partisanship has been a minor consideration, beat Congressman Duncan McKinlay, reactionary Republican and one of the Cannon-Dalzell-Tawney outfit in congress, by a decisive vote. Wherever reactionary Republicans were opposed, they were beaten. John D. Works, the candidate of the Lincoln-Roosevelt league, seems to be the choice in the advisory primary on the United States senatorship, and the insurgent forces have gained a good working majority in the legislature. These results, for railroad-ridden California, are splendid.

In Nebraska the liquor question shattered not only party lines, but the usual lines of cleavage within the parties. "Jim" Dahlman, Omaha's cowboy mayor and a personal liberty advocate, appears to have defeated Governor Shallenberger, who advocated county option and was supported by William J. Bryan for the Democratic nomination for governor. The Republicans nominated Aldrich, county optionist, by a narrow margin. Mr. Bryan seems to have suffered another personal defeat in the contest for the senatorship by the victory of Gilbert M. Hitchcock, editor of the Omaha World-Herald, over Richard L. Metcalfe, Mr. Bryan's associate editor on the Commoner.

THE BUSINESS SITUATION SOUND.

Last evening The Herald published a summary of the annual report of the Continental and Commercial bank of Chicago on crop and business conditions which rang with optimism, though it did not blink the existence of defects. There are defects in the situation, but there always are defects. If the country waits until the financial sky is cloudless and the business situation is without a blemish, it will wait a long time. There are defects, but a reading of this conservative report makes it clear that they are exceptions and that the rule is rosy encouragement.

The report states that in spite of the spotted condition of the crops, on the whole the harvest will show a satisfactory yield that will be marketed at good prices. "There will be an abundance of wheat, corn and other foodstuffs when the harvests have been garnered," says the report, "and business prosperity will continue unabated."

Business conditions are reported to be on a thoroughly sound basis in spite of the disturbing elements of the past year.

This is truth, and it is the sort of talk we like to hear. Prosperity is very largely a matter of how people look at the situation. It is always possible, if the prevailing spirit is pessimistic, to find reasons for alarm. It is always possible, if the spirit of optimism prevails, to find many more reasons for confidence. This country needs, more than anything else, to look on the bright side and discover how bright it really is.

MEN NEEDED FOR TEACHERS.

According to the report in The Herald last evening of the proceedings of the state normal school board at its Duluth meeting, that body is considering ways and means of tempting more men to take the normal school courses and adopt teaching as a profession. It is indicated that action will be taken at the November meeting of the board with that end in view.

The board hardly could be better occupied than in seeking to attract men to the noble business of teaching. Women make good teachers—Chicago's great school system is headed by a woman—but there are not enough men in the public schools. It isn't necessary to worry about the theory that having too many women teachers tends to feminize the school influences, in order to realize that the schools need more men. There are functions in connection with teaching that men can perform better than women—and that doesn't necessarily mean the application of corporal punishment, either. Women have shown themselves pretty apt at wielding the birch, as many a painful memory attests; but corporal punishment isn't so much in vogue as it used to be, and that is well.

The schools need more men, and but for one thing teaching is a calling that offers a splendid opening for young men of character who wish to make themselves as useful as possible to society. That one thing is the matter of pay. Society does not, as yet, pay its teachers well enough. The time is coming when it will. Then, perhaps, more men will become teachers. In the meantime, if the state normal board can achieve any changes that will attract more young men to the useful business of teaching, it will be doing a fine public service. Surely, even though the pay is attractive in these days of tall figures, there are some young men who have other objects in view than money. And whatever the pay, a young man who enters the teaching profession solely with a salary in view has no business there.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

THE TAXATION MUDDLE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The discrepancies in the tax assessments on real estate in this town are not surprising. In fact, it would be surprising if the work had been done consistently. Under the present method of taxation there can be no equitable assessment. The quicker this town realizes that fact, the better it will be for it.

The locking up of land in private and unused possession is the greatest menace to prosperity and the most potent check to progress, that can befall a nation. Mr. Whitney Wall spoke truly when he indicated the evasion of just taxation by unused property to the detriment of improved property. Mr. Wall should have gone further. He should have added that improvements should not be taxed and that land alone should bear the burden of taxation.

Taxes should be based on land values. The system of taxation should have as its keystone the unimproved value of land. The policy of taxing improvements and of assessing a fine against the most progressive citizens of a community for their industry is socially suicidal. New Zealand and Australia have been taxing land values solely for twenty years. Several municipalities in Western Canada, notably Vancouver and Prince Rupert, exempt all buildings and other improvements from taxation. Oregon will vote on an amendment to the state constitution in 1912 under the initiative and referendum which will embody the chief principles of the Single Tax theory as evolved by the late Henry George.

Let this town adopt a sane method of taxation and its present muddle will never recur.

Yours truly,
A SINGLE TAXER.

A MINNESOTA HEMLOCK FOUND.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I send herewith a small piece of hemlock bark taken from log cut and loaded on car to be shipped to Duluth for manufacture.

I have spent fifteen years of my life in the lumber business, mostly in the woods and lumber yards and this is the first native grown hemlock tree that I have ever seen in the state of Minnesota, nor have I seen any of the manufactured lumber from a native born hemlock tree. There are 175 men working in the camp where this tree was cut, a great number of whom have spent several more years in the Minnesota woods than I, and yet not one of these men have seen nor heard of a hemlock tree growing in this state.

I think a log from this tree might be of interest in the Duluth exhibit at the state fair, especially to those interested in the lumber business and I think could be secured by them.

It is a current legend among woodsmen that there is a reward for the finder of such a tree and if such be the case would like to be informed where to make application for same.

Respectfully yours,
W. J. STYMIEST.

SAYS ROAD WORK WAS NOT WELL DONE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In reply to a published statement of some time ago regarding a petition presented to the county commissioners and Duluth Commercial club relating to the over expenditures and inefficiency of the road foreman in his work on the Schultz hill and the Schultz and La Vaque roads, it was stated that same had been investigated and the work found satisfactory and the expenditures reasonable; that the signatures to the petition were obtained under misapprehension; that it was for a new road and the signers are sorry for their action, etc.

I am prepared to prove that such was not the case; that there was no mention of a new road in the petition and that the signers fully understood what they were signing and that the inferior work on the road merely needs an examination to show the utter incompetency of the road foreman in question.

Yours very truly,
W. H. HAIN.

The One-Eyed Chauffeur.

Chicago Tribune: New York's secretary of state has ruled in favor of granting a chauffeur's license to a man with one eye. One of his reasons is especially interesting: "All marksmen, in order to attain as much accuracy as it is possible for a human being to attain, when shooting always close one eye, etc." This reasoning is indubitably sound. Also it contains a valuable suggestion to chauffeurs with the full ocular complement. By shutting one eye the chance of bagging your flying pedestrian will be greatly improved, and even the point of percussion may be selected after some practice with exactitude. Too little thought has been brought to the service of scientific sportsmanship in this field, but if the New York official's principle is established, results will be much more satisfactory. "Bags" will be much larger, and it will be considered as bad sportsmanship to bring down blind men, old ladies and cripples as it is to go after brook trout with a trolling line or to dynamite a bass lake. Only pedestrians in the full possession of their faculties are fair game, and with the "closed eye" system good sport can be picked up in any street.

An Honest Dollar's Worth.

Motley Mercury: John Berglund dropped into the Mercury office one day last week and just for luck handed the editor a dollar. Mr. Berglund is one of our progressive farmers in this section who is helping to place this part of the country in the front rank as an agricultural center. We have a number of men like him here who are boosting and progressing, but we could stand a great many more.

Some Bad Ones Left.

A HUMORIST'S SCHOOL DAYS.

(From the writings of "Bill Nye," who died in 1896.)

Looking over my own school days, there are so many things that I would rather not tell that it will take very little time and space for me to use in telling what I am willing that the carping public should know about my early history.

I began my educational career in a log schoolhouse. Finding that other great men had done that way, I began early to look around me for a log schoolhouse where I could begin in a small way to soak my system full of hard words and information.

For a time I learned very rapidly. Learning came to me with very little effort at first. I would read my lesson over once or twice and then take my place in the class. It never bothered me to recite my lessons, and so I stood at the head of the class. I could stick my big toe through a knot hole in the floor and work out the most difficult problem. This became at last a habit with me. With my knot hole I was safe, without it I would hesitate.

A large, red-headed boy, with feet like a summer squash and eyes like those of a dead codfish, was my rival. He soon discovered that I was very dependent on that knot hole, and so one night he stole into the schoolhouse and plugged up the knot hole so that I could not work my toe into it and thus refresh my memory.

Then the large, red-headed boy who had not formed the knot hole habit went to the head of the class and remained there.

After I grew larger my parents sent me to a military school. That is where I got the fine military learning and stately carriage that I still wear.

My room was on the second floor, and it was very difficult for me to leave it at night, because the turnkey locked us up at 9 o'clock every evening. Still I used to get out once in a while and wander around in the starlight. I do not know yet why I did it, but I presume it was a kind of somnambulism. I would go to bed thinking so intently of my lessons that I would get up and wander away, sometimes for miles, in the solemn night.

One night I awoke and found myself in a watermelon patch. I was never so ashamed in my life. It is a very serious thing to be awakened so rudely out of a sound sleep by a bulldog, to find yourself in the watermelon vineyard of a man with whom you are not acquainted. I was not on terms of social intimacy with this man or his dog. They did not belong to our set. We had never been thrown together before.

After that I was called the great somnambulist and men who had watermelon conservatories shunned me. But it cured me of my somnambulism. I have never tried to somnabule any more since that time.

There are other little incidents of my school days that come trooping up in my memory at this moment but they were not startling in their nature. Mine is but the history of one who struggled on year after year, trying to do better, but most always failing to connect. The boys of Boston would do well to study carefully my record and then—do differently.

The Summer Men.

They talk about the summer girls,
All fickle, fine and fair,
With flirty little manners and
A fluffy lot of hair.
They say there's not much to them,
And they may be right, but then—
Just lend your ear and listen
To the faults of summer MEN.

They lounge upon the porches where
The pretty girls may be,
And lounge in stylish flannels, and
A deal of dignity.
They have about three dollars more
Than two weeks' board will be,
And that's for matches, cigarettes
And papers they may see.

The cash they have to spend on girls
Is often thirty cents.
But little does that bother them,
They sponge their way, and hence
The girls will take them in their cars
Throughout the blue-green hills,
And pay for chauffeur, gasoline
And all the other bills.

It's strange, but it is sadly true,
These summer places gay,
Attract so many foolish men
Who lounge their time away.
A sentimental sissy, oft
The woodsy path pursues—
The kind that sits upon the floor
When he puts on his shoes.

The men girls wish would hang about
Their idle summer dreams,
Put on their khaki suits and go
To fish in hidden streams.
They go away together where
There's neither dance nor dame,
And have the time of all their lives
In quest of fish and game.

The men at feminine hotels
Where fluffs and puffs prevail
Are just about as sad a lot
As summer girls can trail.
The summer girl may have her faults,
But they are small ones when Compared with those you know about
That go with "summer men."

Dancing Barred.

Toledo Blade: Dancing and social gatherings will be barred from the public schools in Duluth. The only deviation from the rule will be that occasional social gatherings of high school students may be permitted, at the discretion of the superintendent. The Duluth board of education found nothing inherently wrong in dancing or social gatherings. They were, undoubtedly, placed under the ban for the same reason that the Ohio legislature made the organization and maintenance of high school fraternities and sororities unlawful. Many of them became exclusive society clubs. Children whose parents possessed small means could not afford to pay the dues, to buy evening dresses and flowers for the ballroom, or to pay cab hire. It resulted in what Macauley calls the invidious character of a caste. Some children left school, superintendents testified, because of this condition and were deprived of education which they might otherwise have obtained. The Ohio legislature and the Duluth school board have both taken the position that children "born free and equal" should be kept so, at least in educational opportunity, as long as possible.

The Stump-Speaker's Troubles.

Puck: It is going to be a lively autumn for the Republican stump-speaker. Unfeeling persons, we fear, will much embarrass him. For instance, in Ohio, the Republican campaign orator will doubtless defend most eloquently the Payne-Aldrich tariff, which, according to the Ohio platform, "affords no more than adequate protection to the industries of the nation, and is fair alike to consumers, laborers and producers," but the unfeeling persons aforesaid may recall and remark that an eminent Ohio Republican named Taft has publicly described the wool schedule of this notably "fair" tariff law as "indefensible." Rather a strong word. If a mere Democrat had so described it, it would be easy for the orator to "brush the charge aside," but as it is, it will not be easy. We can think of lots of things that we'd rather be this fall than a Republican stump-speaker.

An Off Season.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Where are the hideous sea serpents?

And the silver-scaled mermaids?

And the dazzling meteors?

And the elegant college young men who wait on table?

And the beautiful heiresses who must be married within six weeks or lose their fabulous fortunes?

In short, where are the publicity men of the seaside hotel?

What Sandy Said.

Lippincott's: A group of Scotch lawyers were met convivially at an Ayrshire inn one cold evening last December. The conversation turned upon pronunciations.

"Now, I," said one of the barristers, "always say neether, while John, here, says nyether. What do you say, Sandy?"

The hot tipple had made Sandy doze, and at the sudden question he aroused and replied, "I?" Oh, I say whusky."

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

•••Forty-five members of Company K, under command of Col. Bobleter, have returned from Cloquet where they were ordered because of threatened rioting by the striking mill men. The strikers, armed with revolvers and clubs, were very ugly, and there were threats of fire at the mills. The arrival of Company K, under Capt. Dewitt, put an end to the danger. Col. Bobleter was also on hand to direct the movements of the militia. The next day work was partially resumed at the mills, and all are now at work again.

•••On Sept. 1, four special agents of the general land office, accompanied by a posse of fifteen men, will start from Duluth to investigate the alleged robbery of valuable pine by Canadian lumbermen from public land in the Rainy River country in Minnesota. These men are going in search of the Canadian lumber thieves who have for many years pillaged the lands on the northern boundary of Minnesota. This is the report that comes from Washington, but W. T. Bailey of this city, who has extensive lumber interests in the Rainy River country, says that the stories about the Canadians stealing timber are untrue and that if any thieving is being carried out Americans and not Canadians will have to answer.

•••The recent arrest of gamblers is only the beginning of an active campaign directed against Duluth devotees of the green cloth wherever found. Chief of Police McQuade is determined to rid the city of these sportive gentlemen, if possible. It is also probable that steps will be taken to stop the selling of Louisiana lottery tickets in this city

•••The St. Louis Bay Land company, with a capital stock of $500,000, has filed articles of incorporation. Joseph Sellwood, Charles E. Lovett and Basil D. Brown, all of Duluth, are the incorporators.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Will Not "Vote 'er Straight."

Sauk Rapids Sentinel-Free Press: The Democracy of Minnesota deserves commendation for nominating a bi-partisan judiciary ticket. Two Democrats and two Republicans. The G. O. P. convention should have named Thomas D. O'Brien instead of Judge Simpson for one of the places on the ticket. The independent voters of Minnesota who believe in a non-partisan judiciary will not "vote 'er straight" when they get to that place on the ticket.

Should Shoulder the Risks.

Hinckley Herald: It seems that when a number of men unite their capital and form a corporation serving the public and by doing so increase their power and at the same time they create agencies which create risks for others, they should be made to take all the risk ordinary and extraordinary involved and not the poor working man who under our present system of laws has very little, if any, recourse.

Very Good Evil Counsel.

Winona Independent: Dr. Crippen should have taken his wife to Italy to kill her, and then made his way to the United States.

Insurgency Is Not Dead.

Sauk Rapids Sentinel-Free Press: The party bosses are getting space in the newspapers these days telling of the death of the insurgent movement. They overlook the fact that the insurgent senators and congressmen are in earnest and that the people who are back of them are in earnest. Their cause is the cause of truth. Our stand-pat brethren should not forget that never yet has a movement founded on truth and headed and backed by earnest men died a premature death. No. Insurgency is not dead.

Grafts His Way Out of Prison.

Pine Poker: The greatest "grafter" that ever entered the state penitentiary has been liberated partly because of his ability as a "grafter." He horticultured his way into the hearts of the pardoning board by handing them a three-pound lemon, and the parole followed.

It Pays to Boost.

Little Falls Transcript: If pessimistic, change and become optimistic. If optimistic, become more so. It never pays to be glum, but it does pay to boost.

Insurgents Are Unafraid.

St. Cloud Times: It is rather noticeable that so far in all the "exposures" that are being made of politicians "higher up" in the Republican party it is always a "regular" and not an "insurgent" that draws the scare headlines in the newspapers.

Pointed Paragraphs.

How Much Lower?

Des Moines Register and Leader: In 100 years a full minute has been clipped from the world's best trotting record for a mile.

A hundred years ago a horse named Yankey was credited with a mark of 2:59, then the best recorded, although that is largely a matter of tradition. The other day Uhlan, in an amazing performance at Cleveland, Ohio, set a new mark of 1:58¾.

In the century between there has been one smashing of old records after another. Boston Horse, late in 1810, clipped Yankey's record down to 2:48½. That stood for sixteen years, when Trouble took off five seconds. One trotter after another took off a second here and a second there until Flora Temple in the years from 1856 to 1859 brought the mark down to 2:21¼ in a series of sensational races. We still remember Dexter, who came next, bringing the mark down to 2:17¼ in 1869. Goldsmith Maid held the honors for three or four years in the '70's, establishing her lowest mark in 1874 at 2:14. There followed in succession Rarus, Maud S., Jay Eye See, Sunol, Nancy Hanks, Alix, Cresceus and Lou Dillon, all fleeter and fleeter, and now comes Uhlan with a performance that puts him at the top of the list of all trotters.

What will happen in the next 100 years?

Nobody expects that another minute will ever be clipped from the trotting record, because that seems beyond the realm of physical possibility. But horsemen expect the horse of the future to set lower marks. How much faster will the trotter of 2010, if we have trotters then, make the mile than the trotter of today?

It is reasonable to expect that at least several seconds will be clipped from Uhlan's record in the course of a few years. Uhlan himself is believed by some horsemen to have it in him to reduce his mark of 1:58¾ to very near Dan Patch's pacing mark of 1:55, made behind a wind shield. He made the last quarter of his world record the other day without a wind shied in twenty-nine seconds flat, which is at the rate of 1:56 for the mile. And some day the mark may go lower than that, but it will take a marvelous piece of horseflesh, a wonderful track and extraordinary skill in training and driving to do it.

The Farmhand's Kick.

Atchison Globe: Bill Ordway, who has worked in this vicinity many years as a farm hand, was in town today, boiling mad. "I have worked for $20 a month and board ever since I was a boy," he said, "and now the farmers are paying men $60 a month and board to run their automobiles. And these automobile runners do not get up at daylight and work until sundown."

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Illustrated Bits: Edith—I told Clara, under promise of absolute secrecy, of our engagement.

Fred—And she has spoken of it everywhere?

Edith—No; the spiteful thing never mentioned it.

Washington Star: "The decline of Rome was a sad thing."

"What else could you expect," rejoined Col. Stilwell, "of a town where they illuminated with such things as Roman candles and used Roman punch as a beverage?"

Louisville Courier-Journal: "I'll never offer any more friendly advice."

"Wouldn't he listen to you?"

"He listened to me carefully and then struck me for $2. Of course, I had to cough up."

Detroit Free Press: "So they've quarreled already."

"Yes, he wanted his people for their first Sunday dinner at home, and she wanted hers, and both refused to arbitrate."

Saturday Evening Post: "And what are we to understand by the Biblical expression, 'The four corners of the earth?'" ask the instructor in theology.

"Rockefeller's corner in oil; Havemeyer's corner in sugar; Carnegie's corner in steel, and Patten's corner in wheat," answers the new student.

Boston Transcript: Wife (reproachfully)—You forget how you once breathed your love in my ear and promised that my every wish should be gratified.

Hub—No, I don't; but I wish now I'd followed the hygienic rule of keeping my mouth shut while breathing.

Washington Herald: "I see you employ a number of old men."

"I do."

"How old are they?"

"Too old to be interested in canoeing, or mandolins, or race horses, or girls, or tennis. That makes them fine for work."

Chicago Tribune: Mr. Dorkins (cautiously approaching the kitchen)—Bobby, what is your mother storming about?

Bobby Dorkins—She burnt herself on that fireless cooker.

Philadelphia Ledger: "Has the college been of any value to you, Mr. President?"

"Young man, where would I have been but for the electoral college?" responded the genial executive as he swatted the ball from tee.

Five Elections.

New York Times: Here are the figures of five national elections, in all of which, save one, the party in power lost the house of representatives in the "off year:"

1874—Republican majority of 102 changed to Democratic majority of 61.
1876—Presidential election disputed.
1882—Republican majority of 8 changed to Democratic majority of 74.
1884—Cleveland, Democrat, elected.
1886—Democratic majority of 84 reduced to 13.
Harrison, Republican, elected.
1890—Republican majority of 7 changed to Democratic majority of 148.
1892—Cleveland, Democrat, elected.
1894—Democratic majority of 94 changed to Republican majority of 142.
1896—McKinley, Republican, elected.
1910—If the Republicans lose the house of representatives?

McKNIGHT RIPS RECORD OF CONGRESSMAN MILLER

Says Miller Double-Crossed Voters Under Pressure of Patronage.

Plans to Do a Little Canny Scotch Insurging Through the District.

Alexander G. McKnight, who filed the other day as a candidate for the Republican nomination for congressman, views the Eighth district with a canny Scotch eye and is optimistic. He thinks there is no doubt that he will defeat Mr. Miller. However, he says he realizes that he has a fight before him and he will make it strenuous. McKnight headquarters will be opened in the Manhatton building within a few days, with Richard Jones in charge. Mr. Jones is a young law student and an ardent follower of Mr. McKnight.

The second candidate for the Republican nomination is an insurgent. In an interview yesterday he insurged as follows.

"The issue in the campaign has already been made by the people themselves. Mr. Miller solemnly promised the electors that if he was elected he would vote against Joe Cannon, if he were the only one who did it. He voted for Cannon. He explained in a public letter that he voted against Joe Cannon in the only place where it would have done any good, to-wit: the Republican caucus. Mr. Miller construed his promise to vote against Joe Cannon for speaker as being a promise to vote against him in the party caucus. The electors did not so understand him, when he made the promise; he did not intend they should so understand him, and there is no reason why, under our Constitution, a representative of the people in congress should exercise his duties, which he solemnly swears to perform, other than in the house of representatives itself. An explanation such as given publicly by Mr. Miller does not explain.

A. G. McKNIGHT.

"Privately, he excused himself by saying that if he hadn't done so he couldn't have appointed a postmaster even at Culver and that the president urged him to vote for Cannon. It is surely a sad commentary on our system of representative government when a man will violate his solemn pledge in order that he may distribute a few paltry offices, or will surrender the high prerogatives which he solemnly swears to exercise to the best of his ability at the mere solicitation of the one who has the general distribution of patronage.

"When Mr. Miller entered the Republican caucus he knew that his vote would not count. The result was a foregone conclusion. If Mr. Miller did not know it, he knew less than any schoolboy in his district who takes even a perfunctory interest in public affairs. Had he chosen the path of duty instead of yielding to the pressure of patronage, he, with a very few others, might have prevented the election of Cannon for speaker and have prevented one of the most disgraceful scenes in the history of congress, when, for several days last March, the speaker of the house defied the majority of it. Mr. Miller certainly voted right on that historic occasion, but that such an occasion never arose can be laid to him and a few of his weak-kneed brethren in their actions in the first days of the present congress.

"If a man in a campaign takes a position simply for the purpose of winning, he will recede from that position when the pressure becomes great enough. If, on the other hand, the position he takes during the campaign is the result of positive conviction, he will stand fast in the evil day.

"Looking backward to the last congressional campaign, with the above observation in mind, can we guess the motive which underlay Mr. Miller's glowing promises?

"On the electors' answer to that question I am willing to submit my candidacy."

Mr. McKnight plans to begin a thorough canvass of the district within a very few days. He has already been in Anoka county, where he says he found conditions very promising. Miller beat Bede by 114 votes in Anoka county last time and Mr. McKnight is confident that he will defeat Miller there with ease.

The insurgent victory in California pleased Mr. McKnight immensely. He is personally acquainted with William Kent, who was nominated for congress.

Cholera Infantum Cured.

"Something like two years ago my baby, which was then about a year old, was taken seriously ill with cholera infantum, vomiting and purging profusely," writes J. F. Dempsey of Dempsey, Ala. "I did what I could to relieve her but did her no good, and being very much alarmed about her went for a physican but failed to find one, so came back by Elder Bros. & Carter's store and Mr. Elder recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea remedy. I procured a bottle of it, went home as quickly as possible and gave the baby a dose of the remedy. It relieved her in fifteen minutes and soon cured her entirely." For sale by all druggists.

SEVEN WHITE MEN ARE INDICTED FOR MURDER.

Palestine, Tex., Aug. 18.—Five indictments containing twenty-two charges of murder in the first degree have been returned by the grand jury against seven white men alleged to have participated in the recent race riots near Slocum, in which eight negroes were killed. Six of the men indicted are in jail: They are: Jim Spurher, B. F. Jenkins, Curtis Spurher, Ison Garner, — Jenkins and Andrew Kirkwood. The seventh man indicted is not under arrest and his name is being withheld.

CANNON TALKS TO OLD SETTLERS

Opening Speech of Campaign Shows Little of Old Time Vigor.

Cisna, Ill., Aug. 18.—Speaker Joseph G. Cannon told the Old Settlers of Iroquois county last night that he probably was addressing them for the last time. His speech, which had been been regarded as the opening of the congressional campaign in Illinois, contained little of the old time vigor of the representative of the Eighteenth Illinois district. He spoke of the prosperity of Iroquois county and declared it mainly due to railroad facilities. He contrasted railroad rates of the United States and European countries, declaring that those of this country were the best.

"The demagogues would have you destroy the railroads," he said, "which have brought about your prosperity. May God send enough men into public life — honest, brave and courageous men—to stop this racket."

He referred to the work of the pioneers in clearing the wooded districts to make farm lands.

Pretty Good System.

"You might think, to hear certain parties talk conservation," he continued, "and of the destruction of our forests, that we should depopulate our cities and farms to restore the forests to their old-time glory.

"The system we are under is a pretty good system. It is capable of improvement, of course. There is nothing not capable of improvement—but you and myself—and the way to maintain our present prosperity and to increase it is to maintain the protective policy of Lincoln, Grant and Garfield. I mean James A. Garfield—make no mistake as to the name."

Mr. Cannon declared that he would make several speeches in the coming campaign in this district, but his friends apparently are fearful as to his ability to stand the strain.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Never Known to Fail.

"I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy since it was first introduced to the public in 1872, and have never found one instance where a cure was not speedily effected by its use. I have been a commercial traveler for eighteen years, and never start out on a trip without this, my faithful friend," says H. S. Nichols of Oakland, Ind. Ter. For sale by all druggists.

ARMY SURGEONS TO AID PELLAGRA STUDY.

Washington, Aug. 18.—Acting on request of the governor of Illinois, the surgeon general of the army has detailed two army surgeons to assist the commission appointed by the governor in the study of pellagra, which has baffled the medical profession for so many months.

The officers assigned to this task are Capt. Joseph F. Siler, medical corps, now connected with the army medical supply depot in New York, and Capt. Henry J. Nicholls, also of the medical corps. Capt. Siler arrived at Peoria on Monday and Capt. Nicholls, who has been in Berlin studying another subject, has been ordered to proceed direct to Peoria upon his arrival in New York.

TEN LUNCHES FOR ONE CENT NOT "FREE LUNCH."

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 18.—A jury has held Patrick H. Gallagher, charged with breaking the Schaefer anti-free lunch law, not guilty. Gallagher was arrested by a policeman who found a lunch counter laden with appetizing eatables in full operation at the rear of his bar room. In court Gallagher proved that in order to partake of the pickled pigs' feet, roast beef, cheese and crackers displayed on the counter, customers were compelled to deposit a penny at the bar, in return for which they were provided with ten tickets, each good for a lunch. The jury decided that such lunches are not free.

"MODEL CITY" IS HELD UP FOR DEBT.

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 18.—Buildings designed as the center of a "model city" where there was to be neither "poverty nor graft," promoted by J. A. Brown, on the Kentucky side of the Ohio river opposite Evansville, have been attached in court here by Brown's creditors to secure alleged claims amounting to $50,000. It was stated in court that the sale of town lots had not prospered because of a rumor that a large gambling concession had been sold in the "model city."

Brown has been absent several days, and when he left he said he was going to Cincinnati to buy a sand dredger. Work on an ornate "administration" building and two dozen other structures has been suspended.

TINY BABY HAD DREADFUL ECZEMA

On Hands, Face, Nose and Mouth. Hard Crust Formed and Cracked Open. Blood Ran. Itched Frightfully. Mitts on Hands. No Rest.

Got Cuticura. In 3 Days Relief. In a Week Cured Without a Mark.

"I have a little baby almost a year old. When it was two months old it got eczema on top of both her hands, on her face and inside her nose and mouth. She refused to drink and one of her eyes almost closed up. A hard crust formed and would crack open and the blood ran out. It itched so frightfully that the poor little girl could not rest. We had to keep mitts on her hands to keep her from scratching at her face and her mother was forced to sit in a rocking chair with the baby day and night. We had a very good doctor and he did all that he possibly could to relieve the baby's torture but the results were not what we had looked for.

"We had read of the Cuticura remedies so we went to the drug store and got some Cuticura soap and Cuticura ointment. We used them just as directed and in three days the crust began to come off. In a week there was no more scab and now the baby is cured without a mark, sleeps soundly in her cradle and her parents in their bed, with no more sleepless nights because of the baby's suffering. Cuticura seems a wonderful remedy for this disease and any one having eczema should not delay in getting it. Henry M. Fogel, R. F. D. 1, Bath, Pa., Dec. 9, 1909."

Cuticura Remedies sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston. Mailed free, 32-page Cuticura book, containing invaluable advice on the Treatment of Skin Troubles.

MEN SCARCE; WAGES RISE

Resumption of Railroad Construction Drains Duluth Labor Market.

Men Being Shipped to Dakotas By Carload Every Day.

Duluth's labor market has stiffened remarkably during the last two or three weeks as a result of the resumption of work on railroad extensions of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern in Dakota and the big call for men on the Canadian Northern's Duluth line.

The change has been a very noticeable one. When the Canadian Northern sub-contractors went along the line immediately after the letting of the sub-contracts by the Foley-Welch company, they found men lying around in the small towns on the right-of-way, and even camped along the line waiting for the contractors to arrive, so great was the supply of labor as compared with the demand. This was during the worst part of the depression caused by the crop scare and the stopping of work on the Northern Pacific and Great Northern's Dakota lines. C. E. Jamieson, one of the contractors who had the contract for ditching ten miles of roadway let the entire ten miles as station work at 13 to 15 cents a yard, a phenomenally low price. Other instances of like nature were reported.

Men were at this time available at 1.75 without board, board being about $4.20.

About three weeks ago with a good average wheat crop assured, a record breaking corn crop in view, and good crops of other cereals in prospect the railroads picked up the extension work where it was left off and nearly 1,500 miles of grading and track laying is in progress in the Dakotas.

Drain on Surplus.

This has resulted in a big drain on Duluth's surplus labor population. It is estimated that in the last two weeks 1,500 men have been sent from Duluth to work on the Mandan line of the Northern Pacific and on the Great Northern's North Dakota extensions. In the meantime the Canadian Northern has taken more than 1,500 men out of the market through the sub-contractors. While this is all that this road has immediate need for, there will probably be twice that number at work before fall. A large number of men are being sent from Duluth to Canadian points for railroad work.

As a result of these forces, wages have gone up from $1.75 to $2 and $2.25, and men are scarce at that. There have been several large bookings at $2 per day and board.

This year less than 20 per cent of the usual number of men were taken out of the Duluth labor market to go to the harvest fields. The great disadvantage of harvest field work is the short term of its existence, and when railroad fare is deducted the harvester is little better off than if he had taken a $2 per day job in the woods. As a result, with bad crop reports staring them in the face, indicating even a shorter term than usual in the fields, very few men went to the Dakotas. The need there was largely supplied from the members of the railroad construction crews immediately laid off on all the roads. It is not expected that there will be any heavy influx to this city at the close of harvest this fall on this account.

It has been a peculiar year, the employment agents say, from the start, the recent stiffening of the market being one of the surprises which go to make its peculiarity.

In the early spring the large amount of construction work caused a lively market, high wages and general activity in the usually dull months of March and April. Wages were higher than for a decade. In June and July, when the call of the harvest usually sent wages soaring and drove contractors to desperation in their search for crews, the bad crop reports kept men at home and sent hundreds in from laid-off construction gangs. Wages dropped and the employment agents had few orders. Now the stiffening of the market adds one more unexpected quirk, and no labor man will offer any more predictions on what the year will bring forth.

MAY THROW OUT ALL BIDS

Prices for Dredging Considered Too High By Government Engineer.

Bids received this morning by the local United States engineer's office, may be thrown out and other bids for the dredging of Portage Lake canal, Mich., advertised for, on the ground that the bids are in the opinion of the government engineer, Col. Graham D. Fitch, too high.

The engineer's office has approximately $20,000 for the work. It is the idea to prosecute the work until all of this fund is exhausted. But if the engineer comes to the conclusion that the bids are unreasonably high, it is possible that work on the canal schoals will not be started until lower bids have been acted upon by the engineer's office.

Of the bids received today, the bid of the Northern Dredge & Dock company of this city, was the lowest. That company made a bid of 22¼ cents per cubic yard on the work. The Zenith Dredge & Dock company of this city, was the second lowest bidder. That company's bid was but a quarter cent above the Northern's bid.

weder etaoin shrdlu cmfwyp vbgkqjax

The Great Lakes Dredging & Dock company, of Chicago, made a bid of 23 cents per cubic yard. A similar bid was made by the Duluth-Superior Dredging company. The Edward Brothers' Dredge company of Sault Ste. Marie, was the highest bidding company, that concern placing a bid of 24 cents per cubic yard for the work.

If the engineer's office decides to let the present bids stand, the work will undoubtedly go to the lowest bidder, the Northern Dredge & Dock company. In that case, it is stated that the work will begin almost immediately.

Omaha Paper Makes Estimate on Results of Primaries.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 18.—The Bee this morning announces that Cady practically concedes his defeat by Aldrich in the race for the Republican nomination for governor and that Aldrich claims a majority of over 10,000. Aldrich has been a strong advocate of county option, while Dahlman is as openly its opponent. Both Shallenberger and Cady took a middle ground on the question.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

TALKS ABOUT THE ISLANDS

Chris Hagen Back From the Philippines Tells of Progress Being Made.

Chief Clerk in Bureau of Education Lauds Work of Uncle Sam.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chris O. Hagen, chief of the bureau of education in the Philippine Islands, arrived in Crookston yesterday after six years' service in the educational department of the islands, and will enjoy a six months' stay in the United States. Prior to his departure from the islands he was appointed acting superintendent of Filipino students in the United States to succeed Edmund Enright, who has been appointed chairman of the civil service board of Porto Rico.

"The conditions on the islands are improving steadily and rapidly," said Mr. Hagen. "The government is effective and thoroughly organized. The system is proving a success because each department head is held strictly responsible for successful work. He in turn looks to his men for effective service and positions are rapidly getting down to a question of merit only.

"The comprehensive plan of government is being carried out on a large scale, and the problem of government is working itself out among the natives. The Filipinos are enjoying the greatest degree of freedom now that they ever did and the only criticism coming from a few grasping Filipino politicians, who if in control would soon be oppressing the people and looting them.

Filipinos Changing Ways.

"The attitude of the natives towards the United States is changing rapidly to one of friendliness—this is especially noticeable among the better classes.

"Municipal improvements are coming on apace. It has been a gigantic task to instill in the minds of the Filipinos the necessity for cleanliness. Still gains in this direction are steady and substantial. After centuries of carelessness and slovenliness it is wonderful that so much progress along these lines is being made.

"Railroad systems are now threading three of the largest islands and the service is improving steadily. This is one of the great mediums to be used in developing the islands and diffusing education.

"In Manilla some great modernizing forces are at work. A $500,000 hotel is being erected, the Elks are building a $160,000 club house and the Army and Navy club is erecting a $200,000 building.

Many Public Improvements.

"The old moat surrounding the city has been turned into a beautiful park, thus getting rid of a mosquito-breading place and providing the children with a fine playground at the same time.

"Another very modern move is the construction of a twenty-two-mile auto drive by the government from Manila to Cavite skirting the ocean, the waves of which dash up against the macadamized road the entire distance, or will when the driveway is completed. It will be a magnificent drive and although costing a considerable sum will be a great improvement when completed.

"Every condition is encouraging, and there is no question but what the government as now being carried out is effective."

Mr. Hagen will spend some time in Crookston visiting his brother and sisters, County Attorney E. O. Hagen being one of the former.

ANGUS W. KERR RAPS CANNON

Copper Country Candidate for Congress Takes Fall Out of Him.

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Unalterably opposed to the re-election of Joe Cannon as speaker of the house of representatives, pledging himself to vote against the Danville statesman, if elected, and standing unequivocally for the progressive Republicanism recently endorsed by the Republicans of Kansas and Iowa, Angus W. Kerr of Calumet, progressive candidate for the nomination from the Twelfth Michigan district, dellvered his first speech of the campaign in Marquette county before a large and enthusiastic audience in Lakeside park, here Tuesday evening.

"Of all the men you elect to office," said Mr. Kerr, "there is none so important as the man whom you choose to represent you in the legislative halls at Washington. Your congressman is your attorney in national affairs, so to speak, and you should see to it that the man you vote for is a man who stands for the things you stand for. While I am a loyal Republican, I believe in speaking out against the wrongs which have sprung up within that party."

Standpatters For Interests.

Speaking of the standpatters and their chief disciple, Joe Cannon, Mr. Kerr said:

"There are now two factions within the Republican party, the so-called standpatters and the progressives or insurgents. The former apparently believe that the duty of the government is to protect and build up the great material interests. I believe this a misconception of the idea of government. The other party says that the government shall give concern to the things that affect the welfare of the individual citizen.

"Joe Cannon has said that the so-called insurgents are not Republicans, but the voters of Kansas and Iowa have within the last few weeks emphatically declared that Cannon was not elected to say who is and who is not a Republican. I stand for the enactment of those laws that are for the benefit of individuals, rather than for the laws that work only for the benefit of material interest.

"I believe that Speaker Cannon stands as a barrier in the way of spreading the responsibility of legislation among the 391 members of the house, and, if elected to membership in the house of representatives, would be unalterably opposed to his re-election as speaker."

LARGER YIELD OF GRAIN PREDICTED

Joseph M. Kelly of Devils Lake Very Optimistic Over Outlook.

Devils Lake, N. D., Aug. 18.—Joseph M. Kelly has returned from a trip up the Farmers line. The colonel spent much of the time while away driving through the country, and he is much pleased with conditions as he finds them.

"There is going to be more grain in the country that was estimated earlier in the season," said Mr. Kelly. "Conditions were discounted six weeks ago, and business has been adjusting itself to conditions which would have to be met. The worst is over, and from now on there will be an improvement. The yield is going to be larger than was anticipated, and that is going to help a great deal. Another thing, which is going to have an important bearing is the fact that nearly all the farmers are doing their own work—they are not paying out large sums for expensive harvest help.

Help Is Not Scarce.

"I have heard some talk about there being a scarcity of help, and there may be in some places, but I notice quite a number of men along the line of our road who are looking for work. Wherever I have been the farmers with very few exceptions, are doing their own work and in so doing they will save a lot of money and a lot of money will be kept in the state which otherwise would be taken away by transients down East or sent to Europe, where we would never see it again. All the farmers make this year will be their own. Besides having more of a crop than anticipated six weeks ago, there is more old grain sticking around in grain bins and elevators than one would imagine. Taking everything into consideration there is no real reason why times should be very much different this fall than in other years. Prices will be good, and those who have grain to sell will receive as much for one bushel of grain as they would for a bushel and a half in ordinary years, and perhaps more."

Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, the temperance lecturer of Georgia, who was expected to lecture here Tuesday evening, failed to make her appearance and a large audience was disappointed. Health and Beauty Notes

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

G. O. I.: Many women, particularly at this season of the year, have the same trouble that now vexes you—that is, ordinary cold creams leave the skin so oily that the complexion loses instead of gains from their use. Make this cream jelly yourself at home and there will be an end to your troubles. Get from your druggist one ounce of almozoin, put it in a fruit jar, add one-half pint of cold water and two teaspoonsful of glycerine, stir briskly for a few minutes and let stand over night. This satisfactory cream is used for massaging to prevent and remove wrinkles, fill out hollow cheeks and round off angles. It gives a clear, fresh and soft skin, because it removes every particle of dust and dirt from the pores. It removes blackheads, and by making large pores small, prevents their return. This cream contains no oils or fats that will cause a growth of hair. It prevents freckles, tan and sunburn.

Miss New York: You cannot be too careful in caring for your hair. Yes, take a shampoo every week if it is necessary to keep your hair and scalp free from dust. Never use soda, as it fades the hair; many soaps, too are harmful, as they leave the hair dry and brittle and cause streaks. For a quick drying home shampoo, there is nothing so good as plain canthrox. Dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water, pour on the head a little at a time and rub well, just as you would with any other shampoo. Then rinse well. Canthrox makes a rich and plentiful lather that thoroughly cleanses the scalp, removes dandruff, relieves itching and irritation, and leaves the hair soft, bright and fluffy—so that it is easily dressed.

F. P. F.: Your eyes are weak and need a strengthening tonic. Get from your druggist an ounce of crystos and dissolve it in a pint of water. Drop one or two drops in each eye whenever they are tired, red or inflamed. This simple eye tonic helps wonderfully in keeping the eyes bright and clear and does away with that lack-lustre and expressionless look that so detracts from an otherwise attractive girl's appearance.

L. I.: To remove the superfluous hairs from your face and forearms, mix a little delatone with enough water to form a paste, cover the skin on which the annoying hairs appear and let it remain two or three minutes; then wipe off the paste and wash the skin with warm water. Get the delatone in the original one-ounce package as it comes from the chemical works. It retails at one dollar and is sold in up-to-date drug stores. Should the hairs reappear, they will be light and thin, and a second application of delatone will permanently rid you of them.

Country Girl: Isn't it your own fault that your sweetheart appears to be losing interest in you? If other girls take pains to make themselves attractive to him, instead of pouting or repining, you should immediately take steps to put yourself on an equal footing with them. To clear your complexion and keep it rosy and fresh, follow the advice given above to G. O. I. and apply to your face, neck and arms daily a lotion made by dissolving four ounces of spurmax in a half pint of hot water and adding two teaspoonsful of glycerine. This will help your dark face and neck It will give you a beautiful complexion and is much better than powder, because it will not rub off or show. Spurmax lotion is inexpensive and there is nothing better to prevent freckles, tan and sunburn. Girls who work in stores or offices use this face wash, because it removes the necessity of re-touching the complexion during the day.

G. S. O.: Your scalp is not in a healthy condition or it would not feel so hot, dry and hard, nor would your hair be brittle, splitting at the ends and falling out. You can refresh and invigorate your scalp and the hair roots by the use of a quinine hair tonic made as follows: Get from your druggist one ounce of quinozin, dissolve it in one-half pint of alcohol and add one-half pint of water. Rub this into the scalp and hair roots two or three times a week and it will give new life to your hair, making it soft, rich and glossy. Regular use of this tonic destroys the germs that cause dandruff and baldness. You will find this tonic much better than any ready-prepared tonic you can buy and it will not stain the hair or scalp.

Mrs. G.: Yes, a fleshy woman is at a disadvantage in society or business. To reduce your weight, dissolve four ounces of parnotis in 1½ pints of hot water and take one tablespoonful three times a day, before meals. This simple and harmless remedy takes off superfluous fat quickly and without injurious effect.

M'liss: (1) Don't waste your money on external treatment for pimples and blotches when the trouble is internal. To make a good blood tonic and liver invigorator get an original one-ounce package of kardene from your druggist, mix it with one-half cup of sugar, then dissolve it one-half pint of alcohol and add 1½ pints hot water. This formula makes a full quart of tonic, of which you should take one tablespoonful three times a day, before meals. As an all-round tonic it has no superior. It will restore your lost appetite and strengthen and build you up. It purifies the blood and the eruptions on your skin will soon disappear. (2) Consult your dentist.

TO CONSIDER PETITION

Commercial Club Will Look Into Request of Canadian Northern.

Railway Company Wants City to Vacate Streets for Yard Purposes.

The petition of the Canadian Northern Railway company which was presented to the council last Monday requesting the vacation of some streets in West Duluth for yard purposes, will be taken under consideration at the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club this evening. Mr. Barnes, one of the aldermen from the Eighth ward, will bring the matter up.

The company has already purchased considerable land in the western part of the city. It owns a quarter section west of Sixty-ninth avenue and south of Nicollet street. Besides this it has purchased lots in Stowell's and Clifton's divisions, between Sixty-first and Sixty-ninth avenue west, extending from Bristol to Nicollet street. This strip of land is from four to five hundred feet wide.

The company asks that those portions of Roosevelt and Nicollet streets, and of the avenues from Sixty-first to Sixty-ninth avenue be vacated that it may use them for railway purposes.

Many West Duluthians have not been made aware of the intentions of the company to secure this permission, and the aldermen from the Eighth ward feel that they should get some idea from the people who may be affected by such a move. The board of public works has been busy since the council meeting, inspecting that part of the city, and may report at the next meeting.

Tonight's session of the club will probably be a busy one, as several other matters of interest are before the members. These matters have been passed over at other meetings as there has not been a large attendance. This evening it is expected that many will be present.

JURY FAILS TO AGREE IN ASSAULT CASE.

After several hours' deliberation, the jury which heard the evidence in the assault case against Erling Herstad in the West Duluth justice court, before Judge Flack, was called in late last evening as it was apparent that the members could not agree. Herstad, a carpenter, was employed by Nels Nelson, who was building a house in West Duluth. It is claimed that Herstad made an attack upon Nelson following a disagreement, and later Nelson swore out a warrant charging Herstad with third degree assault. When arraigned several days ago, Herstad pleaded not guilty and demanding a jury trial, the case was set for yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The jury was called in at 11 o'clock last evening, and stood seven to five for conviction. The trial will be called for a later day.

HEADED FOR GRAIN FIELDS

Trainload of 300 Laborers Passes Through Duluth to West.

Many of Them Planning to Make Their Homes There.

Yesterday Soo laborers from the Eastern provinces of Canada passed through Duluth en route to the wheat fields of Manitoba and other Western provinces, coming to Duluth via the Grand Trunk and Northwestern, and leaving over the Missabe, which road turned the train over to the Canadian Northern at the border line.

According to the officials of the Missabe, the laborers who passed through the city yesterday are about the last that will go to the wheat fields the present season. Yesterday's party will bring the total number for the present season to above the 1,000 mark.

Many of the laborers yesterday had their families with them. Heretofore many of the laborers brought from the Eastern provinces to assist in the grain cutting of the provinces of the West, have settled in the West. This is apparently the intention of many of the men in yesterday's party, for wives and small children made up part of the train loads.

The party was ticketed direct to Winnipeg. At that city divisions will be made, the men being sent to the various places where labor is most needed.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Little Girl Nearly Burned to Death By Cat Tail Torches.

Sorenne, the 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Olson of 909 Belknap street, was nearly burned to death yesterday while playing with some boys of the neighborhood, who were using torches made of cat-tails soaked in oils. The child's clothing was ignited but she was rescued by her parents, and while her burns are still very painful it is not thought that they will be fatal.

The sale yesterday at the open market between Ogden and Tower avenues, was the best that has been held this summer. While the number of farmers who came in to sell their produce was rather limited, a large amount was shipped in to town for the day's sale and the market was sold out by 2 o'clock. The farmers sold directly to the retail trade, while the wholesaling was done by the Duluth-Superior Open Market association. The next sale will be Friday morning, market days being Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

TO QUIT JAIL FOR ALTAR

Buhl Girl Relents Toward Prisoner and Agrees to Marry Him.

Heart Softens After She Had Caused Her Lover's Arrest.

After traveling over the rough seas of courtship for several months past, Angela Cernon and Ned Belcich will probably be married.

Angela was the little 15-year-old Buhl girl who wrote to the Bethel matron asking that something be done so that she would not be forced into marriage with a man whom she did not like.

Since Ned has been in jail at Virginia on a warrant sworn out by Humane Agent George Fifer, the girl's heart has softened toward him, and she has now signified her willingness to marry him.

The troubles date back several months. Angela's mother, being somewhat of a match-maker, decided that Belcich was a fitting and proper person to be entrusted with the care of her daughter. He was looked on with favor, for he is said to be a good workman with steady employment.

Angela did not care much about getting married. It was so much more fun to play with the other girls of her own age when she was not waiting on the table in her mother's boarding house.

Belcich did not find favor in Angela's eyes, and she told both her over-ardent suitor and also her mother as much. He seemed to be very common and ordinary and was extremely jealous, so she sat down and wrote a pathetic letter to the matron of the Bethel society in which she asked to be saved.

The matter was referred to Mr. Fifer and he hastened to the home of the girl, ascertained that the facts were true, and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Belcich, who was placed in the city bastile to await developments.

Then when Angela had stirred up all the trouble she could, she found that after all, she was a little sorry for Ned.

She contradicted what she had said in her letter to the Bethel matron and also the story she told Mr. Fifer. When she did this the bottom fell out of the case against Belcich.

She went down to the jail to see him, and after they had talked for a while, she said that it would be rather nice to live in one of the little red houses provided for the miners by the mining company and things began to brighten up.

Belcich is still in jail, however.

I am again able to be up and attend to my work. I shall never hesitate to recommend them." Sold by all druggists.

EXHIBITORS MUST HURRY

State Fair Collection Will Be Shipped on Aug. 27.

A. B. Hostetter, who is collecting the produce that will be used in making up the St. Louis county exhibit at the state fair, is desirous of having contributions from outside Duluth, intended for this use, sent to him without delay.

Aug. 27 is the last day on which he can receive and use products for the exhibit. Last year quite a lot of good material came to hand too late, and he hopes that the producers will avoid delays this time, so that the exhibit may be made as good as possible.

If it all comes to his hand by Aug. 27 the articles intended for exhibition will be shipped with the rest of the exhibit on the car secured for that purpose.

COMPLETE CENSUS OF COUNTY'S INDUSTRIES.

F. L. M. Waage, who has been in St. Louis county for some time as a representative of the industrial division of the federal census bureau, has completed the work of taking a census of the industries of St. Louis county, and will leave Duluth tomorrow. From here he will go to Wisconsin for a brief trip and then to Minneapolis for a stay of about three weeks, for rest and recreation.

Mr. Waage came to Duluth April 9 and has been steadily engaged in the work for which he came since that date. He cannot, of course, divulge anything pertaining to the mass of data he has collected, except to say in a general way that the industrial community of St. Louis county has grown marvelously, especially in the last year or two. Mr. Waage has not been in Duluth for about ten years, but the data with which he was supplied when he came here in April has furnished a basis for comparisons that indicate a wonderful expansion.

His work for the census bureau has taken Mr. Waage into every part of the county where commerce and industry flourish, and has required the most painstaking care and attention to detail.

Mr. Waage is free to admit that he's glad the job is finished.

FIRES IN PARK ARE EXTINGUISHED.

News was received yesterday at the local office of the Northern Pacific railroad to the effect that forest fires in the vicinity of Yellowstone Park had been extinguished, and that there never had been any danger to tourists from the fires that burned for a short time. According to the statement received yesterday at the local office of the company, the fires were confined to remote sections of the park, and at no time was there ever any danger to tourists.

A CITY OF MAGIC.

"The view of Damascus from the mountain where Mohammed made his great renunciation is one of the marvelous views of the world," writes Robert Hichens in the Century. "Again and again I deserted the mosques, the bazaars, the marble baths, the courts of the fountains, the shadowy khans and the gardens by the streams for that bare height on which Abraham is said to have had the unity of God revealed to him.

"An Oriental city of magic called up by a slave of the lamp to realize one's dream of the Orient; a city thereally lovely, exquisitely Eastern, ephemeral, to be blown away by a breath like a tuft of thistledown; not white, but delicately pale, with a pallor holding the faintest hint of a seashell flush; a city slender, calm, almost mystic in its fragils grace, set in the heart of a great wonder of green, a maze of bright and ardent woods beyond which lie the desert spaces—this is Damascus from the mountain of Jebel Kasyun. It holds one almost breathless seen thus from afar.

"Damascus is a garden city touched by the great desert. Under its roses one feels the sands. Beside its trembling waters one dreams of the trembling mirage. The cry of its muezzins seems to echo from its mosque towers to that most wonderful thing in nature, which is 'God without man.' The breath of the wastes passes among the poplars as the Bedouin boy passed among the merchants when he came and when he went.

"In Damascus one hears the two voices. And when one looks from the sacred mountain upon that city of dream, cradled among the woods, one sees far off the tawny beginnings of that other magic, which looks out from the Bedouin's eyes. And though, perhaps, with the pilgrims from Samarkand, one loves to rest beside the fountains under the hedges of roses, one is aware of the other love, intercourse with which has made Damascus an earthly paradise for them and for you."

WORK HARD, BUT PAY GOOD.

Patent lawyers say they will gladly pay from $25 to $30 a week to stenographers who can do their work, and as much as $50 a week is sometimes paid, says the New York Sun.

The work is hard and exacting, the hours long. You must be familiar with law work. You should learn to read drawings, and as inventors generally want patents on machinery a taste for bolts, screws and mechanism in general would be of great help.

A weary patent lawyer poured out some of his woes much as follows:

"In the last four years we have tried about 100 stenographers. Many of them we have kept varying lengths of time, seldom longer than two years. It takes me nearly four hours to test a stenographer thoroughly."

He conceded that very few young women show what they can really do under such circumstances; that often an intelligent and well educated stenographer will not show what she is capable of until the first strangeness of work and surroundings has worn off, and he said he would gladly engage without trial anyone who would come to him with references from another patent lawyer, but no one ever did. He could only conclude that when women left places with patent lawyers they either rushed into matrimony or took up quite another branch of stenographic work.

He showed some of the drawings which a stenographer would be called upon to read. To the uninitiated it would be a task indeed. A person trained in the work can read them as a musician reads a musical score.

In reading notes in patent work context does not help as much as it does in dictations on ordinary subjects. For instance, in some systems of shorthand you would write "tap" and "top" not only with the same outlines but in the same position. Yet substituting one of these words for the other in the transcript of a dictation might necessitate a patent lawyer spending an hour hunting over his laboriously worked up notes to see which was right. A woman who could do the work properly would be nearly priceless.

Women have so much less aptitude for machinery than men have that it might seem natural to employ young men as stenographers in a patent lawyer's office, but young men are not content to go on as stenographers. At the end of a few years they insist on graduating from the weary grind of the machine. On the other hand a woman, if her salary is judiciously increased, is willing to go on through the patient years taking notes and writing them out. Of course there is the percentage of loss through marriage, but that is not very large.

ABOUT LUCK.

Chicago News: "There is no such thing as luck," remarked the pompous individual, taking possession of the best chair on the hotel porch. "It makes me tired to hear a man talking of his bad luck or his good luck. We win or lose, according to our ability and industry, and luck has nothing to do with it."

"I suppose that's the last word on the subject," said the small man, who had the worst chair. "You have the appearance of a man whose opinion is final, and it would be a sin to dispute anything you say. But I have always believed in luck—in bad luck, anyhow; and if there is no such thing as good or bad luck I wish you would tell me why I have been a small guy all my life. Why am I sitting in the worst chair in town at this writing? Why is the chair so situated that the smoke from all you fellows' cigars and pipes blows into my face? Why did the waiter spill a cup of coffee down my back at the supper table?

"Ever since I was old enough to walk I have been getting the worst of it. It isn't my fault, for I have ordinary intelligence, and try to sidestep disaster. It isn't the fault of other people, for they usually treat me with consideration and I may modestly say I have always been popular wherever I lived. I have always charged my misfortunes up to bad luck, and now you tell me there is no such thing as bad luck, so I feel like the two orphans.

"Last Christmas an old friend of mine, who lives in Indianapolis, gave me a cordial invitation to come down there and spend the holidays with him. I went anticipating a good time. He lived in the suburbs, and as I entered his garden gate his family dog bit my leg so that it was a sight to be seen, and I had to have a lot of wounds cauterized. The dog was a family pet. It had been owned by my friend since its early infancy. It was a moral and polite dog and never before had it offered to injure a stranger. Why did that dog wait seven years to bite me?

"When I was a boy there was a sort of public swing in the village. It was strong enough for a rhinoceros to swing on. All the heavyweights of the neighborhood had swung on it. One evening I climbed aboard to have a little amusement. I weighed about seventy-five pounds and an ordinary clothes line should have held me up, but one of the big cables of that swing broke and I was thrown about half a mile and there was a dent in my head that would have held a pint of violet ink. Why did that swing wait till I got on it before doing the insurgent act?

"I was married about ten years ago while living in a Western town. I had a run of good luck on that occasion, for the first time in my life, for my wife couldn't be improved upon. We boarded at a hotel while I built a nice little cottage. The work was just completed and the house was freshly painted and I had put a lot of nice furniture in it and we were going to move into it the next day, when that evening a tornado came along and there wasn't enough of that house left to make a decent bootjack with. Not another house in the town had been injured a dollar's worth. If there's no such thing as bad luck, why do such things always hunt me up? Why did that cyclone dodge around town and sneak through the alleys and sidestep large and showy houses just to get a whack at my humble little shanty?

"On one occasion I sold out my interest in a business and got the money in cash and took it around to the bank and deposited it. The bank was the oldest and strongest in the community yet in the morning it had a notice on the door to the effect that it was closed. It stayed closed and after five years or so I got about 10 per cent of my money. Why did that bank wait thirty years to get my deposit before going broke? Why did I happen to be the last man to dump his assets into it? If there is no such thing as bad luck, why am I always getting the cleaver in the neighborhood of the jugular vein?

"It would take a lot of logic to convince me——"

At this juncture the railing against which he was leaning broke and he fell off the porch, rolled down a steep embankment and landed in the gutter.

STUTTERED IN SHORTHAND.

New York Sun: The Western agent looked around the office with an air of lively curiosity. "Made a few changes here haven't you?" he asked.

The New York manager nodded. "Fired the old stenographer, that's all," he said.

"What for?" asked the Westerner idly.

"Stuttered," was the reply.

The Westerner was puzzled. "I can't for the life of me see," said he, "how stuttering could affect a man's stenographic abilities."

"Neither could I see it in the beginning," said the manager, "but I soon found out. I took a fancy to that young chap the minute he came in here, although he couldn't speak ten words, without falling all over himself.

"Before I knew him I should have ridiculed the bare suggestion that there could be such a thing as a stuttering stenographer. Stammering seemed to be that poor chap's only fault. He knew shorthand from first to last and the type-writing machine at every angle, but there were certain other words that tangled up his pencil as well as his tongue and thus knocked him clean out of the race.

"It was one of the strangest things that ever came to my notice. I did what I could to help him, but to no avail. That young man's pencil staggered fearfully whenever he came to a word that he found particularly difficult to speak."

Herald ad-answering trips are money-earning trips.

WEST END

CHURCHES MAY UNITE

Two Congregations Planning One House of Worship in West End.

St. Luke's and St. Peter's Episcopal Churches Consolidated By Pastor.

At a joint meeting of the congregations of the St. Luke's and the St. Peter's Episcopal churches of the West end tomorrow evening at the latter church, Twenty-eighth avenue west and First street, definite decision will be made for the erection of a new church, to be used by both congregations.

The St. Luke's church is an English congregation while St. Peter's is Swedish. If successful in making such arrangements, this will be the first ttime in this city that two congregations of different nationalities have united in one church under the same pastor.

Rev. William E. Harman, who came to Duluth three years ago from Aitkin, Minn., has been pastor of both congregations, and since his pastorate began he has been successful in building up both.

The churches have had under consideration the construction of the new church for some time. Being under one pastor, each has only one service on Sunday, and it was deemed feasible to unite them in one church. This would save much expense, for only one church would have to be maintained.

The St. Luke's church, located at Nineteenth avenue west and First street, is an old building, entirely two small for the congregations. The St. Peter's church is also too small for its congregation. By building one large church both congregations can be well taken care of.

According to plans, the church will be of frame, with heavy brick veneer, having a basement under the entire structure. The church proper will have a seating capacity for 200, while the part to be used for the Sunday schools will have ample room for 300. When completed the new church will be valued at about $10,000. The property at Nineteenth avenue will be sold.

Mr. Harman accomplished the consolidation of the two congregations, both of which are working in harmony. Before coming here he consolidated the English and Swedish congregations of Aitkin.

WILL DEDICATE NEW CHURCH

Special Services Will Begin Sunday and Last Six Days.

Dedicatory services of the First Swedish Baptist church, just completed at Twenty-second avenue west and Third street, will begin Sunday morning and be concluded next Friday evening. Each evening except Monday, services will be held, to which the congregation and friends are invited.

Sunday morning at 10 o'clock the services will begin and the dedicatory sermon will be delivered by Rev. O. Bodien, of the First Swedish Baptist church, Minneapolis. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock, English services will be held, and the principal sermon will be given by Rev. Frank Peterson, district secretary of the Baptist Foreign Missionary society. In the evening Rev. G. A. Hagstrom of the First Swedish church, St. Paul, will preach.

Tuesday evening will be given over to the young people of the church, and during the exercises a lecture on "Sweden" will be given by Rev. Bodien. Wednesday evening is ladies' night, when Rev. Bodien will again speak. Mrs. P. Almen will give the greetings to the friends and Mrs. Frank Peterson, of Minneapolis will deliver an address.

Sunday school night will be held on Thursday, when a program of general interest to children as well as adults will be held. Several well known Sunday school workers of the state will take part, and a history of the local church will be read by A. Thoren.

A rally of all the Baptist churches of the city will be held Friday evening, at which all the Baptist pastors will speak.

West End Shortrails.

Mrs. W. E. Harmann returned yesterday from Aitkin, where she has been camping with friends for the past three weeks. Mr. Harmann, who also spent some time there, returned several days ago.

Mrs. N. P. Swenson and Mrs. J. G. Anderson, both of Stillwater, are visiting friends in the West end. Mrs. Swenson is a sister of the late John Beckman, who was buried yesterday.

Rev. M. O. Stockland, of the Grace M. E. church, who has been ill at his home, 310 North Twenty-second avenue west for the past week, is improving, and believes he will be able to occupy the pulpit of his church next Sunday.

Miss Anna Abrahamson, of Mason, Wis., is a guest at the home of Mrs. L. A. Simonson, 2102 West Superior street.

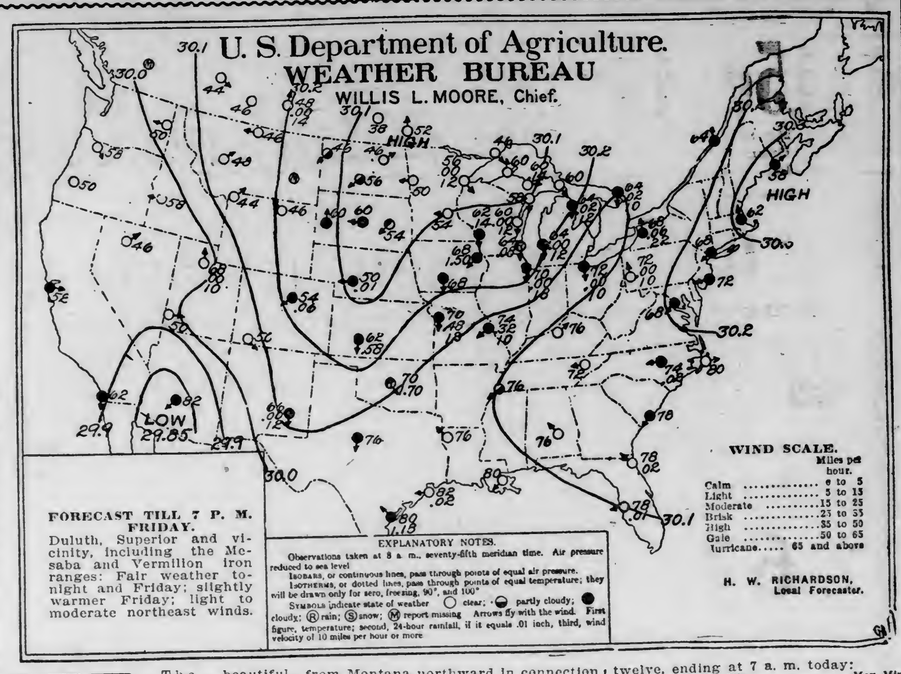
Frank J. Weneke, who has been visiting relatives in the West end and Superior, for the past three weeks, left yesterday for Fargo, N. D., where he will remain for some time before returning to his home in Chicago.

J. E. Wurmuth of Sheldon, Ill., is expected here this evening by relatives, with whom he will visit for several weeks.

Intense Colicky Pains Relieved.

"For some years I suffered from intense colicky pains which would come on at times and from which I could find no relief," says L. S. Mason of Beaver Dam, Ky. "Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommendgy to me by a friend. After taking a few doses of the remedy I was entirely relieved. That was four years ago and there has been no return of the symptoms since that time." This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER



FAIR

The beautiful, cool summer weather shows no sign of leaving. Yesterday was a perfect day, and this morning broke clear and cool. It grew warmer toward noon, but not uncomfortably so, and the weather man looks for the fine weather to continue tomorrow.

A year ago today it was fair and warm. The sun rose this morning at 5:09 and will set at 7:14, making fourteen hours and five minutes sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the last twenty-fours hours light to coplous rains fell over the greater portion of the Lake Region, South Atlantic states, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Nebraska, Eastern Iowa and Eastern Texas, due in large part to the influence of the stationary depression overlying the extreme Southwest. Cool temperatures attend the high pressure central over Minnesota, but the weather is growing warmer over the Western Dakotas and from Montana northward in connection with a falling barometer. Generally fair weather may be expected at the Head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours."

Chicago, Aug. 18. — Forecast for twenty-four hours, ending at 7 p. m. Friday:

Upper Michigan — Fair tonight and Friday.

Wisconsin—Part cloudy tonight and Friday; cooler tonight; probably frost in marshes.

Minnesota — Generally fair tonight and Friday; warmer Friday.

Iowa — Part cloudy and cooler tonight; Friday fair.

North Dakota — Generally fair tonight and Friday; warmer Friday in East portion.

Montana—Generally fair tonight and Friday; slowly rising temperature.

Upper Lakes — Moderate northerly winds on Michigan and Huron and light variable on Superior; generally fair weather tonight and Friday.

WELCOME TO THE GOPHER

General Feeling That Demonstration Should Be Tendered Duluth Sailors.

Victorious Boat Is Due in Harbor About Friday Noon.

What is to be done to welcome home the victorious Gopher crew?

According to the last advices received from the Duluth boat she will steam into the harbor at about noon on Friday. The boat is coming home with a record of victories in practically every competitive drill, and the boys in white have done more than perhaps any other agency of the year to spread the fame of the Zenith City in the lower lake ports. A general feeling is growing to the effect that some fitting reception should be tendered to the victorious sailor lads.

Several schemes have been suggested and it looks as if some, if not all of them will be carried out. One of the plans suggested is that a big parade of motor boats in the harbor be held so that the Gopher may pass through double lines of welcoming small craft as she swings into the harbor from the canal.

A general sounding of whistles by the vessels in the harbor and from the mills along the harbor front has also been suggested and will doubtless be carried out.

Upon leaving the boat the middies will parade to the Armory and it has been suggested that the business firms along the line of march decorate with flags and "Welcome Home" mottoes in honor of the triumphant sailors.

Neither the Commercial club nor the boat club has taken any definite action on the reception plans as yet, but there is a strong feeling in both clubs that something should be done to show the appreciation of the city to her delegation in the lake squadron and there are likely to be developments before Saturday morning.

Fleet Disbands.

Special dispatches to The Herald from the Gopher this morning announce that the squadron disbanded near Port Huron yesterday at 4 o'clock and that the Gopher is now flying the homeward bound pennant.

Yesterday the inspection board went over the vessels of the lake militia and inspected the equipment and the crews. The Gopher won high words of commendation of the visiting officials.

Two more victories came to the Gopher crew yesterday when the Duluth boys got water going in the fire drill in twenty seconds, and won the man overboard drill in 4 minutes 46 seconds, with wide margins over the other ships of the fleet.

The inspection board which went over the boats yesterday included Rear Admiral Chauncey Thomas and Commanders Thomas Snowden, W. S. Smith, R. Stoeker and C. F. Hughes. Commanders White and Nutting inspected hulls and boilers and engines.

The Gopher is now well on her way to Duluth from the Soo. The rookies are somewhat anxious over what may transpire during today and tomorrow, for the hard work of the crew is over and they are preparing the new members for a meeting with King Neptune, commander of the Gopher's initiation team, which is said to be without a parallel. The life of the new men is due to be fraught with anxiety from now until the piers of the ship canal are sighted.

INDIAN PREDICTS RAIN.

Chief Climb-a-Tree, Aged Redskin, Forecasts Showers.

Devils Lake, N. D., Aug. 18.—Chief Climb-a-Tree, probably one of the oldest living Indians of the Sioux tribe, who makes his home on the reservation, whose real age is unknown, but from incidents of the past it is computed he must have lived at least 115 years, is the weather prohpet of the country. It is said he remembers well the incident of "Halley's comet seventy-five years ago, and he predicted the drouth this year. According to Climb-a-Tree the drouth will be broken Aug. 19, after which date we will have "heaps" of rain.

If the weather predictions of the old Indian are to come true farmers should hurry their thrashing this week or the rain will spoil their grain.

INDIANS HAVING HARD CIDER JAG

Two Arrested in Cass Lake Celebrating Over Drinking Apple Juice.

Cass Lake, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two Indians were arrested here yesterday in a drunken condition. When questioned, they claimed they had not drank anything, meaning beer or whisky, but finally confessed that they had imbibed cider of the "hard" variety, securing it at a local confectionary store. Investigation showed that the owners of the store had been having a "run' on cider the past few days. One big "buck," after making several calls during the day, was "feeling good," and meeting a fellow-brave who was on his way to the store, remarked, "No more cider; all gone."

Being unable to procure whisky in saloons, the Indians have resorted to other means to satisfy their thirst for something strong by procuring substitutes. For a time they made calls on grocery stores for lemon extract, which they claimed was to be used in making cake. This is something unusual, as cake among Indians is a "curiosity," and undoubtedly those who obtained the extract used it for a different purpose. The purchasing of the extract was generally left to the squaws, in order to ward off suspicion. On several occasions Indians have been seen in a drunken condition, and when arrested it was learned that they had become so by indulging in lemon extract, partly filled bottles being found in their possession, which contained a goodly per cent of alcohol. The proprietors of all stores were notified personally by agents of the Indian department to cease selling the extract to Indians. The latest discovery by the red men caused much surprise here, as it was not believed possible to become intoxicated by drinking the cider which has been on sale here, but they evidently ran across a brand that suited their tastes and exhausted the supply. The brand of cider to be sold here from now on will be examined before sales are made to Indians.

MRS. LORING PRESIDENT.

Crookston School Board Has Finally Effected Organization.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—After three deadlocked meetings the Crookston school board organized yesterday afternoon by the election of Mrs. Charles Loring president, and the re-election of F. R. Hamel treasurer, and Edward Peterson clerk. All differences were apparently buried and a considerable amount of routine business was disposed of harmoniously.

The decision of the "Progressives" to switch from G. S. Chesterman for president to Mrs. Loring was to avoid any criticism that might have been made to the effect that Crookston's first experiment in placing women on the school board had resulted in factional differences on the board.

Soft Velvety Complexion of Southern Women

The beautiful, soft, velvety complexions of the Southern women are not due to paints and cosmetics, says Marion Harlow, in her "Hints to Beauty Seekers."

These women use plenty of good pure soap and water, and after bathing they massage the face, arms and neck with a lotion made by dissolving two ounces of amarol in a pint of hot water, to which has been added two teaspoonfuls of glycerine.

Paint, Powders and Cosmetics clog up the pores and are injurious, while this amarol solution keeps the pores open and in a healthy condition, allowing the fresh air to enter the body through the pores; from a healthy standpoint, not to say anything about the improvement it will make in your complexion. I would advise every woman to try this simple lotion. Simply get two ounces of amarol (in the original two-ounce package) from your druggist, put two teaspoonfuls of glycerine into a point of hot water, and add the amarol. Shake well, let stand for a few hours, and then it is ready for use.

Human Bones Unearthed.

Walhalla, N. D., Aug. 18.—During the process of excavating for a waterworks extension here the workmen uncovered several skeletons. The extension borders an old cemetery which was used from 1848 to 1880, but it was thought all of the bodies had been removed to the Catholic cemetery several years ago. Seven old graves were discovered, the skeletons ranging from those of an infant to mature manhood. The bones were reinterred in the Catholic cemetery.

Cut Out Free Coupon Below and Mail Today.

Those who have become prematurely gray or who are troubled with scalp or hair diseases, such as falling hair, dandruff, baldness, itching scalp, etc., know full well the humiliation that they cause. There is no need, however, of such conditions. These troubles can be quickly overcome by Crystolis, the new drug recently discovered at the Creslo Laboratories at Scranton, Pa. Since its discovery, a little over a year ago, Crystolis has been found to contain marvelous properties for producing a new growth of hair. In subjecting it to various tests in the worst cases of baldness, dandruff, itching scalp, etc., the results obtained by the experimenting chemists were considered almost miraculous. In every case it was found that where there were any hair roots left it would produce a new and luxuriant growth of hair in from four to six weeks' time. Gray or faded hair was often restored to its natural color in from 10 to 14 days' time. In minor cases of scalp and hair diseases, such as dandruff, falling hair, itching scalp, etc., it was found that these unnatural conditions were corrected and often completely cured by two or three applications. The discovery of Crystolis will, without doubt, put an end to the troublesome scalp and hair diseases that are becoming so common with the American people. Women who have been forced into wearing false hair will greatly welcome this marvelous product, as, aside from its many other virtues, it adds a beautiful gloss and lustre to the old hair. Besides, it contains no oil and has a tendency to make the hair light and fluffy.

The managers of the Creslo Laboratories have such strong faith in Crystolis we have been authorized to make the following remarkable offer: They will forfeit $1,000 in gold if they fail to prove that Crystolis actually grows hair. They will forfeit $1,000 in gold if any one can prove they were not the first discoverers of Crystolis. They will forfeit $1,000 in gold if it can be proven that it contains any oil, dye or coloring matter of any kind. They will forfeit $1,000 in gold if every testimonial and sworn statement which they publish is not absolutely genuine. Arrangements have been made with the Laboratories to furnish free information in regard to this new process to all Duluth Herald readers. CHANGES IN FOOTBALL

College Game Will Be Modified By New Rules.

Contests Will Be Divided Into Four Parts---Flying Tackle Eliminated.

New York, Aug. 18. — After labor lasting nearly all summer the football rules committee yesterday made public the rules which are to govern the game during the season of 1910.

Changes adopted are revolutionary in character and calculated to minimize greatly the danger of fatal accidents existing under the old rules.

For one thing the time of play is divided into four periods of fifteen minutes duration instead of the traditional two halves of thirty-five minutes each. The usual intermission of fifteen minutes is maintained between the second and third period but an intermission of three minutes only is allowed between the first and second and third and fourth periods. During this short intermission no player will be allowed to leave the field nor will anyone be permitted to come on the field save only the individual who looks after the physical condition of the players.

At the beginning of the second and fourth periods the teams change goals, but the down, the relative spot on the down, the possession of the ball and the distance to be gained remain as they were at the conclusion of the preceding period of play.

Another radical change is that governing the flying tackle. This has been entirely eliminated by a new ruling which provides that a player must have one foot at least on the ground when tackling an opponent.

The new legislation governing the forward pass which a number of the experts were inclined to abolish altogether, will materially alter the play and aspect of the game.

This year's rules provide that a player is only qualified to make a forward pass who is at least one yard back of his own line of scrimmage or occupies the position on the end of said line. No man may make a forward pass or the kick unless he is five yards back of the line of scrimmage.

The territory forward of the line of scrimmage, and consequently in the enemy's camp, is adjudged neutral for a distance of twenty yards pending the completion of a forward pass or kick. A forward pass is not legal if the ball crosses the line twenty yards in advance of the spot where it was put in play before touching the ground or a player.

In the case of a kick, the players on the defense within the twenty-yard zone must not interfere with the ends, or other players, in any way until their opponents have advanced twenty yards down the line of scrimmage.

Interlocked interference, that is, players of the side having the ball taking hold of each other, or using their hands or arms to grasp their team mates in any way, is forbidden, and it is also forbidden for any man on the side having possession of the ball to push or pull in any way the man running with the ball.

Another innovation is to be noted in regard to the substitution of players during a game. A rule has been passed which provides that a player who has been removed for any cause except disqualification or suspension, may be returned to the game once at the beginning of any subsequent period.

The longitudinal lines formerly marking the field are done away with as the quarter back may now cross the line of scrimmage at any point.

BOOSTER DAY FOR DULUTH

Team Will Be Welcomed Home Tuesday With Fitting Celebration.

Booster day will be celebrated at Duluth next Tuesday. The Sox will return from the road then, meeting the strong Wausau team on the home grounds. The game between the two teams promises to be a battle royal, as Duluth is struggling hard to get into the first division before the close of the season, and the Jacks are struggling equally hard to hang on to second place.

At the present time the Sox are playing about the best baseball in the league. The team has the loyal support of the fans. There is not a fan in the city who will not be glad to welcome the team home. The Booster day celebration will be in the nature of a rousing reception to the players, who after the team had played somewhat miserable baseball for the greater part of the season, have stepped into the harness and are playing a brand of ball that is making the city proud of the team.

The management hopes to keep practically the same team next season, with improvement where ever it is possible. The players who are bringing the team up from the bottom of the ladder, are deserving of some show of the gratitude of the fans, and it is with this idea in view that the celebration for next Tuesday is planned.

Tickets will be placed all over the city, and it is expected that the largest crowd of the present season will turn out to welcome home the hard-working White Sox.

Several special events are being planned for the day. The idea has already received the thorough indorsement of the business men of the city.

Horsemen who witnessed the great gelding's attempt say that with a wind shield he will be able to better the mare's mark.

MINNY LEAGUE NOTES

Booster days have become quite the rule in the Minny family. They have had one at Eau Claire, to welcome the team home from the prosperous days on the road. They have also had one at Wausau, to celebrate the moving of the Jacks into second place. Now they are planning a booster day for La Crosse, which will be held next Saturday.

Following the generous handing out of booster days, it is only natural that we should indulge, here at the Head of the Lakes. We could boost until blue in the face over the come back of the Sox. If booster days are really a fad, we might get into the game.

Safford has sent Peggy Ward to the bench. Ward has been stationed on first for the Outcasts since the first of the present season. He was secured from the Canadian league. Of late the La Crosse papers claim that he has been dogging it on the job. Safford threatens to keep the cousin in the vicinity of the water cooler for some few days.

No games were played in the Minny leagues yesterday, and as a result Superior was unable to lose. From exaggerated expectations for a pennant to a forlorn hope that the team may be able to stick in the first division, is dropping some. Of late Mabel has been very charitable in refraining from abusing the down-trodden Sox. What a difference it does make, sweet young thing, when one's own aggregation is getting the boots of adversity. "Darby's duds" have been playing so much superior ball that there really has been no comparison between the two teams. In Superior they are even beginning to rap genial O'Dea. Over here, through a harrowing season, we all have been loyal. It is too bad that it should rain, after Mabel has bedecked herself in all her ribbons and fluffy pennant things.

Down in La Crosse one scribe has expressed a wish that Uncle Tom Letcher was back with the team. If you have ever seen Thomas play—that is, in the past ten years or so—you can get a line on how bad the first baseman of the Outcasts has been behaving. Something very serious must have happened to Mr. Ward.

In Eau Claire they are wondering if Catcher Benrud will receive a call to higher company. This boy is a great little catcher, and right all right—but—he is weak with the salary whip. If he possessed Otto Mueller's wing he would have shaken the dust of Eau Claire from his Trilbys these some summers past. His batting is some neat variety and Benny is a very much John Rockefeller in his manner of working. He could be augmented to the fireside of any team in the circuit.

Wausau has high hopes of finishing second in the race. If Superior and Killian's cohorts continue some of the brand of baseball these teams have been showing of late, the hopes of the Jacks will be materialized into golden deeds of accomplishment.

Judging from the amount of fines that have been collected from Minny league players of late, one would be pardoned in the assumption that the league needed the money. Ollie Anderson has been a first-class collector.

The Eau Claire papers are sweet on Catcher Bob Schwab. This same boy is one of the hardest workers and most earnest players that has ever donned a Duluth uniform. Now, to might-have-been for a minute, suppose that we had had Schwab and Kohl and Hughes and Kramer, not to mention James Anderson and Holstrom, at the very start off of the season. We would have been strictly in the hunt for the rag at the present time.

How many games have been lost by Sweeney, Olson and some of the other experiments that were tried at the start of the season? Well, it is safe to say, a large lot. Now we are going fine, only losing the toughest games by the smallest scores. We have a ball team at last, and it does us all good to have the other papers around the circuit get Sherlock Holmes to the fact.

Russ Bailey has been troubled with a sore arm and Pitcher De Lave has been performing in the garden. They truly have so many hero clouters on that team, that when one hard hitter like Bailey is laid on the shelf temporarily, it seems to make little difference. Even the pitchers on the Schooner team are expected to hit.

Chesty Holstrom has been doing the best hitting of any of the Sox of late. His clouting has been both hard and timely. With the team hitting and fielding the way it is at the present time, and the pitchers going well, there is the long chance that the team may aspire to fourth position. Some great ball playing will have to come, should this ambish be realized. We ought to pass Rochester on our next series at home, and Superior can't play the brand of ball the team has been showing of late and remain in decent baseball society.

MILLERS DROP FIRST TO THE COLONELS.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 18.—Louisville won the opening game of the series yesterday from Minneapolis by bunching five hits off Altrock in the eighth inning. Robinson's triple and Flournoy's fielding were the features. Score:

		R.	H.	E.
Louisville	000000004x	4	7	2
Minneapolis	020000100	3	7	1

Batteries—Galbraith and Allen; Altrock and Smith. Umpire—Owens.

SAINTS SHUT OUT BY THE MUD HENS.

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 18.—St. Paul was blanked in the opening of the final series yesterday by Toledo. Score:

		R.	H.	E.

St. Paul	000000000	0	7	0

Batteries—Robinson and Abbott; Kilroy and Kelly. Umpires—Ferguson and Bush.

AMERICANS ARE GOOD TEACHERS

Yankee Sailors Are Showing the Spaniards How to Win Races.

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 18.—"We are learning a lot about racing even if we are not winning prizes," said one of the Spanish yachtsmen as he bowed his way down the club house float today and started off for the second ride with his American opponents.

Although all the Spanish yachtsmen were hopeful today that their boats might draw nearer the three American yachts before the races were over, and perhaps win a cup or two, even the most sanguine of them of them were forced to admit that their chances of winning the President Taft and Governor Draper cups were very slight.

All the Spaniards expressed keen regret upon learning yesterday that the Harpoon had lost the initial race of the series through an unintentional foul of the fifth mark.

It has been learned that although the Chonta of the Spanish fleet led the other two boats in their chase, after the Americans yesterday, she was badly handicapped through a leak in her fin keel. On the way over from Spain the keel was slightly wrenched, but Capt. Arana looked it over Sunday and thought that it was tight. In the big sea yesterday some of the seams opened up and the Chonta's crew was pumping most of the race. As the rules do not permit yachts to be hauled out during the series, the Chonta's mishap is rather a serious one.

Newport Tennis.

Newport, R. I., Aug 18.—The match between Beals C. Wright of Boston and R. A. Holden, the Yale champion, was the feature of the fourth round of play in the thirtieth annual lawn tennis championship of the United States at the Casino today. There were sixteen matches carded in this round. Of the interest among them was one between Maurice E. McLoughlin of California and R. H. Palmer, champion of New Jersey, and the contest between J. D. E. Jones, the Rhode Island champion and F. J. Sulloway of Boston. Trowbridge W. Hendrick of California, who was one of the losers in the doubles championship yesterday, was opposed to F. C. Inman of New York in the all-comers singles tournament today.

DECLARE PLAYER A FREE AGENT

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 18.—After declaring that Ernest B. Lush, formerly a player on the rolls of the New York and St. Louis National league teams and on the Troy team of the New York State league, a free agent, the national baseball commission promulgated the following ruling:

"If a player is released by a minor league without notifying the club having an option on his services they are responsible for his salary until he gets another engagement. If they do notify the club holding the option that they are to release the player and do not hear from that club within three days, they will be permitted to release the player outright."

Lush was released to the Troy club by New York last May, was attacked with rheumatism and later released by Troy. New York then claimed him and pending a decision by the commission he signed with the St. Louis National league team.

OCONOMOWOC GETS NEXT MEET

Oshkosh, Wis., Aug. 18.—Oconomowoc lake was chosen as the place for holding the regatta of 1911.

The Duluth Boat club was the only other club to tender an invitation to the association, and when they found that a majority favored Oconomowoc they withdrew their invitation and made it unanimous. They did however state that they would again invite the regatta in 1912 and would expect the vote of the Wisconsin clubs at that time. White Bear Lake and Minnetonka favored Duluth this year.

P. A. Valentine was elected president and D. W. Buchanan, secretary. Both are from Oconomowoc Lake club.

The new executive committee consists of D. D. Harmon, Oshkosh; C. A. Vandever, Minnetonka, and O. L. Schmidt, Geneva.

Phantom of White Bear won the most exciting race that has taken place in the regatta in many years by nosing out Marion Jean of Minnetonka on the last stretch of the twelve-mile Class A race yesterday afternoon. Phantom's time was 2:09:10.

Kathryn of the Butte Des Mortes club finished twenty-eight seconds behind Phantom and only fifteen seconds to the rear of Marion Jean.

Mercia of the Oshkosh club was one minute, fifty-nine seconds behind the leader, and took fourth place. The remainder of the fleet swept over the line as follows: Comet, Oconomowoc Yacht club; Menasha, Menasha Yacht club; Meteor, Piskatee; Handy Andy III, Oconomowoc Yacht club; Navaled, Duluth, and Nina, Neenah.

Yesterday's race was over a course two miles to the windward and return, three miles around. A fair wind blew at the start and freshened as the race progressed.

The points to date of the Class A boats are as follows: Marion Jean, 19; Phantom, 18; Mercia, 14; Menasha, 11; Meteor, 9; Handy Andy III, 9; Kathryn, 8; Comet, 6; Navaled, 6; Nina, 4.

Class B and C yacht races earlier in the day were declared off on account of lack of wind.

BRYAN FINALS SOON.

Goodell Will Line Up Against J. C. Pryor or W. R. Thompson.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 18.—R. T. Goodell of Duluth, who comes here to take part in the golf contest, defeated Deen L. Robinson Sunday afternoon, thus putting himself in the finals for the Ben B. Bryan cup contest. His choice now lies between J. C. Pryor and W. R. Thompson. Thompson defeated S. E. Byrne in a fine exhibition of golf Sunday. Thompson and Pryor now pair to see who gets into the finals with Goodell. Should Pryor and Goodell come together things will look interesting, as both have won the cup twice since its presentation to the club. The man winning this time is declared champion of the club, also becoming permanent owner of the Brya cup.

Kendig Answers Challenge.

Frank Kendig has replied to the challenge of August Mausolf, in request for a pool game, stating that he will play the man he recently defeated for any amount from $1 to $100; that the contest can be played for any number of balls, and can also be played just as soon as Mausolf is ready. The only stipulation that Kendig desires is that the game shall not be played at the Majestic hall.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE.)

Whether the 1910 season is notable for the come-back of the Cubs, the winning again of the Pirates, the capture of the gonfalon in the American by the Mack men, or the rally and win at the end by the persistent Tigers, it will be marked by the passing of three, possibly four, great twirlers.

Just the other day the press dispatches contained the news of the asking of waivers by Connie Mack on Harry Krause, not so very long ago the peerless southpaw of the Athletics.

There is also the going out of that other great "un, Rube Waddell. He has passed to the minors, and heaven only knows how long we will be even hearing of the man who has attracted as much attention, or more, than any great national baseball character of the past decade.

Then there is old Cy Young. The present season promises to be his last in baseball. The old man has repeatedly stated that he would never play in the minors, so we are to presume that after the close of the present parade, the old boy will go back to Paloi, Ohio, and live in comfort for the rest of his days.

Addie Joss, also of Cleveland, and for a number of years one of the greatest flingers in the American league, has about retired for the season, according to Cleveland reports, and this may mean that Joss is not the great pitcher he was two short years ago.

In this age we are very apt to take things for granted. A great man dies, we read of his death in the paper, wonder for a moment, and the fact passes from our mind. It is the same with the passing of the great baseball characters. It is a fact that baseball memories are the shortest of the short.

The old guard are passing from among us. Take Wagner and Clarke of the Pirates. They can't last much longer. Not so long ago an untimely death removed Ed. Delehanty from the ranks of baseball. Without doubt he was the greatest batsman who ever lived. Occasionally he is referred to, but the majority of the fans have forgotten about the great slugger. Therefore, the passing of at least three great boxmen from the game, will mark the present season as one that will stand out in the roll call of the seasons.

For the past two decades Young has been the greatest character in baseball. Only the year before last Krause was the sensation of the American league. Now he is being walved on by the teams of the A. L., which same goes to show that fame is short-lived in many instances; that today you are a hero and tomorrow you may be one of the dubbest of the dubs.

Can the Cubs Keep Winning?

Duluth fans are watching with intense interest the fight in the National. For some reason the Chicago Cubs have ever been prime favorites in this city. The majority of fans who every evening of the dear old summer time anxiously scan the scores, would rather see the Cubs win than any other team of the N. L.

Can the Cubs stay in front?? That question is asked by the nervous variety fan every day. It is a question that many baseball followers throughout the country are also speculating upon.

At the present time the Pirates are playing more consistent baseball than the Cubs. The Cubs will go ahead and win a game by a large score, and then reverse their form and be badly beaten by the same team the next day. Just at the present time the Pirates are winning pretty regularly.

It is a singular fact, and a fact that the fans of Pittsburg must dread to face, that when Wagner plays great ball the rest of the Pirates also are in the game up to their necks. What will they do in Pittsburg when Wagner ceases to be the great player that he is at the present time? The average baseball bug of the Smoky City, and they have bugs by the hundred there, must go off in some dark corner and weep, in contemplating the dismal days that are coming to the Pirate crew.

This spring Wagner was clear off form. The result was that the team behind him played the worst baseball for years. Then Wagner began to round to, and his example has been imitated by every member of the team. Result: at the present time the Pirates are the most dangerous rivals the Cubs have, and seem the only team capable of beating the Murphy pets out for the flag.

Wagner may retire at the end of the present season. He gave people an awful scare the present year, by slumping badly in both hitting and fielding. He can't last so very much longer. Therefore, unless some other great player is speedily developed by the Pittsburg team, that aggregation will have to bid goodbye to pennant fame for some seasons to come.

Was there ever another player like Wagner? That is a question which, like the comparison of players, must always remain. Yet the imagination almost fails to imagine a greater combination of baseball greatness than Honus.

Overbearing Johnson.

Will someone kindly bounce something hard off the cocoanut-shamed head of that parading pest, Li'l Artha Johnson.

Listen to this: "Can you imagine me fighting for a purse of $6,000? I should say not!"

This from the big, overbearing, black, who has made a barrel of easy money, and so soon has forgotten the days when $25 was a very large and respectable purse.

Prize fighting is on the blink. Li'l Artha Johnson and also Mistah Sam Langford might do well to remember this. It is only in such a material and fast-moving age as the present, that purses the size of which Johnson has fought for, could be secured. When any promoter goes beyond $10,000 for a purse, he is acting very foolish.

The recent Jeffries-Johnson fiasco was not worth one tenth of the amount offered for it, if the stories of the head men that have returned from Reno are to be believed. And then to have a big, ignorant black get up and say that a $6,000 purse is beneath his notice. If fortune hadn't been very kind to him, he would be down on those Galveston wharves lifting cotton bales for a few two-bit pieces.

How soon the newly-rich forget! Here is the case of the prosperous pugilist, who has forgotten that the public has paid liberally to see him fight, and that he has never, in all his fighting career, given the public a decent run for its money. He is the poorest champion that the ring has ever produced. He is a disgrace even to prize fighting, and his actions are disgusting even the fatuous follower of the sport that has degenerated into a game of gambling and skinning the dear public.

Here is hoping that the day may speedily come, when the present champion will be glad to fight for purses considerably less than the sum he names with contempt.

BADGER BOY WILL ENTER SATURDAY RACE.

In addition to the new Schell boat, the Cook boat, the Dingle Capitol and the Little Bob, the new Lake Geneva boat, there will be at least three additional starters in the big 40-foot class motor boat race of Next Saturday.

One of the features of the race will be the start of the Badger Boy, a steel boat that was built at the Superior shipyards and is owned by L. Williams of Superior. The Badger Boy has one of the very best engines at the Head of the Lakes, and is considered a very fast boat. A great deal of interest is being shown in the Superior entry.

The Mermaid, another Superior boat, owned by A. Dauplaise, will start Saturday. Edward C., owned by Harry Coney, will be another entry.

The Little Bob and the new Schell boats were out yesterday. Mack Cook has his boat in the best condition of the present season, so that the clash between the three boats should furnish a race well worth witnessing.

LEGG IS HAVING AN EASY TIME

The Champion Experienced Little Trouble in Defeating Harrison and Lindsey.

Denver, Aug. 18.—Played in a drizzling rain that drove the gallery to the clubhouse fireplace, the first and second rounds of match play in the trans-Mississippi golf tournament has left but four men as real contestants for the title.

Harry G. Legg of Minikahda, the title holder, in spite of an infected foot that is causing him much trouble, had an easy time in the first and second rounds of match play. He experienced little difficulty in defeating R. Harrison of Des Moines, 6 up and 5 to play in the morning and J. B. Lindsey of Omaha, in the afternoon, 6 up and 5 to play.

His strongest opponent is Lawrence Bromfield of the Denver Country club, who duplicated his 79 of the qualifying round yesterday in the first round of match play against A. W. Copp, the Colorado golf club mainstay, and followed this by defeating H. J. Easton of Kansas City, 3 up and 2 to play.

Wendell Hertig of Minikahda, vice president of the Trans-Mississippi, defeated J. A. Roberts of Kansas City, 1 up.

In the match between Walter Fairbanks and Harold A. Fisher, both of the Denver Country club, Fairbanks won.

It required 19 holes to decide the match between W. M. Sheehan of Des Moines and W. J. Foyer of Omaha. Sheehan won.

HARVESTER MAKES RECORD

Fast Horse Covers Mile in 2:02 on a Slow Track.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 18.—World's records were made yesterday at the Fort Erie track when the Harvester, driven by Ed Geers, covered a mile in 2:02 over a track said to be fully a second slow. The record time was made in the last heat of the 2:07 trot, distance being waived by the other starters. Geers sent the brown stallion away to a good start. The half was made in 1:01. The Harvester was faltering after the turn into the stretch, but Geers applied the whip and the sturdy son of Walnut Hall flashed under the wire with a champion's record. He had clipped a quarter of a second off the world's record of Crescens, made nine years ago, established a new third-heat record for stallions, mares or geldings, and also made a world's record for a five-year-old trotter.

Dudie Archdale, heretofore unbeaten and winner of the $10,000 M. and M. stake and several other rich prizes, was beaten by Hall Worthy in the $5,000 King George V. stake for 2:15 trotters. Jean won the first, but Hall Worthy took the last three.

IT WASN'T THE MAYOR AT ALL

New York, Aug. 18.—M. A. Luescher, a plain citizen, mistakenly taken for John Purroy Mitchell, the acting mayor, caused all the mystery surrounding the stoppage of the Lang-Kaufman fight. With a friend he went to witness the bout, and learning in advance that the police would interfere, he hired a room adjoining the club quarters to watch proceedings. As he left he was hailed as the acting mayor, and the rumor spread that Mitchell had personally spied on the club before ordering the bout called off.

Mr. Mitchell, while admitting that he had instructed Police Commissioner Baker to stop the bout, indignantly denied today that he was there in person. So Luescher, innocent cause of the mystery, sent a letter to the acting mayor explaining how it all occurred.

Iron Mask Wins.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 18.—J. R. Keene's Iron Mask, the 1 to 3 favorite, easily won the $6,090 Grand Union hotel stakes, distance six furlongs. His victory was very impressive, but the field Iron Mask met was not made up of the best youngsters in training. Nevertheless his victory stamps him a very high class colt. The Belmont entry Footprint and Walter Vale ran second and third respectively. The special race between Novelty and Textile resulted in a very easy victory for Novelty, the favorite.

Players for Cleveland.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 18.—The Cleveland club yesterday purchased Pitcher Krapp and Shortstop Olson from the Portland, Or., club of the Pacific Coast league.

Incline Juniors Win.

Yesterday the Incline Juniors defeated the Incline Sluggers by the score of 10 to 8. Garvish and Bowder were in the battery points for the winners; Squires, Benda, Foster and Wesby being the battery workers for the losing team.

Kaufman vs. Lang.

Philadelphia, Aug. 18.—A telegram was received in this city last night from Harry Edwards, the fight promoter, who is in New York, stating that he had matched Al Kaufman and Bill Lang to box six rounds at the Philadelphia National league baseball grounds here on Labor day, Sept. 5.

WHEN ROYALTY RIDES.

American tourists are often surprised at seeing a king or queen riding in an ordinary carriage unadorned with any of the supposed pomp of royalty—no gilding, no purple and embroidered hammercloths, no outriders in scarlet livery, perhaps not even a crown on the panels. Yet this, according to a writer in the Travel Magazine, is the way in which kings and queens ordinarly go out, the great gilded coaches being reserved for state occasions. But there are what might be called semi-state carraiges in which royal personages ride on such occasions as the laying of a cornerstone or the opening of a hospital or bazar.

These are generally barouches or landaus, but without a box or a coachman, drawn by four horses, two of which are mounted by grooms, with a rumble behind on which two footmen are perched. Outriders attend them and sometimes an escort of cavalry. Queen Elena of Italy is wont to ride in such a carriage, but her mother-in-law, the Queen Dowager Margherita, prefers an automobile to a horse drawn vehicle. However, when the latter is more appropriate to the occasion she adapts herself to the circumstances and drives out in a plain landau.

In striking contrast to this unpretentious gig is the Russian state coach bearing the gilded carvings, its horses caparisoned in gorgeous but heavy harness and saddlecloths and led by grooms in the brilliant livery of the imperial house. The Norwegian state coach looks beside the Russian sombre and plain. It has something about it which at once suggests the hearse. It is not often used, for the Norwegian royalties are quite democratic and prefer private and more comfortable carriages.

When the German empress goes driving she uses very much such a carriage as any well-to-do New Yorker might own. She cares nothing for splendid state equipages and is most often to be seen driving with her young daughter in a simple landau or victoria.

The Emperor Franz Josef of Austria during his annual summer sojourn at the castle of Schoenbrunn on the outskirts of Vienna drives into the capital in an open carriage quite unattended immediately after breakfast, arriving at the old palace situated in the heart of the city soon after 8 o'clock. Day after day he thus offer himself as an easy target for an assassin's shot.

It frequently happens that persons with a grievance station themselves at some point along the route always taken by the imperial carriage and run toward it, one of the number waving a written petition in the air when the emperor is passing. In nine cases out of ten they are immediately seized by detectives on the watch, which shows the thoroughness of the precautions taken, but whenever such an incident is noticed by the emperor he orders the persons arrested to be liberated, beckons them to the side of the carriage, takes the petition himself and in a few gracious words promises to give it his attention.

The most valuable as well as the most dazzling carriage in the world is preserved at the palace of the Trianon at Versailles. It was constructed for King Charles X of France and was first used by him on the occasion of his coronation. From pole to hind wheel the vehicle is thickly covered with gold, which gives it quite a magnificent appearance. It cost more than $200,000.

The next most costly carriage is owned by her majesty Queen Wilhelmina o fthe Netherlands and wasa gift from her loving subjects of Amsterdam. Exceedingly handsome, this royal coach is decorated in the style of the Dutch renaissance and the interior is luxuriously upholstered in embroidered cream colored silk. It was a wedding present and its cost was $100,000.

That distinguished Indian potentate, the Maharajah of Patiala, has a carriage worth a considerable fortune with the state arms wrought in gold.

A BERNHARDT TRICK.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, who is supposed to be something of an artist as well as an actress, was recently called upon in one of the marvelous creations to enact the role of a sculptor, and to model a certain bust in view of the audience. This farily electrified the critics, but when going into rhapsodies over the technical skill in handling the clay which Mmeff Bernhardt exhibited they showed that they knew little of the artistic tricks of actors and actresses; as a matter of fact, she does nothing of the kind. The bust is modeled and baked, and over it is placed damp clay of the same color. This the talented actress merely pulls off, leaving the beautifully modelled head underneath.

THE BILLIARD ROOM.

Ideal Size and Arrangement—Choosing a Cue.

A perfect billiard room from the player's point of view is rather rare. There have even been cases in which the room was built so small that it could not be played in. It should never be less than 16 by 22 feet, and 18 by 22 would be much better.

The seating in a small room should be only on one side and the table should be five feet from the wall on the side opposite the seats. The ideal billiard room, that is, the minimum proportions, according to a writer in Baily's Magazine, would be 20 by 30 feet. With the table five feet clear of the wall at one end there would then be a good space at the other, where a fireplace might be introduced.

The same writer declares that the proper colors for the walls of a billiard room is red (scarlet or crimson), the complementary color of green, the color of the billiard cloth which is such a prominent feature in the room. The curtains and blinds, too, should be of the same color. The green cloth is thus set off and the player's eyesight is materially assisted.

Nothing perhaps in connection with the game of billiards is of more importance than the possession of a really good cue. In the first place choose if you can a cue that has been made some time—it will then be less liabk to warp—and see that it is straight, true (viz., that it tapers truly from the "shoulders," the part just above the ebony butt, to the tip), and as straight as possible in the grain of the wood.

The balance of the cue should be near the ebony points, some sixteen inches or so from the butt end, and the butt should never be too thick, the latter fault being apt to accentuate the bad amateur habit of gripping the cue (one of the greatest blemishes in faulty billiard technique.)

Most players will be best suited by a cue of in the first instance, 4 feet 9¼ inches in length (including tip), to be used until wear and tear has worn it down to about 4 feet 8¾ inches, when it should be spliced to its original length. To suit individual tastes a margin of a quarter of an inch on either side of the above measurements may be allowed, but the cue should never be shorter than 4 feet 8½ inches.

A very tall man or one who possesses an exceptionally long reach may suit himself in the matter of length, using a cue of any length between 4 feet 9½ inches and 4 feet 11 inches.

The weight of the cue should lie between fifteen and sixteen ounces, and there is a general consensus among the best plyers—professional and amateur that the ideal weight of cue is fifteen and one-half ounces. A woman may use n cue as light as fourteen and one-half ounces.

Every owner of a private billiard room should have, in addition to any other cues it may contain, a few of the best English butted, hand made cues, keeping then in tin cases hung on the walls, and of course taking every care of them.

The billard balls next claim consideration. The best ivory balls are now very expensive, and although there is something strangely attractive in the soft, sweet click and general behavior of an ivory ball—ivory is livelier and carries more side and for longer than any substitute—the composition ball, from its cheapness, truth of running and far greater durability, has much to recommend it.

Ivory billiard balls are exceedingly sensitive, being in many ways comparable to the human skin, and sudden changes of temperature and barometrical conditions are apt to spell ruin to them.

Chalk is a small but necessary item. The old white chalk that served our fathers' time is now seldom seen in the billiard room, various chemically prepared substitutes having taken its place.

SOCIAL LIFE IN ROME.

Strand: Rome is one of the meeting places of the world. Was it not Kipling who said: "If one wants to meet a long-lost friend, sooner or later one comes across him at Port Said or at Charing Cross Station?" To these places he might have added the Pincian Hill or the Plazza di Spagna. The season in Rome begins about Christmas, and up to Lent there is a constant round of balls, parties and cotillons.

Trains are not worn at the Italian court, and neither feathers nor veils, but full evening dress is required, which must be of the smartest and freshest, as the light in the presence chamber is dazzling beyond description. Black gowns are barred, which fact is destinctly stated in the invitations. Ten o'clock is the hour named, and about nine a glittering crowd may be seen mounting the splendid staircase of the Quirinal palace.

Room after room is then passed through until the central chamber is reached, which has a mass of gilding and is illuminated by electric light and by thousands of wax candles. After this comes a pause, and then, as the hour approaches, the dame d'honneur "sorts" the different nationalities. Also she arranges that the married couples should be received in one room and the single men in another. This lady is, in fact, an Italian Oberhofmeisterin. At last a big door is flung open and the king and queen make their appearance. Their majesties walk about the rooms, and do not remain seated, as is the custom at Buckingham palace.

A CLERGYMAN'S ANECDOTES.

London Daily Mail: In a clergyman's intimate relations with his flock there must be many humorous incidents, if he has the gift to see them, which might well make many an interesting book of reminiscences. A few that the Rev. Stewart Bernays has collected in Cornhill are well worth repeating:

"A woman in a parish where I lived used each day to prepare herself for the worst. I was complimenting her one day on the extreme tidiness of the house even early in the morning.

"'Yes,' she said, 'I always likes to 'ave my bedrooms done hearly, for, as I allus sez, you never know what may 'appen; 'ow soon one of the children may be brought 'ome in a fit or with a broken leg, and, as I allus sez, it don't matter what 'appens, so long as you've got a bedroom to put 'em into.'

"The compliments that one meets with are sometimes as strangely as strangely phrased as they are generally little deserved. On my leaving a curacy, an old friend of mine said: 'Well, I be sorry you're going, for I did 'ope you would 'ave died 'ere'—which was certainly more than I did.

But in the way of testimonials, the one which I prize the most was received from a certain bishop. He was famous for the infelicitous way he had of putting things. I wrote to tell him I was leaving the diocese, and to thank him for his kindness to me. His reply was short, and, I trust, not to the point: 'Dear Sir: I am sorry you are leaving my diocese, for I have never heard anything against you. Yours faithfully, ——.' This at least was a negative kind of testimonial which might be useful to some of us.

"My vicar was leaving at the same time, and I was accompanying him to his new parish. He fared very little better at his bishop's hands. 'Well, ——, you and I have not always seen eye to eye, but I might well get a worse man.' So, with this episcopal blessing, we migrated to another diocese.

"I once attended a mayoralty banquet in a provincial town at which the vicar, who had newly arrived, was present. An alderman was put up to propose his health, and was very anxious to pay a well-deserved compliment to the new vicar's popularity, and this was his manner of doing it:

"'Mr. Mayor, our new vicar has not been long in making himself liked by all of us. As I was remarking the other day to some friends, it's a good thing that our vicar has not got the face of an Adonis, or we should have to look out for our wives and daughters."

LINKS TWO "BIG" CRIMES

Baltimore Paper Suggests Mrs. Charlton Killed Mrs. Woodill.

Pictures Are Said to Be Recognized By Maryland People.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 18.—The Baltimore Sun prints a story linking the murder of Edith May Thompson Woodill, near St. Michaels, Md., in June, 1909, with that of Mary Scott Castle Charlton at Lake Como, Italy, and suggesting the possibility that Mrs. Charlton was the woman referred to in the letter of "Lame Bob" Eastman, as having killed Mrs. Woodill.

It is stated that residents of Talbot county, Maryland, have recognized the pictures of Porter Charlton and Mrs. Charlton as the young man and woman who were seen with Eastman before the famous murder in his bungalow.

The coroner's jury in its verdict said Mrs. Woodill came to her death at the hands of some unknown person, not being satisfied with the circumstantial evidence pointing to Eastman, who committed suicide when about to be captured in a boat. Many persons have believed in the innocence of Eastman.

Recognized Her Picture.

When Mrs. Castle shot William B. Craig, an attorney, at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York, her picture was widely published and the Sun states that it was recognized then by Talbot county people as the woman who was in the Eastman party. Later, when Charlton's picture was published after the Como tragedy it is said that it also was recognized.

The Sun states that as Mrs. Woodill, Eastman and Mrs. Charlton are dead, Porter Charlton is the only person who can clear up the case.

The murder of Mrs. Woodill, who was a ward of Lyman J. Gage, was one of the most sensational and mysterious crimes on record. Mrs. Woodill had lived in Los Angeles, Cal., where her husband was at the time.

The bank records show that Charlton was not absent from duty any business day during June, 1909. The body of Mrs. Woodill was found on Monday, June 21.

Letter Accused Woman.

The letter left by Eastman said in part:

"I had no hand in the tragedy. Was there and removed the evidence after the two couples fled. I did this for self preservation and am haunted. The victim was my particular friend and we were well mated. Have only known her three weeks. We all—these two men and two other women from Annapolis—went to the bungalow for a time. Every one got full excepting Edith and myself. Edith tried to win one of the girl's fellows and was hit three times on the side of the head with a full bottle of champagne, and the fellow was hit once. Edith fell over on the floor and died. The man did not come to for an hour. I was left with the corpse and cannot take a chance for a trial. Life to me is bitter and I will pull down the shades and say 'good-bye.'"

A TOURIST'S OPINION OF DULUTH'S RESIDENCE DISTRICT.

Tourists and visitors while in our city are the means at times of calling our attention to the many advantages we have over other cities in the way of locations for the building of fine residences. The other day a visitor while being shown around Duluth was very much impressed with the exceptionally fine view obtained from the new division located in the East end and known as "Idlewild," which property is now being offered for sale through the office of Whitney Wall company. After he had been told that this property was in the "restricted residence district," he said that people generally did not realize what a "restricted district" meant to a city, assuring as it does a location free from stores, flats, double houses, etc., in fact, a district for beautiful homes only, with a stretch of green lawn in front and plenty of space between each house. He was very much impressed with the location and the property and was of the opinion that within a short time this property would be Duluth's most exclusive (therefore high-priced) residence property. It is a surprise to all after investigating the location to learn that this property can now be bought at such bargain prices, ranging from $15.00 to $30.00 per foot, on a small cash payment of $150.00 to $300.00 down, balance long time, and no taxes until 1912. In other cities in their "restricted residence district," property commands the highest price, ranging from $100.00 to $500.00 per foot. If you have not secured a lot in Idlewild division do not fail to call on Whitney Wall company, Torrey building, for plats and further particulars. Remember that this property is in Duluth's most exclusive neighborhood.

NEW RAILROAD LAW EFFECTIVE

Telegraph and Telephone Companies Come Under Its Provisions.

Washington, Aug. 18.—At midnight last night the new railroad law became effective. Immediately upon the passage of the act, sixty days ago, sections of the law relating to the suspension of rates went into effect. Since that time the interstate commerce commission has been operating under the law.

A conference was held by the commission with representatives of the telegraph and telephone companies concerning the law as it applies to them. The companies expressed a desire to do all in their power to facilitate the work of the commission. Hereafter the telegraph and telephone companies will have to file reports with the commission concerning their business, just as the railroads do. The officers were informed, also, that hereafter no franks for messages could legally be issued, except as governed by the anti-pass provision of the Hepburn act.

The long and short haul provision of the recently enacted law, while it becomes effective at once, actually will not be operative for six months, so that time is allowed for the carriers to adjust with the commission their tariffs with respect to that provision.

TRADING DULL; COPPERS WEAK

Small Holders Sell and There Is Little Trading---Rally at Close.

Trading was lighter today than for some time and was almost entirely professional. The public was out of the market, holders not making offers on the decline and buyers were not much in evidence. Around the opening the market showed some strength when there was buying all along the list under cover of the strength in a few specialties. When these issues stopped moving the list promptly slumped.

While there was some liquidation in Amalgamated and North Butte and slight selling in Calumet & Arizona yet trading was so light that there was not much significance to the market's action. Toward the close a buying movement set in and shorts ran to cover. The market rallied and approached the opening but a cessation of support caused values to slump slightly at the close, which was lower than the opening all along the line with a few insignificant exceptions.

The London market was higher and it was reported that there was some speculative buying of the red metal in that city. Electrolytic is selling here at 12¾c, which is the top price in several months. Many big consumers have bought only enough copper for immediate consumption. The professional element is confident that red metal stocks will show a decrease in August.

Brokers look for occasional recessions in the next few weeks, but think that prices will continue to forge steadily forward. All lines of business have a healthier aspect and the stock markets, the professionals think, will reflect this improved tone.

The local market was dull, trading being light. There was a weak tone toward the close chiefly on account of a desire of some holders to take profits. The technical position of the market was not as weak as appearances indicated, however, as whatever liquidation came out was from small holders. Stocks appear to be getting in better hands on the upturn.

Copper Queen sold at 29c, Denn at $3.25, $3.31¼ and $3.43¾. This stock was the strongest on the local board. Red Warrior sold at $3, its top price in many months, and Shattuck was traded in at $24.25, Zenith Lead & Zinc sold at 50c, Amazon was weaker on account of profit-taking, selling at $3.75, $3.62½, $3.56¼ and then at $3.62½, Calumet & Montana sold at $1.06¼.

Amalgamated sold at $66.75, $65.75, $66.87½ and $66, Butte Ballaklava at $11.50 to $11.25, Butte Coalition at $19.62½ to $19.50, North Butte at $30.25, $29.75, $30.12½ and $29.75, Calumet & Arizona at $64, $62.50 and $63, Giroux sold at $7.12½ to $7.25, Greene at $7.62½ to $7.75, Superior & Pittsburg at $12, $11.75 and $11.87½.

OVER $1,000,000 LOSS IN FIRE

Jersey City Has Disastrous Early Evening Blaze.

New York, Aug. 18.—Fire that broke out shortly after 8 o'clock last night in the warehouse district of Jersey City, wiped out one entire block of business buildings and factories, turned 2,000 terrified families into the street and caused the death of one fireman.

The losses are variously estimated at from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000.

HORSE THIEF KILLED AND SHERIFF DYING.

Hot Springs, Ark., Aug. 18.—George Chitwood, an alleged horse thief, was killed and Sheriff Jake Houpt was mortally wounded in a pistol battle here, in which Oscar Chitwood, brother of the man killed, and Deputy Ed Houpt, a brother of Sheriff Houpt, also participated. Posses are seeking Chitwood, and it is probable that a lynching will follow his capture. Feeling is high.

WHERE IS THE GOVERNOR?

Anybody here seen Adolph?
Anybody here seen the Gov'nor?

Well, yes. And again, no, because he hasn't been here. But he was, at that. As a matter of fact, nobody seems to know the answer.

Governor Eberhart and party were at Coleraine this morning. This morning a special train left Coleraine with the party aboard. It is not known beyond the peradventure of a doubt that the governor was in the party, for Mr. Strom, whose home is in St. Paul and who knows Governor Eberhart, says the governor came to Duluth on the same train that brought Mr. Strom down from the range.

The special train from Coleraine was hauled by the Missabe road to Swan River. There the party was turned over to the mercies of the Great Northern, but mercy knows where the governor was at that time.

At any rate, he is supposed to be in St. Paul this evening. He's booked to take part in some Elks' doings at Wonderland, and it's a safe bet that even a governor wouldn't care to miss Elks' doings and the joys of such a place in combination.

The sleuth thinks the governor was in Duluth this morning and that he was here for just a little while, between trains, and then proceeded on his St. Paul way. He'll be here Saturday again—or not again, as the case may be—and will take part in the festive events incident to the embarkation of the governor and his staff on the U. S. S. Gopher for Isle Royale.

DISAPPOINTED AT THE DELAY

General Manager of Soo Hoped for Chicago Service Before This.

G. R. Huntington, general manager of the Soo, and E. F. Potter, general superintendent of the Chicago division of the Soo, formerly the Wisconsin Central railroad, are in the city today, inspecting the terminals in this city and Superior, and also looking over the work on the new Soo passenger station in this city.

Mr. Huntington stated that he was disappointed in the progress that had been made on the depot, as he had hoped that the service between Duluth and Chicago would be established before this.

He expressed the hope that traffic between here and Chicago would be established this fall, and said that as soon as the new depot was completed, the train service would be placed in operation.

Both of the officials are here simply to look over the terminals and ascertain if possible any work that will be done this fall on the terminals of the company in the two cities at the Head of the Lakes.

Part of the day was spent in Superior. The two officials left this afternoon for the Twin Cities.

LEWIS TALKS OF HARMONY

Both Sides Present Their Cases to United Mine Workers.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 18.—Harmony was the keynote of the speech by John Mitchell in the special international convention of the United Mine Workers today. While Mitchell criticized the action of the international board in forming the wage agreement in Illinois, he declared it was the best wage scale they ever had had. He denied, in the beginning, that he had any desire to stampede the convention in any way.

Board Members McLennan of Nova Scotia followed and accused Vice President Hayes of influencing the vote in Illinois against the so-called compromise.

Hayes, scorning to use the appellations "liar," "coward" or "traitor," which have been common in the convention, referred to the board member as the "human parrot."

The final summing up of the case by President Hayes was delayed until the afternoon session, when he promised to reply to statements by former President Mitchell and others who attacked hish position on the Illinois situation.

The convention is costing the organization about $7,000 a day.

NEW FIRES IN COAST STATES

Troops Are Shifted to Facilitate Fighting Flames in Forests.

Washington, Aug. 18.—New forest fires in Oregon and Washington called forth today, by direction of the war department, a shifting of the troops now in the Northwest in order to give the most service in fighting the fires.

Upon receipt of alarming news concerning the fires near Butte Falls, Wash., Gen. Wood, chief of staff of the army, ordered two companies sent to the national forests near that place for fire fighting duty. A little later reports came to the department that new fires had developed in the forests near Missoula, Mont., and that a request was made for troops. They will be sent at once.

Gen. Howe, commanding the Department of the Dakotas, has asked that troops assigned to Fort William Henry Harrison, but now attending maneuvers at American Lake, be returned to the fort near Helena, Mont., in order that they may be available for immediate duty in fighting fires. The war department issued the orders requested by Gen. Howe.

The forest fire situation in the Glacier National park in Montana is well in hand, according to a telegram received at the interior department today.

COCKATOO 112 YEARS OLD.

Cockatoos are well known to live to patriarchal age, and probably the oldest bird in the world whose age can be traced with certainty flourishes in a well known hostelry at Tom Ugly's Point, near Sydney, New South Wales.

When he had feathers enough to distinguish his species he was recognizable as a lemon crested cockatoo, but as he has been "under bare poles" for half a century, few living people can remember when he had more covering than he shows at present.

He was owned for eighty years by Capt. George Ellis, a well known master mariner of Sydney, who died at the Solomon Islands in 1887, aged 89. The bird was presented to the captain when the latter was 9 years of age, and he was then informed that Cocky was just the same age.

The bird was left as a legacy to Mrs. Bennett of Sidney, but she did not get him until 1891. Since that period, says the Wide World Magazine, the bird has lived at George's River, within sight of where Capt. Cook landed, and where "the first fleet" anchored about the year of his birth.

He has never been in better feather for the last twenty years than at present, and the few tattered fluffs that he wears are white as snow. None of his faculties is weakened, and he is as loquacious as youngsters of his tribe who may be a hundred years younger. In hilarious moments he will flap his stumps—you could not call them wings—and yell, "I'll fly, I'll fly! By gee, I'll fly!" a palpably mendacious statement.

His beak is fully four inches long, but he can pick up and crack his favorite maize as easily as ever. Mrs. Bennett has besides three pieces of beak—cut off when it grew too long—each about two inches in length. Cocky is known to thousands of Australians and globe trotters, and at his levees will chat freely with anybody. Among his recent visitors were Lord and Lady Northcote, Sir Harry Rawson and Miss Rawson, who were delighted with the ancient bird.

Misrepresentation in a store's advertising is as rare as—murder! And no more profitable as a business policy.

WON THE CROW'S CONFIDENCE.

Milwaukee Sentinel: That there is pleasure to be gained from the homeliest of nature's creations — that a world of joy and affection may be derived from even the loud voiced crow—may be doubted by many, but there is at least one Milwaukee woman who can vouch for the truth of the assertion.

Mrs. A. C. Clas, always a nature lover and especially fond of birds of the forest, expects upon returning to the family's summer home this season to find there the pets of the wild that she taught to love her last season.

Three crows, named the "Three Black Joes," were among her collection of pets last summer and to her call, "Hoo, hoo, Black Joe!" they would fly to her, perching upon her head and shoulders, regardless of coiffure and gowns.

As she worked in garden or arbor the crows would follow her about at times, trying to talk to her. They learned to follow her to and from the train as she went to and returned from the city.

"The baby crows were crying at the highest point of a pine tree when I first saw them," said Mrs. Clas. "They were deserted, and I had them brought down to me. People do not realize what a great thing it is to have a wild creature have absolute confidence in them and become as fearless as a domestic creature."

Later the bluejay was added to the collection. The crows were shot by some hunter who did not know the sorrow his deed caused. The bluejay was left alone, provided with an ample store of food for the winter, but Mrs. Clas is confident he will be at the summer home when she returns and that many other birds will join the household before the summer ends.

CAMEL TRAFFIC IN ARABIA.

Wide World Magazine: In Arabia travel is only possible by means of camels. The prancing Arabian steed is a myth to the traveler in the peninsula. I never saw a horse worth looking at in those desert regions; indeed, I cannot see how horses could be bred to perfection in such a herbless land. Without the camel, life would be impossible. The "humpty herds" are the sole product of the desert, and on them one must wander from well to well if one determines to brave this most inhospitable and dangerous of journeys. Camels form the chief concern of the Arab's existence; they supply him with all his wants, tents, food, clothing and transport, hence the breeds are well selected and pedigrees carefully kept. The tribe I was with owned immense herds of camels, chiefly of highly-bred dromedaries, capable of great endurance and of going without water for a long period, but they also had a few heavily-built baggage camels. These dromedaries will, when in good condition, travel seven or eight days without water. In the spring months, when the pasture is fresh, they will even exist for three weeks without it. For a short journey they can go at a rate of seventy miles a day, and the Bedouins are very fond of telling stories of record rides on camel-back and of extraordinary distances covered without water. They can even cross immense areas of fodderless country subsisting entirely on their hump, which, however, gradually diminishes in size. The highly-bred dromedary is, like a thorough-bred horse, very nervous and difficult to ride. It is as necessary to talk to your camel as it is for the plowman to talk to his team.

AN OLD TALE RECALLED.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: It is hoped that the new customhouse inspectors in New York will not suggest the story of the stage drivers in the earlier days of that city.

"Our drivers are stealing themselves rich," the superintendent of the stage line said to the president one day.

"There's no doubt of it," the president agreed. "What's your remedy?"

"Discharge every man of 'em."

"And enrich a new lot!" roared the president. "Not on your life!"

VICTOR HUGO'S SUPERSTITION.

Chicago Record Herald: An amusing story of Victor Hugo is related in a French contemporary. The poet had accepted an invitation to dine at the house of one of those ardent republicans who at the time were wittily termed "les precieuses radicales."

The dinner hour had passed some time without any announcement that the dinner was served, when one of the company, a friend of Victor Hugo, inquired of the hostess the cause of the delay. The latter exclaimed that owing to one of the guests having sent an excuse at the last moment there would be thirteen instead of fourteen at the table, so she had sent to find another to make the fourteenth.

A moment later the same individual was conversing with Victor Hugo. "Do you know why we are waiting?" asked the poet. "Yes," was the reply; "some imbecile is afraid to sit at table when there are thirteen." Victor Hugo in a solemn and severe tone replied: "The imbecile is myself."

OUT OF ORDER.

Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow, the noted Philadelphia golfer, told, at a luncheon in Haverford, a golf story.

"A man," she said, "was golfing at Bala. He was a poor golfer, and nearsighted to boot.

"'How far is it to the next hole, caddie?' he said, about half-way round.

"'A good drive and a putt,' the caddie answered.

"The man made a tremendous drive; lumps of turf rose up like frightened birds, but the ball only rolled a few yards across the grass.

"'Tue, tut,' said the caddie, 'you played the putt first, Mister.'"

To the Common Council:

Your Committee on Drains, Sewers and Sanitation, to which was referred communication from the health commissioner relative to the treatment of inmates of the Children's Home at the contagious disease hospital, is of the opinion that it would be impractical to indiscriminately treat all cases from the Children's Home without charge. Where it is impossible to collect for the treatment of contagious diseases the county is required to stand one-half the expense, but they would not be required to stand such portion of the expense if the city would not make an endeavor to collect such cost from those responsible for their keep. In case the persons responsible for the keep of the children in the home are unable to pay the expense of treatment at the hospital the health commissioner should certainly give them the necessary care without looking to the management of the home for re-embursement. We therefore recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

H. P. CURREN,
WILLIAM L. BERNARD,
THOS. J. STOREY,
Committee.

Resolved, That the health commissioner is hereby advised that it is impractical to indiscriminately treat all contagious cases from the Children's Home without charge, but that in the opinion of this council such cases should be treated without charge if the parents or other persons responsible for the keep of said children are unable to pay such cost.

EARLY BULGE IS CUT DOWN

Wheat Market Slumps Toward Close Which Is Fractionally Higher.

Big Estimate of Canadian Yield---Flax Advances; Offers Light.

Duluth Board of Trade, Aug. 18.—Wheat advanced fractionally today, selling after mid-day partly wiping out the early bulge. September wheat advanced ⅛c, December ¼c and May ¼c. There was no export business reported from here. Readdy, New York, wired that the export business to date has been forty-three loads from Chicago and Eastern seaboard. He estimates twenty loads from Philadelphia, seventeen from Baltimore, two from Chicago and four loads of Manitobas.

Flax was strong and advanced. Offers were light. September gained 4½c, October 1¾c, November 2c and December 2c.

Cash premiums were wiped out. The cash market became sick toward the close. Oats lost ½c, rye and barley were unchanged and durum was unchanged to ¼c off and ¼c up.

The market opened strong and advanced steadily. The situation in the forepart of the day hinged on foreign conditions. The foreign markets were affected by the coloring of the French market and French crop conditions.

It was reported that France had bought 100,000 bu of Pacific coast wheat for shipment from San Francisco. The variety was new Walla Walla club wheat and the price paid was 3c above prevailing public quotations. More stuff probably will be sold as the foreign demand is insistent. Baltimore reported the charter of a vessel to take wheat to France from that port. The Paris market closed ½@1c up and Liverpool was affected by the strength in the leading French market and closed unchanged to ¼d up. Cables from France indicated that the weather is unsettled and that thrashing returns are disappointing.

The cash markets showed a little more strength today. The mills bought wheat more freely, but seemed to desire choice stuff chiefly. Scattered sales of flour to the East were reported.

The Armour Grain company reported an estimate of 92,000,000 bu of wheat for the three Canadian provinces. Barrell's representative at Winnipeg wired that this estimate impressed the trade as being about correct. The report caused some selling at Winnipeg and values on this side of the line experienced a slight setback.

The run of spring wheat to Northwestern markets is increasing and the receipts are so much larger than usual at this time of the year that there can be no real comparison. The movement is earlier than last year by at least two weeks. Those people who thought the farmer would not sell his wheat were disappointed by the heavy movement of winter wheat and the bears think their hopes will be given a setback by the impending movement of spring stuff. The Northwestern farmer is not selling much to arrive, and the bulls look upon this as an indication that the present marketings are due to sales made under pressure and that as soon as the farmer has paid the cost of thrashing and harvesting his grain the run of wheat will dwindle.

General cutting of the new flax crop will not be in progress for several weeks. Last spring it was expected that the run of new flax would be heavier than usual in September on account of the early date at which much flaxseed was put into the ground. The great damage to the early sown flax and the fact that much of the late sown seed failed either to germinate or to germinate later than had been expected will result in a movement of new flax at about the usual period or perhaps slightly later.

Several cars of new flax which have been received by Minneapolis came from the southern part of Minnesota. The stuff was sown early. Prices are high and many commission men think farmers will be inclined to market their yield early. The country believes that a decline in values will follow the early movement and probably will desire to get in on top levels before the slump that it expects.

Crushers have bought a little stuff for September delivery and a few lots for August delivery, but there has been no general demand. The crushers are unable to book orders for future oil and they are not showing much interest in the crop futures. Shipments of flaxseed from this market have been moderately heavy lately and supplies are at a minimum.

The new business in linseed oil is not of sufficient volume to take care of the stuff that is being manufactured. Consumers are pursuing a policy of buying according to immediate needs. They are taking just enough oil to meet demands until the outcome of the new crop is determined. Few if any contracts have been made by crushers for future business. Neither the jobber nor the crusher has any desire to transact business on a basis which may be demoralized later. Stocks of oil are rapidly decreasing and the surplus that crushers will carry over into the next crop will be exceedingly small. As there is no demand for oil crushers are not in a position to sell much cake. The small amount of cake offered is quickly taken by foreigners. The continental demand has been active on account of the scarcity of offerings.

On Flax.

Turtle Lake, N. D.—Flax is running from 2 bu to 10 bu an acre and will make an average yield in this vicinity of 7 bu an acre. Flax on new ground is good but that on old ground is in very poor condition. We ought to have at least three weeks without frost.

Mayville, N. D.—This neighborhood will raise about one-fifth of a flax crop.

Cando, N. D.—Flax will average 5 bu an acre. Yields will be from 3 bu to 6 bu an acre. Some may make 7 or 8 bu. The flax is in poor shape.

Hankinson, N. D.—Some of the flax in this neighborhood is not worth cutting. The best fields will yield 12 bu an acre. The average yield in this part of the state last year was around 10 bu. Doubt if we get more than 6 bu this year.

Lakota, N. D.—The stand of flax is thin, the plant is so short that much of it will be lost in the cutting. The prospects are for a very poor yield.

Rugby, N. D.—The flax crop in this neighborhood will probably make an average yield. As thrashing has not started we cannot judge as to the yield. Appearances, we think, will be very deceptive this year. Old ground flax is not in as good condition as that sown to new ground.

Ashley, N. D.—The flax crop in this neighborhood is almost a total failure. Doubt if we get 3 bu an acre. Last year we raised 11 bu an acre.

Sheldon, N. D.—We will get very little flax; many farmers do not believe they will get back their seed. Last year the yield averaged about 12 bu an acre.

Manning, N. D.—Flax will make a poor yield, but the outlook is better than a few days ago on account of recent precipitation. Late flax was greatly assisted by the rain. Early sown flax is not worth cutting. Some of it has been plowed up.

Hettinger, N. D.—Flax crop a failure.

Yield won't be over 3 bu. Some farmers do not think they will get that much.

Bismarck, N. D.—Flax may be 2 bu an acre on the average.

Cooperstown, N. D.—Think yield of flax in this vicinity will run 4 bu an acre on an average. (Note—Another correspondent estimated yield near Copperstown at 6 bu an acre. His report was published yesterday.)

Stanley, N. D. — Flax will make a small yeild. Think it will run between 5 and 7 bu an acre. Late flax is in fairly good condition, but early sown flax in many instances will not be cut. (Note—Another correspondent estimated the flax yield near Stanley at 6 bu an acre. His report was published earlier in the week.)

Hope, N. D.—Flax sown late on new breaking will not amount to anything. Some failed even to germinate. The rest will make a small yield. No stuff has been thrashed. Think average yield may be 4 or 5 bu an acre. (Note—Another correspondent previously estimated average yield near this station at from 3 to 5 bu an acre.)

Milnor, N. D.—Flax near here may make 6 bu an acre. Don't want any frost for at least three weeks.

Church's Ferry, N. D.—Flax making a fair stand and yield will be fair, but can't estimate yield as stuff is too spotted. No thrashing yet.

Jamestown, N. D. — Recent wet weather has helped flax greatly. What looked to be a failure is now turning out better than expected. Some fields will make first-class yields, but many will not make much of a showing. The crop is too spotted to warrant hazarding a guess on yield. Too early, as crop is puzzling to everybody, so far as probable yield is concerned.

Spring Brook, N. D.—Recent weather has been somewhat wet and flax has derived great benefit. Revival of some fields has been good. Stuff that was given up is now looking fairly good, and farmers are not so pessimistic. The yield will be under normal, but think it may run from 7 to 9 bu an acre and possibly more if the weather in the next two or three weeks is favorable. Of course, some fields are no good but the percentage of moderately good fields will be much higher than had been expected.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Flax yield will be small, but prospects are better than several days ago on account of scattered showers. Cool weather has helped too. Impossible to estimate yield at this time.

New Rockford, N. D.—Stand of flax is thin. May get around 6 or 7 bu an acre.

Washburn, N. D.—Flax is in fairly good condition, especially the stuff sown to new ground. The crop will come closer to normal than had been expected. Weather in last few days has been favorable.

Schafer, N. D.—Cutting of flax is in progress. Much will be lost as the straw is short. Can tell in a few days what yield is. Think it will be slightly over half a crop.

Frankfort, S. D.—Flax will make half a crop. Last year we raised about 12 bu an acre, but don't think we will get more than 6 bu this year. Stand is thin and straw is short. Fields spotted.

Clark, S. D.—We will get about three-fourths of a crop. The yield will average around 8 bu an acre, compared with 12 to 13 bu last year.

Montrose, S. D.—The yield of flax will be exceedingly light, probably about 6 bu.

Ashton, S. D.—This region will raise between 40 and 50 per cent of normal flax crop.

Baltic, S. D.—Yield will be good. May run between 12 and 14 bu an acre.

Groton, S. D.—Flax will run from 10 to 11 bu an acre. Last year we raised from 15 to 16 bu.

Ipswich, S. D.—Yield will be small, probably from 4 to 7 bu. We got from 9 to 15 bu last year. Stand is thin and straw is short.

Howard, S. D.—Flax will make between 8 and 9 bu an acre.

Redfield, S. D.—May get half of a crop but doubt it.

Armour, S. D.—Flax looks rather good and yield will run around 10 bu an acre. With favorable weather and no frost and it may be slightly larger.

Gettysburg, S. D.—Flax yield will be between 5 and 6 bu an acre. This is slightly more than half of last year's yield.

Pine Island, Minn.—Flax will make from 10 to 12 bu an acre compared with 15 to 16 bu last year.

Fosston, Minn.—Flax crop will be about the same as last year, 10 to 12 bu an acre.

Thief River Falls, Minn.—Flax will make about one-half of last year's yield, which was between 10 and 12 bu an acre.

Dodge Center, Minn.—Flax will run around 10 bu an acre. With continued favorable weather yield may be slightly larger.

Halstad, Minn.—Flax crop in bad shape. May be as high as 4 or 5 bu an acre at harvest.

Pelican Rapids, Minn.—Flax yield will average about 8 bu an acre. according to most farmers near here.

Tracy, Minn.—Flax crop will be about one-half of last year's production which was 10 to 12 bu an acre.

Fairmont, Minn.—Flax may make 10 bu an acre. Some people think it will go as high as 14 bu. Believe 10 to 12 bu will be about correct if the weather is not against the crop.

Appleton, Minn.—Flax is in better shape than last year and will run from 10 to 15 bu an acre with an average of 12 bu. Weather has been favorable. The acreage is slightly larger than last year much low ground being cultivated which last year was too wet to do anything with.

Willmar, Minn.—Flax crop will be about the same as last year, around 10 or 11 bu an acre.

Mapleton, Minn.—Think Flax will make about 8 or 9 bu an acre. We got around 12 bu last year.

Weaver, N. D.—Flax will run from 2 bu to 10 bu an acre with an average of 7 bu.

Wheat and Other Grains.

Turtle Lake, N. D.—Spring wheat probably will average around 4 bu an acre.

Cando, N. D.—Barley may run as high as 10 bu an acre. Spring wheat will make about 6 bu an acre. About one-half of our small grains will be plowed up.

Rugby, N. D.—Wheat crop will be small, maybe one-half, but will be of good quality. Thrashing will begin about Aug. 25.

Weaver, N. D.—Barley will average about 8 bu an acre and spring wheat between 4 and 5 bu an acre.

MARKET GOSSIP

The Northwestern Miller says: While there have been showers on one or two days in the last week, the weather has been favorable for harvest work in the Northwest. Considerable wheat has been thrashed in South Dakota and Southern Minnesota, and usually the yields have run beyond early estimates. In North Dakota, perhaps half the crop has been cut. Some thrashing has been done in the southern part of the state. As a rule, yields are rather ahead of the early estimates. Where thrashing has been done, quite a little wheat is being delivered at mills. The wheat is of large, bright kernel, and promises to make a fine flour, though some tests of southern wheat would indicate that the volume of loaf of bread might not be fully up to expectations. From estimates gathered from milling, elevator and other sources, the Northwestern Miller would look upon 155,000,000 bu as a conservative estimate of the wheat crop of Minnesota and North and South Dakota.

A San Francisco wire: "I confirm direct sale yesterday one full cargo, 3,000 tons of about 100,000 bu new crop Pacific coast wheat to France. This is first of new wheat crop. Previous sales reported were old crop wheat. Inquiries for more."

Winnipeg wired to Shearson-Hammill late yesterday: "Conservative persons are now estimating the wheat crop at 95,000,000 to 100,000,000 bu. Improvement in condition up here nothing short of wonderful. Oats crop is going to be a poor one. Late spring frosts did a lot of damage."

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: Wheat opened under pressure of increased offerings prompted by the disappointing American cables of yesterday and values were ⅜d to ½d lower. Following the opening a firm undertone developed as offerings became light and shorts covered which caused an advance of ¼d to ⅝d with principal support in the most distant months. Buying was attributed to continued unfavorable reports from France and a renewal of buying by France of distant cargoes. Cargoes both off coast and on passage were light and were in good request. Danubian offers are firmer and private reports are being received here of less favorable weather conditions in Canada. The market was dull but firm, with prices considerably up from the opening and ⅛d lower to ¼d higher than yesterday at 1:30 p. m. Corn at opening was affected by the lower American cables and prices eased on the predictions of lighter shipments from Argentine and a good inquiry for Plate parcels which are more firmly held. Cargoes wheat arrived off coast nothing, awaiting orders, 5; in distant positions, firm with more demand for distant positions. Corn firm but quiet. Argentine estimated shipments wheat, 1,200,000 vs. 1,328,000 vs. 904,000. Corn, 3,600,000 vs. 4,668,000 vs. 2,746,000.

Price Current said: "Cincinnati, Ohio—The general movement in crop conditions throughout central regions is apparent during the week, favored with showers, which were beneficial to moderate extent. Continued deficiency of precipitation. Situation of corn crop maintained for most part. Bulk of crop not much danger, more moisture needed. Yield and quality of winter wheat confirm earlier expectation Spring wheat thrashing under favorable conditions. Oats returns point to large yield of very good quality."

Comstock, Minn., wired: H. Hendrickson thrashed 320 acres of wheat and got five bushels per acre. W. J. Peet threshed 160 acres of wheat and got four bushels to the acre.

* * *

Grand Forks wired: Harvesting is practically at an end in this section of the state, only the late wheat and some of the very late oats and the flax remaining to be cut. Yields generally are surprising and are much in excess of the estimates made earlier in the season. The reason is that very few realized how well the heads had filled, how unusually long they were as compared with the length of the straw, not only this but the grain is exceptionally plump and heavy, some samples of the early thrashing weighing up to sixty-four pounds to the bushel, remarkably fine in color and grading up the top notch. Some fields yielded as high as twenty-six bushel, but these cases are exceptional, much of the wheat that was estimated at six to eight bushels are giving ten to fourteen and even up to eighteen bushels.

Winnipeg wired: Fine and cool weather has been general over the prairie provinces. Minimum temperatures have been somewhat higher than last report. Forecast: All West fine, and on Friday a little warmer.

Gaylord, Minn., wired: Twenty-two bu average for Sibley county. Artloff thrashed 32 bu to the acre. Weckworth thrashed 800 bu from 23 acres.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Unsettled But Gets Stronger in First Hour.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—The wheat market opened unsettled and easy today with prices generally from ⅛c down to ¼c up. Some strengthening of the foreign market, induced by the disturbed weather and improved buying by French houses, had a corresponding effect here and in the first hour the figures work away from the low point. Commission houses were active buyers on the dip and reports of large Pacific coast shipments gave further encouragement to the bulls. September opened a shade up to ¼c off at $1.01¼@⅜ to $1.01 and steadied at $1.01⅜@½. December started a ¼c up to ⅛@¼c off at $1.04⅞ to $1.04⅝ and quickly advanced to $1.05@⅛.

The market continued nervous within a narrow range. The close was steady with September ⅛@¼c to ¼c up at $1.01⅜@½ to $1.01½.

Commission houses did a selling business in moderate proportions in the corn pit, prices for the first hour keeping within the opening range, which was unchanged to ¼c off. The pit feeling in general was that the bulk of the crop is not in danger and that recent rains have benefited the growing ears. September opened unchanged to ⅛@¼c down at 62¾c to 62½@⅝c and rested at 62½c to ¾c. December started unchanged to ¼c off at 60½c to ¼c and added ⅛c in a short time.

Fluctuations later in the session were slight. The close was steady with September ½c off at 62⅝c.

Oats showed poorer staying qualities than corn, and after opening generally unchanged to ⅛c up, sagged about ¼c in the first hour. Enormous arrivals, which have been the rule of late, were too great a load for the bulls. September opened unchanged to ⅛@¼c up at 35⅞c to 36@36⅛c and fell off to 35¾c.

Ribs were the most active product in the provisions pit, the September delivery being snapped up at an advance of 12½c shortly after the opening. Other commodities shared in the upturn. Opening prices for the September product were: Pork, $21.50, 7½c up; lard, $11.87½, unchanged, and ribs, $12.22½@12.30, 2½c off to 5c up.

HEAVY AT THE CLOSE

Stock Market Is Scene of an Attack on Reading.

Irregular Speculation and Big Scale of Business Mark Opening.

New York, Aug. 18.—Depression in the London market had an unfavorable effect in the local market at the opening today, prices here receding materially from yesterday's closing figures. Union Pacific and Reading scored losses of 1¾, Atchison 1⅜ and St. Paul, Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, United States Steel, Amalgamated Copper, American Smelting and Brooklyn Rapid Transit 1.

Bull operators got under the market and forced a strong rally, in which St. Paul, Reading and Union Pacific made the greatest recovery. Heavy buying of Rock Island and Wabash preferred assisted the upturn. Rock Island touched 84, an over-night rise of nearly a point, and Wabash preferred reached 40¼, a gain of 2 points. Circulation of a rumor that a prominent capitalist, a member of the Standard Oil party, was severely ill, caused wholesale selling again, and most of the stocks sold considerably lower than at the outset. Reading showed a loss of 2⅜, Union Pacific 2¼, Amalgamated Copper and Bethlehem Steel 2, United States Steel and Great Northern preferred 1¾, Canadian Pacific and St. Paul 1⅜, Louisville & Nashville 1½ and the list generally a point.

A denial of the rumored illness of the financier already alluded to caused a pause in the selling, but the market did not recover much, and some close observers were inclined to connect much of the weakness of the market to the complexion of this morning's political news. Colorado Fuel, Beet Sugar and Pittsburg Coal preferred sagged 1½, Southern Pacific 1⅝ and National Biscuit 2 points. bonds were easy.

Much of the morning losses were made up by 2 o'clock and there was a steady accumulation of American Smelting which sent it to 69½ and strengthened the other coppers. Fluctuations in the standard railroad stocks were unusually narrow.

The market closed heavy. Some effort was made to bring about a general decline again by attacking Reading, that stock being driven down to 145⅛, but the rest of the list was not affected much and rallied easily when selling stopped. In the last few minutes the market weakened once more on increased tradings.

HER SHARE.

H. Hamilton Fyfe, the English novelist, who visited Reno to see the Jeffries-Johnson fight, said at a dinner in Chicago on his way home:

"The Reno divorce colony was very interesting. There is quite a large colony in Reno of ladies and gentlemen who are engaged in divorcing their Eastern husbands or wives.

"To talk of their marital relations with these people is difficult and dangerous work. It is like the case of the lawyer who said to the pretty widow:

"'Well, Madam, as your husband left no will, you'll of course get your third.'

"She blushed and smiled under her crape-trimmed bonnet.

"'Oh, I hope to get my fourth,' she said. 'He was my third, you know.'"

HIS PIOUS REASON.

Mrs. Rose Pastor Phelps-Stokes, in an address in Chicago, said of the extravagance of the rich:

"Apologists for the rich say that their wicked extravagance—their dinners at $100 a plate, their $50,000 balls—do good to the poor. Well, that is ludicrous.

"That reminds me of a little boy in the country. The farm where he was staying adjoined an orphanage. There was an apple orchard behind the barn, and here, morning, noon and night, the little boy stuffed himself gluttonously with apples.

"'Jimmy,' said his mother one afternoon, 'aren't you eating rather too many apples?'

"'But I got to, Ma,' the boy replied.

"'Got to? Why?' his mother asked.

"'Because the orphans need the cores', he said piously."

If your "big think" just now is about clothes, you'll find "thought food" in plenty in the ads.

WELL DEFINED.

"The automobile bids fair to change history, even natural history," said W. B. Rogers, the motoring expert, at a dinner in New York.

"A school teacher the other day was examining a class about Col. Roosevelt's African trip, especially about the specimens shot.

"Thinking of the rhinoceros, the teacher said to a dull, sleepy-looking boy.

"'George, what did they find in Africa that is very large, that is very dangerous to approach, and that has a horn?'

"'An automobile, Ma'am,' said George promptly."

DIPLOMATIC GOSSIP.

An English diplomat, at a dinner in Lenox, said of Mrs. Langtry:

"When she was at the summit of her beauty and her fame—when crowds followed her in Bond street and the Row—she met, at a semi-royal dinner, an African king.

"Mrs. Langtry, dazzling in her beauty, sat beside this king. She was in good spirits, and she did her very best to amuse and please him. And she must have succeeded, for, at the dinner's close, he heaved a deep sigh and said to her:

"'Ah, Madam, if heaven had only made you black and fat you would be irresistible.'"

REMARKABLE WATER.

"O. Henry," said a magazine editor, "once held a glass of muddy water toward the light and said:

"'I'd have called this water crystal clear in my cowpunching days. The water I then drank was so bad that I had to throw it in shovelfulls against a coal screen in order to strain the lumps out of it. We started it running from the faucet with a gimlet, and we treated it with vitrol and sulphuric acid to destroy the germs. But many of the germs were too large and fierce for such treatment, and these we tied to trees and shot.'"

THOUSANDS DIE DAILY OF CHOLERA SCOURGE; ITALY STRICKEN, TOO

Russian Mortality From the Disease Is 44.5 Per Cent.

Red Cross Estimates Higher Than Official Figures Given Out.

St. Petersburg Conditions Better---Panic Spreads Disease in Italy.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 19.—One week's cholera record for Russia shows 23,944 new cases of cholera and 10,723 deaths, bringing the total number of cases in Russia this year to 112,985. Of these 50,287 have died, the mortality percentage being 44.5.

The figures are those furnished by the sanitary bureau, covering the week from Aug. 7 to Aug. 13, inclusive, and are therefore official.

"Reports from Red Cross sources indicate that the actual figures are somewhat greater, as it is a practical impossibility to register every case in an epidemic of such proportions.

Better in the Capital.

The epidemic in St. Petersburg shows a considerable decrease, only 265 cases and 138 deaths having been reported for the six days ending at noon yesterday, in comparison to the 577 cases and 233 deaths reported the previous week. The sanitary authorities of the city believe that from now on the epidemic will continue its natural decrease.

The total figures for St. Petersburg since the first cases were reported June 20 show 2,079 cases and 730 deaths. The mortality here in the capital, 35 per cent, is much less than in the Southern provinces, owing to the better hospital facilities and the experience gained in handling the first big outbreak two years ago.

In Southern Italy.

Bari, Italy, Aug. 19.—The epidemic of cholera which has broken out in Southern Italy, is steadily showing an increase in the districts affected, particularly in the town of Trani. The latest official reports last night gave twenty deaths at Trani. The epidemic is of a virulent type and the death rate is high.

Even graver danger is anticipated from the flying population of the infected districts, who may bear the germs of the disease to regions not yet involved. Trani seems almost deserted as a result of the panic, 20,000 of the residents, fully one-half of the population, having fled the town. Fully as many have escaped from the island town of Barletta.

Rome Not Infected.

Rome, Aug. 19.—Rumors that the epidemic of cholera, which has broken out in Apulia, had spread to Rome, are emphatically denied. General health conditions in Rome are better than at any time during the last ten years.

The pope today ordered the Lazaretto of Santa Marta, built inside the Vatican by Pope Leo in 1885, during the great cholera epidemic at Naples but never used because of the absence of cholera patients, made ready for any emergency.

No final decision has been taken regarding the proposed departure of King Victor for the cholera region. The king, it is said, has determined to proceed personally to the scene if conditions become more serious, in which case Queen Helena, it is feared, would insist upon accompanying him.

ANNEXATION OF KOREA IMMINENT

Officials Are Silent, But Indications Point to Early Action by Japan.

Seoul, Korea, Aug. 19.—Though nothing official can be learned confirming the reports that negotiations for the annexation of oKrea by Japan are now proceeding, many signs indicate that annexation is imminent.

The censorship has been placed on an even more rigid basis than before, and Tokio newspapers containing reports on the situation in Korea are confiscated at Fusan upon their arrival in this country. The entire country has been placed under a strong military guard and several Japanese war vessels are now patrolling the coasts of Korea.

Silent in Tokio.

Tokio, Aug. 19.—The authorities here maintain complete silence regarding the reports of the impending annexation of Korea, published in special edition of Tokio papers. They decline either to confirm or to deny the imminence of the annexation.

TWO KILLED BY AUTOMOBILES

Two Others Are Dying as a Result of New York Accident.

New York, Aug. 19.—Two fatal automobile accidents occurred in New York during the twenty-four hours past. John Iris, a boy of 16, stepped from a street car platform in front of a touring car and his skull was fractured. He died in the street.

In a collision between an automobile and a runabout in the upper part of the city, Miss Grace House was instantly killed and two men were fatally injured.

WAYMAN HAS SPOTTED TWO

Says He Knows They Have Worked for Defense in Browne Case.

Four More Veniremen Say Their Families Were Questioned.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—State's Attorney Wayman admitted today that he had identified two of the alleged investigators who he declared are working for the defense in the Lee O'Neil Browne case. The names are Adolph Cheffer and Fred L. Barker.

It is charged that they are operatives of a private detective agency which has 100 men at work for Browne, Counsel for the defense state that none of their investigators has been asked to see the families of veniremen.

Judge Kersten's pessimism as to conditions affecting the case was increased when the seventh panel of veniremen was brought into court. Despite the widespread publicity given to his declaration that talking of the case of a venireman is a felony, four members of the panel said members of their families had been questioned concerning themselves, their politics, affiliations, etc. They were dismissed.

State's Attorney Wayman did not indicate what action, if any, he contemplated with regard to Barker and Cheffer.

PAPER IN TROUBLE OVER CRIPPEN CASE

London Chronicle Must Answer Charge of Contempt of Court.

London, Aug. 19.—The court of criminal appeal, upon application by counsel representing Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, today granted a rule of nisi, calling upon the London Daily Chronicle to show cause why a writ of attachment should not be issued for contempt of court.

The alleged contempt consists of a story, printed Aug. 5, suggesting that Dr. Crippen had poisoned his wife. The article declared that Dr. Crippen had confessed or admitted to Inspector Dew who arrested him upon arrival in Canadian waters, that he had killed his wife.

Counsel for Dr. Crippen produced a cable from Dr. Crippen denying that he had made any such confession.

OTTUMWA MAYOR OUSTED BY JUDGE

Iowa Official Found Guilty of Neglect of Official Duty.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 19.—Judge K. E. Wilcocksen, at Sigourney, today ousted Thomas J. Phillips as mayor of Ottumwa, Ia. At the trial of the mayor recently it was claimed by Attorney General Cosson, who prosecuted the case, that Mayor Phillips wilfully neglected his duty in permitting resorts and gambling houses to run; also that the mayor was intoxicated on April 30. On both of these charges the court found the mayor guilty.

NEED STILL MORE TROOPS

Ten More Companies Are Demanded to Fight Forest Fires.

New Outbreaks Are Reported and Incendiarism Is Suggested.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Forest fires in Montana are spreading and ten additional companies of troops are needed to meet the situation, according to a joint telegram received by the interior department and forest service from their field agents.

Supervisor Logan of the Glacier National park and Supervisors Haines and Bunker of the Flathead and Blackfoot national forests, respectively, reported that the old fires are practically under control, but that new ones are constantly breaking out. They ask that four companies be sent to the Glacier park and three companies each to the Flathead and Blackfoot forests.

Chief Clerk Clement Tucker of the interior department, who is in the Glacier National park assisting in the fighting of fires, suggested that some of the fires were of incendiary origin.

FIND SKELETON ALL PICKED BARE

Berry Pickers Near the Palisades Drawn to It By Birds.

New York, Aug. 19. — The wheeling flight of flocks of birds drew berry-pickers yesterday to the edge of a swamp on the crest of the Palisades, where they found the skeleton of a man. In a pocket of the torn clothing was a New York newspaper dated July 8, an illegible letter postmarked Buffalo, and what appeared to be the business card of some Buffalo shipping house. Birds and muskrats had picked the bones clean.

HARAHAN GETS OUT WARRRNTS

Swindling Laid to Three Ex-Officials of Illinois Central.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—On complaint of President Harahan of the Illinois Central Railroad company warrants were sworn out today against three former officials of the road, charging the obtaining of money by means of a confidence game. The men named in the warrants are Frank B. Harriman, Charles L. Ewing and John M. Taylor.

The warrants are based on alleged information obtained by detectives employed in the so-called million-dollar car repair graft.

SIOUX CITY BIGGER; CANNON'S TOWN, TOO

Washington, Aug. 19.—The population of Sioux City, Iowa, is 47,828, an increase of 14,715, or 44.4 per cent, as compared with 33,111 in 1900.

The population of Danville, Ill., is 27,871, an increase of 11,517, or 70.4 per cent, as compared with 16,354 in 1900.

GAYNOR IN LIMELIGHT

He Is Most Prominently Mentioned to Run for Governor.

Democratic Committee of New York May Pick Saratoga.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 19.—The Democratic state committee will meet at the Grand Union hotel tonight to fix a time and select a place for holding the Democratic state convention. The indications are that the convention will be held in Saratoga following the adjournment of the Republican state convention, which meets on Sept. 27, but Rochester and Syracuse representatives are here urging the claims of their respective cities. Both State Chairman John A. Dix and Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, are believed to favor Saratoga.

The Rochester members of the state committee brought with them the gubernatorial boom of Congressman James S. Havens.

Gaynor Most Mentioned.

While the name of Mayor Gaynor was most frequently discussed by the members of the committee today as a possible candidate for governor, there were several others mentioned. They included Thomas M. Osborne of Auburn, chairman of the Democratic league, Former State Comptroller Martin H. Glynn of Albany, Congressman William Sulzer of New York, Edward M. Shepard of Brooklyn, Judge Martin J. Keogh of Westchester, and Ex-Judge D. Cady Herrick of Albany.

TEN BITTEN BY BULL TERRIER

New York Police Are Looking for Dog That Ran Wild.

New York, Aug. 19.—A squad of policemen is searching Upper New York today for a white bull terrier which suddenly went wild last night and after biting ten persons, dodged a shower of bullets and escaped his pursuers. Besides the ten persons injured by the dog, a 9-year-old boy is in the hospital with a serious bullet wound. He was brought down by one of the hundreds of bullets fired at the infuriated animal.

TEDDY IS OUT OF THE FIGHT

He Does Not Feel Encouraged to Enter the New York Campaign.

Friends Believe He May Run for President in 1912.

New York, Aug. 19.—Col. Roosevelt made it clear today to his friends that reports to the effect that he did not intend to take any part in the coming state campaign were well based. As the colonel put it, he did not think he had been encouraged to take an active interest by the action of the state committee in turning down his name for temporary chairman of the convention.

His close friends are authority for the statement today that Col. Roosevelt has never indicated by the slightest word what his intentions are with regard to 1912. The colonel, however, has always said that he reserves the right to engage in any situation whenever he feels that his policies demand it.

Takes Defeat Hard.

From an unquestioned source, it is known that he has taken deeply to heart what he considers to be the hostility of men close to the administration and he regards the selection of Vice President Sherman for the temporary chairmanship of the Republican state convention as the result of this attitude.

Those close to the ex-president believe he will do everything in his power to avert a clash with the administration during the fall campaign. It is their opinion that if he should decide to fight, he prefers to postpone the struggle until the 1912 campaign.

As to 1912.

Should such an issue present itself then it is the firm belief of the colonel's intimate associates that he will be in the fight to the end; that he will stake his own future on the outcome, and again become a candidate for the presidency. It is believed, however, that Col. Roosevelt regards such a situation as remote and is not to receive serious attention at the present time.

Consternation at Beverly.

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 19.—Reports from Oyster Bay purporting to indicate that Col. Roosevelt believed his defeat at the hands of the New York state Republican committee was the result of an agreement between President Taft and some of the "old guard" leaders in the state, were received in Beverly with little short of consternation. As the reports were not credited to any responsible person, no attention was officially paid to them.

So far as the statement that there was an agreement to defeat Col. Roosevelt to which President Taft was a party is concerned, there is said to be no truth in it.

DRIVER IN FATAL AUTO RIDE DIES

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 19.—W. F. Staats of Rensselaer, the owner and driver of a car that went over a forty-foot embankment near Camden last night, killing Mrs. D. W. Calkins, also of Rensselaer, died today of his injuries. The other members of the party are not seriously hurt.

GOPHER GIVEN WARM WELCOME WHEN SHE STEAMS INTO HARBOR

Whistles of All Craft in Port Salute Returning Gunboat.

Duluth Naval Militia Boys Return From Victorious Cruise.

Mayor Cullum Sends Them Warm Greeting By Wireless Telegraph.

The Gopher with her victorious crew on board steamed through the canal piers shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon and was welcomed by a shrieking chorus from the whistles of the big vessels in the harbor and the factories along the water's edge. Cheers from a crowd on the canal piers and salutations from the vessels and docks assured the militia boys of the enthusiasm with which their home city welcomed them.

After getting the boat to her anchorage, their luggage packed up and everything on board in seamanlike condition the divisions are due to come ashore and parade to the Armory, where they were to disband, with the summer's cruise a thing of the past.

Commander Eaton brought with him a wireless message of congratulation from Mayor Cullum received while the boat was about thirty miles from the canal piers. It is as follows:

"Commander Guy A. Eaton, United States Ship Gopher—The exploits of your valiant ship and crew have been heralded through this community to such anextent that, as my official act, I am glad to welcome you to your home, and to the plaudits of your numerous friends. Add my own hearty congratulations. You have added greatly to the fame of Duluth and to the reputation of your valiant crew. While there may be no organized public welcome, I am quite certain that there will be a spontaneous rejoicing because of your splendid record.

"Accept my personal regard for yourself and the boys that are with you. Yours very truly,

"M. B. CULLUM."

Immediately upon the receipt of the message Commander Eaton sent the following response:

"In behalf of the officers and men of the U. S. S. Gopher I desire to thank you for your kind expression of greetings contained in your wireless message. Whether in the state or in the federal service we will do our best to assist in upholding the traditions of the United States navy.

"GUY A. EATON,
"Commanding, M. N. R."

The Gopher's record for the summer's cruise includes besides the words of praise bestowed upon her by Rear Ad-

MAY RUN ON THE POPULIST TICKET

A. C. SHALLENBERGER,
Governor of Nebraska, Who Apparently Was Defeated in the Primaries by Mayor Dahlman of Omaha.

MAY RUN AS POPULIST

Shallenberger Has Two Chances in Race for Governor.

Dahlman Seems to Be Winner in Primaries---Race Is Close.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 19.—Although Governor Shallenberger has apparently been defeated by Mayor Dahlman for the Democratic nomination, he may still go on the ticket as the Populist nominee. Governor Shallenberger was the only candidate for the gubernatorial nomination in the Populist primaries. What action he will take in the matter has not been announced.

The official count probably will be needed to settle the contest in the Sixth Nebraska district for the congressional nomination on the Democratic ticket. Available returns give Judge Dean, formerly of the state supreme court, 1,006 and W. R. Taylor, 1,000.

The result in the Fourth district is still in doubt, as concerns the Democratic nomination, with the chances seemingly in favor of Benjamin F. Good of Wahoo.

Returns in Districts.

From returns so far received it seems certain that the nominations for the state have been made as follows:

First district, W. Hayward, Republican; John A. McGuire, Democrat.

Second district, A. L. Sutton, Republican, and C. O. Lobeck, Democrat.

Third district, John F. Boyd, Republican, and James P. Latta, Democrat.

Fourth district, Charles H. Sloan, Republican, and B. F. Good, Democrat.

Fifth district, W. G. Norris, Republican; R. D. Sutherland, Democrat.

Sixth district, M. P. Kinkaid, Republican; W. J. Taylor, Democrat, or J. R. Dean, Democrat.

PATTEN TAKES TO EDUCATION, NOW

Chicago Market Operator Says That Is Taking All His Attention.

New York, Aug. 19.—James A. Patten, the Chicago grain and cotton operator, disdaining to talk of financial conditions, said today that he was chiefly interested in university matters in Chicago and that the work was taking up most of his time. Mr. Patten was a passenger on the steamer Adriatic, in today from Europe. He confirmed the wireless report that he had sold his seat on the stock exchange.

"Why, there isn't anything to make a fuss about in regard to the sale," said Mr. Patten. "I simply gave word before leaving this country that if the bid for the seat should go to $70,000, it should be sold. Well, when the bid reached that amount, the seat was sold.

"I can't do a thing without it being put in the newspapers," he complained.

CANADA'S HOPE IN ANNEXATION

Declaration Is Made By Bourassa in Speech at Antigonish.

Antigonish, N. S., Aug. 19.—Annexation of Canada to the United States by Canada was advocated today in an address by Henri Bourassa, M. P., the Nationalist leader of Quebec, before the Summer School of Science of St. Francis Xavier college.

The speaker dwelt at length with the four possible destinies of Canada, namely. Remaining in the position in which she is at present, which he regarded as very improbable; imperial federation, which would be an unwieldy and unworkable condition; annexation to the United States, and independence.

Annexation Best Plan.

"Imperial federation means an imperial council with a preponderant British influence," said Mr. Bourassa. "Conditions today in Canada make for annexation rather than for imperial federation. The penetrative influence of trade by rail and coast lines, the mental propensity of the two peoples living under the same or similar conditions, industrial and social, the constant inter-communication of Canadians and Americans, are all powerful factors making for annexation."

Mandan Building Boom.

Mandan, N. D., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Building operations in Mandan seemingly remain unaffected by reason of the crop conditions, as a review of the situation at present shows that the total amount of work in progress is in the neighborhood of $200,000, and more than that amount will be expended between now and the close of the building season. There are several large, new business blocks in course of construction, as well as a new schoolhouse, and the combined cost of these is approximately $125,000. In the residence district many new dwellings with a total cost of $75,000 are now being erected.

SUPERIOR

VIADUCT UNSAFE.

Traction Company Says It Will Not Carry Big Cars.

The Twenty-first street viaduct is in such bad shape that it will not bear the weight of double truck cars according to General Manager Warren of the street car company, and the more luxurious cars cannot be placed on the Billings Park line until it is strengthened. The findings of the street car engineers and of City Engineer Banks differ materially in this respect, but the street car men are convinced that the bridge would be dangerous under the heavier traffic and will not risk it. Mr. Warren said yesterday that they were ready to put on the big cars as soon as the bridge was made safe.

NEW FOOTBALL COACH.

Former Albion Star Will Teach the Blainites Gridiron Knowledge.

Prof. McCale, a new instructor at Superior new high school will coach the Superior football team this fall. Mr. McCale was captain of the football basket ball and baseball teams at Albion college during his school days, and is well fitted for the position. A strong team is looked for with Clarke Bengston, Branca, Bradley, Aubin and others from last year's squad as a nucleus for the eleven. [illegible] and on with Ashland, Chippewa Falls, Eau Claire, Hayward and Twin City teams and indications point to a full schedule.

TOO MANY OUT.

Voting Machines Do Not Have Enough Space for All Candidates.

City Clerk Nordquist and his assistants had a difficult problem to deal with yesterday when they discovered that there were forty-three candidates out for offices to be voted on at the primaries tomorrow and only forty spaces in the voting machine in the Republican column. It has been decided that the names of three of the candidates will be placed in the next column, and as the names are changed in order in each precinct it is not thought that this will prejudice any one.

SCHOMMER HELD TO SUPERIOR COURT.

At the preliminary hearing in the case against Nick Schommer, charged with shooting his sweetheart, Effie Johnson last spring, held this morning in the municipal court, practically no defense was made by George C. Cooper, attorney for the accused man, and the prisoner was bound over to the superior court. He will probably be tried during the September term of court. The bail of $25,000 was reduced to $5,000.

Miss Johnson's condition is still serious, although there is little doubt but that she will recover. She was too ill, however, to appear in court this morning, and the hearing proceeded without her presence, it being deemed not necessary to have her in court.

Fairchild Speaks Tonight.

Senator Edward Fairchild, Republican candidate for governor arrived in Superior toay and will deliver an address in Sons of Norway hall this evening. He will leave tomorrow for an automobile stump tour through the county speaking at Gordon, Nebagamon, Solon Springs and other points.

May Stop Work on Dock.

An unconfirmed rumor has been prevalent for some time that the Great Northern would stop work on the new steel ore dock at Allouez as soon as the foundations are in such shape that they will not be damaged by storms. It will be several weeks yet before this stage in the work is reached.

Inspecting New Roads.

The roads and bridges committee of the county board spent yesterday going over the new "steel plant" road under the guidance of Road Commissioner Morriset. Today the committee will go to Brule and out on the Spalding avenue road.

MUST WIDEN KELSEY ROADS

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Unless the contractors widen the roads adjacent to the Kelsey ditch in St. Louis county, as provided in the plans and specifications, payment will be withheld.

This announcement was made by Governor Eberhart on his return from the north this morning. The plan specifies that the roadway shall be from 16 to 18 feet wide. At many points, the governor said, the road was not that wide. State Drainage Engineer Ralph will see that the road is corrected.

"The more I see of the north," Governor Eberhart said, "the more I am impressed of its value. The Duluth & Iron Range railroad has improved a body of land adjacent to its tracks and is demonstrating what may be done in truck gardening. I wish that we had more experimental farms to show just what that soil will yield."

Governor Eberhart visited a number of the state mines and said there are fully 200,000,000 tons of iron ore in sight, which at a royalty of 25 cents a ton will yield $50,000,000 for the state school fund.

YOUNG MINER IS BURIED IN SPRUCE

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A young Austrian miner, only three months married, was buried by a cave-in about noon today at the No. 2 Spruce shaft. Twenty-five men are at work digging him out. His name cannot be learned at this time.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

Jenswold of Duluth Again Mentioned for Governorship—H. W. Cheadle May Run for Senate in Fifty-first—Congressman Miller a Favorite Target—Bede Turned Down—Koochiching Socialists Active—Bouquet for Frank A. Day.

John Jenswold Boomed For Governor.

That John Jenswold, Jr., will some day be governor of Minnesota is a sentiment that has been spoken and written many times this year and before. When it first began to seem possible that John Lind might refuse to make the run for which he was drafted by the Democratic state convention, Mr. Jenswold's name was mentioned as that of a man eminently fitted to take his place at the head of the Democratic ticket. In all parts of the state seconds were voiced and printed. The Little Falls Herald, discussing the Democratic situation, says:

We have in this state a local Cannonism and Aldrichism. The forces of reaction are entirely in control of the Republican state administration. Progressive Republicans, such as Lindbergh, receive no comfort or aid from an administration committed to standpattism. The corporate interests look forward to November and see in a victory for the Republican administration the foreclosure of their mortgage on the state.

With all this in mind, and when John Lind realizes the sort of fight that was made on him, if it does not stir his Viking blood and send him forth to battle, we are much mistaken.

And if he does decline, which we will not believe till the state committee is made aware of such declination, the state committee would not go far wrong in selecting John Jenswold. He is from Duluth, where it takes a man of strong fiber to stand up against the steel trust. But John Jenswold has been for years opposed to the methods and ways of the iron range magnates, and is recognized by the bar and the people of Duluth as being, like the chevalier of old, above fear and above reproach. Whether this year or some other, he is a coming man.

So long as there remains a chance that John Lind will consent to accept the honor tendered him and the task imposed upon him, so long will Mr. Jenswold's friends remain Lind men; but should Mr. Lind eventually block the party's desire, then they can be expected to unite in support of Mr. Jenswold for the honor, confident that no Democrat in Minnesota besides John Lind can make a better or more successful campaign than can the Duluthian.

Cheadle Urged to Run for the Senate.

H. W. Cheadle, city clerk of Duluth, is being urged to become a candidate for the senate in the Fifty-first district. He is one of the best known and politically strongest men in the city and stands high in the esteem of his fellow citizens. Mr. Cheadle has been a resident of Duluth for about thirty years and has proved an efficient public servant in the office of city clerk, a position which has given him keen insight into parliamentary procedure and a thorough acquaintance with public affairs.

Mr. Cheadle has been waited on by a delegation of friends who presented the situation to him and urgently requested that he enter the race as a candidate for the Democratic nomination. He declined to decide the question off hand but agreed to give it serious consideration. It is believed that he will make known his decision in a few days.

If Mr. Cheadle goes into the contest, a lively fight may be looked for. Senator Laybourn has been a member of the legislature for years and would be expected to put up a strong fight against the Democratic nominee.

Congressman Miller continues to be a favorite subject for editorial roasts, the Little Falls Herald remarking that it is amusing to see him referred to as "a real insurgent." "Just about as amusing as the left-handed backaction support Insurgent Lindbergh is getting from the local Republican organ," adds the Little Falls paper. The same paper avers that progressive Republicans are "a durn sight closer to being Democrats than they are to being regular Republicans."

Miller Handed Roasts By Editors.

The Biwabik Times has this to say of the Eighth district representative:

Admittedly the Eighth congressional district has a very dressy representative. Of all the congressmen from Minesota, he can handle the swallow-tail with the least effort, outdoing even Frank Nye, brother of Bill's, Minneapolis.

Smooth, care-free, urbane, sanguine and sassy, he has been able to make a slight dent on the armor of precedent. Coming home, he finds that he, smooth, urbane, swallow-tailed, society-crazy, has no opposition for renomination.

Casting back his memory, it occurred to him that pledges amount to little. Did he not travel about the district two years ago and promise and pledge that he would not vote for Cannon? And did not the people forget it so far that no one dared make the campaign against him. In view of this, it would be foolish to remember pledges made to others.

So thinking, so reasoning and so boasting, our congressman hiked off to Oklahoma, bearing with him all broken promises and assured of reelection. But this newspaper cannot and will not support him for congress or any other position. We forgave and forgot his traitorous vote for Cannon, but because of other things decidedly recent, there is no power on earth that can compel us to say one good word for our congressman, Clarence B. Miller.

As an editorial afterthought, the Times remarks that Mr. Miller will learn some day that "it pays to keep his word, even if he should make a powerful enemy or two by so doing."

The Hibbing Tribune, under the caption "The way weak, dishonest men do it," says:

Clarence Miller handled the Hibbing postoffice appointment just like he did the speakership matter—just like any weak, dishonest man handles anything of importance.

The Eighth district congressman fervidly promised when runing for office to "down Joe Cannon," made a great pretense of insurgency by the tending insurgent meetings and voted for Cannon when the time came to make his vote count. Excusing himself afterwards by saying he "had to."

So with the Hibbing postoffice. Miller promised the appointment, later grew shifty and lied about it and finally gave it a man who was an avowed Bede supporter two years ago. This time, however, Mr. Miller is not so frank. He doesn't say he "had to."

Men often have to change their minds in this world. Honest men, when they do, are straightforward, open, frank about it. Men like Miller, being uncertain in their minds, are weak, tricky, cowardly.

The Tribune also notes that "the spontaneous enthusiasm of the News Tribune in its support of Congressman Miller is something marvelous. About once in ten days the News Tribune takes off its coat, spits on its hands and desperately declares that Mr. Miller is a 'real insurgent.'"

Socialists Of Koochiching Fight In Courts.

Following a county convention of the Socialists of Koochiching county at Big Falls, Monday, members of that party will make a fight in the courts to compel County Auditor L. H. Slocum to accept the filings of the men selected to run for office. He has declined to do so on the ground that the Public Ownership, or Socialist party is not a political party in Koochiching county, as defined by law.

A candidate for the legislature and an almost complete county ticket were placed before the voters by the county convention. The man selected to make the legislative race is Charles E. Taylor of Big Falls, son of Carl Taylor of Aitkin, who has filed as a candidate for the Republican nomination for congressman from the Eighth district. The Socialists are quite strong in Koochiching and are hopeful of polling a large vote. The county ticket selected at the convention follows:

Auditor—Robert A. Roberts, International Falls.
Treasurer—Walter Williams, Littlefork.
Register of deeds—Oscar Ness, Big Falls.
Sheriff—T. H. Kinskella, International Falls.
Attorney—A. A. Tone, Northome.
Judge of probate—C. N. Wirth, International Falls.
Superintendent of schools—C. A. Miller, Littlefork.
Coroner—Dr. Graber, Big Falls.
Commissioners—First district, J. A. Dade, Littlefork; Third, M. A. Ulvedahl, Big Falls; Fifth, G. N. Baker, Mizpah.

Appreciation of Frank A. Day.

When the Republican press of the state turned its guns on Ed Smith, at the time of that gentleman's selection by Governor Eberhart to run the Republican campaign, the machine cogs who feared the result of all this criticism devoted their editorial columns to exceedingly unfriendly comment on the career of Frank A. Day, chairman of the Democratic state central committee. Referring to this feature of the affair as "a desperate endeavor to break the effect of Ed Smith's appointment," the St. Cloud Times says:

What's the matter with Frank Day? He has been chairman for six or eight years, and no one has accused him of crooked methods; he was private secretary to Governor Johnson for more than five years and no one ever said that the corporations or interests had a tool or instrument in Frank; he was in a position to influence legislation, yet it was always in the interests of the people. The direct opposite is charged against Ed Smith by some of the most upright men in the Republican party—not alone by Democrats.

Frank A. Day has been chairman during three successful campaigns, so far as the governship was concerned, and is entitled to credit therefor, even though he managed the canvass of an invincible candidate. For, we do believe that John A. Johnson would have been elected without committee; without campaign fund; without other assistance than his own grand personality and the matchless charm of his voice and presence.

That Mr. Day is deserving of far more credit than has ever been given him for the successes that have marked his career is becoming a general belief. Politicians always have known that the general public did not give him his fair measure of credit for good things accomplished, but now the public is coming to know what the politicians have known.

Bede Falls to Land The Optionists.

J. Adam Bede has been turned down by the county optionists of the Thirty-second legislative district. Committeemen representing the three counties of the district met at Hinckley yesterday to select the Republican candidate who is to have the indorsement and support of the optionists at the primaries. The former congressman is a candidate for the house. He had declared for county option, but possibly his reputation as a joker made the optionists a bit suspicious of the declaration. At any rate, they indorsed Henry Rines of Mora, Kanabec county, and H. P. Webb of Pine City, Pine county, for renomination. Senator V. L. Johnson of Chisago county also received the O. K of the optionists.

Mr. Webb, a resident of Bede's county, declared for county option some time ago. Mr. Bede followed suit. It is said the optionists based their action in turning down Bede on the ground that he has recently stirred up trouble by declaring against Clapp and therefore would be less effective as a legislator than Webb.

Rev. E. C. Clemans of Duluth, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league for the Eighth congressional district, was at the meeting.

DIES FROM HIS WOUNDS

Bullet Through Abdomen Finally Proves Fatal to John Hendrickson.

Serafino Petros Will Now Be Arraigned on Murder Charge.

John Hendrickson, the marine fireman, who was shot through the abdomen on board the steamer James Corrigan at midnight, July 29, by Serafino Petros, a wheelsman, died early this morning at St. Mary's hospital.

He has been hovering between life and death for the last week. Petros is now confined in the county jail awaiting the action of the next grand jury for assault in the first degree. The charge will now be changed to murder in the first degree. The shooting occurred following a quarrel between the two men which started while they were coming aboard the steamer from shore in a small boat. Petros claimed that Hendrickson and a companion threw him overboard when he refused to row and called him names which made his blood boil. When he reached the gangplank he renewed the battle with Hendrickson's companion. While they were fighting Petros asserted that Hendrickson hit him over the head with a bottle of whisky. Other members of the crew interfered at that time, separating the combatants.

At the police station the next day the men who ended the fight stated that Petros and Hendrickson shook hands and agreed to forget their differences. Looking for no further trouble they allege that the firemen went to their bunk and Petros to his room at the other end of the vessel. According to Petros' own statement he took the revolver from the drawer and went back to the firemen's bunkhouse. There he kicked in the lower panel. He claims that when he looked in he saw Hendrickson standing there with a big chunk of iron in his hand, whereupon he put the revolver through the hole he had made and fired, striking the dead man in the abdomen. The injury was dressed at the time by Dr. Barney and it was thought at first that he would recover. Hendrickson's statement of the shooting was secured from him at the hospital by Assistant County Attorney Greene a week ago, when the wounded man took a decided turn for the worse.

CLOQUET BOASTS BRIDE AGED 15

Cloquet, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss May La Londe of this city and Jack Cater of Chicago were married here at the Catholic church yesterday by Father Crozier. The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Joseph Bechard and was born in Cloquet. Mr. Cater has been making Cloquet as traveling salesman for some time, but did not meet his bride until about three weeks ago and the marriage is a great surprise to his friends, as well as to the younger set of girls of the city with whom Mrs. Cater was very popular. She is probably the youngest bride ever married from the Catholic church here, being just past 15 years. The bride's father, Joseph Bechard, gave her in marriage and James Marshall attended the groom. Miss Eva Deslett acted as bridesmaid and Thomas Clark best man. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home, the couple leaving on the noon train for Duluth and the Twin Cities on their honeymoon.

Miss Albena Boyer and Evland Holmes were married at the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart yesterday morning at 9 o'clock, Rev. Father Crozier officiating. The bridesmaids were Miss Laura Marcott and Stella Frigon, and the groom's attendants, John Giguere of Cloquet and Andrew Peltier of Bovey. A wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, Mr and Mrs. A. J. Boyer, followed the ceremony at the church.

DUKE OF SUTHERLAND TO VISIT WEST CANADA.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 19.—It is stated on good authority that the duke of Sutherland, the largest land owner in Great Britain, will visit his estate in Western Canada.

The statement was made by W. B. Yeats, who is a factor for the present duke. He is in Canada on his way to Alberta and British Columbia to arrange for the settlement of the first 100 families of Scottish farmers who are leaving the Sutherlandshire estates in Scotland to take up farms on the extensive properties acquired by the duke in Western Canada.

The duke has purchased 250,000 acres in the two provinces, about half being fruit growing and the other half splendid wheat raising soil.

OLD MYSTERY OF THE SEA SOLVED

Philadelphia, Aug. 19. — A seven years' mystery of the sea may be solved through a mishap to the German steamship Pallanza, which struck a whale at sea, nearly cutting the mammal in two and disclosing a harpoon believed to have been used by the little whaler James T. Duncan, which was lost in 1903. The Duncan sailed from Halifax with a crew of seven men in the spring of that year and has not since been heard of.

Capt. Fendt of the Pallanza, which has arrived here from Hamburg, reports that he ran into the whale Aug. 11. The monster was firmly impaled on the prow of the steamer, and died after a terrific struggle. Nine members of the crew were let down to chop away the carcass, and one of the sailors found the harpoon imbedded in the whale.

Upon the end of the harpoon was an iron band stamped "J. T. D., 1902." Capt. Fendt keeps a close record of wrecks, and he came to the conclusion that the whale may have been responsible for the loss of the Duncan.

MAY EXHUME THE GIRL'S BODY

Abilene, Kan., Aug. 19.—Since the development of the theory that chloroform may not have caused the end of Miss Bertha Benignus, found dead in her bed here last Sunday, an autopsy on the girl's body to determine the cause of death has become a possibility. The exhumation of the body may be ordered within a day or two by Coroner J. C. Entz.

The empty chloroform bottle found on the dresser near the girl's bed, it developed later, had been found uncorked and dry in a box of the girl's effects and placed there by the undertaker.

The coroner's jury reconvened today following the announcement that its findings had developed nothing which might be used as a clew in the trace of the murderer.

CHURCHILL MAY BE SHIPPING PORT

Halifax, Aug. 19.—Having landed a party of engineers and surveyors at Port Churchill, in Hudson straits, where they are making a survey for the purpose of constructing the Hudson Bay railway, the Canadian government steamer Stanley has returned from her trip to Northern waters. She sailed on July 2, from this port. From the reports of those on board the Stanley, unless the surveying party can find a channel through the shoal water at Port Nelson, which had been considered as the likely terminal of the railway, Churchill will be seleted as the shipping port.

DOCTOR KILLED BY HIS PATIENT

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 19.—Dr. William Empzy of Vars, a village twelve miles from Ottawa, was fatally shot yesterday by Alfred Biondin, a patient. Before he died, Dr. Empzy said that Biondin had fired at him deliberately. Biondin declared the shooting was accidental. The case is a puzzle to local authorities. The men were close friends and Biondin was a man of good habits. The shooting occurred on the stairway in Biondin's house, whither the doctor had been called to see Biondin.

FISH SPAWN FOR RIVER

Forty Cans of Fry Deposited By Fish and Game Commission.

Efforts are being made to restock the St. Louis river with fish, which are said to be rapidly disappearing. This week the Minnesota Fish and Game commission sent forty cans containing millions of fish fry to be deposited in this river at Fond du Lac.

A. H. Merriman, who has been interested in this work for some time, will make a full report of what has been done along this line in the past three months, at the regular weekly meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club this evening.

Aout three months ago it was reported that the fish and game commission was removing fish spawn from the river at Fond du Lac. The matter was taken up by prominent West Duluth men, and a petition circulated throughout the city, requesting the commission to stop taking spawn from the river. When this petition was presented to the local wardens, they immediately gave up the work, and replaced the fish fry they had removed.

They state, after considerable investigation has been made, that the fish in the St. Louis river are rapidly diminishing in number because of the sewage that is carried into the river. It will take many years to replace the spawn that has been taken out annually by the commission, say members of this commission, but hereafter they will remove no more, but will give some attention to replacing fresh spawn from other streams.

West Duluth men did not hear from the commission after forwarding the petition, and it was believed that the request for the fish fry would not be granted. Mr. Merriman then wrote a letter asking that the petition be considered. In reply to this he received a letter this morning stating that the forty cans with millions of spawn had been sent there during the week. Investigation showed that the cans had arrived safely, and their contents dumped into the river by residents of Fond du Lac.

The fact that the fisn are disappearing from the river is causing West Duluthians and others in this locality considerable disappointment, and they believe that every effort should be made to maintain a greater production.

In a personal injury action filed in district court this morning, Mike Vukovich asks $5,000 from the Zenith Furnace company for injuries alleged to have been sustained when he was caught between a pile of posts and an engine. MARINE

RECORD YEAR ON THE LAKES

Washington, Aug. 19.—Commercial movements on the Great Lakes during June last and also during the six months ending with June as measured by the volume of shipments between domestic lake ports, show large gains over similar figures for corresponding periods in previous years, including 1907, which was a most favorable year in the history of lake commerce. According to figures prepared by the bureau of statistics, the total June shipments amounted to 13,603,516 gross tons, exceeding those of June, 1907, by 16 per cent.

The large gain is attributed to the heavier traffic in iron ore from the Lake Superior producing region, the monthly total for the first time having passed the 7,000,000-ton mark.

CREWS OF TWO BOATS EXAMINED

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The hearing of the members of the crews of the steamers Frank H. Goodyear and James B. Wood, the former of which was sunk in collision by the latter in the early morning of May 23 last, eighteen being drowned, opened here yesterday morning before Local Inspector Stewart in his office in the customs building. Besides Mr. Stewart, there were present Harvey L. Brown of Detroit, and F. L. Leckie of Cleveland, marine lawyers; Capt. Thomas D. Gibson, Belleveue, Ohio, master of the James B. Wood; Capt. Hemingway, master of the Frank H. Goodyear; Donald McLachlan of Detroit, first-class pilot on the Wood; William Shunk, first-assistant engineer on the Wood, and several others.

Shunk was the first man examined and his story was that on the morning of May 23 he took charge of the engines shortly after midnight. The weather was foggy, and the Wood was going about ten miles an hour. More than a quarter of an hour before the collision occurred, he got the signals to check down, and four minutes before the boats came together he stopped the engines.

Capt. Gibson told of all that happened preceding the crash and gave it that in his opinion even if both boats had reversed their engines as soon as coming into view of each other, the collision might have occurred, and had he alone reversed, the effect would have been to strike the Goodyear amidships rather than about forty feet aft of the stern.

Donald McLachlan had been examined up to the point where the boats got into sight of each other, when adjournment was made for lunch. It is not thought that anything sensational will develop. In any event, Inspector Stewart will not make known his finding in less than a week.

PORT ARTHUR YACHT IN HARBOR.

The Sigma was formerly owned at Manistee, Mich., and is a trim boat, about half the size of the T. F. Cole yacht.

Mr. Whalen is in the contracting business at Port Arthur, and came on a pleasure trip

DREDGING COMPANY REDUCES ITS BID.

Satisfied that the bids received yesterday by the local United States engineer's office were unreasonably high, the bids were thrown out, the office refusing to accept any of them as originally presented.

Late yesterday the officials of the Northern Dredge company, the concern with the lowest bid, agreed to reduce its bid of 22¼ cents to 20 cents. Upon this agreement, the contract for the dredging at Portage Lake canal was awarded to the Northern Dredge company.

At the government engineer's office today it was stated that the Northern Dredge company's equipment would leave for Portage Lake tomorrow, and that work there would begin in the next few days.

LUMBER MOVEMENT HAS FALLEN OFF.

S. J. Cousins, general manager of the Virginia & Rainy Lake Lumber company, who was down from Virginia yesterday, stated that the business of the company had shown a slight falling off of late, and at the present time the market for lumber was rather inclined to be dull, with little lumber moving from the Head of the Lakes.

The Virginia & Rainy Lake company does a large car business in lumber, and Mr. Cousins stated yesterday that the shipments of the company had shown a falling off within the last two weeks.

Lake shipments of lumber are about holding their own, with only a light demand for tonnage. As stated yesterday by the general manager of the Hines' interest in this part of the country, there is more than an average amount of lumber at the Head of the Lakes, with but a light lumber movement at the present time, owing to the condition of the market and general business.

Practical Temperance

Saving Men By Curing Them of the Drink Habit With the Neal Three Day Cure.

A mother who had spent years of sorrow becaunse of her boy drinking in writing to Senator Bruce, Atlantic, Iowa, said:

"I am so glad and happy that I want to tell everybody that I am not ashamed that my son went to the Neal Institute. It is too honorable cause to be ashamed of. Rather pat Dr. Neal on the back and say, God bless you for having studied the liquor habit and originated a treatment that has a good cause at heart, for it calls for patience and constant thought and responsibility and his work with fallen men will do more for the cause of practical temperance than all else, for it certainly removes the appetite that leads men to drink.
(Signed) "_____"

The Neal is an internal treatment, without hypodermic injections, that cures the drink habit in three days at the institute or in the home.

The purse and checks were found on Blake when he was arrested.

BUILDING TIEUP IN WINNIPEG

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 19.—The ultimatum of the builders' exchange to the bricklayers and masons expired today, and as there were no men at work for the Lyall-Mitchell, a lockout of all union men went into force. About 500 men are directly affected and the lockout will practically tie up all building in the city.

Thirteen union bricklayers employed by the Lyall-Mitchell company struck, and the union placed the firm on the unfair list because the firm of Peter Lyall & Sons of Montreal recently declared an open shop. The union claims the firm of Lyall-Mitchell is controlled by Peter Lyall & Sons.

POTATOES ARE CHEAPER

Arrival of Minnesota Tubers Causes Price to Drop.

Eggs Higher Owing to Storage Demand---Pumpkins on Market.

The reduction in potato prices and the advance in eggs were the chief features of the market this week. New potatoes sold down to $1.00@1.10 from last week's range of $1.15@1.50. For about two weeks it was almost impossible to get potatoes. The shipments from the South were at an end and the new crop in Minnesota was not ready for the market. A few local potatoes came to the market this week. Toward the close of the week the receipts increased and were of sufficient volume to cause receivers to make concessions.

The reductions in prices had the desired effect. Retailers took hold more freely and there seemed to be an improvement in the demand. The quality of the new potatoes is excellent. The run of receipts is smaller in size, so far as the individual potato is concerned, than the first potatoes received last year. Receivers expect potatoes to be slightly smaller than last year on account of the dry weather. This difference in size does not indicate any deterioration in quality. In fact, the medium sized potatoes generally are of better quality than the big ones.

Sweet potatoes were unchanged in price. Virginia is shipping the delectable root to this market. Receivers are holding supplies at $2.50 a bushel. The receipts are small but the demand is sufficient to move supplies freely.

Eggs advanced from 19 cents a dozen to 20 cents, and from 20 cents to 21 cents in cartons. The supply is smaller and the demand continues heavy. There has been large buying lately in the egg market by storage interests, which has helped to bring the supply and the demand nearer together. Eggs are easily moved and receivers are not under the necessity of making concessions to get stock off their hands. The quality of arrivals has improved considerably lately and this fact is one of the reasons for the activity of the storage interests.

The pumpkin came to town a few days ago. Just now prices are high as the pumpkin is imported from the far South. The quality is said to be moderately good. The pumpkin is generally the first harbinger of the fall season. Hubbard squash is a comparatively new arrival although more familiar than the pumpkin.

The cheese market was slightly weaker this week. Receipts held up and the demand experienced a slight decrease. Shadings in prices were not confined to any description, both American and Swiss makes being affected. Fancy full cream lost ½c from 17c and block Swiss declined 1c from 21c. Other makes were unchanged in price although the undertone to the market was not pronounced for its strength.

The butter market was firm and prices were unchanged. There was no feature of interest in the butter market. The demand and the supply remained about the same. The quality of receipts was good. The dairy pack has been holding better than receivers expected earlier in the summer.

Crops that usually begin to come into the market about this time of the year were severely affected by the drouth. For this reason prices on some green stuff and vegetables are higher than usual. The recent flurry in potato prices was caused principally by the drouth. A potato famine for a few days was narrowly averted by a few shipments from the East and small supplies in the hands of receivers.

Watermelons are coming from Missouri and Southern Iowa. The quality is good as there was plenty of rain in that territory while the melons were maturing and in their early stage. Cantaloupes are finding a large sale. Gem melons are said to be popular with the consumer. Many varieties of California fruit are finding a large sale. Popular fruits include yellow plums, red and blue plums, peaches, Bartlett pears and grapes, both seedless and otherwise. New apples are meeting with favor and California lemons are having a good sale although not in such large quantities as in midsummer when the prices of lemons soared to a holiday scale and the market was almost barren of offerings.

Blueberries are about the only berry in the market. Sweet corn prospects are not especially favorable. Reports come from Wisconsin that the pack will be greatly curtailed. Dried fruits are held at high prices on account of the unprecedented demand this summer.

ITCHED ALL SUMMER

Skin Troubles Cause Great Aggravation in Hot Weather—Unnecessary If Poslam Is Used.

Frequently a skin trouble appearing in the spring and allowed to remain unchecked will afford cause for intense itching all summer long. When poslam, the new skin remedy, is first applied all itching is stopped, inflammation is allayed, the burning skin is cooled and comforted.

For the prompt relief and cure of the many forms of eczema, acne, tetter, barbers' itch and all other skin troubles, poslam has proved the most efficient healing agent yet evolved. In the lesser affections, such as pimples, red noses, complexion blemishes, rash, scalp trouble, itching feet, etc., results are seen overnight but a small quantity being required. (Nothing is so good for sunburn and mosquito bites.)

A special 50-cent package of poslam is prepared for minor uses, and this, as well as the regular $2 jar, is on sale by all druggists, particularly the Lyceum Pharmacy and W. A. Abbett's in Duluth, and the A. E. Holmberg Drug Co., in Superior. But no one is asked to purchase poslam without first obtaining a sample package, which will be sent by mail, free of charge, upon request by the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York city.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—Forbes Stock company in "A Gilded Fool."

REHEARSAL AT THE NEW ORPHEUM.

The actors and actresses who will take part in the opening performance at the new Orpheum theater Monday night, will arrive in the city Sunday, and a dress rehearsal will probably be held Sunday night, with the new orchestra.

The Orpheum bills usually open Sunday night but the new theater opening was postponed until Monday night, and for this reason those who will take part in the bill will have a day off in Duluth. In order to have everything running smoothly for Monday night, a rehearsal with the orchestra will probably be held Sunday.

The house was completely sold out yesterday, with the exception of some tickets which were set aside, with a cash deposit, to be called for later, and there were hundreds of disappointed ones, who were unable to get seats. Many of these contented themselves with seats for Tuesday or Wednesday night, and there has been a heavy advance sale for every performance during the coming week.

The overture for the opening performance will begin promptly at 8:15 o'clock.

"THE SQUAW MAN" ALL NEXT WEEK.

Considerable interest is being aroused concerning the announced intention of H. E. Pierce & Co., to offer "The Squaw Man" here next week.

It has only been within the past few weeks that the piece has been available for stock and the royalty is said to be enormous. It is doubtful if in the past ten years any dramatic piece has attracted the attention that Edwin Milton Royle's "The Squaw Man" has. It served as the starring vehicle for two well known stars, Dustin Farnum and William Faversham, and now William Jossey has fallen heir to the role of Jim Carston, the ranchman hero of the piece.

It is a striking coincidence that William Jossey appeared in this city last summer with a former Duluth favorite, Maude Leone, while Miss Blanche Douglas, who is the leading woman of H. E. Pierce & Co.'s Associate Players was at the same time appearing in Salt Lake City as Willard Mack's leading woman.

The coming of this attraction is being awaited with considerable expectancy as several old favorites will be found in the cast among others being Frank Patton, Marie Bonsall, Wayne Ross and several others from the Mack-Leone forces who are well known locally, and who, it is said, look upon Duluth as "home."

"BECKY SHARPE" AND "THE PILLARS OF SOCIETY."

The art of Mrs. Fiske seems to increase in its breadth and charm with each succeeding visit and her current appearances in "Becky Sharp" are marked throughout by that peculiar feeling of sympathy and understanding between artist and public that means so much to both. It would seem from the effect conveyed to the auditor that the role of "Becky" is one in which Mrs. Fiske takes an infinite delight. Mrs. Fiske has frequently said that the part is a continual joy to her.

This fascinating dramatization by Langdon Mitchell of Thackeray's evergreen novel, "Vanity Fair", will be presented by Mrs. Fiske Saturday evening, while at the matinee Ibsen's play, "Pillars of Society", will be the bill.

"S. R. O. SIGN" AT THE MATINEE.

The Gus A. Forbes stock company played "A Gilded Fool" this afternoon before an audience that completely filled the Lyceum theater. The audience was most enthusiastic and the regret at the departure of this popular stock actor and his company is general. Mr. Forbes will play at the Lyceum this evening and the concluding performance will be given at the Lyceum theater Sunday afternoon and evening

BIG TREE EXHIBITION.

Washington, Aug. 19.—An exhibition showing of the types of trees and explaining the problems and questions connected with the woodlands will be made by the forest service at the Appalachian exposition to be held at Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 12 to Oct. 12. Don Carlos Ellis of the forest service has left Washington for Knoxville to arrange and take charge of the exhibit.

COAL COMPANY OFFICIALS ARE KILLED BY TRAIN.

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 19.—Superintendent J. A. White of the Northwest Coal company, and William Gardner of the same company were run down and instantly killed last night at the Simpson crossing of the Delaware & Hudson railroad near Carbondale. The men were in a carriage and drove on to the crossing a second ahead of the train, which was hidden from view by a high embankment.

TELLS ABOUT THE CANTEEN

Gen. Fred Grant Relates Experiences in Maneuver Camp.

Says He Believes That It Is Better Left Out of the Army.

Pine Camp, New York, Aug. 19.—Gen. Frederick Dent Grant, United States army, commanding the department of the East and now in charge of the combined army and militia maneuvers here, gave out a statement yesterday of his experience with the workings of the prohibitory canteen law at the encampment.

"When I say I think the canteen is better left out of the army," said the general, "I believe I am taking the correct view. Take this camp for an example.

"Many people have the idea that because there is no way under the present law for a soldier to get liquor within camp limits, dives and low saloons about the outskirts of the camp must thrive. Such is not the case, as I have taken care to learn.

Not the Regulars.

"The other night I made a round of all the outside grog shops and I found that wherever there were customers, they were generally civilians. Wherever I found a soldier, he was almost always a militia man and not a regular.

"This may be partly due to the fact that pay day had passed and most of the troops had spent all their money, but I do not think that is the whole reason. The fact that a good many of these places have gone out of business purely because they could not get customers enough, shows that my inference is correct."

The Best Hour of Life

is when you do some great deed or discover some wonderful fact. This hour came to J. R. Pitt, of Rocky Mt., N. C., when he was suffering intensely, as he says, "from the worst cold I ever had. I then proved to my great satisfaction, what a wonderful Cold and Cough cure Dr. King's New Discovery is. For, after taking one bottle, - was entirely cured. You can't say anything too good of a medicine like that." It's the surest and best remedy for diseased lungs. Hemorrhages, LaGrippe, Asthma, Hay Fever—any Throat or Lung Trouble. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

"NIGGER" TELLS OF RICHES FOR RACE

Scott Bond of Arkansas Talks to Negro Business Men's League.

New York, Aug. 19.—An old-fashioned Arkansas darkey, one of those proud to call himself "nigger," stood up in the second day's session of the Negro Business Men's league here yesterday and vowed that he "wouldn't change places with Theodore Roosevelt, big a man as he is."

"Come out with us, you niggers," he told the New York negroes, "where the air is free and God is good, and where, if there is any gumption in you, you can have more in a year than you ever earned in all your life before. If you haven't a dollar, I'll give you a farm and a chance. Come out to Arkansas."

The speaker was introduced by Booker T. Washington as Scott Bond of Madison, Ark.

"How much are you worth?" asked an inquisitive delegate.

Scott Bond grinned.

"Well," he said, "down in Arkansas they tax us 50 cents on every $1,000. I pay a few dollars less than $2,000 a year."

A little arithmetic shows that this tax represents a capital appraised at nearly $4,000,000.

LAKE BEMIDJI PEARLS REPORTED BEING FOUND.

Bemidji, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Pearl fishing in Lake Bemidji is becoming a profitable enterprise, and pearl fishermen are finding some very fine specimens this summer. This class of work was not pursued in this city until last summer, and then only occasionally, but a few finds of valuable pearls last year led some citizens to follow the industry this summer, with splendid results.

A. H. Kleven of this city found two splendid pearls. Yesterday a fisherman who was working on the northeast side of the lake found a pearl which weighed fifteen grains, and a local jeweler placed a value on the find of $400. The pearl is considerably larger than the blunt end of a pencil and of unusual brilliance.

GAVE AWAY MILLIONS; DIES WORTH BUT $3,000.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 19.—David Rankin, Jr., who recently gave away his fortune estimated at more than $3,-000,000, died today at Atlantic City. According to a telegram the beneficiary of the philanthropist was the David Rankin School of Mechanical Trades. He was 74 years old. Mr. Rankin in giving away his fortune retained $2,000 a year for his own use.

Whew, How I Hate Heat!

Say Mr. and Mrs. Fat

Is it any wonder that the fat people hate hot weather? If your heart and lungs and stomach were bound around with layer after layer of false flesh that gave out a terrible unnatural heat and that interfered with their normal functions you would understand the aversion of fat people to hot weather. There is absolutely no reason for fat people staying fat in this age of triumph. We do not advise drugging yourself, dieting, or exercising yourself to death, but there is a method that has proven successful. It is the famous Marmola tablets which do the work of removing fat exactly like nature intends it should be done. They stop the digestive organs from producing fat. They seek out the fat as it lies around the body and remove it at the rate of from 12 to 15 ounces a day. These little tablets are made from the great Marmola prescription and compressed into hard tablets by tremendous power. You may carry one in your pocket and always eat a meal in peace of mind, for you know that the tablet will get you the best results from such a meal. These tablets contain nothing but Marmola, Cascara Aromatic and Peppermint Water, but they do the work so pleasantly, harmlessly, and so fast that you will be surprised. They are sold by every druggist, price 75 cts. per case, or if you prefer you may write The Marmola Company, 491 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

HEAVY FINE FOR SECOND OFFENSE

Chauffeur Pays $50 for Speeding---Former Case Is Dismissed.

John T. Dohm, the chauffeur arrested several days ago on the charge of exceeding the automobile speed limit, was convicted in police court yesterday and fined $50. Capt. Fiskett swore out the warrant, alleging that he was driving faster than fifteen miles an hour on West First street. Dohn was convicted in June of the same offense and given fifteen days straight in the county jail, but it is stated by his attorney, E. J. Kenny, that the case will be dismissed on a technicality, the city having already signed a stipulation to dismiss.

AEROPLANE AND AUTO COLLIDE

Another Aviator "Stands By" Balloonist in Trouble 2,000 Feet Up.

Asbury Park, N. J., Aug. 19.—Johnstone, the Wright aviator, collided with an automobile and smashed his new experimental biplane, in the aviation meet her yesterday. Archie Hoxsey, another Wright pupil, abandoned an attempt for a new world's altitude record to hover about a balloon in distress half a mile up, and Walter Brookins, his face still swathed in bandages, left the ground for the first time since his mishap of last week. Altogether it was a day of thrills.

Hoxsey had reached a height of more than 2,000 feet when "Jimmie" Fleming got into trouble with the knife pull that should have freed his parachute from the hot air balloon bearing him aloft. His difficulties were obvious to the crowd who expected to see him dashed to earth at any moment.

Hoxsey also saw his trouble and halted his ascent to circle above him. The balloonist slowly drifted away, still struggling with the knife pull, and finally ceasing any attempt to free the parachute, rode his balloon to earth some three miles distant from the aerodrome. Hoxsey saw him safely to earth and then descended.

LAUNDRY DRIVER HAS NARROW ESCAPE.

Harry Dery, a laundry driver, escaped with a few scratches and bruises at 6 o'clock last evening, when he was knocked from the seat of his rig in a collision with a street car at First avenue west and Fourth street.

The wagon was "side swiped," but was not demolished. The team ran away but was stopped at Second street. Spectators helped gather the bundles strewn down the avenue for two blocks and Dery was soon able to be on his way.

CRAZED BY CIGARETTES, MAN MURDERS CHILD.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Insanity due to cigarettes is assigned by a coroner's jury as the cause of William J. Carver's having dashed his 11-months-old baby against a wall, killing it. The infanticide was committed about three weeks ago. Carver is now in the government hospital for the insane.

Neither One Is Mad Now.

Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 19.—A protocol has been signed by Brazil and Argentina in full satisfaction for recent flag insults at both capitals. This is believed to be the forerunner of an offensive and defensive treaty between Brazil, Argentina and Chile.

Cruising in An Open Boat.

Motor boat cruising need not be restricted to a large cruiser. In fact some of the most enjoyable trips, lasting several days or weeks, may be taken in an ordinary open motor boat. The great question is the food supply that will contain nourishment and the least trouble in preparation. For such a trip nothing would be more practical than a goodly supply of Golden Grain Belt beer, as it is a liquid food and refreshing beverage. Its clear, transparent color is proof of its purity. IS BOUND OVER TO GRAND JURY

Man Charged With Robbery Must Await Trial in September.

Axel Erickson, charged with stealing $50 from Joseph Schleyel in the Liberty hotel, 613 West Superior street, several days ago, was bound over to the next grand jury in police court yesterday afternoon for grand larceny.

Schleyel and other witnesses claimed that Erickson picked Schleyel's pockets. Charles Koenig, cigar manufacturer, demonstrated in court the manner in which it was done, using Assistant County Attorney Greene as the victim. He showed that while Erickson patted Schleyel on the back with one hand, telling him what a good fellow he was, he inserted the other in an inside pocket and pulled out the money.

FINDS BABY DEAD AND MOTHER'S NECK SLASHED.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Returning from a shopping trip, Mrs. G. H. Fortmiller found her 9-months-old baby smothered to death and her mother, Mrs. Dorothy Bartell, unconscious from razor wounds across the throat. When restored to consciousness, Mrs. Bartell, who is 62 years old, declared that the house had been entered by a stout man who attacked her with a razor.

The house was not in disorder when Mrs. Fortmiller discovered the tragedy. There had been no attempt at robbery and it was discovered that all the doors and windows of the house were locked. The razor with which Mrs. Bartell had been cut was found behind a bathtub.

Mrs. Fortmiller said her mother had been complaining of pains in the head recently. Mr. Fortmiller is manager of a store at Matteson, Ill.

WAYMAN WANTS REFORMS MADE

System of Drawing Veniremen Shown Up in Browne Case, He Says.

Chicago, Aug. 19. — As a result of difficulty in getting a jury for the second trial of Lee O'Neil Browne, charged with buying votes to elect William Lorimer to the United States senate, State's Attorney John W. Wayman announces he will attack the system of drawing veniremen, as soon as the Browne trial is ended.

"It is a frightful commentary on the condition in our courts," he declared, "that of 700 names drawn, only eight men were found considered capable of trying this case. Over 90 per cent of the names drawn are those of men just 21 years old, young clerks and mechanics. We have had almost no leading men of business."

PLAN FOR LAST BIG INDIAN POW-POW.

Muskogee, Okla., Aug. 19.—Governor C. N. Haskell and the chiefs of the principal Indian tribes of Oklahoma have been selected as members of the invitation committee for the international Indian congress, which assembles at Muskogee Oct. 10, 11, 12 and 13. This will probably mark the last big Indian pow-wow to be held in the United States.

JOHN W. FAWCETT IS KILLED IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—John W. Fawcett, a Chicago newspaper reporter, received injuries from which he died within a few minutes last night, when an automobile in which he was riding crashed into a State street car. He was badly crushed between the car and the automobile. Fawcett has been in Chicago for a year, previously having been employed on the papers of Minneapolis, Fargo, N. D., and Denver.

DEMAND BOY AND HURL ACID ON HIS MOTHER.

Stanford, Ky., Aug. 19. — Stopping their automobile in front of the home of T. P. Eads, a young farmer living five miles from this city, an unknown man and woman, demanded that Mrs. Eads give them her year-old son. When she refused the woman threw the contents of a bottle of carbolic acid on the young mother and the couple left in their car. No possible reason can be assigned for the act. Mrs. Eads, before her marriage, was Miss Nettie Waller of Louisville, daughter of a railroad engineer.

WANT DUTIES REFUNDED.

Women Make Requests of Treasury Department.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Secretary MacVeagh's recent ruling that American women who have gowns remodeled in Paris need only pay duty on the cost of repairs, instead of the full value of the garments as heretofore, has brought in a multitude of requests that the secretary amend his ruling to make it retroactive as to the date when the new tariff went into effect. Many Americans would like the treasury to refund duties they paid under the old rule. The customs division does not look with favor on the plan, but it will be considered.

"FLEE AS A BIRD" OR OTHERWISE, YOU CAN'T BEAT FREAKS ALREADY TRIED

Patent Office Records Show Some Rare Notions on Aeronautics.

"If the publishers of the Patent Office Gazette ever conclude to add a comic supplement to their weekly edition, we can supply them with all the materials without their having to hunt in other divisions."

So spoke an official in the aeroplane and airship section of the examining division of the patent office at Washington, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger, which asked as to the character of inventions now being offered for patent in this line.

"Applications of this kind are coming in at the rate of more than 150 a week. They are now far ahead of all other kinds of inventions in number filed, and, I may add, in freakishness."

Were it not that these freak airships were formally patented, and that it had cost the inventors at least $100 apiece to obtain such patents, it would seem from examination that many of them had been trying to perpetrate a practical joke on the patent office officials.

All Comforts of Home.

The wildest flights of whimsical imagination cannot reach beyond some of the crazy combinations recorded as airships and aeroplanes in the Washington archives.

Also the strict attention to minutest detail is amusing; railings to prevent the passengers from falling over in the scenery, muffs to keep hands and ears warm while soaring through the zero latitudes of the upper air, comfortable sleeping beds carefully arranged with springs, so that the jar of alighting will not awake the folks; telescopes arranged on swivels at convenient places about the decks, that the curious traveler may discern what continent he's flying over—these and a score of other details are carefully inserted.

In many of the drawings the aeronaut is shown, invariably sitting with hands placidly folded, to show you it's just as e-e-easy! All manner of means of propulsion have been brought into requisition from dynamite to ducks. Wings, air, aeriform and liquid torpedoes, all come in for a share.

All But Motive Power.

Occasionally, too, one comes across an inventor who has worked out all the problems to a nicety—and then has failed to provide a motive power. But this trifle is dismissed with some such remark as "Any convenient form of motive power may be used."

No single locality can boast itself the home of these erratic geniuses. They stretch across the country and overlap Europe from Colorado to Budapest, in Hungary.

An inventor in Highlands, Cal., recently obtained a patent upon an airship that contains all the comforts of home. In the drawings it resembles an enlarged picture of some sort of a bug, with a row of eyes along the side and a ruffle down its back; on inspection the ruffle resolves itself into the railing along the upper deck and the eyes into windows of the various staterooms on the ship.

The lace curtains of each window are carefully looped back so as not to obscure the view. A staircase leads down from the hatchway that modest women may alight without undue exposure of lingerie. Everything man can want is shown, even to the buffet—that is, all except the machinery, which is probably in the cellar of the craft with the laundry tubs and the furnace.

Real Air Ship.

A man of Bergen, N. J., has patented what looks like a large metallic box turned upside down. There is no bottom to it. In the side walls are circular openings, and in these are rotary fans, which suck the air into the box. The aeronaut sits in a car suspended from the box.

When the Bergen man wants to fly he turns the power onto his fans; these pump air into the box. It can only escape downward, and the reaction from this powerful draught will force the box upward, causing it to fly—so runneth the patent specifications.

An expert of the patent office figured out that a blast strong enough to lift the combined weight of machine and aeronaut would blow a hole in the ground big enough to hide an elephant.

A New York city man solves the problem of aerial flight thus: He has a large gas bag that lifts him above mundane things. From the car suspended below there extends a long hollow outrigger, at the business end of which is attached a metallic hemispherical cap, like that of an exaggerated anemometer.

Bombs for Motive Power.

The aeronaut feeds into the tube of the outrigger explosive bombs of dynamite, gun-cotton or giant powder, which are exploded when they reach the cup; the recoil from the explosion kicks the invention forward at a rate commensurate with the size of the bomb.

A genius from Clarksville, Tenn., would fly by incasing himself in a rubber suit, much like that of a diver, to which are attached hollow wings filled with liquid air. The release of the air through valved vents downward and backward propels him upward and forward. "The air pressure from without will enable the aeronaut to determine his direction," says the inventor.

From gay Paree comes Edouard Wulff, with a patented scheme for flying by means of "eagles, vultures or condors." True to the instincts of his native city, he fits out his birds with "corsets," the specifications of which as to trimmings, binding, etc., are carefully set out.

He has provided for two aeronauts, one on top among the birds, and the other below to steer the craft.

Ducks for Engines.

B. Szantmiklosy, from Budapest, Hungary, also has patented a bird-driven airship, but limits his motors to ducks; why ducks is not set forth. However, when the aeronaut gets hungry on extended flights he can eat his engines.

Chicago turns up with a combination baloon-hotel-boat-airship, with bay windows and balconies in the body of the building, "eminently adapted for flying through the air or navigating the water," saith the patent.

But a woman from Brooklyn goes the Chicago man one better by a ship that can make a lightning change into boat, aeroplane or automobile, with a rapidity that would arouse the envy of a vaudeville artist. This craft is operated by wings.

Oklahoma City sends a sort of Venetian blind, the slats of which, being moved back and forth by the aeronaut, cause him to rise swiftly in the air and sail away to far-off lands. But Brooklyn in a patent lately obtained by a man from that city, has added feathers to these slats, whether to aid in the flight or "to render the machine more attractive" the patent does not state.

Takes 40-Foolpower.

Still, a third flying machine a recently been patented by an imaginative man of Brooklyn. This one stands up in his. If you want to fly in it, you plant your feet firmly upon the platform, grasp the jointed rods that run from this to the wings overhead, work them briskly back and forth so as to flap the wings, and there you are—yet! Patent office experts estimate that it would take forty foolpower to lift this appliance from the ground.

One man from Cornplanter, Pa., would run the passenger trains out of business by means of an overhead rail on which runs a grooved wheel. From this the would-be traveler suspends himself and gets along by means of wings attached to his hands and feet. There is a steering tail fastened between his shoulder blades whereby he can switch off onto branch roads.

A St. Louis invention closely resembles a clothespin with the operator sitting between the forks. Where the head of the pin would be is set the electric dynamo. The machine is moved by the flapping of wings, which are built on the plan of the cellar door of childhood.

Bore Your Way.

A Cleveland man's device consists of a cigar-shaped gas bag, much like that in the Baldwin or Zeppelin airship. Around it, from stem to stern, runs a spiral fin or vane like the threads on a screw. The aeronaut sits on a saddle suspended below and propels himself by operating a pedal which revolves the gas bag. The fin or vane bores itself through the air like the propeller on an ordinary aeroplane.

A resident of Hot Springs, Ark., has a balloon so constructed that if it bursts the baging will "nest in the rigging above, and form a parachute, whereby the aeronaut may descend safely to the earth."

A Boston man, expressing a belief that many accidents are due to the inflammable character of the material used in the airships, remedies this by substituting therefore a "large cylinder of some light metal, preferably aluminum," in his specifications state. Immediately beneath this cylinder is placed a cozy furnace. To fly, you build a fire in this furnace. This heats the air in the aluminum cylinder, the heated air rises, taking along cylinder, furnace and man, and away they go!

Cartridges on Behind.

An Omaha, Neb., man trims the rear of his airship with cartridges. When these are exploded in succession he expects to be driven through the air to his destination with neatness and dispatch. When his cartridges are expended he loads up again as one would the chambers of a revolver.

Washington itself has a man whose airship, when it blows up or he gets tired of sailing among the clouds balloonwise, turns itself into an aeroplane without the slightest effort. When the gas is out of the bag, the thing is done. He carries a gas generator on board, so that when he wants a little more ballooning he can fill up again.

This ship also has a hotel attachment with twelve rooms—in the drawings. It is propelled by a kind of Archimedes screw propeller which he has been thoughtful enough to have "encased in aluminum housings," so that ladies' skirts will not become entangled. He, too, provides all manner of comforts on board, each one painfully detailed in the patent.

These are but a few of the freak patents lately issued for airships and aeroplanes, but they are enough to convince any inventor that if he wants to spring anything novel on the people in the line of hand-made birds of burden he's got to get up mighty early in the morning and work as long as there's light to see.

JOSEPH G. CANNON---SCAPEGOAT.

Young Mr. Longworth's statement from Beverly, delivered in the shadow of the presidential presence, leaves no doubt that the administration, very much belated, has set its face against Cannon and will use its influence to prevent his re-election as speaker.

If President Taft had done this thing in March, 1909, he could have prevented Cannon's re-election as speaker of the present house. That would have resulted in reorganizing the house so that honest tariff revision would have had a chance. With a house organized on lines of obedience to the people's will Boss Aldrich never could have perpetrated the infamous fraud and crowning humiliation of the Aldrich-Payne-Taft tariff law. Instead of that, the president connived at Cannon's re-election.

But now, when the whole country has risen against Cannon; when his supporters everywhere are being swept out of office by victorious insurgents; when the mischief is done and the people are assured that Cannon will be put out of the speakership even if it is necessary to put a Democrat in his place, the administration changes front and demands Cannon's head to offer as a sop to the Cerberus of an aroused public opinion.

It is late—too late.

What is the head and front of Cannon's offending?

It is that he has organized the house into a compact machine to do the will of selfish interests that control the organization of the Republican party and by virtue of this control, bought with lavish campaign contributions, have balked the people's will, have delayed, defeated and distorted legislation demanded by the people, and have so prostituted free government that the mockery of it makes true men blush for their country.

Yet in so doing, Cannon has done the will of the organization of his party through all these years. Grasping interests—which were, in fact, the Republican party though working under cover behind and beneath the party organization—have demanded higher and higher tariff taxes, more and more special privileges, greater freedom to loot the people's natural resources, and letters of mark to pillage a defenseless people under color of law. All these demands, however greedy and shameless, Cannon has met—but in meeting them he has done the will of his party organization, the same organization that now turns upon him because it is no longer safe to retain him. This is his reward for years of faithful service to an ungrateful organization which deserts him, when his cause is unpopular, because he has become the most conspicuous exemplar of the treachery of his party to the people's interest.

In spite of this eleventh hour desertion in his hour of greatest need, Cannon stands stiff-necked and defiant while the storm beats upon him. His attitude, evil though his public life has been, is more admirable than that of his fellow-conspirators who now abandon him to his enemies in the hope of saving themselves.

The peril of it is that this belated repentance of the organization that has made his evil doing possible will turn hatred to pity, and make a martyr out of the man whom that organization now seeks to make its scapegoat.

WELL DONE, GOPHER!

Once more the Gopher, Minnesota's naval militia vessel, sails home today from the annual maneuvers with the glory of having won most of the prizes offered for skill, speed and efficiency.

The Gopher, its offers and its crew would be welcome anyway, but they are thrice welcome when they bring these tolls of victory. They are a credit to Minnesota and to Duluth, and Minnesota and Duluth are proud of them.

THE PLACE OF THE NEGRO.

A year and a half ago President Taft announced the policy that negroes would not be named for federal offices against the wishes of the whites.

Now a white man has succeeded a negro as collector of internal revenue for Georgia, showing that the policy is being carried out.

No doubt this is pleasing to the white people of the Southern states, and so far as the black people are concerned, they are so completely barred from the ballot box there that what they think about it in those states makes little political difference.

But it is different in the North, and it will be interesting to watch the effect of this new policy upon the election returns in Northern states with a large negro vote—for instance, in Ohio.

Speaking of the president's race policy, the New York World says: "So far as we have observed, there has been no departure from this line of conduct. One of Mr. Taft's first acts was the selection of a white man for collector at Charleston, S. C., a position long held precariously by Dr. Crum, colored. On May 17, 1909, the president gave the postoffice department a cue, which it was not slow to accept, by directing the appointment of a white postmaster at Darien, Ga., a town in which the black predominate. On June 26, 1909, it was stated at Galveston that more than one hundred colored deputy marshals, collectors and inspectors had been removed since March 4. On July 8, 1909, it was officially announced at Washington that no negroes would be named as census enumerators. Two days later a negro employe of the weather bureau was recalled from Mobile, Ala., on the protest of white men. In various speeches the president has discouraged higher education for negroes. At Howard university, May 26, 1909, he said: 'The best friends of the negro are the whites who want them to have an industrial education.' In a speech before the North Carolina society in New York in December, 1908, he advocated restriction of the suffrage in the South 'applied with exact equality and justice to the two races,' but for the purpose chiefly of eliminating the black vote."

Now the negro has been taught that the Republican party is its friend. It freed him, it put him in office during the period of Reconstruction,—a black spot upon the escutcheon of the nation,—and it parades itself as his advocate and protector.

Yet the Republican president of the United States is following out uniformly a policy of keeping black men out of public office, and of encouraging white supremacy even where the whites are in the minority.

Whether or not this is flirting with the Southern white vote in the hope of breaking up the "solid South," it is inviting peril in the many Northern states where the colored vote, united, holds the balance of power. The Ohio Republican convention passed its usual resolutions demanding strict enforcement of the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments, showing that so far as resolutions are concerned the party still throbs with sympathy for the black man. Whether the colored brother will be satisfied with resolutions when he sees his race crowded out of recognition as a part of the country's citizenship the election returns in November may show.

LABOR IN DEMAND.

A local story in The Herald last night told how the labor supply in Duluth has been drained during the past two or three weeks by the demand from the harvest fields and railroad operations in the Northwest.

It would be hard to imagine anything that tells more accurately the story of prosperity in the Northwest than this. The railroads are rushing extensions and improvements, this work alone having absorbed 3,000 men in the past three weeks. The grain fields, which pessimists a month ago or so were describing in a way to create expectations that there would be no crop at all to gather, have called for thousands of workers.

Wages have gone up from $1.75 a day to $2 and $2.25 a day, and though the smaller figure did not include board several large bookings have been made at $2 a day with board.

This interesting news spells prospertiy. It is prosperity to have these men employed at good wages. It is prosperity to have in progress the work that employs them. Railroads are extending their lines to reach new business, which means new developments in the Northwest.

There is no place for the croaker where conditions like these prevail. The Northwest is prosperous in spite of crop damage. Never before in its history were its foundations so solid and its prospects so glowing.

SHIFTING THE CUT.

The Republican organization evidently plans to offer Aldrich, Cannon and Ballinger as sacrifices to appease an angered people.

But the battle isn't ended until the people see what the Republican party offers in their places.

If Crane should succeed Aldrich, Tawney should succeed Cannon and Hitchcock should succeed Ballinger, where is the gain?

Everybody knows what to expect of Aldrich, Cannon and Ballinger. Only a few know that the interests would fare better, perhaps, with Crane, Tawney and Hitchcock in their places.

REAL ESTATE VALUES.

It is related that sixty-five years ago in New York a man named John Hunt was examined in court as to his sanity. His relatives wanted him sent to an asylum. The principal evidence they offered to prove the defects in his mentality was the fact that he had just paid $2,400 for a city lot.

The story as it comes to us doesn't tell what happened to Hunt. The real story is about his investment. That worked out so interestingly that the fate of Hunt becomes a minor matter.

What brought up the story is the fact that that city lot, for which Hunt paid $2,400 sixty-five years ago, was sold the other day for $1,825,000.

Maybe Hunt was crazy. If he was, there are a lot of people who would be glad to get possession of the particular breed of microbe that infested his brain. What made those about him believe him to be mad was that he saw farther than they did. He saw in what direction New York was going to develop. He saw that that lot lay directly in the path of that development. He saw that in time to come the price he paid for the lot, however large it looked then, would be but a tiny proportion of its worth.

Land within five miles of the New York city hall has doubled in value every five years, and similar increases, perhaps not so great, are to be noted in every growing city in the country, including Duluth.

The point is that there is no investment like real estate. That it is profitable is shown by the agitation of Single Taxers about the "unearned increment" which is the investor's profit. A man buys a city lot in the pathway of growth. He sits back, does nothing but pay taxes, and the growth of the city, without any effort on his part, brings him a large margin of profit. Single Taxers say he has no right to that profit; that the city, which made it, and the people, who created that value, are entitled to the profits, which they should take through taxation.

It's pretty plausible doctrine, too, but it is going to be a long time before it is put into effect.

In the meantime, if you are looking for investment, buy real estate. Buy intelligently; don't buy as you buy speculative stocks, without knowing anything about the conditions that surround the thing you are buying. Don't buy solely because the property is cheap; there may be a reason for its cheapness that is going to keep it cheap. Don't condemn a property because it is high-priced; there may be a reason for its dearness that will make it dearer still later on, to your profit if you buy.

Study your city. Make up your mind, after thorough consideration, which way growth will go. Get just beyond the present growth, and buy. When growth reaches your property, its value will increase and your profits appear.

And while you are buying real estate, remember that the growing city with the largest future is the best place to buy in—and that's Duluth.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

A SOLUTION OF THE ASSESSMENT PROBLEM.

To the Editor of the Herald:

I believe the best way to get even an approximate valuation of real estate or personal property is to get the state to enact a law empowering any organized town or city in the state to get a sworn appraisement from the owner of any property at the discretion of the assessor when he is in doubt as to the value of said property, the said town or city to have the sole right through its assessor to sell the property at issue to the highest bidder at an advertised public sale with a reserve bid of the city for the full amount of the owner's valuation and accrued expenses, the town or city to retain the difference between the sale price, and the valuation, thus making a check on low valuation by the owner risking the loss of his property. The property owner under the above law, would be under no injustice, as he could call in an expert to aid him in fixing the valuation of his property, as the courts have repeatedly decided that the value of a man's property is just what he will take for it and above all the owner would apply his own penalty for attempting to defraud the public of its just due by intentionally undervaluing his property while it is being put on the tax list. Of course, the city or town would have a fight with the supreme court on the constitutionality of such a law, but it would pay to even do that to get our city out of the claws of Ben B. Lindsey's beast and its jungle of corporate interests that have choked the growth of Duluth, even if we had to go through another experience like the fight of the city with the private water company of memory, that gives us such satisfaction today, in building up the city's health and its general welfare.

HUGH WAKEFIELD.
Duluth, Aug. 16.

A Romance.

Thomas Tapper in New York Journal: There was once a boy who played every day by a little red gate.

The little red gate separated the house in which the boy lived from the highway which stretched East and West to the ends of the earth.

Just down the street there lived a poor girl; she was harmless, and the neighbors called her half-witted, or crazy, or foolish, each using the name that seemed best, but all meaning the same thing. She was a little older than the boy, but smaller. The only plaything in the world she loved, and, in fact, all the had, was a picture book.

The name of the book was "The Story of Robinson Crusoe, in Words of One Syllable, for Children."

Sometimes the poor crazy girl would walk up the street to the little red gate and stand outside watching the boy play. For a long time he did not speak to her, but one day he said "Good morning" and gave her a red rose from the bush in the yard.

The next time she came to watch the boy play she called to him, saying: "Come to me."

And she passed something to him through the gate just as he had passed a red rose to her.

Then she ran home, sobbing as if her heart would break.

It was "The Story of Robinson Crusoe, in Words of One Syllable, for Children."

The boy grew up, as all boys do. One day he passed out by the little red gate and went to school. Then he became a man, so quickly do things happen, and passed down the highway which stretched East and West to the ends of the earth.

The mother kept on with her washing, looking anxiously off into the world through the little red gate. The poor, crazy girl still lived down the street.

Then it happened that the boy (now a man remember) came home to his mother's home. The mother sat on the step and listened to such music of the violin as had already filled the world with the praises of that once-upon-a-time little boy.

And when the music was done he laid his violin down very gently. At the little red gate a poor, crazy woman was standing, sobbing as if her heart would break. And in her hand she held a faded red rose.

Where Shall Jill Find Jack?

Everybody's: "Every Jack has his Jill." It is a tender twilight thought, and it more or less settles Jill.

When the census man was at work in 1900, however, he went about and counted 2,260,000 American women who were more than 25 years old and who were still unmarried.

It is getting worse (or better) with every passing decade, and out of it is emerging a new ideal of education for women, an ideal which seems certain to penetrate the whole educational system of the United States, all the way from the elementary school to the universities.

The census man groups us into age periods. The period from 25 to 29 is the most important matrimonially, because it is the one in which most of us get pretty well fixed into life work. Out of every 1,000 women in that period, in the year of 1890, the census man found 254 who were still unmarried. In 1900, only ten years later, he found 275.

Poor Jack! Poor Jill! They get lectured at all the time about the postponement of marriage, and they can no more control it than they can control the size of the city of New York. Theoretically, everybody on Manhattan island could get up and go away and leave the island vacant. Actually, it can't and won't be done. Theoretically, we should all of us get married young. We fall in love young enough. But, actually, we can't get married young, and don't. The reasons are given later. Meanwhile, just notice, and just ponder, the following facts:

It was in the United States as a whole that the census man found 275 out of every 1,000 women in the 25-to-29 age period unmarried. But the United States consists of developed and undeveloped regions. The cities are the high points of development. Look at the cities:

In Chicago, out of every 1,000 women in the age period from 25 to 29, there were 314 who were unmarried. In Denver there were 331. In Manhattan and the Bronx there were 356. In Minneapolis there were 369. In Philadelphia there were 387.

Southern New England, however, is the most industrially developed part of the United States, the part in which social conditions, like those of the older countries of the world, are most nearly reached.

In Fall River, out of every 1,000 women in the 25-to-29 period, the unmarried were 391. In New Haven they were 393. In Boston they were 452.

In view of such facts, how can anybody object to the steps which have been taken recently toward giving the women in the manufacturing trades, as well as the women in the commercial trades, some little preparation for the work in which they are likely to spend so many years?

Judge as a Journalist.

Nashville Banner: Judge Alvin Duvall, while judge of the Kentucky court of appeals, in company with Squire Johnson, a very large man—the judge being very much smaller—once called a political meeting in Lexington, which for lack of adequate advertisement was attended by themselves only. The distinguished judge, possessing a fund of quiet humor, finally began to write a notice, reading aloud as he wrote: "At a large and respectable meeting held in this city yesterday—"

"Stop there a minute, judge!" exclaimed the squire in surprise, "you wouldn't publish a notice that this was a large and respectable meeting."

"Why not?" quickly rejoined the judge. "Are you not large and am I not respectable?"

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

"The Herald Is a Fine Paper."

Long Branch Review: One thing the Democratic convention did which even a good many Republican editors are pleased with and that was the big boost given the Duluth Herald. The Herald is a fine paper and deserves all the praise it gets, which is not a little.

It Was the Right Answer.

Mankato Free Press: The Duluth Herald would have an intelligent public believe that the Democrats declared for county option when they incorporated the initiative and referendum plank in their platform. With the Herald it is a case of trying to make any other name sound just as sweet in the ears of the county optionists. Oh, you Herald!

That Wheelage Tax.

Brainerd Dispatch: The owners of vehicles are preparing to resist the wheelage tax imposed by the city of Duluth. The Herald says it should be taken to the courts and hopes the verdict will be against those who own and operate wheeled vehicles so it will be forever settled, and adds that the theory of double taxation is wrong as the owner of a vehicle pays a personal tax on it and while the wheelage tax sounds like a second tax it is in reality a license fee for the use of the streets, and a sort of repayment to the city for the damage involved in such use. Duluth and every other city needs a street maintenance fund and the outcome of the controversy which will be carried to the courts for settlement will be watched with interest.

Takes High Rank.

Gilbert Herald: Some Democrat remarked at the Democratic state convention that the Duluth Herald is the best paper in the state. So far as a newsy paper is concerned he was not off, but if that journal, which ranks above the newspaper class, would flop over to the Republican side of the fence it would be a skyscraper crackerjack.

And He's Glad of It.

J. E. Shewell and Louise Winter were married in Duluth last week. Poor fellow, it will always be winter with him now. Ouch!

Congressman Bad Enough.

Anoka Herald: E. C. Clemans, late preacher at Duluth, was in Cambridge last week advocating the candidacy of somebody or other in the place of Senator C. J. Swanson. That was rather ungrateful of Clemans in view of certain matters which might be mentioned. The county option people can find no fault with Senator Swanson. Are not Duluth people satisfied to name the congressman from this district without trying to tell us whom we should choose for the senate and legislature down this way?

Must, or Should?

Onamia Lake Breeze: David A. Miller of Duluth secured a verdict of $15,000 for alienation of his wife's affections. How affectionate she must have been.

Mr. Miller's Error.

Cloquet Independent: A man over in Duluth by the name of Miller sued several parties for alienating his wife's affections. A jury this week awarded him a verdict of $15,000. While there are many wives in the land whose affections are easily worth $15,000, they are not the kind who can be alienated. The alienated kind are more nearly worth 15 cents; in fact a man ought to consider it a favor to be relieved of the fickle things.

Leadership and Knowledge.

Collier's: Since man has inhabited this ball, and left record of his doings, never has he been as gifted as in the few years when Athens was in flower. The dominant statesman of her brightest period was the leader of humanitarianism in an age of war. Dying, praised for his multitudinous renown, he said his fairest claim to fame was that never through him had an Athenian worn black; and when a battle had been fought Pericles spoke to his countrymen of the youth who had perished from the city, "like spring from the year." He led his city toward the sciences and the arts. The first orator of his age, the most cultivated of men, he was yet leader of the Radical party against the Conservatives; for the combination of learning with popular sympathy and trust gives light to the many, and gives vitality to knowledge. Without this union, we see blind groping on the one side and secluded pedantry on the other.

The widest popularity among leaders of our day is enjoyed by one, in analyzing whom most observers have neglected an important element. We hear much of Mr. Roosevelt's sagacity, intuition, and personality; but we hear little of his unswerving study and of his never-ceasing reflection. His lecture at Oxford was a striking proof of the amount he reads and of the closeness with which he connects reading with questions of the moment. His speech at the Guildhall was regarded as impulsively founded upon a few days in Egypt, instead of upon years of thought and upon intimate and long-continued familiarity with such volumes as Cromer's solid and impressive history. It is easy to forget how much work it costs to read. Occasionally leadership is complete without the aid of books, as with our own George Washington. More often a study of the past is a foundation of strong and enlightened convictions about the present, as in Washington's great lieutenants. Mr. Roosevelt's return to America has fully justified the hopes and confidence of his fellow men. He has shown wisdom, courage, prudence. He has proved that each year of life, whether spent in politics or in travel, is devoted to study and to progress. Death gathers man, as the grass, and he who would see a little, in brief years of groping, must care to know, must labor, must reflect.

No, Luella,

Is not Bedlam

Neither is it

It is not

It is not from

No, Luella,

Neither Crippen

It is only

How to Enter the Office.

Thayer (Mo.) District: Advance to the inner door and give three raps. The devil will attend to the alarm. You will give your name, postoffice address and number of years you owe for the paper. You will be admitted into the sanctum and will advance to the center of the room, where you will address the editor with the following countersign: Hold the right hand about two feet from the body, with the thumb and fingers clasping a $10 bill, which you will drop into the editor's hand, saying: "Were you waiting for me?" The editor will grasp your hand and the bill, pressing it, and will say: "You bet!"

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

•••Capt. William Spaulding, chief owner and manager of the Ancient Diggings mine a short distance north of Grand Marais, has returned from the property. He says the diamond drill has opened a silver vein five feet wide, at a depth of forty-two feet. The vein carries native silver in rich masses and is evidently a splendid find. It has not been developed to a sufficient extent to give surety of great returns, but the indications are excellent.

•••R. C. Mitchell has sold to J. D. Ray his place on East Second street and will build a handsome house on Fourth street, just east of Chester Brook and Glenwood park.

•••Articles of incorporation have been gled by the Vessel Steam Unloading Machine Company of Duluth, with a capital stock of $200,000, one-half of which is already taken. This company will manufacture, in Duluth, the invention of S. G. Nelson of the West end, which, it is claimed, is destined to revolutionize freight unloading from vessels. The incorporators are many and include such men as Dr. J. Pearson, S. A. Siverts, and A. F. Falils. The officers are: J. Pearson, president; S. A. Siverts, secretary and treasurer; Charles F. Hopkins, attorney.

•••The Iron Steel company has been incorporated by J. J. Sullivan of J. J. Sullivan & Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio, who is a prominent capitalist; F. M. Williams of Newport, Ky., where the plant is now located; Col. William Duffy of the John Boyle & Co., Distilling comapny; Capt. C. W. Boyd, president of the Levaune Mill & Lumber company; and Dr. J. L. Wylie, a retired capitalist, all of Ohio; Hon. J. J. Bright, a capitalist of West Virginia, and the projectors of this enterprise, Messrs. Atkins and Barrett. The capital stock is $1,000,000.

•••"New Orleans Murphy," charged with the murder of an unknown young man, whose death occurred almost in sight of the authorities and the crowd upon the yard tracks of the St. Paul & Duluth road near Lake avenue, about two weeks ago, is still at large, but his capture is expected soon.

OPEN HOUSE IN ALABAMA.

Harris Dickson in Everybody's Magazine: Judge Greer's father, Col. Greer, emigrated from Virginia and settled with his slaves on new lands in Alabama. Greer house—white and spacious and open — fronted a public road along which passed the westward tide of travel. But the traveler did not pass—he stopped in and rested a week or two. Few were brisk enough to escape the colonel's watchful eye. And once inside his gate, the wayfarer found it harder yet to leave.

When the weekly stagecoach came rattling along, two negro boys waited for it at the top of the hill, one with a bucket of ice water, the other with a pitcher of sangaree. Added to this was an invitation from the colonel for the strangers to rest beneath his roof. At meal times Isom, the butler, went down to the big gate and blew the dinner horn, a broadcast invitation to the wide, wide world.

Why should not the colonel invite all within hearing to partake of his dinner? He had more than he could eat; there were no hotels for the stranger; travelers must get very hungry—and thirsty. The underlying spirit was not new; it was the same simple spirit which graced Sir Roger de Coverly. But the manifestation was different, a manifestation that suited the country.

Col. Greer felt deeply his obligation to those who honored him by making his house their temporary home. Did they not bring him political news, tell good stories and keep him informed as to the current events of three states? All they got in return was a few fried chickens, home cured ham, corn bread, fruits, melons, cigars, wines and—the colonel admitted that his toddies were fairly good, for he made them himself.

Everybody laughed and prospered on Deerfield plantation. Sleek horses drew the carriages; cows waddled to the milking; shiny mules marched before the plows; fat negroes grinned with dazzling teeth at fatter chickens that tempted the frying pan.

When the colonel returned from a journey, every human being on the plantation gathered around him before he could shake off the dust—and he had a present for everyone. His pockets bulged with gewgaws and thinkets, pocket knives, band combs, tobacco and sardines.

Somehow the droughts managed to skip Deerfield and destructive storms went around it. Bad years didn't hurt the colonel and he made the good ones an excuse for helping his neighbors. He wrote freely—not for profit, but for accommodation—on the back of various promissory notes drawn by his acquaintances. His rich acres gave value to the autographs. When pay day came he had to sell his plantation and move to Mississippi. That is one reason why Judge Greer, his son, studied law and set out to make a living in town.

If There Be No Christ.

My friend, you say there is no Christ;
You say the sciences reveal
Unto the world this fact!
Why do I turn my back?
That I may conceal
The tears that fill my dim, old eyes!

Long years ago, my precious son
Dropped from the ranks of men;
If there be no Christ, ah, then,
I never more his blessed face shall see.
Nor shall he call in tender tones to me
Across the wide abyss of weary years,
If there be no Christ, my friend,
If there be no Christ!

And then, my patient wife, for forty years,
Walked by my stumbling side,
Until one day they say she died;
And as she went away, of Christ she sang—
Oh, those old songs so sweetly rang
From her dear, old faithful lips!
She went to Christ in joy she said,
But if there be no Christ, she's dead,
If there be no Christ, my friend,
If there be no Christ!

I fondly hoped that on some happy shore
I'd meet my loved ones; where forevermore
We'd dwell together in the crystal light,
Nor ever dread a coming night,
Nor shudder when the wind blew cold
Across the fields so bleak and bold;
Ofttimes I'd glance where white and still
I saw the graves my darlings fill—
I chuckled with a faith made bold:
"They're not out in all that cold!"
And oh, that thought was sweet, you know,
But then, of course, it isn't so,
If there be no Christ, my friend,
If there be no Christ!

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Marshmallows or dividends, they just get eaten up.

A bald head will go around pluming himself that he isn't bowlegged.

A wife will stand more faultfinding than the cook, because she is more used to it.

If a woman's mother comes to tea on Sunday evening she can call it a week-end house party.

The trouble with getting your salary raised by any amount is you raise your expenses twice as much.

Diamond Toys.

Washington Star: Andrew Carnegie, at one of his famous dinners in New York, talked about the prodigal and ostentatious expenditure of a certain type of New York millionaire.

"He takes a Velasquez," said Mr. Carnegie, "and cuts it into three strips so that it will go on a screen. Paul Bourget told the world about that. And I heard the other day another thing about him.

"A gentleman was being shown over the $3,000,000 palace of one of these millionaires. The gentleman stopped before an enormous mirror and said:

"'What a large and perfect glass! Pity it's scratched.'

"'It is rather a pity,' said the millionaire, carelessly; and, turning to his major domo, he said: 'Don't let the children have any more diamonds to play with, Maurise.'"

Cheer Up.

Marcus Aurelius: Nothing happens to anybody which he is not fitted by nature to bear.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Tit-Bits: They were heckling him at a political meeting. At last he could stand it no longer.

"Who brayed there?" he cried out sarcastically.

"It was only an echo," retorted somebody amid much laughter.

There had been a family row.

"Well," remarked the alleged head of the house, "a man learns a few things when he gets married. Yes sir, a man lives and learns."

"That may be," retorted the feminine half of the sketch, "but the school of experience doesn't bar coeds."

Judge: "What makes dinner so late today?" asks the guest of the little son of the landlady of the summer boarding house which serves none but home-grown vegetables and fruits.

"Ma lost the can opener," is the explanation.

Buffalo Express: "Do you blow the dinner horn here?" asked the summer boarder.

"No," said the boss farmer, sourly. "The hands get such good pay nowadays that they all carry gold-case 18-jewel watches."

Catholic News: "I am afraid some crackers are injurious to children," said the fastidious matron.

"Have you any safe crackers?"

"Madam," said the clerk, solemnly, "this is a grocery store. The state prison is ten blocks down."

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Honesty, my son, offers a wider field than dishonesty."

"Think so, dad?"

"I do. For every sucker there are at least ten ultimate consumers."

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: A $5 bill is good only as far as it goes.

A man doesn't mind being bossed by his wife if he isn't.

Perhaps time is money because it manages to slip away so fast.

An ideal woman is one who succeeds in concealing her imperfections.

You may be honest as the day is long, but the days are growing shorter.

The language of flowers is on tap when a barefooted boy steps on a thistle.

There are times when it is excusable for a musician to blow about his business.

If you're looking for a reward it is better to be a pacemaker than a peacemaker.

Virtue is its own reward, but some people seem to think it requires a lot of advertising.

A young man who speaks from experience says it is easier to keep company with a girl than it is to keep a wife.

Why will a woman try to put a No. 6 foot in a No. 4 shoe, then proceed to decorate the other extremity of her person with a hat the size of a cart wheel?

Harding and Harmon.

Life: Mr. Harding seems to have been nominated for governor of Ohio with the idea that he is a good enough man to run against Judson Harmon. To lead the divided Republicans of Ohio against Governor Harmon is not an undertaking in which large accumulations of political capital would naturally seek investment. Mr. Harding seems not to be a very big political capitalist. It will do him good to run against Judge Harmon, for he will get advertisement out of it, but it would hardly have done Mr. Longworth or even James Garfield, any good. The advertisement would not have helped them. Ohio Republicans seem not to be ready yet for a thorough clean up and realignment, and any of them who are now in possession of offices which give them satisfactory opportunities for public service doubtless do well to hang on to what they have got, and let persons who have less to lose experiment with the sentiments of the voters.

THE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL
Is not an experiment, as is proved by the records of the young men and women whom it has sent to college or higher institutions of learning. Their record also proves that intensive study does still yield a positive pleasure.
Our specially trained teachers working with small classes are unusually successful in keeping in touch with their students, who are thus kept in that hopeful attitude so essential to successful efforts. Not mental fulness but mental discipline is our aim.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The principal activity at the Young Women's Christian association this summer, is swimming and the classes which have been conducted for several weeks are among the most popular and successful ever held at the association. Miss Margaret Whipple, the instructor, has been at the association every morning and afternoon except Saturday and Sunday and the pool is filled with ambitious beginners and more accomplished swimmers during the hours it is open. The individual swimming lessons last twenty minutes and each person is allowed to remain in the water a half hour. Miss Whipple has had much success and as a result of these lessons many Duluth girls and women are now able to float and swim in a most satisfactory manner. The lessons will be continued until Sept. 1.

* * *

Three new officials will become identified with the association work this fall. The new general secretary, Miss Ada Campbell will arrive the latter part of this month or the first of September to assure her duties. Miss Parmelee will arrive from the East to assume charge of the physical training department. Miss Parmelee comes to the local association well recommended. She has been engaged in gymnasium work in the East and during September she will organize her classes here and the regular term work will begin in October.

Miss Ada Wilson, who will teach domestic science has already arrived in the city and will plan the classes for the regular school year. An effort will be made to make the domestic science course a special feature of the work. Miss Wilson is now in charge of the cafeteria at the association.

THE DAY'S BEST STORIES

A Real Bargain.

The majority of women may think that they are clever at driving bargains, but the claim is made that there lives a woman without parallel for commercial wit. Some time ago she entered a large store in the city to buy a yard of silk, which the shopman told her would cost 40 cents. Her purchase left a remnant of one and a half yards. The shopman suggested that she should buy the remnant.

"What will you take for it?" asked the woman.

"Thirty cents, madam," replied the man politely.

"Well, I'll take it, but you can keep the yard you've just torn off."

The shopman was staggered for a moment, but appreciating the humor of the proposal, smilingly made the exchange. Not the least merit of this story is that it is true.

Sure of His Ground.

Donald had been to Sunday school, and on coming home was asked what he had learned. The lesson was the story of Joseph, and the small learner was evidently very full of his subject.

"Oh," he said, "it was about a boy, and his brothers took him and put him in a hole in the ground, and then they killed another boy, and took the first boy's coat and dipped it in the blood of this boy, and—"

"Oh me, Donald, not another boy," his sister interrupted, horrified. But Donald stood his ground.

"It was, too," he insisted. Then he added, "the teacher said 'kid', but I don't use words like that."

THE EVENING STORY

THE MAN BELOW

By William O'Neil.

Harry Whitson was heaving anthracite from his "firing-deck" through the double doors of the engine. In front of the fire-box sat Pete Smith, the driver, hand on throttle, eyes on the rails ahead.

Behind rumbled the long special, packed with members of a Masonic order bound to their annual assembly. Every man aboard, including the entire picked crew, belonged to the order. It was "the" train that day. Harry had just taken his third degree. He felt proud to "fire" this trip.

The special slowed down. Something had gone wrong.

Then ba-n-ng! rang an explosion, like the report of a shotgun. So quickly that the sound seemed almost continuous, following the crash of rending metal. A glittering steel bar, rising from below, shattered the castiron running-board and tore through the cab. The air hummed with ragged fragments. Involuntarily the fireman started back to avoid the deadly shower hurtling down the side of the engine.

Too late! A terrible pain smote his right temple; a burst of forked red flame died into utter blackness, and he dropped unconscious on the sloping coal in the tender.

Harry woke, as one might wake from ether, with the surgeons still at work on his head. Great blinding throbs of pain went over him, as he lay numbly, eyes shut, trying to puzzle it out.

Why was he lying there with that specially hard lump of coal under his neck? Something must have struck his head. His knee, too—how it twinged! He tried to rise, but fell back, sick and dizzy, everything awhirl around him.

What was that jumping and clanging? What made the engine jump so? An accident? Yes. That sharp report meant that a crank-pin had sheered off. Now Harry understood it. The parallel rod, thrown loose, was pounding the ties and smashing up through the cab with every revolution of the drivers.

But Pete! Was he living or dead? Thrashed by that awful steel bar, how had he any chance? And there was the engine driverless, racing wild down hill at sixty miles an hour, with 300 unsuspecting passengers behind, and ahead a network of yard tracks and a crowded station.

It was enough to make a man's hair rise. Harry's did. Eyes still shut, he shouted—"Pete! O Pete."

No reply; only the hammering of steel. Again he called; again no answer.

With an immense effort Harry sat up. What was the matter with him? He saw double. Two fire-boxes and four doors wavered dizzily before him. He pressed his fingers on his temples to ease the stabbing pain, and took away two right hands covered with blood. The shock of the iron fragment had effected his optic nerve.

Fortunately, his brain was clear. He rose steadily. He must find out what had happened to Pete. Dragging himself painfully forward, he looked along the flank of the engine.

The worst had happened. The bottom of the cab had been torn away. Its top hung on the boiler, a twisted, battered wreck, and flung under it lay a blue clad body, with one leg swinging losely near the whirling steel flail. Even as he looked the knee bent slightly, and a groan reached his ears. Pete was still alive, but fearfully hurt. Harry saw that the forward end of the running-board had been smashed to splinters, and realized that it was one of the fragments that had struck his head.

But he had not a moment's time to think of himself. The first thing to do was to stop the train. That came ahead even of succor to the engineer. Indeed, it was the quiskest way to aid Pete.

The throttle, reversing lever, and air-brakes were on Pete's side of the cab, so it was not of any use to think of them. Something must be done. He decided to break the connection of the air-pipe, swinging under his feet between engine and tender. To do it he must get down on the step.

Harry reached carefully for the rail and swung down on the left step until he could peer underneath the tender. The dusky space above the rushing ties seemed full of pipes, their connections well in towards the center. Holding on with his left hand, he stretched his right over the hose toward them. His reach fell short by several inches.

Round a curve they whirled, and Harry almost went off backward. Their speed was terrific, not a mile under sixty-five an hour. Scattered houses flitted by. They were entering the outskirts of the city.

The fireman realized that to break the connection he must climb practically under the tender, at that high sped a difficult and dangerous task even for an uninjured man.. How could he do it with his dizzy head and double vision?

He thought of the 300 men behind, ignorant of their peril. Twining his legs round the iron step, he started to push himself under the car.

He pushed out one hand tentatively towards what looked to be the framework of the forward trucks, but touched nothing. Down he lurched. With a strong effort he drew himself back from the roadbed spinning away so fast under his face, trying again.

This time he touched solid iron.

From the ties flashing beneath, the dust rushed up into his face in a hot whirlwind. It blinded his eyes, it choked his mouth with grit. For a second he steadied himself, his hand on the hot iron, his body quivering jelly-like from the jar of the thundering wheels. Suddenly the air cleared. The roadbed grew blacker. Already they were in the railroad yard. The station was less than half a mile ahead.

Harry clutched at a swinging connection, and again his fingers came together without anything between them. It was maddening. It was such a little thing to do, such a simple thing; only the pulling apart of a pipe-joint would bring those rumbling cars and that wild engine, running amuck, like a crazy living thing, to a dead stop. It was a thing he could do with one hand, almost with one finger, if he got hold right.

He made a second clutch at the bulging point, and missed again. He could not afford another mistake. The next time his fingers hooked round a joint, and he pulled up to break it; but it would not give way.

The fireman had a vision of what would happen in a few seconds more. He saw the engine sweep through the barrier and flimsy fence and hurl itself like a battering ram against the granite wall of the waiting room. He saw the cars piling against it and toppling over on each side. He heard shrieks, groans, the hiss and roar of steam.

He gave a strong, sudden jerk, and the pipe snapped apart.

Harry had not time nor strength to get out. The best he could do was to hang there, praying that the brakes might hold. If the engine struck anything he would be smashed to pulp or ground under the wheels.

Far back to the very end of the train he heard a shrieking, a grinding, as the brakes caught at the spinning wheels, hung to them, dragged at them. Would they hold in time? He had done all he could.

A shadow fell over him. The hot blast from beneath suddenly stopped, and the engine roared under the roof of the long train shed. The blare of a band mingled with the rumble of the wheels. Beyond the pipes he saw a company drawn up on parade; he caught fleeting glimpses of white gloves, swords and gold-laced uniforms. The music ceased; cries, alarm, warnings filled the air. He stiffened himself for the final tremendous shock.

The train stopped with a last squeal of brakes.

He tumbled off and glanced forward. An innumerable throng with countless hands outstretched was rushing toward him, but before it closed round him he saw two engines with their noses almost touching the double barrier at the end of the rails.

Careful hands disentangled Pete from his battered cab, and an ambulance hurried him to the hospital. One leg and several ribs were broken, and he was fearfully mauled, but his strong constitution pulled him through all right.

Harry did not get to work again for six weeks. It took him that time to recover his normal eyesight. When he did go back he had an engine of his own.

CORNING

LA FOLLETTE SURE TO WIN

That Is the Belief of Senator Bristow on Return From Tour.

He Gives Out Interview on Reaching Kansas City, Mo.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 19.—"Senator La Follette will carry Wisconsin in the primary election Sept. 6 by from 50,000 to 75,000 majority."

That is what Senator Bristow of Kansas calls a conservative estimate of the Wisconsin situation. The Kansas senator was at the union depot on the way to Salina from a week's campaign tour of La Follette's state.

"It is the most interesting fight in the whole country," Senator Bristow said. "The devotion of La Follette's friends is equaled only by the hatred of the professional politicians and the agents of the special interests for the leaders of all progressives in the senate.

"They told me when I went to Wisconsin," Senator Bristow said, "that they had billed me to speak in the stalwart strongholds. But in every place I spoke, at Oshkosh, Appleton, Madison and even in Milwaukee, the name of La Follette brought the crowds to their feet shouting.

They're Called "Stalwarts."

"You know," said Senator Bristow, "they never use the terms 'standpatter' and 'progressive' up there. When La Follette began his fight years ago on the old machine crowd, his followers were called 'half-breeds,' and the organization Republicans styled themselves 'stalwarts.' The names have remained.

"But the name cuts no figure," Senator Bristow continued with a smile. "In Kansas they call us any old thing—Populists, Democrats, demagogues and holters—and the machine men style themselves 'regulars' in Kansas. But I notice that they stand for the same kind of politics that the 'stalwarts' stand for in Wisconsin, while the Kansas progressives are fighting the same fight against corporation rule that La Follette's 'half-breeds' are contending against in Wisconsin.

Others Work While He's Ill.

"The devotion of La Follette's friends is wonderful," Senator Bristow continued. "La Follette himself is ill. He has not been able to make a speech or take part in the campaign, but he does not lack for campaign managers or workers. The chairman of his campaign committee is one of the leading lawyers of Milwaukee. When he heard that La Follette was ill he closed his office, dropped his own business affairs and went to Madison to manage the fight. That is an illustration of what they are willing to do for him. Any number of men in that state have quit their work to enter the fight for La Follette. 'We are making it our business to elect La Follette,' one man said to me.

Special Interests Are Busy.

"But you can bet the special interests are just as keen to defeat him and there seems to be no lack of money. In one place I was informed that a candidate for the legislature received $2,500 just to stay in the race to divide the La Follette vote so that a 'stalwart' could be named. I heard any number of such rumors of how the special interests are turning their money loose to beat him.

"La Follette will win by not less than 50,000 to 75,000 majority in the primaries. I don't believe there is money enough in Wisconsin to beat him in the election."

May Reply to Aldrich's Reply.

Senator Bristow intimated that while he is resting at Salina he may, incidentally, pay some attention to Aldrich's statement regarding rubber.

"The only point that Aldrich made was that the rubber schedule did not benefit him personally. All the other charges seem to be conceded," the senator said as he went to his train.

"Well, Aldrich admits that his rubber trust paid 18 per cent dividends within ninety days. I figure that Aldrich's share of that was about $90,000. It appears to me that that is something of a personal benefit."

HAS PERPETUAL MOTION SOLVED

Austrian Consul in Vermont Claims to Have Found Secret.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 19.—"The mystery of perpetual motion is no longer a secret. I have solved it. It has taken fourteen years of my life, but now I have reached the goal which I have sought. The world may be skeptical, but I shall convince all. In another week my patents will be applied for, and then I shall prove to every one that by means of my perpetual motion invention the entire mechanical system of industry must be entirely revolutionized," says Karl Grossman, a humble Austrian, living at Proctor, Vt.

Grossman resides in a little cottage on the banks of Otter Creek, in Proctor, among the Green mountains. He holds the position of consular agent, and with the meager salary that it brings him he has been forced to subsist and at the same time carry on his work. He says that it was the elusiveness which has always attached itself to perpetual motion which drew him to begin experiments. He declares that he had been led on and on, step by step, almost without being aware of it, until he had at last achieved success. He asserts that the whole world will be startled when it learns of the results which he says his machine will make possible.

FINDS SISTER BY MEANS OF DREAM

Newark Woman Follows Mysterious Guidance and Reunion Follows.

Gloucester City, N. J., Aug. 19.—Separated for seventeen years and reunited through the agency of a realistic dream, Mrs. Louis Corletto of this city and her sister, Mrs. Laura Cullver of Newark, N. J., had a joyous feast with a lot of glad tears at the home of Harry Johnson, son-in-law of Mrs. Corletto, last night.

The sisters, both then married, parted at Baltimore soon after the death of their father, and drifted into different parts of the country. As the years sped on and they heard nothing of each other, they supposed that death had ended all.

Dreamed About Her.

Recently, at her Newark home, Mrs. Cullver dreamed that her long-lost sister was alive and living in Gloucester. At first she paid no attention to the dream, having not the slightest idea how her mind came to be impressed with Gloucester, as she had never heard of her sister having gone there. The vision seemed to grip her, however, and finally she induced her husband, a Civil war veteran, to write to Postmaster Anderson of Gloucester, asking if Mrs. Corletto lived there.

The postmaster happened to know her and her family, and he promptly supplied the necessary information. The happy reunion quickly followed and the aged sisters have been hard at work ever since trying to tell each other all that has happened to them and their children in the years that have intervened since they parted.

SAYS FAITH IS RESTORING SIGHT

Woman Claims She Is Being Helped According to Scripture.

Reading, Pa., Aug. 19.—After an anointing service conducted in the Followers of Christ church by Bishop H. M. Lengel, Mrs. William E. Ringler, who has been blind for several years, declares that she s regaining her sight. It is the third time that a healing, or anointing service has been held over Mrs. Ringler.

A cataract formed over the woman's eyes and she was unable to see anything. She is a regular attendant at the church, and holds the belief that the healing ceremonies carried out according to the fifth chapter of James, help her. She says it is not the service that heals, but the patient's faith. Mrs. Ringler has not fully regained her sight, but declares she is able to see nearby objects.

LOAD OF HAY IN AEROPLANE ROLE

Farmer Boy Is Carried on It Twenty-Five Feet in Air By Cyclone.

Ft. Wayne, Ind., Aug. 19.—Stacy Helnes, weighing 150 pounds, had a fine view of his father's farm near Andrews, Huntington county.

When loading hay in the barnyard he suddenly found himself enveloped in a cyclone, riding along at a height of twenty-five feet in the air on top of a load of hay. Then he fell, and was short of breath when he hit the ground, but aside from the severe shock and some bruises was unhurt.

The wind was in a merry mood, as shortly before the big "stunt," it caught a pitchfork full of hay and raised it 100 feet in a solid mass, then let go and the hay was strewn over an acre.

FORT WILLIAM MAN LIGHTNING VICTIM.

Fort William, Ont., Aug. 19.—Scullon Olive of this city was instantly killed and another man fatally injured by lightning at a railroad camp near Lake Superior Junction, Thursday.

A bolt of lightning struck the mess shanty while the men were sitting at the dinner table. Five other men were stunned by the shock.

BUFFALO BILL AND HIS WIFE TO BE REUNITED.

North Platte, Neb., Aug. 19.—"Buffalo Bill" Cody and his wife have become reconciled to each other after an estrangement of a number of years. At Scouts' Rest ranch, the Cody home near North Platte, it is said that when the season is over this year Col. Cody will join his wife and pass the winter with her in the old home.

LEMONADE FOR THE MERMAIDS

One Million Lemons to Be Chucked Into Sea From Liner.

New York, Aug. 19.—One million lemons will be spilled on the seas by the crew of the steamer Lapland, which has sailed for Antwerp, as soon as the liner reaches a suitable distance from land.

Ten thousand cases of lemons were brought here by the Lapland to a commission merchant, who refused to accept the consignment because the fruit was overripe.

The health department condemned the lemons and they were dumped into the hold of the Lapland, to be handed into the ocean's keeping on the liner's return trip.

SAYS TILLMAN LIKES WORK ON THE FARM.

New York, Aug. 19.—Miss Lona Tillman, daughter of United States Senator Benjamin R. Tillman, was a pasenger on the steamship Lapland when it left for Europe. Miss Tillman said that her father was enjoying life on his 300-acre farm near Trenton, S. C., and that he worked from 5 in the morning until evening, and liked farming better than politics.

S.S.S. A BLOOD MEDICINE FOR YOUNG OR OLD

We all understand the principle of bodily nourishment—how the blood, loaded with nutritive properties, circulates through the system and constantly supplies the needs of every muscle, nerve, bone and tissue. The majority of human ailments are caused by impure blood, because when the body is supplied with weak, polluted blood the system is deprived of its necessary strength and disease-resisting powers. Children do not develop perfectly, nor are they strong and robust unless the blood is pure and strong, while old people are afflicted with rheumatism, and other attendant troubles of old age, because of a weakened circulation. S. S. S. is made entirely of healing, strengthening, cleansing roots and herbs, the purest and best blood medicine for young and old. It cures every ailment which comes from impure or diseased blood, tones up and regulates every part of the system and creates an abundant supply of nourishment with which to build up the blood. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Malaria, Skin Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison, and all other blood disorders. Book on the blood and any medical advice free.

GOBBLER PROVIDES FINE FROG DINNER

Tears Up Hired Man's Red Shirt and Froggies Take the Bait.

New York, Aug. 19.—Squire Hake Baldwin and a party of friends were furnished with a frog-leg dinner last night by Obadiah, a turkey gobbler the squire is fattening at his Cedar Grove, N. J., home for Thanksgiving Day.

Obadiah, like all turkey gobblers, is incensed at red. The family, for this reason, kept red out of sight. Yesterday, however, the hired man, Hans Oleson, new to the place and with no knowledge of the habits of turkeys, washed out his red flannel shirt and laid it out on the grass to dry. About 6 o'clock in the evening the squire and a party of friends were surprised to see nearly 100 large and small bullfrogs hopping about, unable to croak, with small fragments of red flannel in their mouths. The frogs were caught and killed and eaten.

Obadiah was responsible for the catch. He had torn the red flannel shirt of the hired man to ribbons. The wind had carried the pieces to the swamp, and the frogs, liking red as much as the turkey hated it, had caught themselves.

Squire Baldwin will buy Oleson a gray flannel shirt to replace the one he lost.

LOSE MANY GOOD MEN

High School Eleven Suffers Loss By Graduation and Otherwise.

Central high school students are beginning to speculate on the prospects for football this fall. While there have been a number of disappointments during the summer by reason of some of last year's stars announcing their intention of not returning to Central this fall, the prospect seems fairly bright for a team fast enough to handle the new game.

It is thought very probable that Chauncey Colton will coach the team again this year. Mr. Colton is out of the city at present, but he agreed to do the work again this year if he remained in the city and there is little doubt but that the athletic association will make vigorous efforts to secure him for another season.

The coming season is one in which a good heady coach will be much needed, the revolutionary changes in the game opening up entirely new playing opportunities. The university coaches keep a watchful eye on the earlier high school games under new rules every year and get a lot of useful pointers by this means. A considerable number of last year's sensational forward pass plays pulled off by Western teams were tried out by the high school boys first.

Colton has always been able to evolve a wholly satisfactory system under the radical rule changes of the past few years and he should be able to cope with the present situation satisfactorily.

The Duluth team suffers heavy losses by graduation and otherwise this fall. Larry Boyle, the phenominal little one-armed half back, goes to Wisconsin, having graduated in June. Jim Kelley, who made a record at quarter, is going to Mercersburg academy; Earnest Merritt, sub full back; Russell Mather, center; Art Helmer, tackle, Ben Nelson, guard, and Bill Stevens, the hard plunging full back, are lost by graduation.

Harold Feetham, the snappy little right end of last year's eleven, has gone West and will not be back to school. Asher Taylor has left school for good.

Albert Johnson, tackle, who was chosen captain by last year's eleven, will be back in harness this fall. With him as a nucleus for the new team will be Ralph Waldron, half back; Joe Boyle, likely quarter candidate; Lloyd Le Duc, last year's sub full back; Bob Mars, who made a brilliant record at left end last season; Charles Jeronimus, who is regarded as having a cinch on the right end position to replace Feetham, Harold Kelley, due to replace Helmer at tackle, Mortimer Bondy, last year's hard-working guard, and Rudolph Friemuth, who will make a strong bid for the other guard. There are also a number of men who nearly got there last year and played hard on the second eleven all season who are expected to "arrive" this fall.

The team expects to gain much from the gymnaisum in the new Washington school building as they will have much more comfortable quarters and better facilities for indoor work.

Not until after the election of student manager by the athletic association will there be anything definite in regard to the schedule for the season. This election will probably be made during the first week of school. There is some speculation as to the attitude of the new principal, Prof. Leonard Young, in regard to athletics, and the football enthusiasts are hoping that he will take as active an interest in interscholastic sports as did the retiring head, George W. Buck.

AMERICAN BOATS WIN THIRD RACE

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 19.—The Harpoon, owned by C. F. Adams, II, won the third Spanish-American sonder yacht race off here today. The Beaver was 2¼ minutes behind and the Cima 4½ minutes. All three American boats were well ahead of the Spanish. The Chonta finished fourth, Mosquito II, fifth, and Papoose, sixth.

It was 11:10 o'clock when the competitors were sent away today over a triangular course. The wind was blowing from the Southwest and was very light. It was a beat to the first mark and two reaches to the finish.

The Papoose won the honors at the start, gaining a good position on the weather quarter of the Harpoon. The Mosquito II, was over the line a trifle ahead of the signal and was compelled to return, handicapping her more than a minute.

Five minutes after the start the three American boats were well in the lead, the Harpoon setting the pace. The Cima appeared with a small jib in the place of the usual head sail used by Americans in beating to windward, thus following the Spanish custom.

TENNIS TOURNEY REACHES FINALS

Play in the Northland Country club's tennis tournament was rushed yesterday as a number of the players are due to leave this afternoon for St. Paul where they will play in the state tournament at the courts of the St. Paul Town and Country club.

As a result some of the players played two and three matches during the afternoon. C. K. Dickerman met and defeated Ray Withrow and C. S. Wilson, before he met R. D. Marshall in the semi-finals where he lost two straight sets, the last being a hard fought contest and ending for Marshall, 11-9. Marshall took the first in slapdash style, winning 6-1.

Graff won from Abbott in a hard fought series before he met Washburn, who, after losing the first set, 3-6, took the last two 6-2, 6-4.

This leaves Washburn and Marshall in the finals, and the concluding match will be played after the former's return from the St. Paul tournament.

AUTOMOBILE RACES AT BRIGHTON BEACH.

New York, Aug. 19.—Heavy rain early today packed down the dirt sections of the Brighton Beach track and expectation is high that the 24-hour motor race, starting at 8 o'clock tonight will break the track record. Ralph Mulford made 1,196 miles in a Lozier two years ago.

Nine cars have entered so far in the contest of "twice around the clock." Ralph de Palma will drive a Fiat and Louis Disbrow will be at the wheel of an S. P. O.

Collector of the Port Loeb will start the race.

ELKS HOLD BOXING BOUTS IN MINNEAPOLIS.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minneapolis committee on entertainment for the state convention of Elks, meeting here, pulled off a real glove fight in the Minneapolis gymnasium, Kasota block, last night. It was a bloody affair and was stopped at the end of the third round by the referee, because of the punishment one of the men was receiving.

There were about 100 present when the doors were locked. First there were two three-round preliminaries between youthful boxers. Then came a ten-round glove battle between Mike Memsic of Chicago and Jimmy Potts of Minneapolis. There was no decision and the fighting was tame.

The referee then introduced Al Parish of Minneapolis and Mike Gibbons of St. Paul.

But the fight only lasted three rounds. Parish was no match for Gibbons, who outclassed him in strength and science, and at the end of the first round he was groggy. His seconds brought him around, however, and succeeded in getting him back into the ring. The second round was a repetition of the first, and at the end of the third round the fight was stopped.

SAYS NEW RULES ARE COMPLICATED.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 19.—Walter Camp, head advisory coach of the Yale football association and a member of the intercollegiate rules committte, says the new rules look somewhat complicated. The real test will come in the solving of the rules by the players and the officials, in his opinion. He believed the rules will work a lessening of certain injuries produced by the heavy mass plays of former years.

COOKS CANNOT COME ASHORE

James Whalen, millionaire lumberman of Port Arthur, whose steam yacht is lying in the harbor today has struck on a scheme for keeping cooks that beats anything yet evolved by the American housewife. He employs Chinese in the galley of his yacht and if there is any evidence of a strike, he runs in to an American port and then the "chinks" can't come ashore if they want to.

There are two Chinese on the serving squad of the Sigma today, and this morning they expressed a desire to come ashore and see the city. Mr. Whalen was agreeable and they were preparing to go ashore when immigrant inspector Spawn clambered over the rail. He put a speedy end to all efforts of the Chinese to spend the day sight seing in the city and they went grumbling back to their quarters. They will be forced to stay on the boat until she again touches at a Canadian port, which will not be until the middle of next.

WOMEN HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Three people had a narrow escape from what would have been instant death at Second avenue east and Superior street, early last evening. A heavy plank which had been hoisted to the top of the old Temple building fell from the top, missing two women and a man by but a few inches. The women screamed and nearly fainted. The plank had been brought to the roof to be used in the construction of the large new electric sign which is being built to advertise the new Orpheum theater. It got away from the workmen in some inexplicable manner, crashed through the awning of the drug store on the corner. The building is six stories high and the plank struck the walk with terrific impact.

FRANK DAY GOING OUT TO MEET LIND

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank A. Day, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, left this morning for his home in Fairmont. Before he returns to St. Paul, it is understood that Mr. Day will go West to meet John Lind, the Democratic nominee for governor, and lay before him the particulars of the situation in the party and state.

GAYNOR IS IN FINE CONDITION

New York, Aug. 19.—The following official bulletin on Mayor Gaynor's condition was issued snortly after 8 o'clock this morning:

"The mayor slept well and is in excellent condition this morning. Temperature, pulse and respiration normal, and all symptoms are favorable."

Mayor Gaynor awoke today from a refreshing night's rest and seemingly much improved in spirits and strength. His physicians said he had a fine night. Mr. Gaynor will leave the hospital in Hoboken within ten days practically cured, one of his attending physicians said this morning.

No Need of Operation.

The physician further stated that there are no present indications necessitating an operation and that the bullet, lodged in the neck, gave the mayor no inconvenience and would not if it remained there the rest of his life. The bullet probably would become encysted, the physician said, and the worst that could be looked for would be a slight suppuration and that could be as easily treated as a case of quinzy sore throat.

The wound in the mayor's neck is nearly healed and the scar that will be left will be hardly noticeable.

RAT ASPHYXIATES STOREFUL OF PESTS.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 19.—Rats opened a cock in the gas apparatus in the store of Charles R. Hillberg of Brockton, the other evening, and when the clerks arrived to open the store they were greeted with the odor of gas. The store was aired out, and when the clerks tried to enter they discovered hundreds of the pests dead.

"I'm tickled to smash," said Manager Frank Youngquist when he saw what remarkable good had been done.

"I only wish this rat that turned the juice on had discovered it before."

"HOODOO BUILDING."

It Claims Two More Victims When Men Fall Three Floors.

Hammond, Ind., Aug. 19.—By the fall of a stairway in the Tapper block here, Paul Prince and Thomas Lewandski, employed in the construction of the building, were fatally injured today. The Tapper block is known as the "Hoodoo" building, two other men having been killed while it was being constructed. Prince and Lewandski fell three floors to the ground below.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

A POLITICAL DUCK DINNER

Cass County Candidates Discuss Their Chances While Eating Mallards.

Alleged to Have Violated the Law and Game Warden May Prosecute.

Walker, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Deputy Game Warden Toole is on the war path for violators of the game and fish laws in Cass county, and a wild duck dinner reported to have been served to Cass county officials at Federal Dam will serve to stir up the "sooners" of the county within the next few days.

It is said that several county officials while at Federal Dam in the interests of their candidacy were served with Mallard ducks at the hotel there which is operated by Ed. Warren, and the officials along with others are to be subpoenaed as witnesses in the case.

Going After Indians Too.

Reports of the sale of wild ducks have come to the ears of Game Warden Toole, as well as the sale of white fish in Walker by Indians. Mr. Toole states that Indians selling white fish and game out of season, can be dealt with the same as a white person, even though the game was secured on reservation grounds. Indians have boasted that they are immune and a test case will probably be had in this county in a few days, or as soon as sufficient evidence is secured.

The outcome of the political duck dinner is receiving considerable discussion among sportsmen and others, just at present, as it is thought that in securing evidence for this case that Game Warden Toole will unearth cases of law violation from unexpected quarters.

Duck are unusually numerous in the Leech Lake country this season.

BRAINERD BOY KILLS SISTER

Accidentally Discharges Rifle Causing Death of Child Born in Duluth.

Brainerd, Minn., Aug. 19.—Dorothy Buchman, aged 3 years, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Buchman, was accidentally killed yesterday afternoon by her brother Sidney, aged 7.

The little one was in the kitchen of their home and Sidney was out in the yard cleaning a 22 repeating rifle, and pointing the weapon in her direction the gun was accidentally discharged. The bullet passed through the kitchen door and striking the girl in the left eye, penetrated the brain. She died a short time after.

Mr. and Mrs. Buchman were formerly residents of Duluth, where they lived eighteen years, Mr. Buchman being manager of a store. He has resided here the last year and is the owner of a mercantile company. The body was taken to Duluth for burial.

Vivian Dunn, 2½ years old, died Wednesday afternoon of stomach and bowel trouble. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Dunn. The funeral was held today from St. Francis Catholic church, the Rev. Father O'Mahoney officiating.

HOUSE FLY IS INFANT'S BANE

Insect Pest Blamed for Large Baby Mortality in North Dakota.

Bismarck, N. D., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—One-fifth of all of the deaths in North Dakota since Jan. 1 have been of babies less than 1 year old, and the causes of such deaths in a majority of the instances have been preventable. The common house fly, Secretary J. Grassick of the state board of health declares, is the greatest destroyer of infant life.

The number of deaths that have occurred in the state since the first of the year is approximately 2,300, or an average of about 325 a month. Of this number, if the reports are correct, over 450 of those deaths were of babies less than 1 year old.

Principal causes, according to health officials, are the failure of parents to manifest any seeming knowledge of even the most simple and commonplace health rules, such as diet, lack of proper care and exposure.

Many Births During July.

While this remarkable condition is revealed by the vital statistics, an even more interesting situation is revealed in the birth records which for July were the highest for any month in the state history. There were 1,145 births last month, and only 325 deaths. One-eleventh of all the births occurred in Ward county, which led with 109 new arrivals, while one-sixth of all the deaths occurred in Cass county, which reported fifty-eight.

Quarantine regulations have been ordered put into effect in North Dakota whenever cases of infantile paralysis are found. Recent ravages of the plague in other states, and the fact that one or two cases have been reported in this state, has resulted in this action.

The order providing for the quarantine was issued by the state board of health through Secretary J. Grassick of this city. It will be rigidly enforced, the officials say.

YOUNG HUNTER KILLS HIMSELF

Northern Minnesota Nimrod of 10 Blows Off His Head.

Warroad, Minn., Aug. 19.—While out with a gun near the home of his parents, this week, near Salol, located between Warroad and Roseau, the 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Westman, was instantly killed.

He was found shortly afterwards, but it will never be known just how the accident happened. The gun was found lying beside him and it is supposed that the trigger caught on a twig, discharging the shot.

A sad feature of the case is that his mother has just undergone a serious surgical operation a few days before, and the shock of her son's fate has nearly killed her.

Montana Crop Conditions Bad.

Bemidji, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The condition of the crops in Montana is anything but roseate, according to a letter received here by Andrew Johnson from a friend who formerly resided here, but who moved west a few years ago, being lured thither by the glowing statements of some land agents of Montana.

According to the writer of the letter, many former Minnesotans with whom he is acquainted are looking longingly toward the Gopher state and wishing they were back here again where they once lived in contentment.

New Crosby, N. D., Church.

Crosby, N. D. Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Crosby Catholics, as a result of the first visit here of the new bishop, the Rt. Rev. PROMISING CHILDREN.

Son and Daughter of Former North Dakota Editor Doing Well.

Bismarck, N. D., Aug. 19.—A letter from Mrs. J. M. Quinn, wife of J. M. Quinn, formerly with the Tribune back in the eighties, and later with the Butte, Mont., Miner, and who had a state and national reputation as a writer of clever articles, states that their daughter, Josa Madelon Quinn, is making a hit as a reader and impersonator in sketches of child life.

She has received flattering notices from many public men and newspapers in her work, which is remarkable for a girl of 10 years. She expects to give a recital in Butte the latter part of September, and will pass through Bismarck, and arrangements will probably be made for a recital in Bismarck under the auspices of some local club or church organization.

Stanley Quinn, who was born in Bismarck, and was known as the "Tribune Baby," is making good as a newspaper man, being now exchange editor of the New York Sun. He has been doing assignment work, and recently covered the hospital story of Mayor Gaynor after his shooting. Stanley is also keeping up his law studies.

UNIVERSITY WELL FIXED.

Minnesota Institution Has Large Amount of Surplus Cash.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 19.—The University of Minnesota started its fiscal year Aug. 1, 1910, with nearly a half million dollars greater balance on hand, than it had at the beginning of its fiscal year in 1909. There is on deposit to its credit, according to figures in the office of the state treasurer, $564,393.67. There was on hand Aug. 1, 1909, $85,896.77.

The appropriations to the university during the year, which recently closed, amounted to $812,000. The receipts from tuition, interest on the permanent university fund, state aid from taxes and government appropriation, amounted to $616,748.38. The total disbursements, including salaries not only of the university teachers, but of the school of agriculture operated in connection with it, amounted to $959,244.

The unusually large amount on hand is accounted for in a great measure by the appropriations made at the last session of the legislature for new buildings.

TO INCREASE CITY DEBT.

People of Dickinson, N. D. to Vote on Proposition.

Dickinson, N. D., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.—In order that this city may secure a complete sewage system a special election will be held on Aug. 30 to vote on the proposition of increasing the debt limit. At the same time a bond issue of $70,000 will be voted on.

Heretofore it has been the policy of the city to retain the 4 per cent bond limit only, and as a result the municipal improvement work has not been pushed very rapidly.

PROSSER ABUSED WOMAN.

Evidence Favorable to Accused Introduced at Her Trial.

Libby, Mont., Aug. 19.—The trial of Mrs. Vera Prosser for the alleged murder of her divorced husband, Reese T. Prosser, aboard a Great Northern train near here, is prolific of sensation. Sheriff M. A. Shanahan testified that when he arrested Mrs. Prosser she had $5,350 in cash and a dozen large diamonds. He said the woman told how her husband called her unspeakable names and grabbed her by the throat, and how she then reached out and got a gun and shot him.

Mrs. Thomas Coulter of Lisbon, Ohio, told of Prosser having been continually intoxicated while Mrs. Prosser roomed with her, and of Mrs. Prosser's frenzied infatuation for Prosser, despite the fact he had cut off her hair and flaunted his unfaithfulness before her face. Dr. W. E. Morris of Cleveland, Ohio, in a deposition, told of Prosser having kicked the woman until she was temporarily insane, in which state she talked only of her great love for him. Evidence in connection with Prosser following their divorce was given by T. J. Roachford, an automobile salesman of Seattle, of incidents in a room at the Butler hotel.

Evidence was adduced to show that Prosser had coaxed his divorced wife to accompany him to Cleveland as his mistress. A nurse is constantly at the side of Mrs. Prosser. Several times she appeared on the verge of collapse, and only the prompt attention of her nurse prevented a repetition of the scene on the opening day of the trial, when the court was compelled to adjourn because of hysteria of the fair defendant.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Duluth lost two close games to the Outcasts yesterday, the first contest going to Safford's braves by the score of 5 to 4, the second going against Duluth by a 4 to 3 score.

The first game was won by the Outcasts by gathering four runs in the fifth inning, after the Sox had gathered a three-run lead. The second contest went fourteen innings, and was one of the hardest games seen here the present season.

Squires, a new pitcher, was tried out in the first game, but was driven from the rubber in the third. Watson replaced the youngster and held the Sox during the remainder of the game. Hughes was invincible, except in the fifth inning, when five hits were bunched off the college kid. Errors in the fifth by Kohl and Holstrom also counted in the La Crosse score.

The second game was a pitching duel between Watson and Blancke. La Crosse bunched three runs in the fifth inning, through two singles, a base on balls, a stolen base and Blancke's wild throw over second, in trying to get a runner at the bag. A pass, an error and two singles gave the Sox three in the seventh.

The winning run was scored in the fourteenth inning, when the two Andersons became mixed over a fly. Wais beat out a bunt and Kuehn drove a line hit over J. Anderson's head.

The fielding on both sides was fast and shut off several chances to score. The Sox played the best ball they have shown here this present season.

WINONA TAKES TWO GAMES FROM SUPERIOR.

Winona, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Superior continued its losing streak, dropping both games of a double header to the Pirates yesterday, Winona winning the first game by the score of 2 to 1 and the second by a 3 to 2 score.

Dick Thorsen was on the mound in both games for the Dukes. He held Winona to five hits in the first game and eight in the second. With good support the tall blonde might have copped both contests. His support in the two games was very poor at times, the errors and slow playing of the visitors counting in the run getting of the Pirates.

In the first game Wagner pitched lovely ball, holding the Red Sox to three hits and causing twelve of the visitors to retire via the whiff route.

Pearl gave way to Baillies in the second game, the Winona star finishing strong. The game was won in the ninth on a single by Curtis, Crangle reaching first on an attempted sacrifice, Davey's sacrifice and Goodman's sacrifice fly. Scores:

LEADRRS SCORE SHUTOUT OVER ROCHESTER SURGEONS.

Eau Claire, Wis., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The leaders yesterday shut out Rochester by the score of 7 to 0. Morrow held the Doctors to seven scattered hits, and when a hit meant a run he was invincible. Chase was hit hard, and in addition was wild at critical stages of the game. Callahan's great throw from the outfield to the plate furnished the feature of the game.

Carter, who was with the team earlier in the season, and who has been with Wausau, has been recalled to take Russ Bailey's place. Bailey has blood poisoning of the arm, and may be out of the game for the rest of the season. Score:

BURNS THINKS HE CAN "COME BACK"

TOMMY BURNS.

Tommy Burns is anxious for another chance at Jack Johnson and believes he can beat the colored champion. Burns has been condemned by sporting writers because he is shrewd enough to drive a good bargain in every fight he goes in. He admits that he is in the business to make money and it is said that he has accumulated quite a respectable bank roll. Burns thinks well of Bill Lang, the Australian fighter, who is to box Kaufmann this week. Burns got a decision over Lang in Australia.

BINGHAMS WILL PLAY OFF GAME

Officials of Duluth-Superior League Allow Protest Against Duluth Heights.

As a result of a meeting of the directors of the Duluth-Superior league, held last night, the Oak Halls of this city are declared the leaders in the fight for first honors in the league, the Binghams of Superior and Duluth Heights being tied for second place.

The Duluth Heights and the Superior team will play a protested game that was thrown out at the meeting last night, next Sunday, the winner of that game playing a series of three games with the Oak Halls for the league championship.

The Binghams protested the game of last Sunday, which was won by the New Duluths. It was claimed by the Superior management that Cather Nord of the New Duluth team was a player who had formerly been with Hayward, Wis., and that he was playing under an assumed name. The protest was not backed by evidence.

The other protest of the Binghams, on the game played May 8 against the Duluth Heights, and won by the Duluth team by the score of 9 to 0, was allowed, on the grounds that Third Baseman Mueller of the Duluth team had signed two contracts.

At a meeting to be held later in the season, the pennant will be awarded and other official business of the league wound up.

"Cyclone" Thompson Wins.

Aurora, Ill., Aug. 19.—"Cyclone" Thompson, a contestant for lightweight championship honors defeated Eddie Latham, a Canadian, here last night. Referee Mattie Fitzpatrick stopped the fight in the third round. A large crowd saw the contest.

LEGG HAS A HARD MATCH

Champion Is Playing Crack Golfer From Omaha Club.

Minneapolis Man Had Narrow Escape From Elimination Thursday.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 19.—The contest between H. G. Legg of Minikahda and F. H. Gaines of Omaha, probably will be the hardest match of the trans-Mississippi golf tournament. Gaines has played splendid golf in the present tournament and if he plays to form doubtless will give Legg a hard match.

Lawrence Bromfield, the Denver boy, who is the only local golfer left in the championship match, is paired with W. M. Sheehan. Sheehan has had long experience on the links. Bromfield has greater familiarity with the course.

The seventy-two holes of medal play for professionals, an innovation in the trans-Mississippi tournament, promises splendid scores.

Larry Auchterlonie, of the Evanston club, Kansas City, is looked upon as the winner, with Willie Dow, of Hutchinson, as the runner up.

The third round of match play at thirty-six holes in the trans-Mississippi golf tournament showed the best golf of the week.

Grant Chamberlain of Hutchinson, Kan., caught Legg of Minikahda off his game and gave him a terrific match yesterday, losing one down in thirty-seven holes.

Chamberlain missed a 12-foot putt on the eighteenth green of the association round. If he had run it down, it would have put Legg out of the semi-finals.

It was pure luck that Chamberlain did not put the champion out of the running in the thirty-sixth green. He was well on the green in three and had a 12-foot putt for a four, and that match, but the ball struck the iron rim of the cup and bounced out.

John C. Fennell, of Kansas City was re-elected president and Frank Hoel of Omaha secretary. Frank L. Woodward of Denver was elected vice president.

ALLEGRO HAD A GOOD LEAD

Duluth Boat Lost Time When the Wind Died Down.

Oshkosh, Wis., Aug. 19.—Phantom and Cubanola of White Bear and Patsy of Oshkosh won the three races of the Inland Lake regatta here yesterday. In the Class B the Duluth Boat club took third place with Allegro, while Navaled finished ninth in Class A.

The morning contest practically cinched the Class B championship for White Bear and insured Allegro as finishing third. It is unlikely that today's races will change the standing.

In Class A a tie exists between Phantom and Marian Jean for first place. Which ever of those two boats comes in first tomorrow will be champion.

The races were sailed in a falling wind, which blew first from the northeast and then from the north. During the morning at the start the boats had all the wind they wanted, and Allegro showed up better than at any time heretofore. She led Iris for the first four miles, but as the wind fell the Minnetonka boat pulled ahead. Allegro got across the starting line first, but the White Bear boat soon took the lead and increased it on every leg of the course. At the finish she had a lead of over seven minutes. In the Class A race in the afternoon the White Bear boat also took the lead early in the race during the second mile, and held it throughout.

The Duluth yachtmen are considering a proposition to join in a regatta to be held on either White Bear or Minnetonka during the second or third week in September. Races will be held on three days in Classes A and B. Commodore C. A. Vandever of Minnetonka has offered a cup, and others will be provided by the clubs. The Minnetonka Yacht club, the Lakeside Yacht club and the Duluth Boat club will take part.

MUCH INTEREST IN SUNDAY GAME.

Great interest is being shown in the Fitwell-Cloquet game, which will be played at Athletic park Sunday afternoon. Each team has a side bet of $100 up, and in addition, the winning team will receive the long end of the gate receipts.

There is great rivalry between the teams, from the fact that there has been a dispute over several of the games played the present season. Many Cloquet rooters will be present to cheer their team on to victory. It is expected that one of the largest crowds of the season will be present.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE.)

Lacking Spirit.

Since the sad events at Kenora, members of the Duluth Boat club have organized some eight-oared races, with the idea that material would be developed, and the spirit of rowing would be fanned to a white heat of enthusiasm during the remainder of the season.

What has been the result of this effort upon the officials of the club?

All of the older men of the club have been out pretty regularly, while the members of the junior eight have been prevented from practicing because some of the men who rowed at Kenora have not been out since the crew returned from the Canadian water resort.

The races were arranged with the idea that the junior oarsmen would be the ones to be the most benefitted by the practice, and certainly the crew needs practice. The juniors have failed to get out, and the old men, who went into the thing to help the juniors, have become enthused and are out to win the race of next Saturday.

If the juniors fail to get out the present week, that is, before the race is called Saturday, they are very liable to be defeated by the older men. Men who row but a short time during the course of an early training period, seldom acquire that proficiency with the oars that results in the making of first class oarsmen.

"I will tell you why Duluth failed to win of recent years," said an old time oarsman the other day. "The men here act as if they do not like to row. In the old days we rowed often and at every opportunity, because we were in love with the sport. We rowed as early in the spring as we could get on the water, and we also rowed in the fall. We were out to win, and we did win some races in those days."

There are some men at the boat club who apparently really like to row; there are other members of the crew who do not seem to care anything about the sport. When a man rows from a sense of duty, he generally falls down at some stage of the season. Perhaps if some of the active oarsmen at the club were more in love with the rowing game, the success of the crew would be greater than it has been in the past.

We Love Our Heroes.

In cultured Boston, where they will go to great lengths in the support of beliefs and ideals, as instance the Boston tea party and the rigid adherence to the bean diet, they are saying that Tris Speaker, the man from Texas, is a greater ball player than Tyrus Cobb, the idol of the Detroit fans.

The war has become one in which the citizens of the two cities are intensely interested. In Boston they will rise up from the discussion of Henry James and the new thought idea, to declare with that firmness of opinion that made the repulse of the British invaders at the battle of Bunker Hill so thorough a success, that when it comes to fielding and all-round ability, in the many details that go to make up a finished and artistic fielder, that there can be no comparison between Speaker and Cobb.

Detroit is more to the Western mode of thought: impulse, enthusiastic and all fired rabid about anything. We might class the argument as Carrie Nation engaging in debate with a quiet lady of the Mrs. Eddy type.

Just how the argument will end, heavens, who can say? Because Cobb is batting so well at the present time, they have started in Boston that Speaker would easily bat at a .400 clip, were he to stop riding in that pecky auto of his.

They cherish ideals in Boston; as proof of this, it might be stated that they have gone almost consuming beans for many years. Luxurious and progressive years. Other cities have dropped their stern diet of early days for the more fancy and delicate dishes of modern days, but the New England conscience is grim and enduring—hence the beans, hot, cold and indifferent.

This trait will help the Bostonese in their defense of the ability of Speaker. Even if he has a batting slump, these cold New Englanders will stick to the argument. Detroit is more to the enthusiasm and quick to forget style.

If Cobb should have a batting slump, these Detroiters are very liable to come out and say that Speaker is the better player of the two. Boston isn't that way in the least—and so, figuring that way, Boston is liable to win the argument.

Uncle Sam, Be Careful.

Some of you might have observed the very low score made at Chicago Saturday in the all-round championships of the United States. The score of the winner was far below the score made by Martin Sheridan, a year ago. This brings us to the point—what will the track teams of America, which have been so successful in winning the high honors of the Olympian games do, should athletes like Sheridan, Shepperd and Flanigan retire?

Flanagan has been a policeman in New York for some time past. The other day some purist reformer caused the big hammer thrower to lose his job. It is stated that the big Celt has departed for Canada, and that his services will be lost to the teams of the United States.

In times past Sheridan, Shepperd and Flanigan have been the chief asset in our winning of the honors at the international meets. If Uncle Sam allows these men to go out before their time, some of the other countries may sneak in and cop the coveted honors.

The which might remind Uncle Samuel that he had best be careful. We love our purist reformers—sometimes—but, oh, you Olympian honors.

Exercise and Exercise.

There are those who look upon canoeing as a means of exercise gentle and to the tender mollycoddle brand. There are, however, those who know very better. Canoeing is one of the most strenuous of all exercise, when one goes about it in a busy and thoroughly earnest manner. Sore arms and a general fatigue will testify to this, when one, or two, have taken a paddle that is worthy of the name.

Down at the boat club they are seriously thinking of turning some of the oarsmen loose in the canoes, as some of the rowing overseers believe that after a strenuous time in the canoes, with aching forearms and lame side muscles, the rowers will be so glad to work like the very blazes in their little shells.

A strenuous canoe race from Oatka to the main house will dispell the notion that canoeing is one of the down at the heel sort of exercises.

BOOSTER DAY WILL BE GREAT CELEBRATION.

Preparations for Booster day were completed yesterday afternoon. Tickets will be out today and will be placed at the various downtown stores. It is expected that over 2,000 tickets will be disposed of in the business district of the city.

The team will return home next Tuesday, and it is planned to give the Sox the biggest welcome that a Duluth team ever received. The new owners of the club have worked hard for a winning combination, and at the present time the Sox are playing the best baseball they have played the present season. The Booster day celebration is planned to show the members of the team that the improved playing and the new spirit of the members is appreciated by the fans.

TENNIS PLAYERS LEAVE FOR STATE TOURNAMENT.

Tennis players who will represent the Duluth Boat club in the state tennis tournament which opens in Minneapolis tomorrow afternoon will leave for Minneapolis this afternoon.

The Duluth team will be composed of Lauren Kennedy, Mack Washburn, John Sinclair, Carroll Graff, Ralph Davis, Walter Amundson, Edmund Ingalls and C. G. Dickerman. John Sinclair will go in the place of C. C. Colton, who is out of the city at the present time.

Play will begin tomorrow afternoon and will continue through next week. Here it is expected that Washburn and Kennedy will do something in the doubles, and that Kenledy will make a strong showing in the singles. He is playing the best tennis of his career, and unless there are some very strong stars at the state meet, Kennedy should show up with the first two or three leaders.

Ties Cy Young's Record.

Davenport, Iowa, Aug. 19.—Faber of Dubuque yesterday tied the Cy Young world's record, allowing no hits and no Davenport player reached first base in nine innings. Faber pitched wonderful ball and was given faultless support. Score:

	R.	H.	E.

Yacht Columbia Wins.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—The Columbia of the Columbia Yacht club, skipped by U. J. Hermann easily won the first of the series of races for the Sir Thomas Lipton cup on Lake Michigan yesterday over a triangular course of two nautical miles to each leg twice around. The Columbia finished with a margin of ten minutes over the second boat, the Jackson Park. The race was sailed in one of the stiffest blows of the season.

Rain Spoils Tennis.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 19.—A heavy rain that fell during the early hours this morning put the courts at the Casino in bad condition and it was doubtful whether any of the matches in the fifth round of the thirtieth annual all-comers lawn tennis singles championship of the United States would be played today. It was stated that if it stopped in time to let the covered courts dry out a little, play probably would be started this afternoon.

INTEREST AT HIGH PITCH

Keen Rivalry Will Feature Motor Boat Race Saturday.

Three Eight-Oared Crews Will Also Race for Cup.

Interest is at a high pitch in the motor boat race scheduled for tomorrow afternoon, between Dick Schell's new flyer, the Little Bob, owned by Julius Barnes, and the Dingle Capitol, owned by Mack Cook, as well as several outside boats, which will start.

At the present time Commander William Tecumseh Jones, in charge of the Little Bob, is anxiously awaiting the arrival of a new wheel for the new craft that was built at Lake Geneva. If the wheel does not arrive, the men who have been trying out the Little Bob claim that the boat will not be at her best in the big speed contest of tomorrow.

There is an intense air of mystery surrounding the meeting. No one seems to have a line on either of the two boats that are supposed to cut out the racing from the crack of the starting gun. It is known that the new Schell boat is very fast, in fact, one of the fastest boats in the Northwest. Just how fast the Little Bob will prove to be in the race of tomorrow, is a mystery that is helping to create an intense amount of interest in the race.

It is rumored along motor boat lane that Mister Jones has a card up his sleeve, which he will proceed to spring on Brother Schell at the last minute.

The story alloweth as how William Tecumsch has a nice new wheel, which he knows will do to a nicety, and that this wheel will be fitted on the Little Bob at the last moment.

Richard has heard several of these stories yesterday, and they do say that a worried and somewhat perturbed look o'erspread his countenance. But then he was himself again quite soon, and with a confidence supreme expressed the opinion that this new boat would be the first over the line.

Several very knowing people down at the boat club have seen the new Schell boat in action, and they say that the boat is awfully fast. It is hoped that the new wheel for the Little Bob arrives in time for the race, as the Lake Geneva craft is handicapped with the present wheel.

In addition to the big motor boat event of the season, there will be the final of the three-cornered race between the three eights.

The older oarsmen are out to win first honors in the race of tomorrow. The crew which wins the race will have the honor of holding the Duluth Boat club cup for a year, and will also have the names of its members inscribed on the loving trophy.

Every night the present week the seniors have been out. "Ham" Peyton has been added to the crew, for the older men are out for blood. The bantams have also put in a week of strenuous practice. The smaller men won the race of last Saturday and will be the favorites in the race of tomorrow.

The juniors were out last night for the first practice of the season. The men of the Forgette boat have at last come to, realizing that they will have to row their very best if they expect to beat out the ambitious seniors.

Taking into consideration the feeling between the three boats, the race tomorrow should be one of the very best ever contested for at the club. The race will be for a mile, the same crews that competed last Saturday being entered.

McGraw Suspended.

New York, Aug. 19.—President Thomas B. Lynch of the National league indefinitely suspended Manager John J. McGraw of the New York Nationals yesterday for protesting against the decisions of Umpires Rigler and Emslie in the recent Pittsburg-New York series on the Polo Grounds.

World's Record Lowered.

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Gomar, driven by Harrison at the Orange county driving park association track lowered by one second the world's trotting record for one mile on a half-mile course, without pace-maker. His time was 2:08½.

BOY SENT TO THE REFORMATORY

James Fowley pleaded guilty to a burglary charge before Judge J. D. Ensign of the district court this morning. He was sent to the reformatory.

Fowley broke into the Fiebiger hardware store and took a number of revolvers. He admitted his guilt almost as soon as arrested and was anxious to do anything to get out of the trouble.

Fowley is but a boy, being only 17 years old. He has been employed on one of the large boats as a deck hand. He is said to have had a good home, but after leaving it fell in with bad company. He is said to have been in a number of scrapes since he began his life as a sailor about a year ago. For a time he went under the name of George Roach.

SCHOOL CLOSES SUCCESSFUL RUN

The night school that has been conducted by Miss Catherine Shearer and under the auspices of the deputy state factory inspector, closed last night after a very successful summer's run.

This night school is not the same as the one maintained last winter by the associated charities although the object of the two schools are identical and many of the pupils of the other school continued their course at the one which has just closed.

Four rooms in the old Washington building have been in use for the past four weeks and they have contained in all, upwards of sixty students.

The students for the most part consist of laboring men and the education has been mostly along the lines of citizenship and what it means.

As a result of the school some twenty-two foreigners have taken out their papers.

GENERAL PASSENGER AGENT IN CITY.

Thomas W. Teasdale, general passenger agent of the Omaha railway, and for the past thirty days an employe of that company, is in Duluth today.

Mr. Teasdale stated in reply to a query as to the passenger business that the business of the Omaha was very good at the present time and that the other railroads of the West seemed to be getting their share.

O. D. KINNEY VISITS CITY

O. D. Kinney of Athens, Pa., for more than a score of years a resident of Duluth and St. Louis county, is in the city for a few days on business. He has made his home in the Pennsylvania city for five years, but does not spend much of the time there.

Mr. Kinney, when asked what he thought of the political situation, brushed the question aside with the emphatic assertion that he has been out of politics for many years and doesn't know a thing about it.

Mr. Kinney's walks about the business section of town took on the appearance of a progressive reception, so many of his old friends took advantage of the opportunity to shade hands with him. He is staying at the Kitchi Gammi club.

TWO SMALLPOX PATIENTS FOUND

Two smallpox cases were taken to the pest house by the authorities of the health department yesterday. One was brought in by the police and the other was discovered in a Bowery lodging house. These are the first cases of smallpox with which the city has had to deal for several months. The man picked up last night declared that he is an actor who has been playing in one of the theaters in Superior. He stated that he suspected that he was down with smallpox and that he had come to Duluth to consult a physician. The officials fear that the other case may have resulted in exposures which will cause several new cases which have not yet been reportd. The victim was in a lodging house and had been there for over a week, coming into contact with many people who did not suspect what ailed him.

GOTHAM GARAGES TO INCREASE CHARGES.

New York, Aug. 19.—Although automobile garage charges in New York City are already higher than in most other cities, it is announced that the proprietors have decided on a horizontal increase in the rates. The increase will average about 20 per cent. There will be no attempt to establish a uniform rate throughout the city, but the proprietors will add to their present charges according to the location of the garages.

SAYS SHE MARRIED DR. HARRY B. KEELER.

New York, Aug. 18.—The Brooklyn police have received a letter dated Pittsfield, Ill., from a woman signing herself "Mrs. Lou Ashton," who claims she married Dr. Harry B. Keeler, who, the police charge, had a habit of marrying women, taking their money and leaving them. Mrs. Ashton says she married Keeler in 1897 and that after taking $1,200 of her money he deserted her in Detroit. Mrs. Ashton writes that she recognized Keeler's picture as that of the man who married her under the name of J. M. Baker.

Dr. Keeler was recently arrested in Detroit charged with the larceny of money from Mrs. Wilhelmina Lynch.

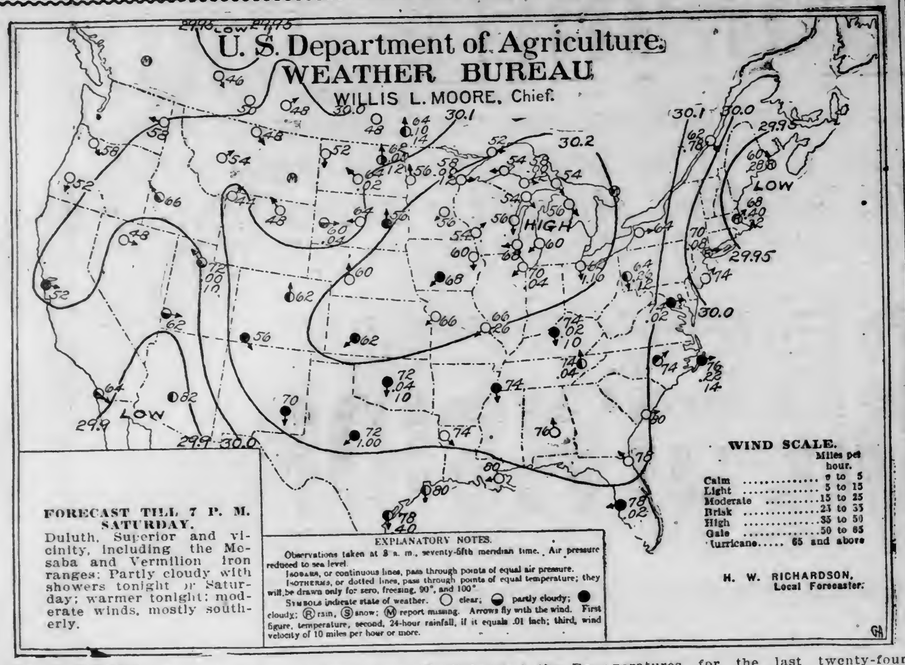
OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER



RAIN

Each day of the present spell of weather seems, if possible, more nearly perfect than the last. Cloudless skies, cool, clear, refreshing air and light breezes make the kind of days and nights that are meant to be spent out of doors. It is the kind of weather Duluth is becoming noted for. If it was made to order it could not be more satisfactry as summer weather.

The weather man looks for showers tonight, but they are not expected to be of long duration.

A year ago today the weather was much like it is today.

The sun rose this morning at 5:10 and will set at 7:13 p. m., making fourteen hours and three minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The barometer has fallen quite decidedly throughout the entire Northwest in connection with a depression developing over Alberta. This condition has resulted in somewhat warmer weather in Saskatchewan, Manitoba, the Dakotas, Nebraska and the greater portion of the Rocky Mountains and far West, together with scattered showers over Manitoba and the Dakotas. Low pressures central over Arizona and off the New England coast have caused light to copious rains over Texas, North Atlantic states and the lower St. Lawrence valley. A high pressure area central over the Lake region has brought cooler weather over the greater portion of that district as well as the Ohio and upper Mississippi valleys. Indications rather favor local showers at the Head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Saturday:

Iowa—Fair tonight and Saturday; warmer tonight in north portion.

Minnesota—Generally fair tonight and Saturday; slightly warmer tonight.

North and South Dakota and Montana—Generally fair tonight and Saturday.

Brains Rule This World—

Not muscle, but brains governing muscle.

The quality of brain can be changed by certain selection of food.

A food expert perfected a brain-building food by preparing certain elements in wheat and barley in a way that nature would make use of. That food is

In it the Potassium Phosphate, obtained from nature's grains (not from the drug shop) is retained in minute particles. This has an affinity for Albumen, and these two with water make the soft gray matter in the brain and nerve centers.

ASKS BIG SUM FOR LOSS OF AN EYE

Woodsman Brings Action Against Virginia & Rainy Lake Company.

The sight of the right eye is worth $30,000 in the opinion of Jalmer Tempera, who filed a complaint in a personal injury action against the Virginia & Rainy Lake Lumber company with the clerk of the district court yesterday.

He alleges that while employed as a swamper by the concern, a chip flew from the ax of a fellow workman, hitting him in the eye. He claims that through an agreement with the company he paid $1 a month for medical attendance. This, he says, was not furnished him.

He states that the eye will probably have to be removed.

WIDOW WINS IN LEGAL BATTLE

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 19. — Mrs. W. H. Felton, the aged widow of a once distinguished Georgia congressman, won her fight against the Louisville & Nashville railroad to compel the rebuilding of a side track on her plantation near Cartersville.

Mrs. Felton, opposed by fifteen railroad attorneys, argued her complaint before the Georgia railroad commission and the commission has handed down its decision ordering that the track on her property be restored.

MRS. J. J. HILL SUES FOR GRANDCHILD

New York, Aug. 19.—For several weeks, the Times says today, a referee has been taking testimony in an action brought by Mrs. James J. Hill, wife of the chairman of the board of directors of the Great Northern railroad, to get the custody of her granddaughter, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hill. Samuel Hill, who was no relative of the family, married the eldest daughter of James J. Hill in St. Paul in 1888.

The only suggestion from any source of a reason for Mrs. James J. Hill's step was her desire to have her granddaughter educated in the Catholic schools and brought up in the Catholic faith, to which she belongs. Mr. Hill has given away many thousands of dollars to Catholic churches and schools.

Child Killed; Woman Hurt.

Kenton, Ohio, Aug. 19.—The 4-year-old daughter of Mrs. Theodore Lewis was instantly killed; Mrs. Lewis, injured; Mrs. Clarence Manley received a broken arm, and Mrs. Charles Johnson and the chauffeur escaped unhurt when the automobile in which they were riding struck a telephone pole and turned turtle this evening.

WEST END ACCIDENTS STOP SHOW

Youngsters Have Wild West Circus That Results in Three Injuries.

In a miniature Wild West show conducted by a number of West end youngsters on the hillside, in which many of the stunts exhibited by the Buffalo Bill show were awkwardly imitated, three boys sustained injuries which will prevent their appearance on any playground for some time.

Frank Johnosn, 7-year-old son of Thomas T. Johnson, 231 Restormel street, has a scalp wound from a crudely made boomerang, hurled by one of the older boys. Anton Baldierri, son of Joseph Baldierri, Twenty-ninth avenue west, has a black eye, a cut behind the ear and several other bruises as the result of a fall when he was lassooed. Mike De Costola, 5 years old, was nearly choked to death when a heavy rope used as a lariat was whirled over his head and quickly pulled, jerking the child to the ground.

The site of the new show was on Seventh street, upon the hillside near Thirtieth avenue west. Several of the older boys in the neighborhood had seen the real show, and with their animal spirits fully aroused to all the excitement that hovers about a life on the prairie, they decided to have a show of their own.

Some old ropes were found about the homes of the boys, which were made into lariats. Boomerangs were made, and many other implements of war to be used in fighting Indians and killing buffaloes were made. The excitement about the neighborhood was kept up for some time until the accidents began to occur, when the parents stopped the frolic.

BOY SAVES PLAYMATE

Four-Year-Old Howard McElvaine Drags Girl From Pond.

The West end has the honor of claiming the youngest hero in the Northwest. This hero is less than 4 years old, and his name is Howard McElvaine, son of Robert C. McElvaine.

Howard's heroism was shown yesterday morning when he rescued a little playmate, Helen, the 3-year-old daughter of Harry Erwin, from probable drowning.

The boy showed great presence of mind for a child his age, and rushed into the dirty water into which the little girl had fallen, and with all his strength dragged her out.

The McElvaines and the Erwins live at Twenty-fourth avenue west and First street, having come to the West end about a month ago from Southern Illinois. The children have always been playmates, and are very fond of each other.

Yesterday morning, neatly dressed, they were allowed to go out upon the lawn to play. Adventurously, Howard started away from the house, holding the little girl by the hand.

They wandered to Michigan street and Twenty-second avenue west, where they found a pool of water. It was there they stopped to play, picking up large sticks which they tried to drift across the pond. In her enthusiasm, Helen rushed into the pool and, slipping, was almost completely immersed in the water, which was deep enough to drown her.

It was then that Howard came to the rescue. Passers-by who saw the girl's predicament, arrived at the place of the accident after the boy had dragged his playmate out.

ON THE IRON RANGES

GILBERT IS MAKING READY FOR FIREMEN'S TOURNAMENT

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of Next Week Red Letter Days.

Many Teams From Iron Range Towns Expect to Compete in Contests.

Gilbert, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The plans for the Range Firemen's tournament here next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday are practically completed.

Final assurances of appearance have been received from the Schley mine team, Gilbert mine team, Pettit mine team, Proctor, Elba, Aurora McKinley, and Biwabik. With the team entered from Gilbert there will be nine entries in each event.

The prizes for the different events are now on exhibition in the windows of the First State bank. These prizes include nozzles, trumpets and other fire-fighting paraphernalia, as well as medals for individual winners. About $1,500 has been secured, which will be used for the prizes and entertainment of visitors. The main street has been macadamized and with the crushed earth on it, Broadway looks like a paved street. The races will be run off on this street.

The committee has arranged for a reception to the visiting firemen Monday morning. In the afternoon there will be a baseball game between the Gilbert City team and the Gilbert "Giants". There will be a dance at the recently built pavilion in the afternoon and evening.

Tuesday Will Be Big Day.

The big day of the tournament will be Tuesday. In the morning there will be a reception to those teams that do not arrive Monday. At 10 o'clock there will be a big parade, which will include the city officials, all of the fire departments, the Gilbert city band, the Gilbert high school band, the Aurora band and the Biwabik band. In the afternoon the regular firemen's tournament races will be pulled off, and there may be a horse race or two. In the evening there will be a big meeting at the high school, at which many of the prominent men of the county will be present. Governor Eberhart was to have been present, but as he will then be on a lake trip, that is impossible. County Attorney Norton and Sheriff Bates have promised to be on hand.

Wednesday morning will see the wind-up of the firemen's races. In the afternoon there will be a ball game between the winners of Monday's game and the crack Elba team.

The merchants in town are vying with each other in putting up decorations. Eight arches covered with electric lights have been placed along Broadway. Gilbert is out to make a name for itself with this tournament.

The Masonic fraternity gave Mr. Clark a fine spread at their banquet hall and it is understood that a further recognition will be made by the citizens before his departure. Mrs. Clark has returned from a shortened visit in Wisconsin to direct preparations for the removal of the household effects. They will leave Saturday on the noon train.

Virginia's New Rustic Park Bears Mining Chief's Name.

Virginia, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city band will give a free concert at the rustic park Sunday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock. A band stand has been erected in the central portion of the park and the roadways through the park have been practically completed.

The park has been named Olcott in recognition of the leasing of the grounds by the Oliver Iron Mining company to the city of Virginia for park purposes, and for other courtesies extended to the city by the president of the company.

TWO HARBORS METHODISTS HAVE PICNIC SATURDAY.

Two Harbors, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.) — The Methodist Episcopal Sunday school annual picnic will be held in the city park, Saturday. The teachers, friends and children will meet at the church at 10 a. m. with their lunch baskets and proceed to the park, where amusements of various kinds will be afforded.

The posts are all set, the necessary connections made, and as soon as the globes can be placed upon the posts the system will be lighted.

The White Way covers five blocks on Chestnut street, with ten posts in each block, each post containing five Tungsten lamps. The five lights on each post will burn from dusk until midnight, and one light on each post from then until daylight in the morning. When the system is in operation it will light up and show the prettiest and most substantial business street of any city on the range. The system was inaugurated by the park board at a cost of about $6,000, and will be maintained by the Virginia Electric Power & Water company at a cost to the city of about $250 per month.

HIBBING STREET BEING IMPROVED

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Third avenue has been receiving a treatment of crushed rock mixture which has been put on between Lincoln and Garfield streets. miral Chauncey Thomas of the inspection board, a victory in the "man overboard" and fire drills, continuous victories during the cruise in signal hoists and arduous work, an enviable record for keeping signal position during maneuvers, a beautiful cup won in the whaleboat race at Buffalo, and another victory in the officers' race, giving assurance of continued possession of the Sherman cup.

Admiral's Flag on Lakes.

For the first time in history, an admiral's flag was unfurled to the breeze on the Great Lakes Thursday. The inspection board was the greatest in rank that had ever visited any naval militia squadron and is the same board that is now visiting the ships of the regular navy.

It is headed by Rear Admiral Chauncey Thomas, the other members being Commander Thomas Snowden, Commander W. S. Smith, Commander R. Stocker and Commander C. F. Hughes. Commander White of the bureau of engineering of the United States navy at Washington also visited the ships of the fleet to inspect their engines and boilers and he was accompanied on his visits by Commander Nutting, inspector of hulls.

The fleet anchored off Port Huron Monday night and the inspection board boarded the Wolverine early Tuesday morning. After a visit to the flagship, Admiral Thomas went to the Nashville and Commander Smith was assigned to the Gopher.

About 9:30 Tuesday morning, the ships weighed anchor and steamed out into Lake Huron. They were given various maneuvers and signal drills during the morning and the officers stationed on the different ships made their inspections.

Victory for Gopher.

The Gopher made a clean sweep of the competitive drills. Despite the fact that the rod on the life buoy broke and a second effort was necessary to get the buoy into the boat, the Gopher, in the "man overboard" drill, had a good margin over the Dorothea, her nearest rival for honors in the drill.

The Gopher crew consisted of Ensign Joseph Carhart, Jr., boat officer; McKay, R. Oesterreich, St. Pierre, Morrison, Carston and C. Oesterreich. At the word "man overboard," they were in the boat and it was being lowered on the falls. In twenty-five seconds, the boat was clear of the falls. Although the first attempt to pick up the buoy was a failure on account of the rod breaking, the buoy was in the boat in one minute, sixteen seconds, the boat was hooked to the falls again in four minutes, seventeen seconds, and the boat was hoisted and the ship ready to get under way in four minutes and forty-six seconds. The record was a remarkable one and Commander Smith warmly commended the officers and crew of the Gopher on the showing.

In the Fire Drill.

In the fire drill, the record of the Gopher was just as remarkable. The first deck division, commanded by Ensign Carhart and Ensign Butchart, had water on in twenty seconds, the best record made on the Gopher this year and certainly the best in the fleet. Every division on the Gopher reported ready in sixty-five seconds and on the call of "Secure," the Gopher was secure in forty-five seconds. The Gopher had a good margin over the other ships of the fleet.

The ships came to anchor about 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon about twenty-five miles from Port Huron and the inspection board made its visits to the different ships. Admiral Thomas left the Nashville and proceeded to the Yantic. Don Juan de Austria, Gopher, Dorothea and Wolverine in turn, remaining on the Wolverine for the trip back to Port Huron.

The visit of the admiral to the ships of the fleet was made the occasion of ceremony hitherto unknown to the Great Lakes. As the admiral left each ship, the rear admiral's salute of thirteen guns was fired. He was received on each ship with all the pomp and ceremony due his rank. The Gopher went the other ships of the fleet one better—as it did all through the cruise—by furnishing a marine guard to receive the admiral.

Received the Admiral.

As the admiral and his party were piped over the side, they were received by Commander Eaton and the othr officers, standing at salute at the starboard gangway. On the port side of the deck, the marine guard, with bayonets fixed and their rifles at present, stood in command of Lieut. C. W. Kelly, with Lieut. Junior Grade R. T. Hugo and Ensign A. O. Rabideau as junior officer.

The inspection of the Gopher was brief in time, but it was none the less thorough. The inspectors visited every part of the ship, nothing escaped their vigilant eyes and the officers of the Gopher were satisfied that what they saw did not offend.

When the inspection was over, Admiral Thomas said that the Gopher was a good, clean, orderly ship, while one of the other members of the board paid the Gopher the highest compliment known to naval parlance. He said the Gopher is a "smart ship." To a regular service man, a "smart ship" means a clean, orderly, well managed ship, with an efficient ship's company.

The official report of the board of inspection will not be made until some time in September, but the officers of the Gopher are content to stand on their record and they look forward to the report without trepidation. The Gopher has had an enviable record in the Great Lakes squadron since its first cruise and that record was more than sustained on the cruise which is nearing its end.

Good for the Crew.

The cruise worked wonders for the boys. When they boarded the ship at Duluth, many of them were green and added to their greenness was a lack of understanding as to the real nature of the naval militia and the serious side of the work they would be called upon to do. The lack of understanding was quickly supplied. The fascination of the work and the spirit of competition between the different ships drove away any ideas of pleasure without work and after the first week, every man on the Gopher took his every duty seriously, did the duty willingly and was at his post at the blast of the bugle, the shrill note of the pipe or the officers' command. That serious understanding which the Gopher company—officers and men—had of their duties and their opportunities placed the Gopher at the head of the list among the ships of the fleet.

* * *

The Sherman cup, offered by Dr. Sherman of Cleveland, to the officers of the Great Lakes naval training ships for competition in whaleboat races, is still in the possession of the Minnesota Naval Militia by which it was won last year. For the second time, the officers' crew of the Gopher defeated the officers of the other ships in the annual race, but it is very doubtful if the victory will count for the cup, which must be won three times by the officers of one ship before it becomes the permanent possession of the ship.

Race a Walkaway.

The race was rowed at Cleveland Sunday afternoon and was a walkaway for the Gopher crew, but the Nashville protested the race on the ground that it had not been notified of the arrangements and the Gopher crew, before entering the race, had agreed that the result would not be counted in the cup competition.

The victory was none the less satisfactory and gratifying to the officers who took part. Four crews were entered, the Gopher, Don Juan de Austria, Yanctic and Dorothea, and the crews finished in the order named. The Gopher crew rowed a hard race, the stroke running to 28 at times and never dropping below 24. The Gopher crew consisted of Dr. Weum, coxswain; Ensign Carhart, stroke; Lieut. Kelly, 5; Lieut. Junior Grade R. T. Hugo, 4; Ensign Jones, 3; Lieut. Smith, 2; Ensign Rabideau, bow.

The crews of the Don Juan de Austria and the Nashville also had a cutter race at Cleveland Sunday afternoon, the crew of the Don winning.

* * *

To Have New Engines.

It is practically certain that the Gopher will get new engines next year. Every member of the inspection board, Capt. Marsh, Commander White and Commander Nutting, expressed themselves Tuesday as believing that the Gopher needs new engines and that is little doubt but that the ship will get them.

* * *

Although the visit of Governor Harmon to the fleet did not materialize Sunday, Governor Warner of Michigan made good on his promise to visit the fleet at Detroit. He went aboard two or three of the ships and saluted the others in passing, they all in turn saluting him with the governor's salute of seventeen guns.

The stay in Detroit was brief and no shore liberty was given the men. A number of the Gopher men went ashore at Port Huron Monday night, but the ships did not return to Port Huron after the inspection Tuesday as was expected and that was the only chance they had to visit the town.

WANT SEWER THIS YEAR

Woodland Residents Say It Is Needed to Prevent Disease.

Urgent appeals for the construction on the proposed Woodland sanitary trunk sewer were made to the board of public works by about 100 property owners at the preliminary hearing held at the city hall this morning.

Differences of opinion were expressed as to the adjustment of the assessment and the length of the line, but the prevailing sentiment was strongly in favor of action at the earliest possible moment.

Several of those present declared that the lack of the drainage ststem has been the chief cause of epidemics of dangerous diseases as well as causing disagree able nuisances. They declared that the health and convenience of the large residence sections affected, demand the prompt installation of the big sewer.

Tentative plans were also outlined by T. T. Hudson to provide for the purity of the city's water supply. He stated that at the meeting of the board of water and light commissioners yesterday the possibilities of the city's water being contaminated were discussed at ome length with the result that it was decided to secure the opinions of the best experts obtainable. He said that the big outlet would dump a vast amount of sewage into the lake and that it is possible that it might reach the intake pipe, greatly endangering the health of the community. He referred to the statement of L. N. Case, manager of the water and light department, that upon several occasions the water at the intake well has risen many degrees in temperature. He accounted for this by the blowing of large quantities of surface water to this end of the lake in heavy northeast storms. When the water receded it went into the intake. Mr. Hudson said that at the depth of the intake pipe the temperature of the water should not change more than 1 or 2 deg. He suggested that no action be taken by the board of public works for at least firteen days in order that sufficient time might be allowed to enable the experts to look over the field.

Residents at Woodland asked that the upper end of the sewer be extended at least abut a mile. As planned at present, the upper end is in Fairmont street, at Hunter's Park. The Woodlanders claim that they are assessed for benefits, while they will not be able to get any use from the sewer for years to come. Owners of acreage have also been assessed, and they were present to enter protests against the amount levied against them. The assessment runs to property two and three miles away from the line of the sewer and the property owners claimed that this was not fair, as they will not be able to make use of it until the sections in which they are interested are settled. Several claimed that the assessment amounts to as much as 60 per cent of the present value of the property.

The board took no action at the meeting this morning. They held the meeting to secure suggestions and will make their decision later. Another hearing of the assessment will have to be held before it can finally be confirmed.

SUDDEN DEATH SHOCKS FRIENDS

The sudden death from heart failure of George H. Reynolds of St. Cloud, Wednesday noon, notice of which appeared in last evening's Herald, came as a distinct shock to his many friends in Duluth. Mr. Reynolds was a brother of Fred Reynolds, the Duluth attorney, had visited in Duluth often, and was well known here.

His death was very sudden. He had been in court all morning and had eaten luncheon at his home without making any complaint or appearing ill. Shortly after lunch he stepped out on to the porch of his residence and a few minutes later fell in a dead faint. Physicians were at once summoned, but his death followed a bare half hour after his first attack. Mr. Reynolds of Duluth, was notified by telephone at once, and he and Mrs. Reynolds left on twenty minutes notice on the afternoon train. News of his brother's death arrived here almost immediately after the train pulled out.

George H. Reynolds was one of the most prominent attorneys of the state. He was at once time law partner of Senator Knute Nelson and for a number of years was attorney for the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Soo railways at St. Cloud. His wife, May B. Reynolds, survives him.

HAS MANIA FOR WRITING LETTERS

A. C. McCutcheon is said to have a habit of sending abusive and threatening letters to public officials and prominent business men of Duluth and other cities. For this reason he will be examined as to his sanity in probate court Monday morning.

McCutcheon seems to be laboring under the impression that many people are to blame for his misfortunes. He has suffered severe reverses during the last few years, it is said, and the result is that his mind seems to be unbalanced.

Information was filed against him in probate court this morning by a friend. Another cause given for the insanity in the petition is that some years ago while employed in a sawmill, he received an injury to his head.

Ill luck has followed McCutcheon during the last few years. The forest fires that destroyed Chisholm and other range towns swept across his homestead and burned the buildings and improvements that it had taken many years of hard work to erect.

Not in the least discouraged he went to Virginia, where he got work in a sawmill. He worked hard and was beginning to get ahead once more, when he was injured and had to go to the hospital, where his savings were soon spent in an endeavor to regain his strength.

He has not been well of late and he has worried over his misfortunes to such an extent that it is thought he is mentally unbalanced.

Tomorrow, Saturday, the last day of our great Manhattan shirt sale.

MILLIONAIRE'S SON IS UNDER ARREST

New York, Aug. 19.—The police took into custody today E. T. Rosenheimer said he was out in his machine, but denied that it had struck a carriage.

CHILD'S CRY FOR FOOD GETS FATHER SENTENCED.

Marion, Ohio, Aug. 19.—"Mamma, I'm hungry," wailed 6-year-old Irene Leonard in Justice Charles Conley's court when Elmore Leonard, her father, was being tried on a charge of non-support. The child's pitiful cries melted the court, who ordered an immediate investigation.

A sad case of poverty was revealed. Leonard was sentenced to six months in the Columbus workhouse and fined $200 and costs, the heaviest sentence and fine ever given by a local justice for a similar offense.

The township trustees will provide for the little family while the father is serving his sentence.

RUN HEAVY; WHEAT SAGS

Large Primary Receipts and Weak Spot Market Depresses Values.

Report of Export Business at Chicago Doubled---Flax Is Weak.

Duluth Board of Trade, Aug. 19.—Under heavy pressure of actual wheat values declined today. September lost ⅝c, December ¾c and May 1⅛c. Cash wheat was dull and weak and spot sold on a parity with the September option.

Durum declined ⅜c, oats ⅛c, rye and barley were unchanged.

Flax was weak but dull. September lost 2c, October 1c, November 1c and December 1c. The cash premium on flax was wiped out.

The wheat market was stubborn from the start, moving within a narrow range. Trading was light and the only interest was of the long distance sort, neither bulls nor bears caring to express their sentiments in the actual market.

Under pressure of heavy receipts in the Northwest, values sagged. While the bulls failed in their early efforts to jack up prices, yet the market appeared difficult to break. The short interest was moderately large, and on every recession covering appeared, which sent values up again as offers were exceedingly scarce and folks who tried to get their wheat back were forced to bid for it. The shorts were optimistic, however, and toward midday they ceased this sort of work, believing that the trend of values would continue downward.

While the foreign situation is generally described as bullish yet in the face of the bearish dometsic situation there was little encouragement to take on wheat. Stocks in the Northwest, as well as elsewhere are accumulating at a rapid pace. The Northwestern wheat movement is just beginning, although the Southwestern wheat run is subsiding. Receipts at primary markets, according to indications, will continue to be large for some time. The heavy receipts this season do not bear out the claims of the bulls that the farmers are holding their wheat. Thus far there is nothing to indicate that the farmer has been reticent about letting go of his supplies. What the future will bring forth remains to be seen. The best reports indicate that the Northwestern farmer will hold his wheat more closely than the Southwestern farmer. The shortage of the crop is an inducement which was not an influence with the Southwestern farmer.

There is just enough export demand to keep the shorts guessing, but not enough to afford potent muscle to the bull side. This market was out of line today and no export business was done. Chicago reported that the Peavey people had sold 100,000 bu of winter wheat for export to the continent, but many people were inclined to doubt the accuracy of the rumor. Baltimore reported the working of four cargoes for France for shipment in September and one cargo for shipment to Germany in October. The Baltimore market always feels the effect of an export demand sooner than any other. It was reported that bids from France were close to Pacific coast prices. An optimistic bull said he was trying to derive some comfort from the short rice crop in China. He thought this deficit would force the Chinese to eat some Pacific coast wheat.

The Modern Miller of St. Louis said that plowing for fall seeding is progressing in the Southwest under favorable conditions. The soil is in good shape in the greater portion of the winter wheat territory. Recent rains have been beneficial.

Cables were mixed, but were generally lower. Paris being an exception. World's shipments are expected to be heavier this week and a large increase of wheat on passage is looked for. Offerings from the Danubian districts were more liberal. Argentine crop reports were more favorable. There was no distinctly unfavorable news from France.

Cash wheat was sick and the trade was dull. The mills bought a little stuff, but not enough to affect premiums, which were on a par with the current contract. Flour stocks are about double those of last year, and the future business that is being booked is extremely light. The millers appear to be fairly well supplied with wheat.

The weather in the Northwest was generally clear and favorable for harvesting which is in progress. In many parts of the three states it has been completed. There has been showery weather lately, but the precipitation was not in such volume as to retard the harvest. The three Canadian provinces report about 60 per cen of harvesting completed. Yields of wheat in the three Northwestern states are larger than early estimates and there seems to be every reason to believe that the crop of the three states will come nearer to 160,000,000 bu than was expected a few weeks ago.

The big shipments of oats from Chicago to the East caused much comment among oats buyers. These heavy shipments appear to be for the purpose of obtaining cheaper storage rates than prevail in the Windy City. Many people are buying cash oats and holding the stuff against sales of May. The spread between the September and the May contracts is attractive. The run of oats to Chicago is exceedingly heavy.

The flax situation is dull and the crushers are not taking any interest in the market except when they are forced to buy small spot stuff, sometimes in sacks, and to hedge against an occasional sale of oil for September delivery.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Weak on News and Free Selling.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Wheat opened weak today at a decline of ⅜ to ⅞c. Commission houses sold freely at the start and weakness in the foreign market was a bearish factor. Reports of favorable weather conditions in the Northwest together with news that thrashing is well along in Minnesota fields gave promise of continued heavy movement of the crop. In the first hour prices kept near the bottom. September opened ⅜@½c to ¾c off at $1.01 to $1.00¾, and December started ½ to ⅞c off at $1.04½ to $1.04¼.

Bearish sentiment ruled through the session. The close was weak, with September 1⅛@1¼c to 1⅜c off at $1.00⅛ to $1.00¼. December closed 1c to 1¼c off at $1.03⅞ to $1.03⅞@1.04.

Corn was a quiet market in the early trading, commission houses taking moderate amounts on an initial dip of from ⅛ to ⅜c, which reflected the downward trend of wheat. Offerings were scanty after the opening and fluctuations were within narrow limits. opened ¼ to ⅜c off at 62⅜c to 62¼c and steadied at about the opening point. December started ¼ to ⅜c off at 60⅛c to 60c, and kept within the opening figures.

The market fell off with wheat and the close was weak all around, with September 1@1⅛c to 1⅛c off at 61½c to 61½@61⅝c. December finished ¾@⅞c down at 59½c to 59⅝c.

Oats opened steady at a shade up to a shade off and showed little variation in the first hour, commission houses leaning to the buying side. September opened unchanged at 35¾c and December was a shade up at 37¾c to 37⅞c.

Larger receipts of live hogs at the packing centers caused a decline in provisions prices and products sagged from 21c to 10c. Opening figures for the September delivery were: Pork, $21.27½, 5 cents down. Lard was at $11.82½, 7½ cents off, and ribs $12.22½, 10 cents down.

STOCK CLOSE IS STEADY

Prices Decline With Some Increase in Activity Toward End.

Bears Are in Favor and All Classes of Stocks Are Affected.

New York, Aug. 19.—Small losses were generally prevalent at the opening of business on the stock exchange today, but there was an absence of urgent selling. The feature of the trading was the purchase of a block of 5,000 shares of United States Steel at 72, unchanged from yesterday's closing. Losses were made of ½@¾ by Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio.

Only a few of the prominent stocks extended their opening losses, notably Reading, which went down to 144½. Evidences of support discouraged further selling and the market hardened steadily. Reading touched 145⅞ and Union Pacific rallied from 168½ to 169⅜. The market eased off again at 11 o'clock. Delaware & Hudson and Peoria and Eastern yielded 3 points and Kansas City Southern 1½.

Operations on the stock market were on a light scale, the professionals holding off for further developments in political and financial conditions. The commodities markets furnished little incentive to trade and attempts to create a following by bidding up various low priced stocks did not meet with much success. Prices averaged a trifle above yesterday's closing. American Smelting, St. Louis-Southwestern preferred, and the Iowa Central stocks were bid up 1 to 1¼. Chicago-Great Western gave way 1 and Sloss-Sheffield Steel 1½. Bonds were steady.

The market closed steady. Speculative conditions continued to favor the bears, prices declining steadily with some increase in activity. All classes of stocks were affected and losses of between 1 and 2 points were general. Covering of shorts rallied Union Pacific and Reading, but the market became lifeless on the recovery.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case.

Cotton Market.

New York, Aug. 19.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 3 points to an advance of 3 points, but only a couple very late months were higher, and more active positions quickly showed a net loss of about 2 to 6 points, under active scattering liquidation and local bar pressure. Offerings were very readily absorbed on the decline, however, and as official weather advices indicated no general rains in Texas the market firmed up on covering and renewed bull support with prices showing a net gain of about 3 to 7 points during the middle of the morning.

WOULD RECOVER PATENT.

John Hays Hammond and "Cotton King" Sully Defendants.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Daniel J. Sully of New York, the "cotton king," John Hays Hammond of New York and Washington, and his son, Harris Hammond, were cited today by Justice Gould of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, to show cause next Friday why they should not return to Lemuel A. Green of Greenville, S. C., certain letters-patent issued to him for improvements in cotton grading. Green had assigned his patent to John J. Welch of New York, as trustee, pending the formation of a grading company, in consideration, he alleges, for the payment to him of $50,000 in cash on the organization of the company and a block of stock worth $50,000. He declares Sully and the Hammonds had the trustee transfer the patents to the company and issued him the $50,000 in stock, but declined the cash payment.

McMURRAY ON THE STAND AGAIN

He Makes Denial of All the Charges in Indian Land Cases.

Sulphur, Okla., Aug. 19.—Any attempt to reopen the government rolls and admit thousands of claimants to participate in the division of lands now held in reservation will be resisted by the Indians at present on the rolls, according to J. F. McMurray, who testified again today before the congressional committee.

Mr. McMurray told the committee he believes a great many were now wrongfully on the rolls and many were wrongfully shut off; but any readjustment of these faults should be done by special legislation and not by reopening of the rolls.

Mr. McMurray was asked concerning the $750,000 paid him by the government in 1907 as his fee in what were known as the citizenship cases. He denied any irregularities.

Made General Denial.

He also denied that, directly or through Hamon, he offered Senator Gore a bribe; that he ever told any one that Vice President Sherman had an interest in the contracts; that he authorized Hamon to say Mr. Sherman was interested; that Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas ever had any interest in the contracts; that he ever told any one that Congressman B. S. McGuire had any interest in any of the contracts, and that any member of congress, or any employe of any department of the government had any interest in them.

The witness also denied he ever offered $25,000 as a bribe to D. C. McCurtain, a Choctaw lawyer.

COPPER MARKET DULL AND WEAK

Trading Light and Values Decline---Prices Rally at Close.

Speculative sentiment was not in evidence today and the public was out of the market. There was very little doing, therefore, and the market lacked support. It was inclined to advance but on every bulge the professionals, who did not like the attitude of some of the big interests in the market, unloaded just enough stuff to push values down again.

Prices were nervous and erratic and fluctuated from the opening to the close, a bulge at the close bringing values back within striking distance of the opening. The bulls took some comfort from an interview with John D. Ryan in Butte. Mr. Ryan said the situation abroad is better than in several years and the consumption of metal is steadily on the increase. He said there will be no drastic curtailment in the Butte district and that a slight increase in the price of metal will enable the Amalgamated to increase its tonnage, especially of the low grades, thus increasing ore output while reducing metal output. He was optimistic of the future.

The political agitation is making some folk in the East sit up and take notice. Wall street is looking for a political upheaval, but usually Wall street does not discount the political future in the summer. Confidence is returning, the bulls say, and they do not look for an advancing market, at least until late in the fall when the tobacco and oil cases will be again argued before the nation's highest tribunal.

Copper exports have increased 3,720 tons thus far this month, according to a wire received this afternoon from Boston.

The local market was dull and trading was light. The undertone was weak. Butte-Alex Scott, full paid, sold at $6.50; Copper Queen at 28c and 30c; Denn at $3.31¼, $3.37½ and $3.31¼; Red Warrior at $2.68¾, $2.75 and $2.50; Amazon sold at $3.62½, $3.75 and $3.63½; Calumet & Montana at $1; Calumet & Corbin at 45c and North American at $3.06¼.

Amalgamated sold at $65.87½, $66.12½, $65.25, $66.25, $65.25 and $65.50; Butte-Ballaklava at $11.50 to $11; Calumet & Arizona at $62.50, $62.75, $61.50 and $62; Giroux at $7, $7.12½ and $7; Greene at $7.62½ to $7.75; North Butte at $29.25, $30.25, $29.50 and $30, Superior & Pittsburg at $12.

MINERS LIKELY TO END DISPUTE

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 19.—With the final report of the special committee, appointed to investigate all of the subject matter before the special international convention of United Mine Workers, due to be submitted this afternoon, the work may be completed and the convention adjourned sine die before night. The convention held a short session this morning to hear the report of the transportation committee.

The special committee, it is said on good authority, with the exception of fixing the assessment for a strike benefit, is ready to report. It is said the report not only will indorse the strike in Illinois, but also will indorse the action of the international executive board in regard to the so-called compromise, which was submitted to the Illinois miners.

Expect Blanket Indorsement.

With few exceptions, all of the speakers of the last two days have made pleas for harmony in the organization and it is said that the blanket indorsement of the special committee will be the result of these talks.

President Lewis expects the convention to complete its work by tomorrow night.

Amazon - Montana Development stock is the best purchase on the board for a real big advance in next few days. They have struck it rich at this property and only a very short time before this mine should be a high grade shipper and a big earner of money. I will wager $1,000 that the Amazon-Montana mine will be a shipper before ten days from today.
Information from the West today give us every reason in the world to believe that this mine will become one of the biggest and richest in the state of Montana.

SAYS SPANIARD MURDERED RIST

Washington, Aug. 19.—It was learned here today that Gustav A. Rist, Jr., the young American who was reported to have been murdered in Bolivia June 11, was a native of Bloomfield, N. J., where his father now resides. The state department has directed American Minister Coombs at Lima to make a thorough investigation of the alleged murder.

Young Rist was a mining engineer employed in a gold mine near the Bolivia-Peru border. According to a letter received by his father from a fellow engineer, he was shot in the back by a Spaniard named Vaccara. WRESTLES WITH BEAR

Duluth Man Comes to Close Quarters With Bruin.

Badly Scratched and Bitten, But Has the Bear's Hide.

His face and wrists bandaged and plastered, Frank Eisenach, 310 West Third street, is being congratulated by his friends upon having escaped alive from an encounter with a bear, whose pelt he has as a trophy of the event.

Mr. Eisenach., who has been manager of the Central billiard hall in this city, has had charge this summer as manager of a fishing camp maintained by Duluth sportsmen, on the Gooseberry river. While in that region, Eisenach has had a number of brushes with wolves and he has brought down several of them. Recently he became ambitious to get a bear.

With this idea in mind, he scattered meat and sugar temptingly about and Thursday of this week Mr. Bruin took the bait. Armed with an automatic gun, Eisenach advanced on the brute, cooly placed his shot and the bear toppled over. The nimrod cautiously approached and looked at the beast. It seemed to be dead. Then the man drew his knife and prepared to finish the job.

As soon as his weight settled on the bear, the animal suddenly roused itself from what had appeared to be death and made a savage swat at the hunter, who had laid his gun aside. There was a terrific struggle that lasted for no one knows how long, and then the hunter got his weapon in his hands again. However, the fight was not yet ended, for Eisenach had failed to adjust the weapon or put in more than one shell, and it was some time before his artillery was in shape for effective hostilities.

Then the battle was quickly ended, and Eisenach, bloody, lacerated on face, neck, hands and wrists was the triumphant possessor of a dead bear.

He came to Duluth last night for treatment, rather the worst for wear but bearing up bravely, in spite of the adhesive plaster and the bandages that adorned him.

RUSH ILLINOIS CENTRAL CASES

Officials Accused of Fraud Will Be Called in Next Week.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—John M. Taylor, former general storekeeper of the Illinois Central and who, with Frank B. Harriman, former general manager of the road, and Charles L. Ewing, former superintendent of lines north of the Ohio river, is charged with conspiracy to defraud the road, was arraigned before Judge Cottrell in the municipal court today.

Taylor requested a continuance until Aug. 23, but Chief Justice Olson ordered Judge Cottrell to set the case for Judge Olson's court next Monday. The cases of Harriman and Ewing are set for next Friday.

RUSSIAN JEWS KEPT FROM PORT

Immigration Authorities Enforce Law More Strictly at Galveston.

Washington, Aug. 20.—The entry of Russian Jew immigrants at the port of Galveston, Texas, will be regulated more closely in the future. The laws have been loosely enforced there and not long ago conditions were found which led to the discharge of one inspector.

Three shiploads of Russian Jews landed there since June 24. The latest arrived last Wednesday. The action of department officials in refusing admission to the 100 Jewish immigrants on board has been the subject of protest. The Jewish immigrants' information society, popularly known as the Jacob H. Schiff society, will appeal their cases to the board of inquiry at Galveston and to the department at Washington if necessary. The society intends to make a test case of it.

THINK CRAZY MAN MURDERED GIRL

Officers at Abilene, Kan., Develop Another New Theory.

Abilene, Kan., Aug. 20.—Officers investigating the murder of Miss Bertha Benignus, now believe the girl may have been slain by an insane man. Several residents of Abilene have told of the peculiar actions of a man who for weeks before Miss Benignus' death was often seen late at night lurking in the shadows of trees along the street. One man told of seeing the stranger hiding behind a tree just across the street from Bertha Benignus' window about midnight the night of the murder.

MAY INDICT THE PACKERS

Federal Grand Jury Not to Act Regarding Corporations.

Results of Beef Trust Inquiry Are Expected Next Week.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—It is expected that the federal grand jury which has been investigating the methods of the so-called beef trust for more than a month will attack what the government considers the heart of the problem by returning indictments against individual officers of the big packing companies.

Hitherto the long war of the federal authorities has been directed against the corporations as corporations. They have been enjoined from fixing prices by agreement. Recently the National Packing company and its subsidiary concerns were indicted, but Judge Landis declared the indictments faulty. The present investigation followed.

By the end of next week it is believed that the inquisitorial body will report results.

ORDERS EXPRESS RATES REDUCED

Illinois Commission's Action Will Be Fought in the Courts.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 20.—The state board of railroad and warehouse commissioners has decided to order a reduction of approximately 10 cents per 100 pounds between Illinois points, to go into effect Oct. 1. The express companies will ignore the order, as they claim that the legislature has never given the state board of railroad and warehouse commissioners the power to regulate freight rates, and the matter will be fought out in the courts.

It is expected the supreme court will hand down a decision before the general assembly adjourns at its next session, so that if the court decides against the commission, another law may be enacted conferring express powers on the commission to regulate express rates.

MAYOR GAYNOR IS OUT OF DANGER

Physicians Have Practically Decided Not to Operate on Him.

New York, Aug. 20.—Mayor Gaynor's condition was excellent today, his physicians said, and the period of danger has now passed. The doctors agree that he will be completely recovered within a short time, and he will go to the Adirondacks to complete his recovery. Mayor Gaynor, though, has indicated that he thought he ought to return to his home in St. James, L. I., after leaving the hospital. The physicians have practically decided not to operate to remove the bullet, as they think that the mayor will suffer no inconvenience from it.

HONOR MISS NIGHTINGALE

King George and English Officials Attend Memorial Service.

Funeral Ceremony at Fast Wellow Is Very Simple.

London, Aug. 20.—Florence Nightingale, "The Angel of the Crimea," who died Aug. 13 at her London home, was buried this afternoon beside the bodies of her father and mother in the churchyard of the little Hampshire village of Fast Wellow. In accordance with her often-expressed wishes, the ceremony was of the quietest nature, the only feature reminding one of her great services to the army and the nation being the presence of a squad of the Grenadier guards, who acted as bearers. Only members of the immediate family and a few retainers were present at the funeral.

King at Memorial Service.

Public tribute was paid at a memorial service at noon at St. Paul's Cathedral here, at which King George, Queen Mary, the Queen Mother Alexandra, the war office and admiralty and the greater part of the British public bodies and colonies were represented. United States Ambassador Whitelaw Reid and Mrs. Reid were present.

The cathedral was crowded with the official representatives, and thousands of private persons who had come to do honor to the dead were unable to find places inside the church and stood outside during the ceremony.

Among the flowers sent for the funeral were a number of wreaths contributed by American nursing associations. Many prominent members of the American colony in London attended the service.

MAN MURDERED AT OYSTER BAY

Big Detective Shot Down in Fight With Gang at Clubhouse.

Oyster Bay, L. I., Aug. 20.—George Gostelli, a New York detective who was well known for his enormous strength, was murdered early today. He was killed in a fight with a crowd at the landing of the Seawanhaka Yacht's club's boathouse.

Gostelli had been acting as keeper for the club. He had had trouble all summer with a crowd of men who insisted on loitering about the boathouse. Half a dozen of them went to the place last night and Gostelli drove them away. They returned in a few minutes, one of them carrying a shotgun. Three shots were fired, two from the detective's revolver and one from the shotgun. Gostelli fell dead on the wharf.

CRIPPEN IS TAKEN AWAY

Dentist and Miss Leneve Will Sail on the Megantic.

Pair Due to Arrive in Liverpool Next Week Saturday.

Quebec, Aug. 20.—Dr. H. H. Crippen and Miss Ethel Clare Leneve were taken from the provincial jail early today in separate carriages and driven rapidly westward. The couple, in charge of Detective Dew, Sergeant Detective Mitchell and the two wardresses, it is said, will board the steamer Megantic, which touches here early this afternoon and departs at 7 o'clock tonight for Liverpool.

Reach Liverpool Saturday.

The detectives with Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve probably will meet the Megantic with a tug at Cape Rouge, seven miles west of Quebec, on the St. Lawrence river, where the couple can be quietly placed aboard the steamship. Great secrecy was observed by the detectives in removing the prisoners from the jail, as it was desired to avoid a demonstration.

The Megantic is due at Liverpool a week from today.

AEROPLANES FOR THE FRENCH NAVY

Paris, Aug. 20.—Admiral de Lapeyesere, the French minister of marine, has become an enthusiastic convert to the possibilities of the aeroplane in naval warfare. In a statement today he proposes the establishment of flotillas of aeroplanes at the French naval bases of Cherbourg, Brest, Toulon and Bizerta, Africa, to protect the ports and locate the mines and submarines of a possible enemy.

"For the price of a single cruiser," said the minister, "we may have thousands of aeroplanes. They will be our scouts."

Long Race Planned.

It is understood that Moissant, the American aviator now on his way to London, will compete with Latham, Paulhan and Farman in the special Michelin prize of $20,000 for a no-stop flight of 217 miles from Paris to Clermont-Ferrand with a passenger. The flight must end on the summit of the Puy-de-Dome, a mountain 4,800 feet high, where the strong and erratic air currents will make a landing extremely difficult.

THOUSANDS FOR MILITIA

Minnesota Will Get Over $25,000 From Uncle Sam.

New York Gets Most, Utah the Least and Nevada None at All.

Washington, Aug. 20.—Every state and territory in the Union, with the single exception of Nevada, which is without a militia, gets a portion of the federal appropriation for the purchase of supplies and ammunition for the organized militia during the present fiscal year, in the first allotment of the $1,600,000 fund. The war department has reserved about $400,000 of the fund for emergencies.

A few miles outside of Rome, for some unexplained reason the machine dashed to earth.

Lieut. Vivaldi had just returned from Chalons-Sur-Marne, France, where he had taken up aviation. He used a Farman biplane. He started from Centocelle this morning, accompanied by Lieut. Savoia in another aeroplane, but the latter was unable to keep pace with him and returned to Rome before reaching Cittavecchia.

Portsmouth, Eng., Aug. 20.—The Orion, Great Britain's newest and greatest battleship was launched here today in the presence of King Alfonso and Queen Victoria of Spain and a distinguished gathering of naval officers and representatives from public life. Compared with the armored cruiser Lion, of 26,350 tons, just launched the Orion will displace only 22,500 tons, but her ten 13.5-inch guns and her new, deadly equipment of torpedoes render her by far the most powerful battleship afloat.

The new torpedo to be carried by the Orion weighs nearly a ton and its range will exceed 17,000 yards at a speed of 40 knots. The torpedo carries a charge of guncotton weighing 250 pounds.

The Orion will have a speed of 21 knots and will carry 4,000 tons of fuel, giving her an unusually wide radius of action.

RUSSIAN JEWS KEPT FROM PORT

Immigration Authorities Enforce Law More Strictly at Galveston.

Washington, Aug. 20.—The entry of Russian Jew immigrants at the port of Galveston, Texas, will be regulated more closely in the future. The laws have been loosely enforced there and not long ago conditions were found which led to the discharge of one inspector.

Three shiploads of Russian Jews landed there since June 24. The latest arrived last Wednesday. The action of department officials in refusing admission to the 100 Jewish immigrants on board has been the subject of protest. The Jewish immigrants' Information society, popularly known as the Jacob H. Schiff society, will appeal their cases to the board of inquiry at Galveston and to the department at Washington if necessary. The society intends to make a test case of it.

MAY INDICT THE PACKERS

Federal Grand Jury Not to Act Regarding Corporations.

Results of Beef Trust Inquiry Are Expected Next Week.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—It is expected that the federal grand jury which has been investigating the methods of the so-called beef trust for more than a month will attack what the government considers the heart of the problem by returning indictments against individual officers of the big packing companies.

Hitherto the long war of the federal authorities has been directed against the corporations as corporations. They have been enjoined from fixing prices by agreement. Recently the National Packing company and its subsidiary concerns were indicted, but Judge Landis declared the indictments faulty. The present investigation followed.

By the end of next week it is believed that the inquisitorial body will report results.

ORDERS EXPRESS RATES REDUCED

Illinois Commission's Action Will Be Fought in the Courts.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 20.—The state board of railroad and warehouse commissioners has decided to order a reduction of approximately 10 cents per 100 pounds between Illinois points, to go into effect Oct. 1. The express companies will ignore the order, as they claim that the legislature has never given the state board of railroad and warehouse commissioners the power to regulate freight rates, and the matter will be fought out in the courts.

It is expected the supreme court will hand down a decision before the general assembly adjourns at its next session, so that if the court decides against the commission, another law may be enacted conferring express powers on the commission to regulate express rates.

Physicians Have Practically Decided Not to Operate on Him.

New York, Aug. 20.—Mayor Gaynor's condition was excellent today, his physicians said, and the period of danger has now passed. The doctors agree that he will be completely recovered within a short time, and he will go to the Adirondacks to complete his recovery. Mayor Gaynor, though, has indicated that he thought he ought to return to his home in St. James, L. I., after leaving the hospital. The physicians have practically decided not to operate to remove the bullet, as they think that the mayor will suffer no inconvenience from it.

HONOR MISS NIGHTINGALE

King George and English Officials Attend Memorial Service.

Funeral Ceremony at Fast Wellow Is Very Simple.

London, Aug. 20.—Florence Nightingale, "The Angel of the Crimea," who died Aug. 13 at her London home, was buried this afternoon beside the bodies of her father and mother in the churchyard of the little Hampshire village of Fast Wellow. In accordance with her often-expressed wishes, the ceremony was of the quietest nature, the only feature reminding one of her great services to the army and the nation being the presence of a squad of the Grenadier guards, who acted as bearers. Only members of the immediate family and a few retainers were present at the funeral.

King at Memorial Service.

Public tribute was paid at a memorial service at noon at St. Paul's Cathedral here, at which King George, Queen Mary, the Queen Mother Alexandra, the war office and admiralty and the greater part of the British public bodies and colonies were represented. United States Ambassador Whitelaw Reid and Mrs. Reid were present.

The cathedral was crowded with the official representatives, and thousands of private persons who had come to do honor to the dead were unable to find places inside the church and stood outside during the ceremony.

Among the flowers sent for the funeral were a number of wreaths contributed by American nursing associations. Many prominent members of the American colony in London attended the service.

MAN MURDERED AT OYSTER BAY

Big Detective Shot Down in Fight With Gang at Clubhouse.

Oyster Bay, L. I., Aug. 20.—George Gostelli, a New York detective who was well known for his enormous strength, was murdered early today. He was killed in a fight with a crowd at the landing of the Seawanhaka Yacht's club's boathouse.

Gostelli had been acting as keeper for the club. He had had trouble all summer with a crowd of men who insisted on loitering about the boathouse. Half a dozen of them went to the place last night and Gostelli drove them away. They returned in a few minutes, one of them carrying a shotgun. Three shots were fired, two from the detective's revolver and one from the shotgun. Gostelli fell dead on the wharf.

CRIPPEN IS TAKEN AWAY

Dentist and Miss Leneve Will Sail on the Megantic.

Pair Due to Arrive in Liverpool Next Week Saturday.

Quebec, Aug. 20.—Dr. H. H. Crippen and Miss Ethel Clare Leneve were taken from the provincial jail early today in separate carriages and driven rapidly westward. The couple, in charge of Detective Dew, Sergeant Detective Mitchell and the two wardresses, it is said, will baord the steamer Megantic, which touches here early this afternoon and departs at 7 o'clock tonight for Liverpool.

Reach Liverpool Saturday.

The detectives with Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve probably will meet the Megantic with a tug at Cape Rouge, seven miles west of Quebec, on the St. Lawrence river, where the couple can be quietly placed aboard the steamship. Great secrecy was observed by the detectives in removing the prisoners from the jail, as it was desired to avoid a demonstration.

The Megantic is due at Liverpool a week from today.

AEROPLANES FOR THE FRENCH NAVY

Paris, Aug. 20.—Admiral de Lapeyesere, the French minister of marine, has become an enthusiastic convert to the possibilities of the aeroplane in naval warfare. In a statement today he proposes the establishment of flotillas of aeroplanes at the French naval bases of Cherbourg, Brest, Toulon and Bizerta, Africa, to protect the ports and locate the mines and submarines of a possible enemy.

"For the price of a single cruiser," said the minister, "we may have thousands of aeroplanes. They will be our scouts."

Long Race Planned.

It is understood that Tolssant, the American aviator now at his way to London, will compete with Latham, Paulhan and Farman in the special Michelin prize of $20,000 for a no-stop flight of 217 miles from Paris to Clermont-Ferrand with a passenger. The flight must end on the summit of the Puy-de-Dome, a mountain 4,800 feet high, where the strong and erratic air currents will make a landing extremely difficult.

THOUSANDS FOR MILITIA

Minnesota Will Get Over $25,000 From Uncle Sam.

New York Gets Most, Utah the Least and Nevada None at All.

Washington, Aug. 20.—Every state and territory in the Union, with the single exception of Nevada, which is without a militia, gets a portion of the federal appropriation for the purchase of supplies and ammunition for the organized militia during the present fiscal year, in the first allotment of the $1,600,000 fund. The war department has reserved about $400,000 of the fund for emergencies.

According to the allotment, which was made according to the enlisted strength of the organized militia in the various states, five states get more than $50,000 each. Of these, New York leads with $206,000, Pennsylvania follows with $140,000 and Illinois with $84,000.

He had made a trip in the early morning hours from the military aviation field at Centocelle to Cittavecchia, on the Mediterranean sea, thirty-eight miles from Rome, and he was returning to Rome when the accident happened. A few miles outside of Rome, for some unexplained reason the machine dashed to earth.

Lieut. Vivaldi had just returned from Chalons-Sur-Marne, France, where he had taken up aviation. He used a Farman biplane. He started from Centocelle this morning, accompanied by Lieut. Savoia in another aeroplane, but the latter was unable to keep pace with him and returned to Rome before reaching Cittavecchia.

Orion Is Launched With Most Formidable Equipment of All.

Portsmouth, Eng., Aug. 20.—The Orion, Great Britain's newest and greatest battleship was launched here today in the presence of King Alfonso and Queen Victoria of Spain and a distinguished gathering of naval officers and representatives from public life. Compared with the armored cruiser Lion, of 26,350 tons, just launched the Orion will displace only 22,500 tons, but her ten 13.5-inch guns and her new, deadly equipment of torpedoes render her by far the most powerful battleship afloat.

The new torpedo to be carried by the Orion weighs nearly a ton and its range will exceed 17,000 yards at a speed of 40 knots. The torpedo carries a charge of guncotton weighing 250 pounds.

The Orion will have a speed of 21 knots and will carry 4,000 tons of fuel, giving her an unusually wide radius of action.

Marketers at the Armory Before the Doors Are Opened.

Farmers Have No Difficulty Disposing of Their Produce.

The second day of the public market on the ground floor of the Armory at Second avenue east and First street, found a crowd of customers waiting before the doors were opened. The farmers had more business than they could handle. Part of them were sold out at 11 o'clock, and the remainder disposed of the small remaining stock by noon.

Four farmers and two younger people with gardens near the city limits, had vegetables and greens for sale. One of the farmers brought in two wagons stacked to their capacity, and the others had loads as large as they could handle. One young lady displayed a quantity of canned vegetabes which she had no difficulty in selling. She had pickeled beets, beans and cucumbers, as well as some garden truck.

A young boy who makes truck gardening a side line, realized a neat sum. He brought his products in on a hand cart. Many automobiles and carriages were in evidence at the Armory this morning. Part of them carried large purchases away with them and the remainder left good-sized orders for delivery. The farmers at the market stated that they would deliver orders which were not too small, although it has not been customary in the past. It was noticed that many of the shoppers who patronized the market last Wednesday, the opening day, were on hand again bright and early this morning. Some of them have been getting their vegetables and greens at the market since the first season it was opened. Those who offered their wares for sale stated that they got good prices without question, and that their customers appeared to be well satisfied. They received many compliments upon the excellence of their produce. Part of them also brought in rich Jersey cream, cottage cheese, poultry and fresh eggs. The latter went with the first buyers. One lady asked that nothing be said about the cream and cheese, as they didn't have enough to hait go around. Until the snow flies in the fall, the market will be open every Wednesday and Saturday, and it is expected that more farmers will be coming in to take advantage of the favorable opportunity offered for the quick disposal of their goods.

BASTA CASE IS REINSTATED

Judge Cant Replaces Involved Estate Controversy on the Calendar.

Judge Cant this morning issued an order reinstating on the general term calendar the appeal of Mrs. Sara Basta, widow of Bozo Basta, from the order of probate court appointing Ljubo Bogicevitch administrator of the estate.

This is the case that was dimissed on stiplation by L. H. Corcoran, attorney for the widow and Riley, Goldberg and Classon, attorneys for the administrator. There were several affidavits filed by both parties, that of Riley, Goldberg and Classon reiterating the charges made that Mrs. Basta was not really the wife of the deceased and had another husband living. Mr. Corcoran's affidavit was to the effect that he holds a power of attorney from Basta's parents in Austria, and parties employing Riley, Goldberg and Classon. Mr. Corcoran offered to pay the attorneys employed by the administrators whatever the court might decide that their services were worth to date and asked that they be dismissed from the case.

It is alleged that Bogecivich resigned as administrator and A. L. Bowden was appointed. It is further claimed that a settlement was made by Mr. Bowden and his attorneys with the Oliver Mining company for $1,000, but that Mr. Corcoran had already effected settlement for $2,300. According to the affidavits the new administrator and his attorneys refused to recognize the widow and children in the settlement. This was not satisfactory to Peter Radkovich, who held power of attorney from the parents of Basta in Austria. Radkovich gave Mr. Corcoran the power of attorney to act for him and directed Mr. Corcoran to pay Riley, Goldberg and Classon whatever their services might be worth and discharge them from further connection with the case.

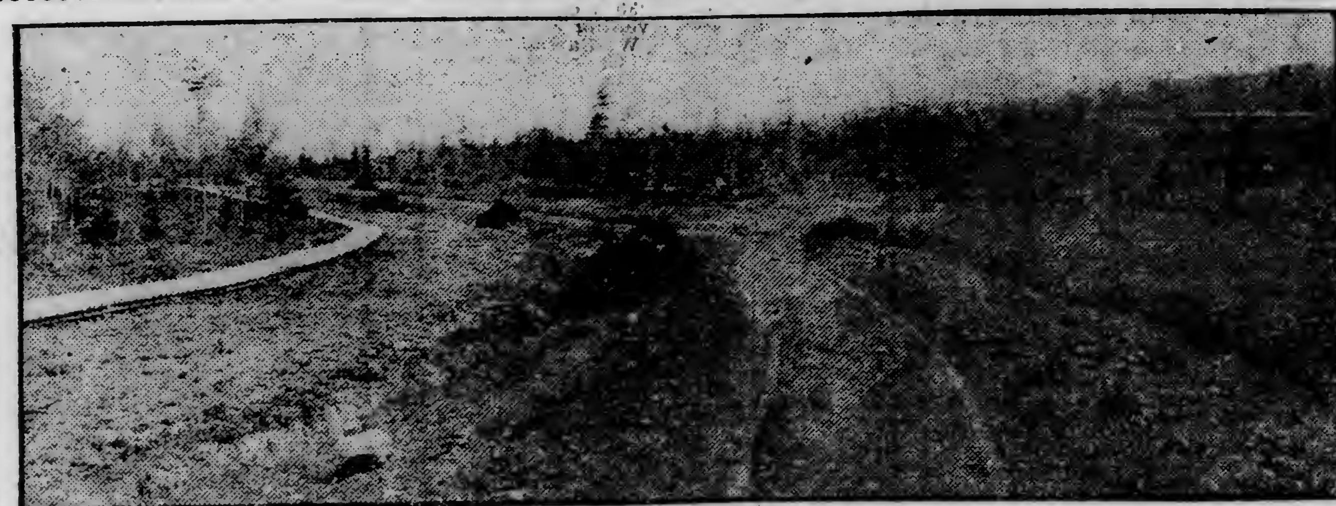
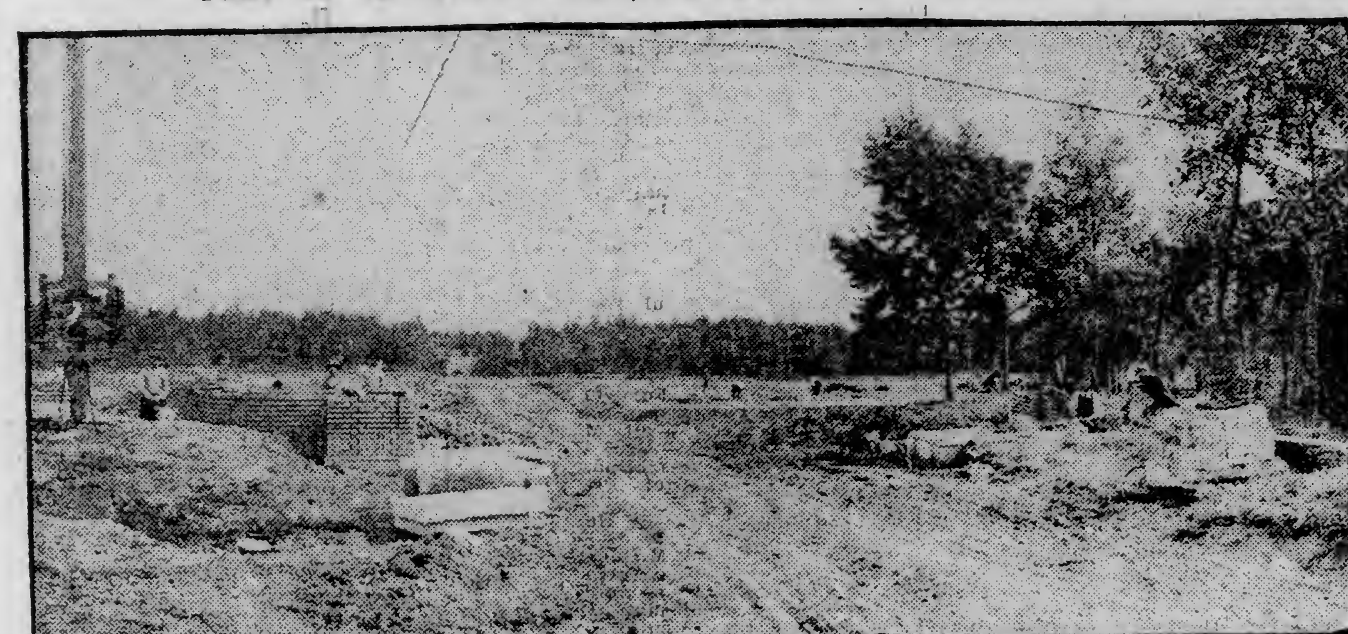
GREAT ACTIVITY ON SITE OF NEW RESIDENCE PARK

Curving Driveways and Parked Grounds in Preparation for Duluth's Four Hundred.



PART OF CRESCENT VIEW PARK, WITH WORK IN PROGRESS.



MASSIVE BRICK GATEWAY IN COURSE OF CONSTRUCTION.

Crescent View Park, Duluth's newest residential district, is a scene of bustling activity these days!

A hundred men and a score of teams have been busy for some time grading and leveling this property under the instructions of a famous firm of landscape architects.

It is the intention of the owners of this beautiful property to turn it into a residential park, and it is expected that the property will be offered for sale as soon as the alterations are complete.

A massive brick gateway is in the course of construction at the entrance to Crescent View Park.

This is the only gateway of its kind in the Northwest; its equal can be found in only a few of the largest cities in the country—Philadelphia, Boston, New York, etc.

It will do much to enhance the parklike appearance of this beautiful district.

In this park the landscape architects have departed from the conventional "grid-iron" form of laying out their streets and avenues and have arranged instead for sweeping drives and curving tree-shaded avenues, which will immensely enhance the natural beauties of the park.

OPPOSITION TO THE MUSTACHE.

Millgate Monthly: Is the mustache about to disappear from the faces of the majority of the population of these islands? It almost looks as if fashion was tending in that direction—at least judging from one's acquaintances.

The years are not far distant when the directors of the Bank of England issued an order for the clerks not to wear mustaches during business hours. This remarkable order afforded the public so much amusement that it was soon cancelled. Hull was one of the earliest towns in which the mustache was worn among policemen—the watch committee passing a resolution in 1859 permitting them to "wear a beard and a mustache if they think fit."

The head of a leading firm of drapers in Regent street refused at one time to employ shopmen who wore a mustache or those who parted their hair down the middle. The prejudice extended to the liberal professions. Barristers had a long fight for the mustache and today it is not largely worn as in other professions.

The bishops in most instances opposed it and at the present time mustaches are not popular, more especially among the High Church party. In 1892 quite a sensation was caused when it became known that the then archbishop of York did not approve of the mustache among the clergy.

It was about 1855 that the beard movement took hold of the English people. The Crimean war had much to do with it. Our soldiers were permitted to forego the use of the razors as the hair on the face protected them from the cold and attacks of neuralgia.

About this period only one civilian of position in England had the hardihood to wear a mustache. This was George M. Muntz, member of parliament for Birmingham. The enlightened electors, however, did not take kindly to the bearded politician. An officer candidate on one occasion received an intimation from the leader of his party that his mustache might prejudice him in the eyes of the rural population. The candidate replied that he was "determined to face it out."

WHAT HE WAS DOING.

New York Herald: "Woman's curiosity," said Mr. Fletcher, "is a quality of the mind beyond all understanding."

"Yes?" said Mrs. Fletcher. "What made you think of that?"

"The fool actions of a woman that I saw downtown today. She followed a man ten blocks just to get to read a placard that was fastened to his back. That was really the end of her trip—I made that out from something she said to another woman who was too fat to join in the chase—but when she caught sight of that flaming red poster tied to the man's back her curiosity got the better of her and she set out after him. He led her quite a chase, across town and downtown and half-way back to Thirty-fourth street, but she never weakened. She tagged faithfully along in his wake, and finally she got close enough to read that notice.

Mrs. Fletcher reflected a moment. "What did it say?" she asked.

"It advised her to get her teeth pulled somewhere in Sixth avenue."

Mrs. Fletcher thought again.

"Where were you all the time she was trying to find that out?" she asked.

"Me?" said Fletcher. "Oh, I was following the woman. I wanted to see if she finally caught up with the man."

"Oh," said Mrs. Fletcher.

EDISON'S DON'TS.

Mr. Edison is also still busy with his new storage battery, which, he claims, will solve the traction question. This, too, has been scoffed at from the beginning; it is a long time since Mr. Edison began investigation in this direction, but when a successful portable method of storing electricity is developed, another industrial revolution will be accomplished.

This leads up to the point to which special attention is directed, says the Bookkeeper. In his experiments with these batteries, Mr. Edison has had men at work for years with a patience unparalleled. More than a half ton of reports on experiments with batteries have been made. Two of his best men had to give up the work because of its unending monotony to save themselves from nervous breakdown. The work was continued night and day for more than three years, and more than 9,000 experiments were made without obtaining the results which Mr. Edison wanted. A visitor to whom this was told exclaimed:

"Then all those experiments were practically wasted."

"Not at all," said Mr. Edison. "I now know 9,000 things not to do"—all of which indicates that it is as important to know what not to do as what to do.

GROUNDLESS PLEASURE.

Leslie M. Shaw, at the recent banquet in New York of the Commercial Travelers' league, said of a silly argument against a great American merchant marine:

"This argument is groundless. It reminds me, really, of old Mother Taliaferro.

"Mother Taliaferro lived in a dugout in North Carolina very near the line. When the boundary between North Carolina and Virginia was changed, it shifted the old woman's dugout into the latter state.

"'Well, mother,' said a surveyor to her, 'you don't live in North Carolina any more. You live in Virginia now. How do you like it?'

"'Like it?' said the old woman. 'Why, I likes it fine, o' course. Everybody knows that Virginny is a healthier state than North Car'lina.'"

JUSTICE IN ITHACA.

Philadelphia Record: Cornell students who came down for the annual Pennsylvania football game on Franklin field told an interesting, almost incredible, story of the way justice is meted out in Ithaca, N. Y. A ne'er-do-well of the town was arrested on the charge of drunken and disorderly conduct by one of the four policemen boasted by the town. The "jug," which is built upon uncommonly modest proportions, was full except for one room when the culprit was brought in, and that room or cell was occupied by a stray pup. The "drunk" was unceremoniously dumped into the cell along with the dog. It chanced that the man had a bad cough, which the dog, during the night, succeeded in contracting also. The next day, when the prisoner was hauled up before Magistrate Frater, he was fined $20 for riotous and disorderly conduct and $20 more for cruelty to animals.

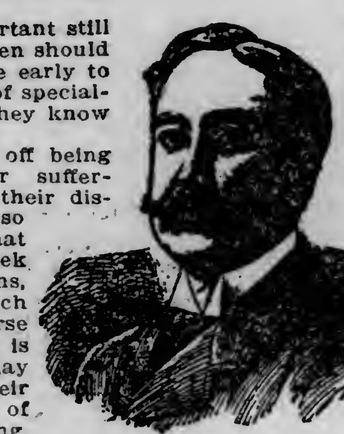
ELECTRICITY SHOULD BE COMBINED WITH THE INTELLIGENT USE OF MEDICINE



In the hands of specialists, this has been proven the most successful way of copeing with the terrible ravages of diseases, which so many hundreds of men are afflicted.

But more important still is the fact that men should present their case early to the careful care of specialists, as soon as they know they are afflicted.

Men who put off being treated for their sufferings until often their disease becomes so deeply rooted, that their systems reek with foul poisons, are unwise. Such delays are worse than folly. It is when men delay too long that their troubles fail of successful curing. It is then that treatments become hard, long, tedious and expensive.

Now is the time for us to rid you of ulcers, boils, blood poisons, ringworms, barbers' itch, etc., and all those diseases so peculiar to man.

We know we can cure you. In fact, we issue a written guarantee to cure all cases we accept, and we have cured men of the worst diseases, and only the most delicate and careful treatments could ever have affected a cure.

We treat men only and by so doing we have become experts in the treating of their diseases. We carefully analyze each case and after a careful examination of the symptoms we know exactly how to go about the curing of your sickness, in the shortest possible way and at the least expense to the patient.

We cure by mail as well as treatment at our offices. Out-of-town patients are requested to send for free symptom blank and tell us the exact nature of their ills. Owing to the years of our experience, we are able to give you a correct remedy, which you take in the privacy of your own home. Do not delay. Today is the day for you to call on us.

DR. MITCHELL
DOING GREAT WORK
AT 325 WEST FIRST STREET

Bedfast and helpless for many days. Use of his limbs restored in one treatment by Dr. Mitchell's

Electric Magnetic Treatment.

His appearance walking caused a sensation among neighbors.

The many friends and acquaintances of Mr. George Ryckman, 1423 West Michigan street, Duluth, will be glad to learn through the columns of this paper of his restoration to health. Mr. Ryckman was a terrible sufferer from rheumatism. His pain was very intense. He suffered night and day. He was unable to get relief and lay awake many nights suffering. He was taking several different kinds of medicine but was getting worse rapidly. He was unable to walk and was much discouraged. Hearing of Dr. Mitchell's Electric Magnetic treatments through some of his friends he decided to consult him. He called a hack and two men carried him from his house to the hack and took him to Dr. Mitchell's office. To his own great surprise and also his friends he walked down the stairs from Dr. Mitchell's office to the street car after one treatment.

The sight of him walking in one hour and a half after being a helpless cripple for many days caused a great sensation among his neighbors.

Mr. Albert Rogers, Duluth, Minn., says: "I am just finishing a course of Dr. Mitchell's Electric Magnetic treatment. I had been sick many months and could get no relief. I was failing every day and got so weak I could hardly walk. My stomach, liver and kidneys were not doing their proper work. Nothing seemed to take hold of my case.

"Dr. Mitchell's treatments worked like magic. Today I am a well man and give Dr. Mitchell credit. While taking treatment I saw many of Dr. Mitchell's patients. They were all on the road to recovery and spoke of Dr. Mitchell's treatment with great praise. I consider Mr. Ryckman's cure miraculous for I saw him and talked with him. I shall be glad to substantiate this statement."

The above mentioned cures are similar in character to many others that are being performed daily by Dr. Mitchell at 325 West First street.

STAGE PEOPLE IN DIAMOND STUNTS

Baseball and Track Exhibition Nets $15,000 for the Actors' Fund.

New York, Aug. 20.—From 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon until dark, many of the best known actors and actresses of the country played baseball, ran races and did stunts before 13,000 people for the benefit of the Actors' Fund of America. It was the annual actors' field day at the polo grounds.

The Friars baseball team lost by 3 to 4 to Lew Fields' team. Dan Brouthers, an old professional, and Terry McGovern were the umpires. In another game a team of soubrettes in bloomers won on a forfeit from a team of actors composed of George M. Cohan, Raymond Hitchcock, George Evans, James J. Corbett, Bicket, Watson, Tom Lewis, John King and "Scamp," otherwise James Montgomery, a brother of Dave. According to the decision the actors lost because the soubrette pitcher gave them three men on bases by foul balls in one inning.

It was thought the net receipts would reach $15,000.

SUMMER SCHOOL COMES TO CLOSE

Many Parents and Friends Inspect Work of the Pupils.

The six weeks' term of the Duluth summer vacation school was brought to a close yesterday when the children of the domestic science school and the manual training classes exhibited their work to their parents and the members of the Women's Council and other interested visitors. The exhibit was held at the Bryant school where the domestic science classes have been held under the direction of Miss Gaumitz. The manual training classes were held at the Irving school but the work of the boys was also shown at the Bryant school for the greater convenience of the visitors.

Eighty girls have been enrolled at the summer classes and products of their skill acquired during the summer, were shown. Two long tables filled with bread and biscuits, and cakes and pies and jellies testified to the skill of the young cooks. All of the exhibits were prepared at the school. During the afternoon Miss Gaumitz assisted by a number of the girls, served lemonade and cookies of their own make, to the callers.

The work of the boys brought many words of commendation. The pieces which they have completed are well designed and most carefully made and they were exhibited with pardonable pride. The teacher for the summer has been A. L. Avery.

The exhibit was most interesting and it was earnestly desired that the members of the board of education be present as it is hoped eventually to have vacation schools a part of the regular work of the board in the localities throughout the city where they will meet a real need. The schools this summer were maintained at the expense of the board of education but were under the direction of the Women's Council.

Executive Board Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the executive board of the Twentieth Century club will be held Monday morning at 10 o'clock at the clubroom of the library.

STATE FAIR IS CLOSE AT HAND

Dates of Great Annual Exhibition Are Sept. 5 to 10, Inclusive.

The Minnesota state fair is near at hand.

It will open on Monday, Sept. 5, and will continue throughout that week.

It comes at the end of the summer and at the beginning of the harvest season.

It glorifies the great achievements of Minnesota industries and shows in the most graphic way possible the commanding position Minnesota holds in the progress of the nation.

It tells you how Minnesota adds to the wealth and sustenance of the entire world.

It demonstrates that in many fields of industry Minesota leads, not only in America, but in the entire world.

It is a story of progress, of energy, of proud accomplishment.

It is a world's exposition in itself.

These are a few of the hundreds of reasons why Duluthians should not miss the great Minnesota state fair.

Its influence on the thought and industries of the people of the state, as well as of the country, is tremendous. In six days a careful survey of the thousands of wonderful features of the state fair gives more than months of university study. Not only does it display the achievements of the people here, bringing all branches of industry up to the minute, but it forecasts the golden promise of the immediate future, showing that, in spite of the marvelous development, many greater things are to come.

But this is only one phase of the great fair. The many forms of amusement make "fair week" seem like one grand, glorious holiday.

When one has seen and admired the achievements of the state in agriculture, horticulture, stock raising and mechanical invention, one can turn for lighter recreation to the wonderful program of pleasure. There will be horse racing, aeroplane flights, automobile speeding, music, high-class vaudeville and fireworks, with the great educational, historic spectacle "The Fair of Nations," to cap the climax.

The dates are Sept. 5 to 10, inclusive.

GROCERS WILL HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC.

The Grocers' picnic will be held next Thursday at Fond du Lac. The merrymakers will leave Duluth at 9 o'clock in the morning on the steamers Newsboy and the Mascotte. One of the boats will make another trip at 1 o'clock in the afternoon and both boats will make trips to the city between 5 and 6 o'clock.

A ball game will be pulled off between the grocers and the commission men. A long list of prizes has been prepared and there will be sports for both men and women. The children will not be overlooked in the efforts of the committees who have the affair in charge. The grocery stores will be closed during the day.

GRATEFUL MOTHER TELLS OF LITTLE SON'S SUFFERING

With Sores All Over Head, on Neck and Face. Cries Kept Parents Awake Through Long Nights. Hands in Gloves to Prevent Scratching. Used Cuticura Remedies. Cured in Less than Three Weeks.

As a grateful mother, I feel it my duty to thank you for the cure of my little son who was afflicted for about eight months with sores all over his head, back of his neck and nearly all his face. We tried all kinds of remedies without any relief. We even employed a good physician and I am sure he tried his very best to cure my poor suffering little boy. But, alas! instead of getting better he went for the worse. His head was literally covered with scabs and ugly sores and his cries kept us awake throughout the long night. I had to keep his hands in gloves to prevent his scratching his head, as he was doubtless suffering from a burning and itching sensation and was constantly trying to put his hands where it hurt.

At last when he was about three years old, we saw an advertisement of Cuticura and I decided to try the virtues of the Cuticura Remedies. I bought one cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. I used them according to directions and I am happy to tell you the little sufferer was cured in less than three weeks. This was over a year ago and now his head is covered with a fine growth of luxuriant hair. Strange to say, all those unsightly sores did not even leave a scar.

TRADE SENTIMENT IMPROVING

New York, Aug. 20.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade today says:

While trade contraction continues, sentiment improves and the basic conditions underlying the situation appear strong.

While quietness still prevails in most departments of the iron and steel market, there has been practically no further decline in quotations. The general opinion appears to be that the lowest point has now been reached and that any change occurring from now on will be toward a higher level. Production of pig iron is in about the same volume as a week ago; but buying shows further contraction although at the expense of a reduction in stocks in the hands of the fabricating interests, while new orders in some lines of finished steel are said to exceed those of the same time in the previous month, and when fair sized orders were placed for rails.

The tone in the drygoods market is better, especially with jobbers and selling agents, but business is still of limited proportions, with buyers showing little desire to operate beyond well defined requirements.

Cotton goods and cotton yarn holds firm with buying showing more breadth. The week sales at Fall River represented 360,000 pieces, or double the amount of the restricted output of print cloths, while sales of 2,500 bales of standard drills for India was the largest business with the far East, China markets being dull and prices were above the views of Red Sea buyers. Business on wool firsts and worsteds is of a more limited character, although there is more agreement regarding values. The trend of the production is still much below normal and there is a general desire on the part of the producers to avoid accumulations.

Many of the shoe manufacturers have completed contracts on fall goods and are doing little on account of the lack of supplemetanry fall orders. Most of the New England factories are still running on part time and the local jobbing trade continues to improve on account of the approaching opening of the schools. Hide markets are less active and the advanced prices demanded of late have checked the demand. There is some improvement in leather, and increased sales have been made in certain descriptions, but the situation on the whole is still far from satisfactory and in a number of instances further concessions have been made in prices in order to effect business.

STATE PEN COST $1,528,782.50

To Run During the Fiscal Year Ending July 31 Last.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—According to figures compiled in the office of the state treasurer, $1,528,782.50 was spent in conducting the Minnesota state prison during the fiscal year which ended July 31. A total of $1,360,730.41 was taken in, the total receipts at the twine plant amounted to $1,231,409.17, and the total expenditures in that department were $1,326,461.86. The difference is accounted for by the fact that a large amount of stock is on hand and much permanent improvement has been added. The twine plant is more than self-sustaining.

Cost of Other Institutions.

Preliminary work on the "jag" farm entailed an expenditure of $1,247.60. There is a fund of $114,765.21 on hand to complete this home. The sanitorium for consumptives at Walker cost the state $5,987.72. There was taken in at this institution $19,684.91. The expenditures at the reformatory at St. Cloud amounted to $170,648.29, and the receipts were $55,627.99.

Messrs. Sellwood, Miller and Silliman Encounter Ore on Howe Forty.

Biwabik, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A big ore find is said to have been made on the Howe forty, just west of Biwabik.

It is stated that one drill is more than ninety feet in pay dirt, and that there seems to be no limit to the amount of ore found.

The strike was made by a syndicate of Duluth men, in which Messrs. Miller, Sellwood and Silliman are said to be interested.

There is every reason to believe that the property will be used at once, and that its opening will be a great thing for Biwabik.

This forty is located just out of Biwabik to the west, lying between the Canton and the Holland properties. It has been on the market for years. Several local men have figured upon having it drilled, but backed up because of the expense attached.

Canines Are Doing a Lot of Promiscuous Bitings During Dog Days.

While so far as known there have developed no cases of rabies the heads of families boasting small children are naturally nervous, as children are more frequently bitten.

Attacked by a large dog the 9-year-old son of John Peterson, track foreman for the Oliver Iron Mining company, was badly bitten in the arm. The boy was rushed to a hospital and the wound cauterized, the doctors anticipating that rabies will not develop. The offending canine was shot.

The dog attacked the man twice before knocked senseless and then killed. The next few days will tell whether rabies develop.

IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS.

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles. A Duluth Citizen Shows How to Cure Them.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is just where the danger lies. You must cure these troubles or they may lead to diabetes or Bright's disease. The best remedy to use is Doan's Kidney Pills. It cures all ills which are caused by weak or diseased kidneys. Duluth people testify to permanent cures.

William Bain, 1402 East Fourth street, Duluth, Minn., says: "About three years ago I was in poor health as the result of disordered kidneys. My back also ached considerably. As I had heard and read a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills, I made up my mind to try them and I procured a supply. After I had used two or three boxes, I was relieved and I have not had to take any medicine for my kidneys since. I am glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers."

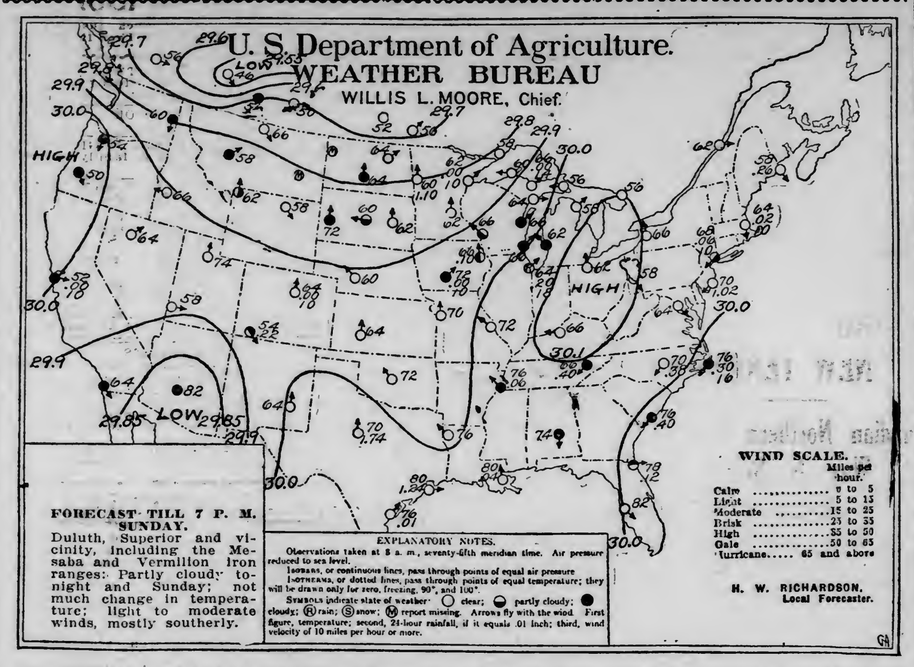
OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER



CLOUDY

Rare days may come in June, but since every man is entitled to his own opinion, an opinion that the days of June are no rarer than the days of August in Duluth should be respected. Yesterday was one of those days that make the visiting hay fever patient wonder how he ever happened to live away from Duluth. Today is another beautiful one and a few more are promised by the obliging sage on the hill.

Fair weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 5:12 and it will set at 7:11, giving thirteen hours and fifty-nine minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The low barometer over Western Canada has increased in intensity, its center remaining about stationary over Alberta. The barometer has fallen throughout all Middle and Western districts except off the North Pacific coast and the temperature has risen generally. During the last twenty-four hours scattered showers fell over the Dakotas, Minnesota, the Mississippi valley, Gulf and Atlantic states. Heavy rains fell at Moorhead, Minn., Montevideo, Minn., Abilene, Texas, Galveston, Texas, and Atlantic City, N. J. The barometer is highest over the Eastern Lake region and Ohio valley, somewhat cooler weather resulting in the latter district. Indications favor generally fair weather at the Head of the Lakes during tonight and probably Sunday."

TAFT FINDS HE IS RELATED TO ALDRICH.

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 20.—President Taft spent the greater part of yesterday in the homes and haunts of his ancestors. The president met scores of relatives.

In the genealogical analysis that the day brought forth it was discovered that through an ancient strain the president is related to Senator N. W. Aldrich of Rhode Island, that Private Secretary Charles Dyer Norton is also related to the senator from Rhode Island and that the president is related to Governor Draper of Massachusetts. It was as the guest of Governor Draper that the president made his pilgrimage.

Going a Hunting.

"Going a Hunting" has a ring to it of romance and adventure. As your enthusiast holds forth you sense the mystery of the forests and the mountains and the plains—can feel the call of the far-off places where the sunbrowned men are waiting. The water supply is apt to be uncertain on such a trip and it is always a wise precaution to include a generous supply of Golden Grain Belt beer. Nothing so quickly refreshes the weary hunter as a glass of this pure sparkling beverage. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing company.

THEIR EYES ARE OPENED

Members of the State Drainage Commission See a Great Light.

Never Before Realized the Resources of Northern Minnesota.

The Minnesota state drainage commission, consisting of the governor, secretary of state, state auditor, and engineer, accompanied by the state treasurer, attorney general and immigration commissioner, has completed its tour of inspection of the ditches in Northeastern Minnesota and returned to St. Paul.

Governor Eberhart and Secretary Schmahl left the party on the ranges and the other members of the commission, accompanied by Louis C. Weeks, assistant attorney general, F. H. Nutter, county engineer of Hennepin county, and L. B. Arnold, land commissioner of the Iron Range road, came to Duluth last evening, the St. Paul members of the party leaving for the state capital after attending a meeting of the Fifth Ward Republican club in the Palladio building.

Attorney General Simpson, who spoke as the representative of the governor, devoted most of his remarks to political subjects, but incidentally told of the vast resources of this part of the state as they have been observed by the touring officials. Auditor Samuel G. Iverson enlarged upon the topic in the course of a political talk, and Treasurer Pettijohn devoted all his remarks to the subject, explaining that he was not a politician.

"Before I took up my residence in St. Paul," said the treasurer, "I lived at St. Peter, Nicollet county. Nicollet county is purely a farming community in which practically every acre is in use, either as tilled ground, pasture or meadowland. We are very proud of our county, which is much like the adjacent counties in the Minnesota valley. It is one of the oldest organized counties in the state and is accounted rich.

"We have been over this northeastern part of the state, unfamiliar to some of us; and have learned that its resources are far beyond what we had thought them to be. Why, gentlemen, we were in the little town of Eveleth several days ago, and while there I looked over the tax list of the town, which covers a territory no more than a mile and a half square. And the assessed valuation of the town was three times as great as that of any of the Minnesota valley counties that I have mentioned.

"It is time that other parts of the state begin to comprehend what there is in this portion of the state. The lands now idle in the North will become farms and the agricultural development will be great. We came to see what there is here. We have seen and we are astonished at what we have learned."

George A. Ralph, state drainage engineer, told the meeting that Immigration Commissioner Welsh had been telling "hot air" stories of the vast resources of Northeastern Minnesota as an agricultural region for some time, and now that he had taken the commissioner over the region, that official must subject his stories along that line to revision upward if he is to approximate the truth. Mr. Ralph made a brief, earnest talk and told something about the work he is doing as an agent of the commission.

"I have been telling things about Northeastern Minnesota that have been heard with tolerant incredulity, at times," said Commissioner Welsh, "and I have told the members of this party certain things that possibly they have not believed. Now they believe. They have seen what this part of the state offers for the future, and I will venture this prediction: Within fifty years the agricultural population of Northeastern Minnesota per square mile will be greater than in any other part of the state, in the most fertile counties of the Mississippi."

EPILEPTIC FITS OF ELEVEN YEARS STANDING

Dr. D. W. Riesland:

Dear Sir: In reply to this date. It affords me great pleasure to enclose herewith my testimonial.

During my period of illness the past 11 years which was in the form of Epileptic Fits, I had the attention of 10 doctors, three operations, no improvement after the operations, and in fact, worse after the last. My people had about given up my case as hopeless, when they heard of Dr. Riesland's wonderful cures, so they decided to try again—and with this grand result that just three months treatments has cured me of these fits, and I can heartily indorse the Treatment for any one afflicted with this disease. I am now enjoying good health and feel like a new woman.

Yours very truly,
MARY McKAY.

LUMBER IS DESTROYED

Spectacular Midnight Fire in Yard of Box Factory at New Duluth.

Entire Male Population of Suburb Helps Fight Flames.

Fire, probably originating from a cigarette carlessly thrown into the yard by a laborer at the steel plant site, destroyed a large quantity of valuable lumber at the yard of the Reickhoff box factory just after midnight last night. The lumber was in a very inflammable condition and the blaze got beyond the control of the local fire department soon after the night watchman sent in the alarm. The engine and hose cart from the West Duluth station were rushed to the scene of the blaze and after a hard three hours' battle in which not only the firemen but nearly all of the male population of New Duluth participated, the flames were beaten back and the fire extinguished.

The box factory people stated this morning that they could give no accurate or even approximate estimate of the loss. Two box cars full of lumber were rescued from the blaze, but one was entirely consumed. For a time it was thought that the $30,000 box factory itself was bound to go. Had there been a noticeable wind last evening the entire suburb would have been threatened.

The blaze was a spectacular one and was visible all over the western portion of the city, flames and sparks shooting hundreds of feet into the air.

The yard has always been in a dangerous condition, it being necessary for a crew of men with fire extinguishers to follow every switch engine into the yards. No smoking has ever been allowed there, but the danger has been increased of late by the large numbers of steel plant laborers who pass the yards en route to the saloon on the island. It is thought that the fire originated from a cigarette or cigar butt discarded by one of these men.

FIRE HORSE EXHAUSTED AFTER LONG PULL.

One of the horses on the fire engine of the West Duluth fire department was completely exhausted from overwork this morning during the long run that the department had to New Duluth when the factory burned.

Considerable difficulty was experienced by the crew handling the engine and it was not until a late hour that it returned to the fire hall. The horse is a small one and has been in the service many years. It is said that the horse was put at the West Duluth station to do duty until the officials could get another horse, but this was some time ago, and no word has been received by the West Duluth department that it would be replaced.

The horse first played out in Smithville on the return trip, when they were hauling the engine up a steep hill. It gave out completely at about Eightieth avenue west, where a stop for a long time was made.

LAYING OUT NEW TERMINALS

Canadian Northern Right-of-Way Is Being Cleared.

T. B. Campbell, civil engineer for the Canadian Northern Railway company, who is here attending to the work of building the road within the city and for a distance of thirty miles from Duluth, has a surveying crew at work in West Duluth making arrangements for the route over the principal streets.

Within a month the contractors for the elevated road in this part of the city will be at work. Long before then all the families residing in houses along the route will be forced to vacate, and many of the houses disposed of, a Duluth real estate firm having charge of the sale.

Mr. Campbell is working as rapidly as possible in clearing out the route, after which the crews on the overhead structure will begin work. Mr. Campbell will have the supervision of all this work, as well as of the ore docks which will be built in the West end.

FALLS FROM SECOND STORY

Hattie Hanson Seriously Injured in Fall From Roof of Porch.

Hattie Hanson, 15-year-old daughter of Christ Hanson, 107 North Twenty-seventh avenue west, fell from the porch of the second story of their home last evening to the cement walk and was seriously injured.

A gash about eight inches long was cut at the base of her skull and several other bruises were received. Physicians were called, who sewed up the wound. The girl was unconscious for several hours.

Although her condition was critical for some time last evening, it is believed today that she will not suffer permanent injuries and will be well in a short time.

Just how the accident happened is not known. She was sitting in a chair on the porch, reading, when suddenly she fell over, striking on her head.

WEST DULUTH PIONEER DIES

Louis Peter Highmark Passes Away After Long Illness of Dropsy.

Louis Peter Highmark, one of West Duluth's oldest pioneers, died at 5 o'clock this morning after an illness of several months, at his home on the Windy Heights farm, in Midway.

The cause of his death was dropsy of the heart, from which he has suffered since last fall. His case is said to have been one of the most difficult ever attended by local physicians. This spring he was taken to Rochester where surgeons were consulted but nothing could be done for him.

Yesterday his case was considered improving, and some hope for his recovery was held, but at an early hour this morning he had a relapse and the end came rather suddenly.

He was 54 years old, and is survived by his widow and five children: Peter E., Tobias L., Mrs. K. E. Forsell, George E. and Joseph H., all of whom were at the bedside when he passed away. His mother is living in Sweden Relatives also reside in Couer d'Alene, Idaho.

Mr. Highmark came to West Duluth in 1887, when this part of the city was practically a wilderness. He worked at his trade as carpenter for many years and then engaged in the grocery business at Sixty-third avenue west and Bristol street, where he remained for ten years. He removed to the farm about two years ago.

The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon, unless word comes from the relatives in the West that they will be here to attend it. The services will be held at 1 o'clock at the farm, and at 2:30 at the West Duluth Swedish Mission church. Fifty-ninth avenue west and Green street. Rev. J. J. Daniels, of teh West End Mission church, assisted by Rev. Engstrom of the West Duluth Mission church, will conduct the services. Interment will be made at the Oneota cemetery.

ROADS MAY AGREE ON UNION STATION

Committee Reports That Suggestion Is Receiving Attention From Officials.

The suggestion offered by West Duluth business men that the Northern Pacific Railway company and the Canadian Northern Railway company have a union station for this section of the city, is being considered by the companies, according to a report from the committee which was appointed by the West Duluth Commercial club to communicate with the railroads.

At the meeting of the club last evening this matter was discussed and the committee stated that word had been received from the officials of the Northern Pacific that something would be done on the station question within two weeks.

They were given to understand that a new station would be built, but they were not ready to make a full report, saying that the plans under consideration were not so far developed that they were able to make them public. It is believed, however, that the two roads are anxious to have one station at this point, and so make it more convenient for both.

Such an arrangement would be entirely satisfactory to West Duluth business men as well as the public at large, it is believed, and the committee may urge that this plan be carried through.

The question of vacating the street between Sixty-first and Sixty-ninth avenues west and between Bristol and Nicollet streets, was brought up and discussed. Members will make an investigation to see if there is any reason why opposition should be made for such a vacation, and it will be brought before the club again at the next meeting. The Canadian Northern company started an action recently in the district court for this vacation of streets, and it will undoubtedly be heard during the September term of court.

It was while in the hallway that he encountered Emil Krich, the proprietor, and a fight followed. Krich claimed that Gronholm used very abusive language and that he tried to go through the pockets of a coat belonging to a boarder. Finds for Plaintiff.

The Brotherhood gave a deed to the property to the plaintiff, but the contract of sale was never carried out so that the title technically remained in the improvement company. Judge Dibell in his decision says that this was a mere naked title without any equity and directed that the decision operate as a transfer to the plaintiff corporation.

LAKE TRADE ON INCREASE

Government's Figure for the First Six Months of Year, Issued.

Statistics Show Big Growth in Traffic, Especially Iron Ore.

Commercial movements on the Great Lakes during June and the six months ending June of the present year, as measured by the volume of shipments between domestic lake ports, show large gains over like figures of the preceding years, including 1907, a most favorable year in the history of lake commerce.

The total June shipments of the present year, as reported to the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor, 13,603,516 gross tons, exceeding the June, 1907, shipments by over 16 per cent and the 1909 shipments by over 33 per cent, while the six months' shipments for the present year, 30,448,065 gross tons, show an equally favorable development.

The large gain is due primarily to the heavier shipments of iron ore from the Lake Superior producing region, the monthly total, for the first time exceeding the 7,000,000 mark. Of the 7,068,406 gross tons shipped 3,788,616 gross tons, or 53 per cent of the total, proceeded from Duluth-Superior; 1,418,843 gross tons, or over 20 per cent, from Two Harbors; over 12 per cent to Escanaba, and less than 10 per cent to Ashland. The total iron ore receipts for the season to the end of June were 13,593,046 gross tons, of which 10,959,240 gross tons were landed at Lake Superior ports, as compared with 5,972,588 tons in 1909, and 2,633,806 gross tons at Lake Michigan ports, as compared with 1597,499 gross tons in 1909.

Shipments of soft coal for the month and the six months' period, 2,806,963 and 5,913,177 gross tons, respectively, were also the largest on record for the periods named. Over 90 per cent of the season's shipments proceeded from Lake Erie ports, mainly from Toledo, Cleveland, Asatabula, and Ashland, and only about 10 per cent from Lake Michigan ports. About 56 per cent of coal receipts during the present season are credited to Duluth-Superior and Milwaukee, though considerable quantities found their way also to smaller Lake Michigan and Lake Superior ports such as Manitowoc, Green Bay, Escanaba, Ashland, and Marquette. Receipts at Chicago during the season were larger than during previous years, totalling 187,284 gross tons for the six months of the present year. The shipments of hard coal for the month and season ending June, 628,026 and 1,567,789 net tons, mainly from Buffalo and Erie, were also larger than for the preceding years. About one-half of the hard coal received is credited to Duluth-Superior and Milwaukee; considerable quantities of this class of fuel are also taken by Chicago.

Lumber shipments for the month and season, 154,748,000 and 461,463,000 feet, while heavier than during the two previous years, fell short of the corresponding 1907 figures. About 67 per cent of the season shipments proceeded from Lake Michigan ports; 37 per cent from Lake Superior ports; and less than 7 per cent from Lake Huron ports. About 60 per cent of lumber receipts for the six months of the year are credited to Lake Michigan ports and less than 30 per cent to Lake Erie ports. The largest receiving port for lumber for the six months of the season appears to have been Chicago with 97,405,000 feet, followed by North Tonawanda with 59,885,000 feet, and Ludington with 54,821,000 feet.

The grain shipments during the month and season while heavier than the corresponding shipments during the two previous years show, however, considerable decreases when compared with 1906 and 1907 figures. The wheat shipments for the month, 2,459,097 bushels, practically all from Duluth-Superior and Chicago, were below those of June, 1909, though the six months' total, 9,287,148 usheis is more than the corresponding 1909 figures. Corn shipments, 5,457,161 bushels in June and 12,291,795 bushels during the season, chiefly from Chicago and Milwaukee, were heavier than in 1909, while those of oats, for the month and season 1,938,360 and 10,234,260 bushels, respectively, exceeded like figures for the preceding two years. The monthly shipments of barley, 1,488,368 bushels, mainly from the port of Superior, were unusually heavy, while the season shipments, 4,246,597 bushels, exceeded those of the preceding three years. Shipments of flaxseed, 163,660 bushels in June and 360,660 bushels for the season, were far below the 1908 and 1907 figures.

Shipments of iron manufactures, 264,531 tons in the first half of 1910, (chiefly from Cleveland, Buffalo and Ludington) greatly exceed corresponding figures of any earlier year, while those of pig iron were slightly larger than those of copper and salt less than in 1909. The movement of unclassed and package freight in June and the season 1,025,131 and 2,923,419 net tons, respectively, established new high records.

Traffic through the canals at Sault Ste. Marie in June, 1910, aggregated 9,839,782 net tons, against 6,932,405 and 4,334,183 in June one and two years ago. Over 93 per cent of the month's east-bound freight was iron ore; about 88 per cent of that west-bound was coal. Canal freight traffic, 20,327,071 net tons for the season, was far greater than corresponding figures of earlier years. The growth in canal traffic is also shown by the increased vessel movements, aggregating in the present season 6,715 vessels of 16,978,402 registered tons, against 4,480 vessels of 9,938,707 tons in 1909 and 3,295 vessels of 4,775,940 tons in 1908.

DENIES CHARGES.

Jacob Stubler this morning filed his answer to his wife's complaint in her suit against him for a divorce. In his answer he denies the charges of cruelty and inhuman treatment, denies that he choked her on June 27 or assaulted her on June 15, as alleged in the complaint, claims that he never called her vile, unprintable and obscene names and that he always gave her proper support and acted as a dutiful husband.

He claims that the charges that his life has been so immoral as to make him an unfit person to care for his children are utterly unfounded, and asks for judgment in his favor with costs.

In Duluth Heaven Beats Hell!

Metaphorically Speaking, Disease is Infernal Misery, and Health is Heavenly Blessing and the Basis of Happiness on Earth. The Electro-Radio Curatorium Fights Successfully the Imps of Sickness by Modern Therapeutics and Promotes Health and Joy in the Alworth Building, Duluth.

"To be sick now," said Farmer Henderson last week, "in the middle of harvest, and thrashing at hand soon, is regular h—l, Doc! I can't afford it, you understand."

"You'd rather be in heaven just now, perhaps?" queried the Curatorium chief examiner.

"Not by a gol darn blessed jugful of fine words, if I know myself at all! Earth is good enough for me a while yet, providing you can cure me up as I used to be, and do it quick. I have 180 acres of wheat overripe and, bless your soul, Doc——"

"You don't like to be in hell either, it seems?"

"In hell! Why, man, that's where I am right now, with this old kink in my heart laying me up almost and my wheat fields going surely over twenty-four bushels to the acre—in spots, you understand. But now, get at it, and don't fool away time by church talk for me; I don't care for it, since time is money."

Mr. Henderson went home in a happy frame of mind, "feelin' better'n for years," as do nearly all of the sufferers from heart troubles or other physical infirmities taking radio-electric, operative or pharmaceutical treatments at Duluth's popular Electro-Radio Curatorium.

"Jag har inte maad saa godt somnu paa maanga, maanga, aar," said Mrs. Oscar Renstrom of Smithfield, Minn., last Monday. And her looks show it.

I am certainly much better now, and rarely feel anything of my former stomach affliction," volunteered in grateful satisfaction, Mr. Isaac Hill of 1723 South street.

"I feel fine now, and your treatments are helping my wife too," declared Mr. Chubbick last week.

"Egad, Doc, this is the finest treatment I ever got and it has made me over again, I now feel young as I used to, though near 60," averred Mr. Dan Cain of Thirteenth street, Duluth Heights. And he looks it in color, bright eyes and beaming smiles.

In this same blissful strain most of the Curatorium patients express their satisfaction and gratitude cheerfully, because they have escaped from infernal torments and are again enjoying the blessings of improved or restored health. For the alterative efficiency of the radio-electric treatments, aided by Faradization, Galvanism and conservative surgery and medication is indeed, often bordering on the miraculous as regards results, and may, in figurative language, well be compared to what our pious clergy and the Good Book term a transition from hell to heaven.

The offices of the Electro-Radio Curatorium are located on the eighth floor of the Alworth building in front, where consultations are still for a few days free from 9 to 12 a. m., 2 to 4 and 7 to 8 p. m., and on Sundays from 11 to 12 a. m.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

Fifth Ward Republican Club Holds a Meeting and Hears Talks By State Officials and Local Orators—John Kleffman of Hibbing Mentioned as Possible Democratic Candidate for State Senator—Hammond Files for Congress.

One of the speakers at the meeting of the Fifth Ward Republican club in the Palladio building last evening told a story about the raising of an obelisk somewhere or other, upon which occasion the man in charge of the work stipulated that his gigantic task should be made less hazardous by means of the issuance of an edict that whosoever talked during the progress of the work should suffer the death penalty. The great shaft was slowly assuming the perpendicular when the ropes by which it was being hauled up began to smoke. It seemed that the ropes were about to part and that disaster would result in the great crowd that filled the plaza, when a bold sailor man on the outskirts of the crush yelled:

Fifth Warders Hear The Orators

"Wet the ropes! Wet the ropes!"

And so the day was saved and the obelisk was up-ended.

Well, no edict imposing the death penalty for vocalization covered last night's meeting of the Fifth Ward Republican club.

More or less sound Republican doctrine was expounded by a large number of speakers, including some distinguished gentlemen from St. Paul. The Duluth men who spoke seemed to be impressed with the notion that the Republican party of Duluth is largely composed of "dead ones"—the phrase is their own—and acutely aware of the fact that local Democrats are very much alive and awake.

S. W. Gilpin, candidate for probate judge, urged the Republicans to look alive, to organize and to look out for the Democrats. R. M. Hughes, Congressman Miller's secretary, made a speech in which he repeatedly assured his hearers that he attempted no defense of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill. Alex Frazer, county commissioner, took occasion to make a few remarks. Senator Pugh urged the younger men to get into the game. Neal Beaton scoffed at the Democratic initiative and referendum plank, saying the Democrats wouldn't enact such a law, anyway. Hans B. Haroldson recited an amusing French-Canadian poem. And the burden of the talks of all the others was: "Get busy."

The club will meet the first and third Wednesday of each month in the Palladio building.

* * *

After the meeting had been in session for some time, a group of state officials, led by Attorney General George T. Simpson, appeared. They were welcomed and called upon to speak.

State Officials Address Club.

State Auditor S. G. Iverson told the club members that it was important to corral the labor vote, not because of any sordid desire to conserve said votes for job-getting and job-holding purposes, but for the glory of the state, which is the Republican party, according to last evening's speakers.

Attorney General Simpson made an interesting speech, telling wherein the Republican party has been, now is and will continue to be the young man's party, in his opinion. He told of the wealth of the state and the relation of his party to that wealth, assuring his hearers that no taint of graft or peculation was or had ever been detected in the capitol.

Commissioner Welsh made an out-and-out campaign speech that seemed to please, and Louis C. Weeks, assistant attorney general, also made the eagle scream politely.

Drainage Engineer Ralph, who is said to have been made the victim of verbal onslaughts by Commissioner Welsh throughout the trip on the ranges, "got even" last night. Close observers say that Mr. Welsh blushed.

"These fellows say they're not here on politics," said Mr. Ralph, referring to Mr. Welsh's statement that when he reached the city he had no knowledge of any political meeting being in session, while every other member of the party seemed to know intuitively just where it was being held. "I'm not a politician. I dig ditches. I use my hands, my feet, my muscles and my brains, while these men use their jaws."

When the meeting broke up the state officials went immediately to their train.

* * *

John Kleffman of Hibbing came to town yesterday and was an interested and interesting figure in many groups of citizens on the streets and in the hotel lobbites. One of the results of his visit to Duluth was a boom for Mr. Kleffman for the senate, and a number of prominent Democrats said they hoped that the Hibbing man will decide to file as his party's candidate for the upper house of the legislature. It was declared that with Mr. Kleffman in the field, and in the event that Senator Vall succeeded in winning a renomination, Mr. Kleffman would be an ideal candidate and would have more than a fair chance of winning at the polls.

Mr. Kleffman is one of the best known and most influential Democrats in the county. He is so situated that he could enter into a campaign without any material sacrifices, and, all in all, should give a decidedly good account of himself if he decided to get into the game.

There is said to be considerable doubt as to whether Mr. Kleffman will consent to give the proposal his serious consideration, but his friends here are hoping that he will.

* * *

R. C. Dunn of Princeton has been indorsed for the legislature by the county optionists of his district and it is expected that he will file for the Republican nomination. The meeting was held at Bob Dunn Is Indorsed for House.

Anoka, in the home county of Senator C. J. Swanson of Fridley, for whose place Daniel Anderson of Cambridge was indorsed. Representative Andrew Davis of Elk River was indorsed for re-election, and G. H. Wyman of Anoka, who has been a member of the house in the past, was given the other indorsement.

"If I go to the legislature, it will be to work for reapportionment and good roads," said Mr. Dunn after the Anoka meeting. "If I file it will not be as the candidate of a faction. I will not be tied up on other propositions."

* * *

It seems that J. Adam Bede was not turned down by the county optionists at Hinckley the other day, after all. He quit before the optionists held their meeting, explaining that because of his strong position in favor of President Taft it might seem to the Clapp contingent that he would be a threatening element in the legislature that is to elect Senator Clapp's successor. He gracefully withdrew as a candidate for the house and said in a published statement that he hoped Taft and Clapp would get together and do good team work.

J. Adam Beats Them To It.

Mr. Bede's position on the county option question was not entirely satisfactory to the optionists, as he contended the restrictive legislation should not apply until it had a two-thirds vote in its favor. The optionists cling to the contention that a bare majority should be enough.

The former congressman explains in his statement that he will be absent from the state much of the time and therefore would be unable to carry on a thorough campaign.

* * *

Winfield Scott Hammond of St. James, Democratic congressman from the Second district, has filed as a candidate for renomination and re-election. Mr. Hammond's visit to the office of the secretary of state for the purpose of filing was made without the knowledge of Democratic leaders in St. Paul, and when it became known a lively manhunt was instituted, but the congressman succeeded in eluding his friends and left town the same day.

Hammond Flies and Then He Flees.

Two Democrats and two Republicans are now in the field for the Second district nomination, with the probability that a third Republican will enter the field next week. Oscar M. Quigley of Westbrook, editor of the Sentinel, is Mr. Hammond's opponent. He has an automobile and is said to be covering considerable territory, but his candidacy is not taken seriously, it is said. Franklyn Ellsworth of St. James and Col. A. F. Ward of Fairmont are the Reupblican rivals, with James B. McCleary expected to enter the lists in a few days.

Men who have been in the Second district recently say that Ellsworth seems to be in the lead for the Republican nomination, but if McCleary gets into the race he will take support from Ellsworth, although Ellsworth is an anti-McCleary man. This theory is based on the belief that men now supporting Ellsworth who formerly were McCleary men do so because they believe Ellsworth has a better chance against Hammond than Ward would have. With McCleary again in the field, they say this support will swing back to the little schoolmaster, partly because of past favors received at his hands and partly because they are party men first and last and count an ex-congressman a better Republican than they do a would-be congressman.

As the situation is shaping itself, there seems little cause for doubt that Mr. Hammond will be re-elected. His record in congress is unassailable and his strength with the people of his district is undiminished.

* * *

Archie Hayes of Hastings is in possession of the Republican state headquarters in St. Paul. He is Senator Nelson's secretary and was supreme outer-guard and grand glad-hander of the outer chamber two years ago, as he is in this campaign, but nothing has been heard of that of late. He is a first class glad-hand artist and is sure to make Republican headquarters a place of good cheer even when the dull, gloomy days of general despair come in November and the votes are counted against the ticket of the glad-handers.

Republicans Are In Headquarters.

Chairman E. E. Smith has established himself in the inner sanctum, having enlisted for the war. Secretary Preus will divide his time between state headquarters and the executive offices at the capitol.

Nothing but routine preliminary work will be undertaken until Sept. 1, or until the managers get a line on what the Democrats are going to do.

* * *

Announcing his candidacy for the house from Otter Tail county, Alex Nelson of Perham says he stands on the state platform and believes in electing representatives by districts instead of by the county at large.

* * *

M. F. Doyt of Eyota has filed as a candidate for the house from the Fourth district. He is said to have a good chance of election.

* * *

A. J. Potts, a Nicollet county commissioner, is being groomed to oppose Senator A. C. Johnson at the primaries. It is said. Mr. Potts has been a member of the St. Peter city council and is a resourceful campaigner.

* * *

The editor of the Chisholm Tribune-Herald seems to be a bit peevish about some features of the campaign, as he says: "Some fellow who imagines he is running for the legislature in the Fifty-second legislative district has sent this office a statement of what he hopes to accomplish next winter. The author of the pamphlet shows eminent fitness for jury duty but he has no more business in the legislature than a skunk at an ice cream sociable."

This is the suggestion of the Ortonville Herald-Star: "Now let the Democrats indorse Eberhart with Ed Smith managing the hyphenated campaign on a love-one-another platform." Huh!

The Little Falls Transcript, commenting on the fact that A. De Lacey Wood has filed for probate judge of Lake county, says of him that it is he "who has started more—but what's the use of repeating it?" Mr. Wood has received more state press notices of his candidacy than has any other candidate for a county office outside of his own county.

M. Kuhn, editor of the Detroit Quiver, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state senator from the Sixtieth district. He puts his candidacy before the voters in a forceful way and declares that "no corporation, combination or politician has asked him to stand for this nomination, but he desires the opportunity to place on record every voter in the district as standing for or against the common people."

THE CRUISE OF 1910 THE BEST GOPHER EVER HAD, IS THE UNANIMOUS OPINION

GOPHER CREW BRINGING HOME THEIR TROPHIES.

Besides carrying off all honors in fleet maneuvers, signal work and competitive drills on the cruise of the Great Lakes squadron, the Minnesota Navil Militia returned home yesterday with two other accomplishments that are not the least of the number.

Commander Guy A. Eaton received assurance from Commander C. C. March of the squadron that Commander Marsh would recommend that next year the Great Lakes squadron cruise to the Head of the Lakes. Commander Eaton also secured from Commander White, the expert from the bureau of engineering of the department of the navy, who visited the fleet, and also from the admiral's inspection board, assurance that they would recommend that the Gopher be equipped with new engines.

Duluth, on account of its not being familiar with the nature of the work on the annual cruise, has always underestimated the naval militia. The coming of the fleet to Duluth next year will correct false impressions and give Duluth people correct knowledge of the strength of the naval militia on the lakes and the real good that is accomplished by the annual cruise. If the full strength of the militia can be mustered for the cruise next year, nine vessels will steam into the harbor. Perhaps one large battleship could blow the entire squadron to Kingdom Come, but the little vessels on the lakes are giving the civilian-sailors training that would be invaluable to the regular navy in time or war.

There is still hope that the Minnesota Naval Militia may receive a new ship, though the hope is slight. There was some talk on the cruise of the Wheeling being sent to Duluth to replace the Gopher, if the Canadian treaty can be circumvented to allow the ship to pass down the St. Lawrence river.

Just now, however, the officers of the Minnesota naval militia regard the hope of a new ship as a distant one and they have concentrated their efforts to secure new engines for the Gopher. Although really too small to accommodate the Duluth militia boys, the Gopher is a staunch little ship and can hold her own with any of the ships on the lakes. The work done on her during the past few years and especially the installation of boilers this year have made the Gopher a better ship than she has been for many years and with new engines, the improvement will be great.

Everybody connected with the naval militia is well satisfied with the results of the cruise. The Gopher drew commendatory remarks from Admiral Thomas and the other members of the inspection board and when the official report is filed, the officers of the Gopher feel certain that the Gopher will be given creditable mention.

Yesterday afternoon just before the Gopher entered the harbor, the boys were called together and Commander Eaton addressed them. He commended them as the best ship's company the Gopher has ever had and he said that it was a real pleasure for him to be their commanding officer.

There were few unpleasant incidents on the cruise and hundreds that were pleasant. The weather was beautiful all the way and there was very little seasickness. The boys did not work too hard and had plenty of time for play. Their accomplishments were the cause of unbounded rejoicing and everybody on the ship was firmly convinced that the cruise of 1910 was the best ever participated in by the Minnesota Naval Militia.

MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL

Attorney Asks That Verdict for Alienation Be Set Aside.

A motion for a new trial in the case of David A. Miller against Isaac, Henry and John Helstein, Joseph Litman, Morris Hartley, Robert Ashinsky and Joseph Fox for alienation of his wife's affections, in which Miller was awarded $15,000 by the jury, was argued before Judge H .H. Dibell this morning in the district court.

Mr. Baldwin reviewed the evidence in the case claiming that it showed an estrangement between the parties by Miller's own admission before Helstein or the other defendants were connected with the case. He pointed out that there was testimony to show that Miller told his wife to get out and go back to her father, and that the entire trouble, according to the plaintiff himself, had been a case of 'too much mother-in-law."

Such being the case, Mr. Baldwin argued that $15,000 for alienation of affections was a ridiculous verdict where no affection existed, and the very size of the verdict showed prejudice on the part of the jurors.

He also claimed that Helstein was connected with the case only by advancing money on his brothers' orders to Joseph Fox and had taken no active part in any conspiracy to alienate Mrs. Miller's affections.

AFTER TWO NEW HALLS

Fire Commissioners Want Annual Appropriation Raised to $175,000.

More Men Also Needed By Department During Coming Year.

The board of fire commissioners, at its meeting this noon, approved the figures which Chief Joseph Randall has prepared for the conference committee, asking approximately $175,000 as compared with the levy of $137,000 allowed for the present year.

The largest part of the increase comes in the request for two new halls, one at Lakeside and another on the hillside in the vicinity of Eighth street and Fifth avenue east, and an addition to the hospital at Third street and First avenue east costing about $5,200. A lot estimated at $1,200 is included for the hillside hall.

Aside from that, the increase comes in because of the additional men needed since the inauguration of the plan of giving the men one day off in seven instead of one day off in ten days. This will take about $7,000 or $8,000.

The contract for the installation of new stalls at the headquarters station, Sixth avenue west and First street, was awarded to Ouellette & Baxter for $220.

FORMER DULUTHIAN BACK FOR VISIT.

William B. Gregory of Buffalo, N. Y., manager of the Buffalo Elevating Co., and the Dakota Elevator, was a visitor on the floor of the Board of Trade today. Mr. Gregory is a former Duluthian and he is renewing old acquaintanceships.

Mr. Gregory was with the Great Northern Elevator Co. here and in 1897 he went to Buffalo where his advancement has been rapid. He married a Duluth young woman, Miss Dora Stewart. His sister, Miss Allene Gregory accompanied him on a lake trip to Duluth.

"Between six and seven million bushels of wheat in excess of last year's arrivals have been received at the port of Buffalo," said Mr. Gregory. "In the East we do not look for any shortage of grain and our views in this respect do not coincide wholly with the opinions of many grain men in the Northwest. The demand is only moderate in the East."

NO ARBITRATION AT COLUMBUS

City Council Proposes to Retaliate for Company's Refusal.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 20.—General Manager E. K. Stewart of the street railway company denied that he will arbitrate the strike of the union carmen.

The First regiment, Ohio National Guard of Cincinnati, on strike duty here, was ordered to move from the state house grounds to those of the state school for the deaf and dumb. The regiment may be sent home Monday.

As a retaliatory move toward the railway company for its refusal to arbitrate the strike, the city council last night took steps toward equipping the municipal light plant for the purpose of selling electrical current for commercial light and power usage. A committee was appointed to ascertain the cost of enlarging the plant and to present resolutions providing for a bond issue.

Approves Mayor's Course.

Although the council for months has been opposing Mayor Marshall in all his proposals for municipal reforms, the members adopted resolutions recommending him for his attitude during the strike.

Resolutions were approved commending the union for its willingness to arbitrate and denouncing the company for its refusal.

GRAIN RATES ARE REDUCED

Owing to slack business some of the line boats have shaded rates between the Head of the Lakes and Buffalo. The rate on grain was held at 1½c for many weeks and the boats were glad to take it on account of the slack business. Some line boats have reduced rates to 1¼c, but they are seeking cargoes in not less than 50,000 bu shipments.

L. A. OGAARD WILL FILE FOR LOWER HOUSE.

L. A. Ogaard of International Falls has decided to become a candidate for the lower house of the legislature. It will be announced Monday in St. Paul that he has filed for the Republican nomination.

Mr. Ogaard is a civil engineer and now holds the office of county surveyor of Koochiching county. He has been a resident of that county and Itasca county for seventeen years.

Representative T. M. Ferguson of Barker, Carlton county is a candidate to succeed himself and La Du of Pine River is also a candidate. The district is entitled to two representatives. It is the largest district in the state.

It is said there will be no Democratic candidates for the legislature in the district, but that situation may be changed. The Socialists have nominated Charles Taylor of Big Falls for the house.

FAVORS HIGHER RATE.

Railroads Win First Point in Pacific Lumber Rate Contest.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 20.—The final report of Fred N. Dickson of this city as master in chancery in the lumber rate suits brought by the Union Pacific, Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroads against the interstate commission, will probably not be filed before Aug. 27.

Arguments to exceptions to his findings were made Thursday by Attorney Luther M. Walter of Chicago and other attorneys and was continued today.

The findings of the master was to the effect that the rate of 45 cents per 100 pounds on lumber between St. Paul and the coast as fixed by the interstate commerce commission, was unreasonably low and that an advance to 50 cents per 100 pounds would be reasonable.

The case will be argued before the United states circuit court on Sept. 15.

M'MURRAY NAMES FORMER SENATORS

Sulphur, Okla., Aug. 20.—What relation Former Senator Chester I. Long of Kansas and Former Senator John M. Thurston of Nebraska have with the so-called McMurray contracts was described by J. F. McMurray before the congressional committee today. McMurray declared Long and Thurston had been employed as counsel.

NO SEWAGE IN CITY WATER

Dr. E. L. Tuohy, who took samples of water from diffrent parts of the city at the request of the health commissioner to ascertain whether or not the water was causing the epidemic of intestinal troubles, reported today that all but one sample showed the supply to be of the highest standard, with no traces of sewage.

The samples were at West Duluth, in the downtown section and at Lakeside. The sample at Lakeside showed the slightest trace of bacteria, but it was not sufficient to cause trouble and it is thought that it was slightly contaminated after it has been taken. More samples will be taken next week for further tests.

WEST END

RIDE IN OLD STAGE COACH

West End Girls Run Away With Wild West Show.

Return Home After One Night's Experience on Show Train.

A trip from Duluth to Brainerd in the real old Deadwood stage coach, the old vehicle which has come through numerous Indian attacks and holdups to spend its latter days careening around the arena of Buffalo Bill's show, was the feature of a series of startling adventures of two West end girls, who got the circus fever Wednesday night.

According to the story which the girls told the conductor who took the circus train out of Duluth, they had been hanging around the tents all afternoon. Shortly before the evening performance began they met two of the "cow-punchers," who do the riding stunts in the show and they told them of their desire to join the show and leave their home town until they could return to it as celebrated equestriennes.

The girls were good looking and the cowboys were more than willing, they said, to teach the girls to ride. They made arrangements to meet them after the show. The girls were on hand and started for the railroad yards with the "cow-punchers.". As they neared the yards the men explained to them that Col. Cody probably would not accede to two raw recruits joining the company with no knowledge of horsemanship and they would have to keep out of sight until they reached the next show town. The men happened to see the old and war scarred stage coach firmly anchored in place on a flat car in the center of the train, and they told the girls that would be a fine place to ride. All four of them piled into the stage coach, but the men, suddenly remembering the company roll call, which was due to take place as soon as the train got in motion, jumped out at the last minute and joined the rest of the performers in the sleepers in the rear. In the meantime the train started and the girls were alone in the old stage coach.

They had only 50 cents between them and no clothes other than those they were wearing. One girl did not even have a coat. As the train speeded up the motion of the coach, mounted high on the flat car grew anything but pleasant and the upholstery on the old vehicle is now far from luxurious. Before they were far out of Duluth one of the girls had repented of her rash action, but the other was game and said she was going to stick it out. The train made no stops between here and Brainerd so the advocate of perseverance won out. A short distance this side of Brainerd the Northern Pacific conductor in charge of the train, making his way along the line of cars, found the girls in the coach, one of them weeping and the other sternly asserting that she would get to the next show town if she had to walk.

The conductor at once went back and told Col. Cody and his business manager about his discovery and as a result the train was stopped at Brainerd and the girls were asked to leave the coach. The manager of the show then went into the station with the girls and bought return tickets to Duluth for them.

The runaways said that they both lived near Nineteenth avenue west and Michigan street, but refused to tell the showmen or the railroad people their names.

DONATED FOR A PUBLIC MARKET

A. M. Miller, Jr., Offers Use of Corner Lot to Commercial Club.

In a letter received yesterday afternoon by George M. Jensen, secretary of the West End Commercial club, A. M. Miller, Jr., stated that he was willing to donate one of his corner lots on Twenty-second avenue west and Superior street for use as a public market for the West end. Mr. Miller refused to set any definite time during which he would permit the use of the lot for public purposes saying that it might be as short as one year or it might be twenty years. It is probable that the matter will be taken up at the next meeting of the Commercial club. It is understood that a number of the club members are backing the project and would favor a popular subscription to build stalls on the lot for farmers' use. It is thought that a number of farmers along the Hermantown road near Five Corners and Adolph will be willing to bring their produce in for a weekly market day in the West end rather than go up town with their wares.

FOUR DEATHS IN A DAY.

Cholera Infantum, Dropsy and Cancer Are Responsible for Mortality.

Four deaths occurred in the West end between 6 o'clock yesterday morning and 12 o'clock last night. Two children were victims of cholera infantum, and dropsy and cancer were responsible for the other two deaths.

Mrs. Serena Matilda Carlson, 1901 West Third street, died late last night after a long illness from cancer. She was 44 years of age and leaves three sons, Leonard, Carl and Martin. The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, Rev. C. G. Olson officiating. Interment will be at the Lutheran cemetery.

William A. Arbuckle, 64 years of age, died late last night of dropsy. He has been ill since last May. His home was on Nineteenth avenue west. The funeral will be held Monday at 2 o'clock from Olson & Crawford's undertaking rooms, and interment will be at Forest Hill.

Signe Sophia, the 12-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Blomquist, 621 North Twenty-first avenue west, died yesterday morning of cholera infantum. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence. Rev. C. G. Olson will officiate and interment will be at the Lutheran cemetery.

Irene, the 16-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Oslund, 2117 West Sixth street, died yesterday after a short illness from cholera infantum. The funeral was held this afternoon at 1 o'clock from Olson & Crawford's undertaking rooms, Rev. C. G. Olson officiating. Interment was at the Lutheran cemetery.

Dedication Begins Sunday.

Commencing with the formal dedication speech delivered in the Norwegian language by Rev. O. Bodien, of the First Swedish Baptist church of Minneapolis, at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, the week's dedication exercises of the new Swedish Baptist church will open. A picnic Monday, a Young People's meeting Tuesday, a meeting for the ladies Wednesday, a Sunday school workers' reunion Thursday, and a rally of all the Baptist churches of the city Friday evening make up the program.

CLUB MEMBERS TO ACT.

French People of West End to Give Play Each Month.

The French Naturalization club of the West end will give a play each month during the winter, the members of the club taking the various roles. At a meeting of the club last evening at St. Jean de Baptiste hall, Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street, a committee of George Daubrey, George E. Hebert and Dr. A. A. Giroux was appointed to make the necessary arrangements.

Several speakers who were expected to address the club last evening on political subjects failed to appear. A smoker will be held at the next meeting and some good speakers will be invited.

Work Progressing Rapidly.

Work on the new St. Clements church, Rev. A. O. Brockmeyer, pastor, is progressing rapidly. The basement is practically complete and the work on the superstructure will commence early next week.

WALLA WALLA TREES AFIRE

Washington, Aug. 20.—Forest fires are spreading in Oregon and today the situation in the Walla Walla and Crater National forests in that state is extremely serious. The forest service has received telegrams from district officials making urgent appeals for additional troops. It was said that five more companies were needed to cope with the conditions of the Crater forest. The war department promised to comply with the request so far as troops were available.

Gen. Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the army, has ordered a train of about seventy pack mules from Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., to Missoula, Mont., to be used in sending supplies to the troops who are fighting the fires in the interior of the forests.

COPPERS STRONG; TRADING LIGHT

Little News of Any Character to Influence Market Sentiment.

The copper market was dull but strong today. In the absence of any news of especially favorable character or of a distinctly pessimistic nature, values moved within a moderately narrow range and trading was light. After the strong opening there was some evening up and a little profit taking, but towards the close light buying by professionals who look for a higher market next week caused a rally that carried the entire list above the opening. Gains average from a fraction to a point above the opening which was fractionally higher than yesterday.

The professionals prefer the long side on recessions and accept profits on the occasional rallies. They are in a waiting mood and are looking forward to news that will stimulate speculative as well as investment buying. Business conditions in the East are better despite the closing down of several cotton mills. The crops will soon begin to move in the Northwest and bankers say there will be plenty of money with which to take care of the movement. Steel business shows an improvement. The Steel corporation is operating at 75 per cent of capacity.

Butte Coalition was $19 bid and then $19.25 bid without trading. Greene sold at $7.62½, Red Warrior at $2.50 to $2.62½, Shattuck at $22.75, $23.50, $22.50 and $23. Calumet & Corbin sold at 45c. The bulk of the trading on the local exchange was in Red Warrior and Shattuck. Bids were numerous in other stocks but on the closing session of the week neither bidders nor prospective sellers could get together. The former hesitated to bid higher in the face of a holiday and the latter declined to consider the bids that were made.

Butte Ballaklava sold at $11.25, Giroux at $6.87½ to $7, Greene at $7.75, Calumet & Arizona at $61.50 to $61 to $61.75, North Butte at $29.75, $29.50 and $30, Superior & Pittsburg at $12, Ojibway at $6.50, Amalgamated at $65.50 to $65.37½ to $66.

* * *

"Butte Ballaklava is producing 675,000 pounds of copper and 45,000 ounces of silver a month," said John A. Percival, secretary of the company today. Mr. Percival has recently returned from Butte. "In July we shipped 4,129 tons of ore which averaged 9.2 per cent copper. This ore netted the company $835 a car." It is learned from another source that the company is earning about $3 a year. It is paying $2 in dividends.

* * *

The shaft of the North Butte has reached a depth of 2,400 feet and will be taken down to the 2,800-foot level. The winze is to be sunk to the 2,400 from the 200-foot level. The conditions of Edith May vein is encouraging and great hopes are based on opening the new level at 2,800 feet.

DAHLMAN WINNER BY ABOUT 1,000

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 20.—Although Governor Shallenberger has not as yet conceded his defeat for the Democratic nomination for the head of the state ticket, a telegram was received here last night from one of his campaign managers, Chris Gruenther, vice-chairman of the Democratic state committee, giving up the fight. Mayor Dahlman's majority has been considerably reduced from first estimates, but will apparently be not far from 1,000 votes.

Complete returns from fifty-one counties give Congressman Hitchcock for United States senator on the Democratic ticket a 2 to 1 majority over both his opponents and more than three times the vote of his nearest competitor, Richard L. Metcalfe.

Late returns from the Republican primaries only increase the lead of Aldrich over Cady for governor. With but 300 precincts to hear from Aldrich's lead is more than 3,000.

McKINLEY WILL SUPPORT CANNON

Champaign, Ill., Aug. 20.—Congressman W. B. McKinley of this district, chairman of the National Republican congressional committee, in reference to rumors that he would not again support Mr. Cannon for the speakership, said today:

Let Electricity Warm and Brighten Your Home Through the Long Cold Evenings This Fall!

The Tungsten Light

ONE beauty of the Tungsten light is the fact that it does away with the low hanging lights in the home, or the necessity of having a light close to your work at the office.

The Tungsten gives such a bright light, and spreads its white glow so evenly over the whole room, that it can hang high up and out of the way.

The Tungsten is the most perfect of all electric lights. It is from three to four times as bright as the common incandescent light. It has about two times the life of a carbon lamp. It can be run on as low a voltage as the simpler lights. Therefore, when you use Tungsten lamps you get the best of all electrical illumination at the cost of inferior lighting.

Let us demonstrate the advantageous features of the Tungsten and we believe you will choose this light for your home and for the office.

The Electric Radiator

IT IS too warm to keep the furnace going all day, yet the evenings and the early mornings are beginning to get chilly.

To make rooms absolutely comfortable, heat them with electrici,y.

Our Electric Radiators are especially adapted for the quick heating of the home or the office. We have both stationary and portable models.

The heat may be instantly turned off or on at will, thus eliminating the loss of time in preparing the furnace fire and waiting for the fire to heat up.

Wherever our Electric Radiators are in use, they receive nothing but the most enthusiastic commendation. These Radiators are so simple, so economical and so easy to operate, that we believe all homes and every office should be supplied with at least one.

We want to demonstrate all the advantages of the Electric Radiator, and point out to you how economically heating with electricity can be done.

Now if you had a ten-acre grove of grape fruit, oranges or lemons in the Isle of Pines, you could tell the coal man to go to—that you are going down to the Isle of Pines, where you won't need the coal and where coal bills and cold bills are unknown. You can do it and do it easy. Write us or call.

Thrown From Rig During Runaway in Country, Badly Breaking Leg.

Crawls on Hands to Farmhouse, Reaching Home After Five Hours.

Aitkin, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. B. Marr, a local undertaker, is confined to his home with a broken leg as the result of a runaway accident.

Mr. Marr was called to Cromwell late Thursday afternoon to take charge of a funeral and while driving from the station to the place designated the neckyoke broke while descending a steep hill and the horses ran away throwing him to the ground with such force that he received a compound fracture of the left ankle the bones protruding through the flesh.

Crawls to Farmhouse.

After calling in vain for help he crawled on his hands and knees to the nearest farm house and telephoned here to Dr. Graves. It was five hours before he reached home, suffering intensely in the meantime. Mr. Marr is well known throughout Northern Minnesota and two years ago was elected president of the State Undertakers association.

IS TRACKED BY ESCAPING CORN

North Dakota Thief Furnishes Good Evidence of His Crime.

Lakota, N. D., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Corn escaping from a small hole in the corner of a sack of corn that he had stolen resulted in the arrest of Martin Burke of this city on a larceny charge. From the place that the corn had been stolen to Burke's barn there was a very plain and incriminating string of evidence, corn having fallen out and made the path of the thief very clear. Mrs. U. G. Barnhouse owned the stolen corn and tracked her missing property.

HELD FOR SHOOTING.

North Dakota Farmer Accused of Plugging Another Man.

Rolla, N. D., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charged with shooting with intent to kill, Jack Dawson, a farmer, is being held in the Rolette county jail upon the complaint of John Lee. In an altercation near here, Lee was shot through the leg and he claims that Dawson fired the shot. His hearing will be held Aug. 31.

ARCHITECTURAL COURSES.

Another Line of Study Open to Minnesota University Students.

Minnesota, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Courses in architecture and architectural engineering are to be initiated at the University of Minnesota in September. The freshman and sophomore classes will be under way, and an additional class added each year up to the fifth or post senior year.

The university is singularly situated for architectural study. The Twin Cities have continuously under construction buildings of architectural excellence, and many noble edifices mark the development of the past quarter of a century.

KILLED STACKING HAY.

Bagley, Wis., Man Fatally Injured in North Dakota.

Rugby, N. D., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—While stacking hay on the Frank Bros., farm near here, Louis Armstrong was almost instantly killed. Armstrong was on top of the stack when he was accidentally struck by the big fork of the stacking machine. His neck was broken by the blow. His home was in Bagley, Wis., and the body will be buried there.

THEY PREFER TOWNSEND.

Upper Michigan Republicans Not Crazy About Senator Burrows.

Calumet, Mich., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator Julius Caesar Burrows stands very little chance of being returned to the senate this fall so far as the upper peninsula is concerned. The senator, on his recent tour through Northern Michigan, announced himself very emphatically as a Cannon or regular Republican, while Northern Michigan Republicans are very much of the progressive type. Congressman Charles Townsend, who also seeks the nomination at the September primaries, will have almost the solid vote of Northern Michigan, which will be close to 20,000. Burrows may poll, perhaps, 5,000. The senator's statement that he stands on his record surely did not impress the voters of this section greatly. Advance advices concerning his tour, too, did not help him greatly, for very small crowds heard him all through the peninsula. Congressman Townsend will speak in Houghton and Calumet this week.

OWNED BY ONE MAN.

Clark Property in Upper Michigan Property of Frenchman.

Calumet, Mich., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Probably the only copper mining property in the world owned by one man is the old Clark property, located near Copper Harbor, Keweenaw county.

This property is owned by Leon Estivant, a wealthy young attorney of Paris, France, and is shortly to be explored thoroughly by diamond drill work. Estivant was recently left $12,000,000 by his father and an uncle. Longyear & Hodge have been given the diamond drilling contract. Thirty to forty years ago some mining was done on the property, but, it is claimed, it was a poor attempt, made at a time when many of the mines in this vicinity were worked only for the sake of bleeding the unfortunate stockholders. Leon Estivant is the sole living representative of the famous old Estivant family of France, once owners of immense copper properties in Northern Michigan.

HAS FIVE KARAT DIAMOND.

Escanaba Man Imports Fine Stone From South Africa.

Escanaba, Mich., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Easily one of the most perfect diamonds in the upper peninsula has been received by John Novack, a local jeweler, which he will retain as his personal property.

The stone is perfect in shape and color and weighs exactly five carats, being valued at closed to $2,000. The order for the diamond was placed by Mr. Novack over three years ago. It was received direct from a diamond cutter's shop in Holland, where it had been received from Kimberley, South Africa.

INSPECT POWER DAM.

State Officers Look Over Great Northern Power Plant.

Carlton, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The largest part of the Minnesota government was in Carlton Thursday evening and drove out and inspected the natural beauties of the neighborhood, the dam of the Great Northern Power company and the canal. Coming back, the party was pleasantly entertained for a half hour viewing the spacious home grounds of Attorney Henry Oldenburg. Governor Eberhart was not present, having just left the party, as had Secretary of State Schmahl. The balance of the party consisted of Messrs. George T. Simpson, attorney general; S. G. Iverson, state auditor; E. S. Pettijohn, state treasurer; George A. Ralph, state civil engineer; George Welch, commissioner of immigration; Dr. George H. Roberts of Minneapolis; F. H. Nutten, Jr., engineer of Hennepin county; C. Louis Weeks, assistant attorney general.

RIDING TO DULUTH.

Two St. James Boys Coming This Way Horseback.

St. Peter, Minn., Aug. 20.—Fred and Frank Babcock, 15 and 17 years old, sons of C. W. Babcock, a wealthy quarry owner of Kasota, started Thursday on an endurance ride to Duluth on their ponies, Roosevelt and Taft.

Each carries a shelter tent and a poncho, and at night they pitch their tent and camp in the open. They do their own cooking.

Before they return they will visit Hudson and Madison, Wis., taking twenty days to make the trip.

BESSEMER FRANCHISE.

Has Also Been Secured By Ashland Power Company.

Ashland, Wis., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city of Bessemer has granted to the officials of the Ashland Power company, an electric light and power franchise, similar to that given by Ironwood a few weeks ago. Both cities have now given the Ashland people ten-year lighting contracts for city lighting, and have also granted thirty-year franchises for commercial lighting by electricity, and also street railway franchises. The intention is to build an interurban line between Ironwood and Bessemer.

Bugbee of Wrenshall, Minn., president of the Producers' Cooperative association will conduct a meeting at Farris, five miles west of here on Monday, Aug. 29, to discuss the advantages of co-operation in marketing and the methods that are open to the farmers and settlers for improving their conditions by "getting together." RULES AGAINST WOMEN.

National Conservation Congress Not to Hear Suffragists.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 20.—Members of the Women's Suffrage association are fighting for an opportunity to be represented among the speakers at the National Conservation congress which meets here the first week in September.

President Baker of the National conservation association has declared that inasmuch as the Women's Suffrage association is a political organization, it shall not be represented at the congress.

The executive board of the Minnesota Suffrage association in a resolution received by Governor Eberhart declares that the Women's Suffrage association is not a political organization and asks that a speaker of national reputation be placed on the program to discuss women's suffrage in relation to the purpose of the congress.

Governor Eberhart says he believes in women's suffrage, but this matter is for Mr. Baker to decide.

BARRON COUNTY CROPS.

Indications Point to Good Yields in Wisconsin County.

Cumberland, Wis., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thrashing is in progress in this part of Barron county, and the yield of small grain exceeds the expectations of farmers, the only grain below the normal being oats. Oats are yielding from fifteen to forty bushels per acre, barley forty-five, rye forty-five, wheat thirty bushels. The recent heavy rains greatly benefited corn and vegetables and the second clover crop. The pickel factory started here this year has proven a great boon to the farmers, as the cucumbers are yielding a prolific crop. Crop conditions, as a whole, are far better than early reports would indicate.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—La Crosse defeated the Sox yesterday through the bunching of three singles and a double, coupled with a hit batsman, in the third inning, scoring four runs and making the final score 5 to 3 in favor of the Outcasts.

This fusillade of hits was made with Kramer in the box. He was removed after the four runs had been scored and Bob Worman sent to the hill. Not a run was scored by the locals after the former Eau Claire slab artist took his turn in the box.

Larson, a twirler who has made a reputation in semi-professional baseball circles, was sent to the mound for La Crose at the opening of the game. The Sox bunched hits in the second and fourth inning and the debut of Larson was cut for the afternoon, Hooker going to mound duty.

Wais had his upper jaw broken by being hit by one of Worman's shoots. Safford was also hit, but was not seriously injured.

In the first contest, Cy Young was very wild, passing ten of the Schooners. The fielding behind Boothby was sensational, Breyette's one-handed stab of a hot liner being the fielding feature of the afternoon. Kading, De Haven and Moore pulled some fine fielding stunts that bordered on the circus order.

The second game only went six innings. The visitors changed positions and made a farce of the game. The score:

Winona, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Superior lost its thirteenth straight game yesterday, the Pirates defeating the Red Legs by the score of 4 to 1. Until the eighth inning Krick held the Pirates runless and it looked like a shutout for Superior. Here McGraw missed a fly from the bat of Graves, Koepping doubled, Curtiss singled, Crangle tripled and Bovey hit a long sacrifice fly to center, four runs registering before the smoke of battle cleared away.

Winona played a great fielding game, while three bloomers were made behind the pitching of Krick. Score:

SPEED KINGS AT BRIGHTON

Prospect of Twenty-four-Hour Motor Record Being Broken.

Brighton Beach, N. Y., Aug. 20.—There was every prospect early today that the twenty-four hour motor race at the Brighton Beach track would result in a new record for the course in the "twice around the clock" contest which ends at 8:30 o'clock tonight. An accident to the Marion car this morning left only six contenders for the honors. The Stearns car which had covered 575 miles at the eleventh hour was more than five miles ahead of the recoord and thirty-five miles ahead of the second car, a Matheson.

Swinging around the big track today, the Marion car, driven by Wally Owen, who was accompanied by Mechanician Williams, crashed into the fence on the far turn. Owen suffered severe contusions and Williams was knocked unconscious. A faulty steering gear is believed to be the cause of the accident.

Seven of the nine cars entered shot away from the mark at thirty minutes later than the time scheduled last night. The Stearns car, with Chris Patschke at the wheel, got away in the lead and finished the first mile in 1:14 3-5. The early morning rain made the track almost perfect for good racing, as there was no dust raised as the cars tore around the one-mile course.

The Matheson car which took the lead at the end of the eighty-ninth mile crashed through the fence near the paddock turn and the car, after having gone 104 miles, was put out of commission temporarily. No one was injured. Because of the accident the Stearns car again took the lead. The Matheson, after eleven minutes' delay for repairs, resumed the race.

No. 2, Allen-Kingston, Noel Tricker, Harry Cobe.

No. 3, Marion, Wally Owens, H. M. Beasle.

No. 4, Houpt-Rockwell, Thomas Martin.

No. 5, Stearns, Cyrus Patschke, Al Poole.

No. 6, Cole, Billy Endicott, Louis Edwards.

No. 7, Midland, L. Anderson, Joe Taylor.

No. 8, Matheson, Charles Basle, C. P. Whalen.

SHEEHAN AND LEGG IN FINALS

Denver, Col., Aug. 20.—An enormous gallery followed the final match of the trans-Mississippi golf tournament, when Harry G. Legg of Minikahda and William Sheehan of Des Moines drove from the first tee today. The championship was folowed by W. J. Foye of Omaha and Harold A. Fisher of Denver, who will play thirty-six holes for the consolation cup. The professionals started the second round of medal play with scores much lower than yesterday when 76 was the best round made.

Yesterday Legg led F. H. Gaines of Omaha from the second hole of the morning round, and finished an easy victory, 11 up. Sheehan disposed of Lawrence Bromfield of the Denver Country club, 5 up and 4 to play.

Legg showed the best form he has displayed this week. His long game left little to be desired and the accuracy in his work on the greens was an important feature of his play.

Gaines was none too certain of direction. He showed a tendency to overapproach and his poor putting cost him several chances to win holes he was only able to halve.

Gaines won but one hole from Legg in the whole day's play. He took the second hole in the morning round.

INTERRUPTED TENNIS MATCHES RESUMED.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 20.—The two matches in the fifth round of the all-comers' singles tourney of the national lawn tennis championship, which was stopped by rain yesterday, were resumed on the Casino courts today at the point where play ceased. C. R. Gardner of New York and F. C. Colston of Baltimore again occupied the grandstand court in the completion of their match. Colston was leading two sets to one and three games to one in the fourth set yesterday when the rain came down.

The other match stopped was between Maurice E. McLoughlin, the young Californian, and J. D. E. Jones, champion of Rhode Island. When they resumed play today McLoughlin had a lead of two sets over Jones, but the latter had three games to one over McLoughlin in the third set.

Princeton's young star, Dean Mathey, was opposed by F. C. Inman of New York in the feature match of the sixth round.

Fighter Sent to Hospital.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 20.—In the second round of a six-round bout at the Frankfort Athletic club last night, Freddie Caster was sent to the mat by a terrific swing to the jaw. He was taken to the Frankfort hospital and remains unconscious.

His opponent, Spike Sullivan, his second, and the manager of the club surrendered themselves to the police.

MINNY LEAGUE BATTING AND FIELDING AVERAGES

Callahan of the Eau Claire Schooners is shown to be the premier slugger of the Minnesota-Wisconsin league by the batting averages that are issued today. The man signed by the Cleveland Naps is worrying opposing pitchers to the extent of .381 and he has taken part in all of the games played the present season. He is in every sense the leader of the league.

Big Russ Bailey of the same team is hitting well over the charmed .300 mark, having established an average of .353 since his return from the Milwaukee team. Dolan of Wausau is stinging the spheroid to the sweet tune of .317 and Col. Nick Carter of the same team is hitting at a .316 gait. Daddy Cahill is close behind the other two Wausau leaders with an average of .314.

Kohl leads the Duluth hitters with an average of .276. Altermott follows with an average of .270 and O'Brien is hitting at a .262 clip. It will surprise many of the fans to observe that Holstrom is only stinging the horsehide to the mild and unenthusiastic tune of .201. Many here believed he was up among the leaders.

The averages, as a whole, indicate that there are some very healthy hitters in the various teams in the league.

The following table shows the work of all Minny league players for the games including Aug. 7.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MOTOR WORLD

AUTO CLUB IS ORGANIZED

Duluth Owners of Cars Hold Meeting and Elect Officers.

Will Put Signs on Highways and Work for Good Roads.

At the meeting of the Duluth Automobile club held at the Commercial club Wednesday night, officers were elected and more real enthusiasm over an auto club in the Zenith City was displayed by those present than at any other time since the first talk of an organization.

There were a large number of enthusiastic autoists present and the following were elected to office to serve one year: Howard T. Abbott, president; Charles H. Thornton, vice president; Cassius Bagley, treasurer; and C. F. McCarthy, secretary.

The work to be done by the club was talked over and plans made to get busy at once. Many applications were acted on and membership fees poured in.

Wednesday of next week another meeting will be held and at that time an effort will be made to get every owner and all others interested out, so that the gathering can be made a rousing one.

The club plans on having signs on every crossroad about Duluth so that no time will be lost by those touring about the country around Duluth.

A large map of the county has been prepared and this will be printed on linen and given to each member of the club. The map is in itself worth the small fee that is charged to become a member.

The club will have cards issued and by a special arrangement with the police of both cities, autoists who have been arrested may secure their release for the time being by simply showing their card.

The club hopes to regulate the driving of automobiles so that there will be less danger to the occupants of the cars as well as those who are walking.

They hope to accomoplish much in the way of good roads. In fact, there are many things to be done and as the organization promises to be a live one from this time on, there is little doubt but that they will be done.

DECISION OF INTEREST

Court Rules That Owner of Car May Lend It Without Liability.

Interesting Point Is Raised in Case Against C. H. Thornton.

A decision by Judge Dibell in the case of Lillian Kaner against Charles H. Thornton will be of interest to Duluth automobile owners.

The defendant in the action made a motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict. The judge upheld the verdict of $300 that the jury in the case had allowed but admitted in his findings that there was a question as to whether or not the verdict was just.

The judge says that the jury was right in finding the chauffeur guilty of negligence but that the question was whether or not the chauffeur, who was Mr. Thornton's son, was on business for his father at the time the accident happened. The jury found that he was.

The facts are that young Mr. Thornton was on his way to the high school to take a party of his friends out for a ride. It was at that time the accident happened. Previous to the time of the accident, he had been doing business about town for his father. In his findings the judge says that if the accident had happened actually at the time that he was doing business for his father and under the father's orders there would then have been no doubt as to who would be held responsible. As it was the court admits that there is a serious question.

The decision states that an automobile is no more dangerous than other vehicles when properly handled and that an owner may allow his friends to use his car the same as he would allow them to use his carriage or a bicycle and be no more responsible than he would be for an accident that would happen in each of the other cases.

While the judge upholds the verdict of the jury he finds that there is some doubt as to whether or not the defendant is really held accountable in a case of this kind.

WHAT BECOMES OF THE OLD CARS?

Answer! They Are Sold for About Half the Original Cost.

What becomes of the hundreds of automobiles sold every year in Duluth?

Where are the scores of motor cars that pass through the hands of the local automobile dealers every month?

These questions can be partly answered by a glance at the classified advertising columns in The Herald. The destiny of the bright-painted handsome motor car that is chugging the streets today is marked plainly in black on white.

The high-priced motor car which the middleman cannot purchase new, becomes the family caravan after it has passed through the hands of a second-hand dealer or has been offered for sale by the man who wishes to purchase a later model.

This latest model question is as acute as is the fashion in woman's gowns. Motor cars change with the seasons. The motorist who is strictly down-to-date must own a "buzz wagon" of the last vintage. His car must have all the refinements of the 1911 model if he would be in the swim.

Here is an example. Just a year ago a well-known motorist purchased a handsome six-cylinder touring car with its shapely hood, classy body, splendid engine, and stylish fenders. This car is now for sale at half price. It is almost as good as new. The paint is rubbed off in only a few places, the engine hits as evenly as ever, but the owner wants to make a change. He has no reason for getting rid of his car other than that he desires a later model. The 1910 car will carry him just as far, climb as many hills, and go just as fast as the 1911 model. He wants the latest car.

The Fashion.

His 1910 car had a queer hood. It was considered the nobblest thing on the market when it first came out. The cars this year have a new hood. The flush-sided bodies are also different from last year's cars. The style has changed so the six-cylinder man decides to have a new one.

What becomes of the 1910 models when the 1911 models arrive? Their names and specifications adorn the "for sale" columns and they pass on to a man who is not quite so fastidious and who is willing to sacrifice a little style in order to get a bargain.

Another auto owner in this city is driving a handsome car. It is a 1910 model, a car which any man might well be proud of. The 1911 cars are here and the owner of the big seven-passenger has already offered his car for sale.

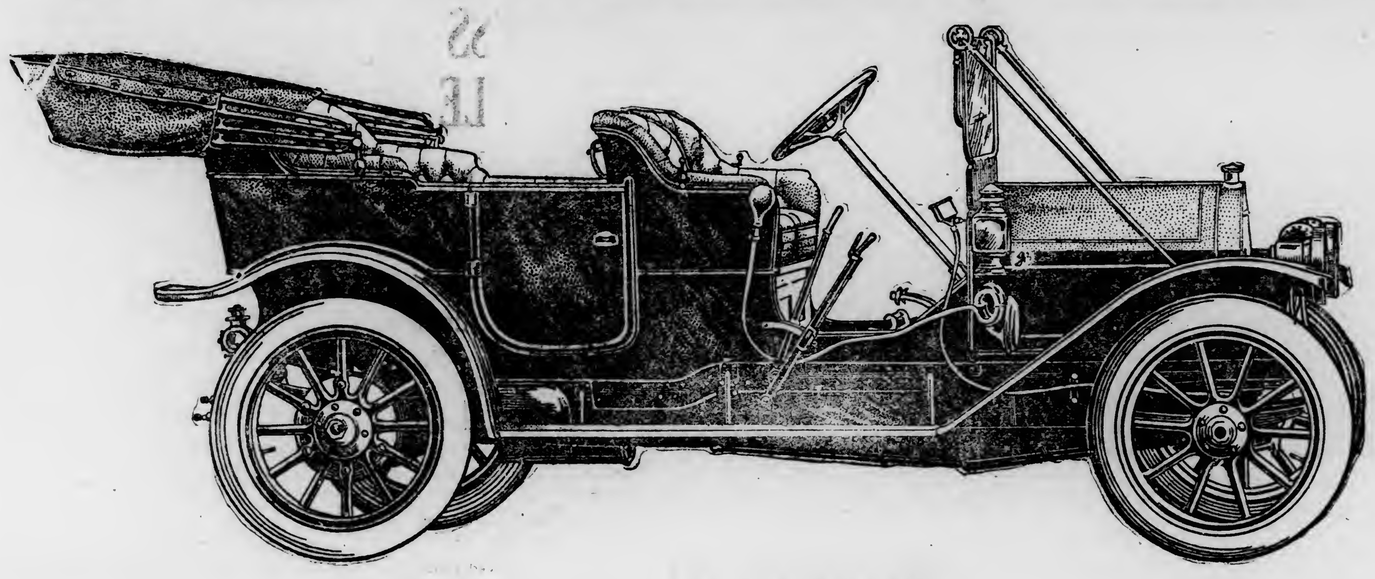
CARRIES COW IN HIS CAR

Probably the palm for ingenuity for the uses to which motor cars are put would unanimously be voted to Arthur Wheeler. He recently purchased a cow in Syracuse, N. Y., and thereupon decided to transport his new purchase to his farm at Cleveland, N. Y., in his Franklin car. The tonneau of the Franklin was removed and in its place was built a small stall. With the assistance of two other men he put the cow into the stall and tied it so that no harm could come to it during the journey of thirty-four miles. The trip was made in one hour and a half, over roads deep with sand which surrounds Oneida lake. The car used was a 1906 twenty-four horse power Franklin and had already been run over 100,000 miles since it left the Franklin factory. The little car made every hill on the route on the high speed and upon reaching the farm was backed against a high terrace in front of the farm house and without any trouble the cow was backed from its stall to the terrace and led away to its new pasture. Wheeler was so pleased with his success that the next day he bought two calves and decided to take them home in the same way. As the rack which he had used for carrying the cow had been removed from the car, he loaded the calves in the front seat, held their heads with one hand and drove the car with the other, while another man beside him kept the animals from falling out. A few days later Wheeler went to Syracuse and took home with him in his car a bed which he had purchased. He says that the farmers along the route from Syracuse to Cleveland are not surprised at anything he may pass along the road with in his car.

You'll never need to buy anything that cannot be bought to best advantage in a store that advertises.

This car will add new lustre to an honorable name



THE most valuable asset the Cadillac Company possesses is its good name—a good name which is not merely the result of popular caprice but has been earned by what the car has done and what it has been. The Cadillac is, as you know, unique in the kind things that are said, and thought, and felt about it by thousands of people.

This good name, and the extraordinary good will which it has engendered everywhere, we interpret as an obligation to build a car so fine as to remove itself automatically from the likelihood of competition.

For 1911, therefore, our first thought—our one and only thought, in fact—has been to satisfy that widespread and implicit confidence which always expects the exceptional from the Cadillac.

We believe we are justified in saying that in this larger, more powreful, more luxurious car, the Cadillac organization has surpassed itself.

In spite of ten years of devoted adherence to the manufacturing principle that any one of ten thousand Cadillacs should be interchangeable in its parts with any other Cadillac of the same type, we were not ready so short a time as twelve months ago to build a car as worthy and as wonderful as this.

Manufacturing plants, like men, must fit themselves to do truly great things. Even with a system of standardization which has no equal in the world and which insures an absolutely perfect alignment of parts and the almost final elimination of friction, the value of 1911 was not possible in 1910.

You are receiving now, we verily believe, the most advanced type of exact and scientific motor car manufacture which the industry has produced.

Important improvements in 1911 Cadillac "Thirty"

INCREASED POWER.
Cylinder bore increased from 4¼ to 4½ inches. This, with more efficient corburetor (Schebler), which is water jacketed, effects a material increase in power. Piston stroke, 4½ inches. The four cylinders are cast singly, with copper jackets applied, retaining the exclusive Cadillac features throughout.

INCREASED COMFORT.
Wheel base increased from 110 to 116 inches, making the car ride easier than ever.

IMPROVED APPEARANCE.
Double drop frame, 2½-inch drop, which makes the car set lower, and this with the larger hood and more roomy tonneau, greatly improves the appearance.

LARGE RADIATOR.
The radiator is slightly larger, hence has greater cooling capacity. This is notwithstanding the fact that the Cadillac was never deficient in that respect.

TIMKIN AXLE.
Full floatingtype. Timkin roller bearing rear axle. This is the same axle as used on a number of America's highest priced cars.

LARGER BRAKE DRUMS.
More powerful brakes, more easily applied and greatly increased efficiency. Contracting and expanding double acting brakes, both equalized.

TWO IGNITION SYSTEMS.
Two complete and independent ignition systems, each with its own set of spark plugs. The two ignition systems consist of Bosch high tension magneto and the new and improved Delco system, with single unit coil, high tension distributor and controlling relay. Either system alone is efficient for operating the car.

ENCLOSED WIRING.
All electrical wiring enclosed in copper tubes.

COPPER MANIFOLDS.
Copper manifolds are used for water inlets and outlets in the circulating system.

REMOVABLE CLUTCH.
Clutch may be removed in a very few minutes without disturbing other members.

Do certain people circulate the report that the E. R. Thomas Motor company have gone into the hands of a receiver?

THE ANSWER IS EASY

PROSPECTS VERY BRIGHT

"Duluth the Livest Town on the Map," Says Cadillac Agent.

People Here All Demand the Best and Newest Cars.

George A. Maxson of the Northwestern Cadillac company says that business prospects for 1911 look even brighter than they did in 1910. The prospects were some bright in 1910 and the business done has been even greater than the prospects indicated.

"We are not by any means sorry we invaded Duluth territory," says Mr. Maxson." On the contrary we are pleased and that doesn't half express it.

"Duluth is the livest town of its size on the map and it is now an automobile town in every sense of the word. There are more automobiles in Duluth than any town in which I have been and not only that, but Duluth people do not run old worn out chugging, noisy cars that are not only out of date but have outlived their usefulness. They run cars of the finest kind and everybody wants the best. Of course, the best at any price is the Cadillac. Did you ever hear of a Cadillac owner who did not say that he had the only car on earth? Did you ever hear a Cadillac owner complain on the cost of running his car? Did you ever hear of a Cadillac getting stuck? Did you ever see a hill that the Cadillac would not climb? For an all around pleasure car with hill climbing abilities, with all the speed that can be used, with the endurance and willingness to be on the job at one turn of the crank, the Cadillac is the last word."

"We were proud of the Cadillac years ago. We are more than proud of the 1911 model. It is better than ever and the purchaser gets more value for his money than ever before. We have already many orders for the 1911 and as the new model is seen the orders will increase.

"We are going to have new quarters. We find that we have already outgrown the old store. We are soon going to have more modern equipment. We have more business than we can attend to and I haven't any more time to talk."

Duluth to Montreal, Can., by automobile.

This is the trip that Capt. Napoleon Grignon of the Duluth-Superior Dredge company, and his sisters, Mrs. P. Polssant and Mrs. La Pante, are taking.

Before the members of the party returns, they will have covered fully 5,000 miles probably many miles more as Mr. Grignon at this time intends to extend the trip from Montreal to Quebec.

The party left Duluth Thursday of last week. They went by way of St. Paul and Minneapolis to Chicago and from there to Detroit. At Detroit they crossed the river and continued on their way to the Canadian city. They are not attempting to make a record run as the trip is purely for pleasure. They are traveling by daylight only, and they are seeing everything on the way in a manner that it is impossible to see it by train.

The car in which the trip is being made is a Studebaker-40, seven-seated vehicle.

Since leaving Duluth a number of Duluth people have heard from them at different points along the route. They report the weather of the finest brand and the roads much better than they had anticipated. The car is being driven by a professional chauffeur.

The party does not expect to be back in the Zenith City before October. They will both go and come in their own time and will stop at every place they think there is anything worth seeing.

If the party has not tired of traveling by automobile by the time Montreal is reached they will continue on down to the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Canada is the old home of the Grignons and they have many friends there. One object in taking the trip in this manner is to visit with them and also in the hope that the trip would benefit the health of Mr. Grignon.

OUTGROWING NEW GARAGE

Russell Motor Company Finds New Quarters None Too Large.

Since taking over the old Cosford garage on East Superior street the Russell Motor company has done more business than ever.

Not only have they the finest and most modern garage in the city but the mechanics are the most skilled and the work turned out is of the best.

Mr. Russell started in the automobile business at the Head of the Lakes some years ago, beginning in a very small way in small quarters across the street from the present location. He gradually expanded until the present quarters, the largest in the city are none too large to care for his business.

The Franklin car has its Duluth agency at this garage, and the splendid service given by the car is well known in Duluth.

Mr. Russell has the agency for other well known and thoroughly reliable cars at prices that suit every pocket.

Manufacturer Denies That People Mortgage Homes to Buy Autos.

Says That the American Nation Is Not "Motor Mad."

That people are not placing mortgages on their homes to buy automobiles is the gist of a statement made during the week by a leading manufacturer who has inquired into the howl that has gone up of late concerning "American people motor mad."

He says:

"There is a renewed tendency of late on the part of a small class of people, actuated either by self-interest or ignorance of the true functions of the automobile, to renew their croaking predictions in one breath and in the next to express fear that the liberty with which the American people are buying automobiles will injure other lines of trade.

"There may be weak spots in the industry. It would be different from all others if there were not. Nevertheless the business of making and selling motor cars is and will continue to be as staple as the railroad, the street car, the telephone or any business that has a product that represents an economic usefulness.

"The course adopted for the immediate future is one of caution. While general financial conditions seem to have reached their worst and to be now on the upward trend, nevertheless, impregnable safety is the most important of all considerations. Stories of fabulous profits in this business, some of them to some extent true, have stimulated many ill-advised promotions which are likely to have the same result that is usual with any business when attempted on insufficient capital or conducted by men unfamiliar with that business.

"Such phenomena are not uncommon in any industry, but until the wheat shall have been separated from the chaff in the automobile business, we must expect to bear a little of the reflected odium of some other people's actions.

"Sales and collections are normal for this season of the year. The quantity of goods manufactured and in process in our plants is not greater than is right and normal for this season. Some of the plant extensions and permanent investments that had been planned have been held up temporarily pending more settled financial conditions, but it is expected that conditions will warrant their continuance in time to take advantage of the very large business offered for the coming year.

"It may be said that the officers of the company pay little attention to the price of the company's stock, for whether it is high or low in no way affects the earnings from its operations."

He then says that once in a while some one seems to be affected by some of the news items regarding the "craze for autos ruining the country," "mortgaging their homes to buy autos," etc.

He adds that 23,000 letters were sent out to bankers, and that the replies indicate that there is practically no mortgaging of homes to buy automobiles, and four of every five of the replies predict a larger automobile business for 1911 than there has been in 1910.

BIGGER MOTOR FOR PEERLESS

Announcements of Peerless, Interstate and Baker Companies for 1911.

The Peerless company announces that for next year it has several attractive new body designs in torpedo and other attractive shapes. The motor will be larger and more powerful and it is planned to cheapen the price of the car by about $300 by including top, wind shield, electric lights, and a motor driven tire pump attached to the fly wheel as regular equipment.

The Interstate car will make no changes except in bodies as the company feels that its design for this year has met every requirement. Duluth drivers have expressed themselves as thoroughly satisfied with the work of the car as it is, and no changes have been suggested.

The Baker Electric will maintain their exclusive feature of a shaft drive for the coming season and it is reported that a number of other manufacturers of the light electric cars are to follow suit and install a shaft drive next season. The Peerless, Interstate and Baker cars are handled by the Duluth Automobile company.

MANY FARMERS OWN MOTOR CARS

Their Licenses Swell the Number in This State Greatly.

As the result of farmers buying automobiles and using them for trips about their farms and to town, more than 10,000 licenses for cars have been issued in Minnesota this year.

According to estimates made in the office of Julius Schmahl, secretary of state, at St. Paul, more than $10,000,000 is invested in automobiles in the state.

On May 1, 1910, the total number of automobiles in the state was 7,374. Since then more than 3,000 additional machines have been licensed.

The cost of a state license in Minnesota is $1.50. It is generally understood that the next session of the legislature will increase this to $5 or $10, as charged in most other states.

The farmers of Minnesota are buying many cars and they are high grade cars.

The growers are turning their attention to the automobile. It is not a cheap article that they want but the best. And, strange to say they want their cars equipped with the latest of accessories.

They are up on what is the latest in every line and the day of passing off any old thing is gone.

HONORS TO TWIN CITIES

Minnetonka and White Bear Yachts Win at Inland Regatta.

Allegro Third in Class and Navaled Finishes Last.

Oshkosh, Wis., Aug. 20.—Yesterday's races closed the thirteenth annual regatta of the Inland Lakes Yachting association here, with Marian Jean of Minnetonka champion in class "A," Cubanola of White Bear in class "B" and Keno of Minnetonka champion in class "C."

White Bear took second honors in class "A" and Minnetonka the same in class "B." This gives the Twin City clubs three firsts and two seconds with five boats entered.

Duluth's entry in class "B," Allegro, took third place in class "B" while Navaled in class "A" finished last. The latter did not enter yesterday's races, being dismantled ready for shipment during the forenoon.

The fight for the class "A" championship for which Marian Jean and Phantom were tied, gave an interest to the race which it would otherwise have lacked. Through a lucky position when the wind shifted nearly 180 degrees the Minnetonka boat and Kathryn got a lead of four minutes in the second leg of the couse which prevented them from being headed at any time.

Kathryn, by winning yesterday secured the Senator Lorimer cup, valued at $1,000. She also took the Pelke and Sawyer cups for winning two races last week. Marian Jean took the Gilbert cup offered Monday, Kathryn having been disqualified in that race, although finishing first. Marian Jean finished second in all four races of the week, but gets credit for Monday's race. Phantom won the Schmidt and Valentine cups.

In class "C," Keno of Minnetonka won yesterday's race and carried away the regatta honors as champion. Patsy, of the Oshkosh Yacht club, was second, but lost the championship due to the fact that she was disqualified in Monday's race for fouling.

A peculiar feature of the championship finish is, that four yachts are now classed for second honors in the championship. They are Patsy of Oshkosh, Star, Oconomowoc Yacht club; Elsie, Oconomowoc, and Edith, Lake Butte Des Morts. The skipper of Star entered a protest against Patsy, claiming another foul and a decision from the judges against Patsy would give Star second honors. If the protest is not allowed it will be necessay for the four yachts to sail an extra race to decide second place.

FITWELLS AND CLOQUET WILL CLASH SUNDAY.

The strong Fitwell baseball team of this city and the Cloquet team will meet at Athletic park tomorrow in what promises to be one of the most exciting and interesting games of the present season. Not only is there a great deal of rivalry between the two teams, but the side bet on the result of the outcome is an assurance that the contest will be for blood from the call of play.

A bitter baseball feud is on between the two teams as the result of a dispute over treatment received by the Fitwell team in the last game at Cloquet. The present contest grew out of the bitter feeling arising from the Cloquet contest, and the team that wins tomorrow will be acknowledged the strongest.

Ed Talbot, who has pitched consistent baseball for the Fitwells the present season, will be in the box tomorrow. The Fitwells expect to win the game and show the Duluth fans that they have really a team better than the Lumberjacks from Cloquet. With this idea in view the team has been practicing steadily the present week and is in fine shape for the game.

SPRAY WINS SECOND RACE FOR LIPTON CUP.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—The Spray of the Chicago Yacht club, skipped by F. A. Price, won the second day's event in the race for the Sir Thomas Lipton cup here yesterday, the lack of wind and calm lake giving the present holder of the trophy a decided advantage over the other contestants.

The race was sailed over a windward and lee-ward course, a distance of twelve miles. The total distance covered by the boats in tacks reached more than seventeen miles. The Columbia, winner of the first day's race, was fifth.

GOOD RACING AT FORT ERIE MEET.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 20. — The 2:05 pace was the feature of the closing day of the grand circuit races at the Fort Erie track. Ess H. Kay, the Buffalo-owned horse, ruled favorite and won the race in straight heats. In the first heat Ess H. Kay and Walter W. raced to the wire neck and neck, Ella Ambulator and Walter Hal, barely getting inside of the distance flag. The time, 2:06, was the fastest of the race.

The Dominion of Canada stakes, $2,000 for 2:10 trotters, was won by Melva J. The mare lost the first heat when she broke just before the finish. The free-for-all went to Giftline in straight heats.

In the second heat of the 2:11 pace, Alta Cost fell just outside of the distance flag. Driver Dempsey was thrown out of the sulkey, but was not injured. The mare turned completely over, but escaped injury.

BOOSTER DAY TICKETS ARE PLACED ON SALE.

Business Manager J. J. Desmond of the Duluth Baseball association placed the tickets for Booster day on sale this morning. The tickets were left at the various downtown stores, as every business man on Superior street has assured the management of the team of his hearty co-operation in an effort to make next Tuesday one of the biggest baseball days in the history of this city.

Mr. Desmond will complete definite arrangements for the celebration today. A program will be arranged for the park. Some speaker will make a few remarks appropriate to the occasion.

It is expected that the ticket sale will be the heaviest advance sale of baseball tickets ever held in Duluth. The business men in the various stores have promised to assist in disposing of the tickets, while the members of the board of trade have promised not only to sell as many tickets as possible, but also to attend the game in a body.

The Sox are going to make a valiant effort to pass La Crosse in the race. Just now the team is playing the best baseball of the season. When a team loses games playing the grade of baseball that the Sox are playing at the present time, the fans have no kick coming. Once at home, the Sox will begin their climb to a respectable position in the final standing.

RECORDS ARE BROKEN IN FLY-CASTING MEET.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—The national records were broken in the three events of the fourth annual fly casting tournament yesterday, new marks being set on the quarter-ounce accuracy bait, the quarter-ounce distance bait and the salmon fly.

The quarter-ounce accuracy event was won by W. H. Ball, Illinois Casting club, with an average in five throws of 99.5 per cent. The record of 99 1-15 per cent was made by William M. Stanley in 1907.

The distance bait event was won by B. F. Flegel of Racine, Wis., getting a new high average and new high record. His average in five throws was 148 feet, 7 3-5 inches. The old record of 125 feet was held by A. D. Whitby, Chicago. The longest single throw was 162 feet, 9 inches. The former record was 152 feet by R. J. Held.

The salmon fly was won by W. H. Ball, 142 feet, 6 inches. The old record was held by John Waddell, Grand Rapids, Mich., 125 feet.

ST. PAUL FILES CLAIM FOR DAUSS.

George Washington Dauss, at the start of the present season the premier twirler of the Duluth team, is once more the property of the St. Paul baseball team. This morning the Apostle leader, Michael J. Kelly, sent a check covering the amount necessary to bind the player to a St. Paul contract for next season.

But for the serious illness of Dauss, the present season would probably have been the best in his career. He is but a youngster and this early spring started in great shape, despite the fact that he was suffering with a strained tendon in his shoulder.

George was just recovering the full use of his shoulder when he was taken seriously ill. If the Indianapolis boy recovers from his illnes, the fans here beleve he will have a great season in 1911.

EGAN AND EVANS MEET IN FINALS.

Lake Geneva, Wis., Aug. 20.—Walter F. Egan of Exmoor and Charles Evans of Edgewater will meet in the finals for the Lake Geneva golf cup today, Egan having defeated Robert F. Hunter of Midlothian 5 and 4 and Evans defeating Albert Seckels of Hinsdale 1 up yesterday.

ROSS K. TAKES FEATURE EVENT AT PEORIA.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 20.—Ideal conditions prevailed for the second day of the Peoria Trotting association meet yesterday afternoon. The rain of Wednesday and Thursday interfered somewhat with the speed, but notwithstanding some classy racing was witnessed by the spectators.

The feature of the program was the 2:05 pace in which a high-class field fought for second money, while Ross K. showed his class by winning in straight heats, the fastest of which was 2:04¼.

The 2:09 pace developed the hardest fought contest of the meet and the first division of the money was won by Joe Brown, which finished first in the first two heats and then had to be satisfied with lower positions.

Hedgewood Roy and Lady Maud C gave a pole team exhibiton. The pair went the middle half of their mile in one minute and might have lowered a record had they not gone to a break in the stretch.

Today's card offers a match race between Minor Heir, Hedgewood Roy and Lady Maud C.

Caponi Gets Decision.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 20.—Tony Caponi and Jack Ryan fought ten hard rounds here last night. Caponi was punishing Ryan so badly in the seventh round that the police stopped the fight, but later on they allowed it to go the limit. Caponi was given the decision.

BETTER FEELING IN BUTTE

Mining Men Expect Market to Return to Healthy Condition—Western Federation May Try to Unionize Michigan—Good Reports From Radersburg District.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The slight increase in the copper surplus for July, as compared with over 18,000,000 pounds in May and of over 10,000,000 pounds in June created a most favorable impression among the mining men in this district and there is a feeling among those high up that in the course of a few months the market will be in a good heady condition.

As compared with May last there is a curtailment in this district of about 2,000,000 pounds, but this is little more than the output of the Clark mines, which were afterwards absorbed by the Anaconda company. The Clark Reduction works were closed down and the ore from these mines sent to the Washoe smelter in Anaconda, which so crowded the smelter that curtailment had to be made somewhere, so that the decrease in the output of the Anaconda mines is little more than the production of the Clark properties which was estimated at 1,684,800 pounds during the month of May.

The remainder of the decrease is largely confined to the properties known before the merger as the Boston & Montana mines. These latter mines are being operated but six days a week, but the mines of the original Anaconda group are running seven days in the week as usual. The stories printed in some of the papers that some of the properties of the Anaconda group are only being operated five days a week is the merest rot.

The smelters both in Anaconda and Great Falls are being run to practically their capacity at the present time and the Anaconda company is confronted with the proposition that when it will be necessary to increase the output of the mines more smelter accommodation will be required. Plans had been prepared to enlarge the capacity of the Great Falls smelter and this work will have to be done if the Boston & Montana mines are to be worked in the future with a view of an additional output as only the ore from those mines are now going to Great Falls and the smelter is being worked to within a few hundred pounds of its capacity and still the mines are not hoisting anything like the ore which could be brought to the surface. It may be that when the occasion requires it arrangements can be made for the International Smelting company at Tooele to handle a certain tonnage of ore. At the present time the smelter at Anaconda is handling all the ore it can handily take care of.

The Western Federation of Miners according to reports made by delegates returning to this city from the annual meeting, are going to make trouble for the mine owners of Michigan district unless they submit to organizing a union and the doing away with contract work and paying the same wages as are paid by the Amalgamated company in this district. One of the delegates had no hesitation in declaring that the Butte union with its 8,000 members had co-operated with the Amalgamated company to the fullest extent and that the company had greatly improved conditions of labor and appliances for work. It is further stated by the delegates that the action taken in determining to unionize Michigan, is not only to better the condition of the miners in the Lake district financially and industrially, but it is an act of reciprocity towards the Amalgamated. Just how the owners of the Calumet & Hecla and other mines will take this latest move on the part of the Western Federation of Miners will be watched with a great deal of interest. The Butte miners are paid $3.50 a day as long as copper remains below 18 cents a pound. When it advances above that figure the wages are increased to $4. This in accordance with an agreement made between the Miners union and the Amalgamated company over three years ago and the agreement is to run for five years.

Reports continue to come from the Radersburg district as to the success in operating the Keating and the Ohio Keating mines. In the Blacker shaft of the Keating a depth of 600 feet has been attained and drifting is now going on. Some fine ore shoots have been opened up on the 500-foot level and assays show an average value of from $30 to $35 to the ton in gold. Depth in the Keating ground is steadily proving that the values are getting better, the veins wider and the ore shoots not only richer but much more extensive. The Keating has just entered into a three-year contract with the East Butte whereby the latter will handle all the ore of the former. The Keating has not been able to ship more than fifty tons a day under old arrangements, but the shipments will be increased at once to about 125 tons a day.

The Shakespeare Gold Mining company, owned by New York capitalists and located in the Philipsburg district and the Mount Royal Mining company have been merged and are going to operate on a large scale under new management.

The Reins Copper company is again before the limelight, this time in a suit brought by J. P. Reins, president of the company, for the recovery of $344, alleged to be due for lumber on a claim assigned by G. M. Munger to the plaintiff.

* * *

United States Judge Carl Rasch has rendered a decision which is attracting considerable attention in mining circles. He declares that because the corporate existence of the Colorado Smelting & Mining company has ended it does not free the company from its obligations and claims. The corporate existence of the company ended Nov. 20, 1903, before a suit for personal injuries was filed and it was contended that therefore it could not be made a party to the action. The company was organized under the laws of the state of Colorado. In delivering judgment Judge Rasch said that the dissolution of a corporation does not take away or impair any remedy given against such corporations. It leaves the corporations, the judge pointed out, and its creditors with respect to the enforcement of claims against it in exactly the same situation as if no dissolution had taken place.

* * *

No step has yet been taken to bring to a hearing the suit filed by the North Butte company against the Tuolumne in which it is alleged that the Tuolumne company has been extracting ore from ground belonging to the North Butte company. There seems to be belief that the application for a restraining order preventing the Tuolumne from mining in the disputed ground will not be pushed, but instead a suit will be brought to recover the cost of the ore alleged to have been extracted. The Tuolumne is mining as usual and is hoisting about 100 tons a day which runs in the vicinity of 10 per cent copper and a good value in silver.

* * *

The Anaconda company is now said to be putting down copper in New York at a little less than 9 cents a pound and those who ought to be an authority declare that when the electrical equipment is installed copper will be laid down in New York under 8 cents. Some months ago President Ryan of the Amalgamated company made the statement that there were deep mines in this district which would compete with any of the low producing properties of the country and it seems that this statement is going to be fully verified.

* * *

John Hoy, superintendent of the Corbin Metal company in the Corbin district, reports a remarkable strike of ore on the 500-foot level. He says a crosscut on the lead had intersected two and a half feet of ore that will average 32 per cent lead, eighteen ounces of silver, 1.17 per cent copper and $1.40 in gold to the ton. At a depth of only 500 feet in an inclined shaft this is said to be a remarkable showing and proves the theory in this district that the dependable values occur much closer to the surface than in the more extensively explored portions in the older properties of the Corbin camp. Some of the Eastern stockholders are expected to visit the property in the near future.

* * *

The work of extending the electric line from Great Falls to this city and Anaconda is going forward with all speed possible and it is hoped that in about one month's time the work will be completed and the mines and smelter supplied with power from the Great Falls Power & Light company. It will, however, be some time yet before the mines will be equipped with the machinery necessary to operate the properties by electricity.

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Scaling Down of Ore Shipments Noticeable—Vesselmen Disappointed—Important Strike in Crystal Falls Field—Exploration in Wisconsin Portion of Menominee Range in Progress.

Ore shipments from the Lake Superior iron region, while falling behind the expectations of those who predicted an outgo of 50,000,000 tons for the season, are still running considerably ahead of the record-breaking movement registered a year ago. It is hardly expected, with the iron trade inclined to hesitation, that the present rate of production at the mines will be maintained—indeed, a scaling down is noticeable—yet apparently it is indicated that the amount of ore sent out will show very little, if any decrease from that forwarded during the season of 1909. The season is disappointing to vesselmen, however, and much independent tonnage is out of commission.

Oglebay, Norton & company's Bristol mine, the biggest producer in the Crystal Falls district of the Menominee range, has reduced its working force from 275 to 200 men. It is still shipping briskly, however. A new shaft is to be sunk at this property and for the purpose of determining the best location a diamond drill is in operation. Pickands, Mather & Company have suspended work at their Channing and Warner explorations in the Amasa field, north of Crystal Falls. This shutdown, which is for an indefinite period, affects fifty men. Work at the Channing had been in progress two or three years and it generally was supposed that a mine was on the eve of development. Railroad facilities had been provided by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway company. The Cambria Steel company has trimmed down the force of employes at its Republic mine, on the Marquette range, to the extent of fifty men. All operations at Rogers, Brown & Company's Ohio property at Michigamme, Marquette range, have been suspended. The adjoining Portland mine, owned by the same interests and which produces a similar grade of ore, will continue to be wrought vigorously. The Portland is operated by the steam shovel method and its costs are materially less than at the Ohio.

The Antoine Ore company's Traders property at Iron Mountain, Menominee range, is in commission again, after having been idle a fortnight or more. Orders had been received to pull the pumps and ease production, and the workings had filled with water when new instructions directed the resumption of mining operations. A force of 125 men is now employed and shipments are again proceeding briskly. Some 75,000 tons have been sent out so far this season. The mine is an open pit, wrought by the milling system. The Antoine Ore company, operating the property, is controlled by the Shenango Furnace company and the Republic Iron & Steel interests. The Huron Mining company has taken on additional men at its Youngs mine, north of Iron River, and mining operations and development work are being pushed vigorously. An ore crushing plant has recently been installed. The Chicagon property, midway between Iron River and Crystal Falls, is to be provided with shipping facilities yet this season. A branch line, the contract for the construction of which has been awarded to M. J. Peppard & Company of Minneapolis, will be built by the Chicago & Northwestern railroad. The road will parallel the iron formation a number of miles and will be a boon not only to the Chicagon but to other properties of much promise. It is expected that the Chicago, Milwaunkee & St. Paul railroad also will tap the district in the not distant future, this with its proposed extension from Crystal Falls to the Iron River country. The Chicagon is operated by the Buffalo & Susquehanna interests. It has been in progress of development the past few years and has opened a very considerable body of ore.

Crystal Falls Field.

A find of importance in the Crystal Falls field is the discovery at the Lot Three property of what appears to be a good-sized deposit. The strike was made at a depth of 425 feet, where both drifting and crosscutting are in progress. The ore is free of rock, so far as cut, and while its exact quality is not yet determined, that which already has been hoisted appears of wholly satisfactory grade. The Lot Three is a property of the International Harvester company. The Steel corporation is exploring the Hilltop tract at Crystal Falls. A diamond drill is being used and the property will be thoroughly and systematically tested. The Hilltop adjoints the forty where Benjamin Neely of Negaunee drilled into a large body of ore some months ago and it is believed that it carries the extension of that deposit. The Spring Valley Mining company, auxiliary to the Wellston Furnace Company of Wellston, Ohio, and in which Eugene Zimmerman of Cincinnati is largely interested, is undertaking exploratory work in the Wisconsin portion of the Menominee range, midway between the Crystal Falls and Iron Mountain districts. The property to be tested in section 24, 40-17, three miles west of the Florence mine. The indications are very favorable. A contract for diamond drill work has been awarded to the Cole & McDonald Exploring company. The Spring Valley company already has developed the Zimmerman mine, in the Iron River district, and this latter is a fine property.

Modern Dry House.

At its big Chapin mine at Iron Mountain the Steel corporation is erecting one of the largest and most modern miners' dry houses on the Menominee range. The building is of stone and steel and will cost $12,000. It will be 104 by 64 feet in ground dimensions, will contain 660 steel lockers for the clothing of the men and will be equipped with shower baths and enameled wash fixtures. The construction will be in accordance with the very latest ideas in dry-house erection and will be as near perfection from a sanitary standpoint as possible. The building is being erected at the Ludington "C" shaft. The Kloman Iron company's property at Republic, Marquette range, is to be equipped with an engine and boiler house, 100 by 20 feet. The structure will be of concrete and steel and absolutely fireproof. It will be subdivided into an engine room, boiler room and coal room. The boiler plant will be of 200 horse power. The engine, hoist and other equipment formerly employed at the Saginaw mine at Norway, a Menominee range property abandoned a year ago, will be erected at the Kloman. The company's decision to install a plant of machinery would indicate that the exploratory work has been decidedly satisfactory. The Kloman is in the hands of the Jones Furnace interests of Iron Mountain.

The Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, whose surface construction on the Marquette range is of materially greater volume than that of any of the other operators, has awarded a number of additional contracts of that nature. Ten double dwelling houses are to be erected at the new North Lake mine, west of Ishpeming. A large boarding house is to go up at the Cyr property, in the Swanzy district, where the sinking of a concrete mining shaft recently was started by the Foundation Company of New York. The Cyr ultimately will be provided with an additional shaft and in time will be a good sized producer. Three-track additions to coal trestles and which will largely increase the storage capacity are to be constructed at the Maas mine at Negaunee and at the central power plant in the Swanzy district. A school house at the North Lake also will be provided. A very large amount of money has been spent at this property since work was first begun with the diamond drills that located the ore deposit. The sinking of the concrete shaft was in itself an expensive work, and the installing of machinery, the erection of shafthouses and the many other things that have to be done in the task of preparation for ore production have all cost a big sum.

Just how extensive is the deposit at the North Lake remains to be proved by actual development work underground. The diamond drill has found ore and the company has an excellent idea as to its quality, but concerning the size of the deposit, that is somewhat problematical. Apparently, however, it runs well into the millions of tons. A large mine at this location would go to make up for deposits that have been exhausted in some of the older properties. The company has been in the mining business longer than any other concern in the Lake Superior field and it is only natural that some of its shafts should be getting barren of ore, the continued drain leaving no other conclusion. The North Lake is being supplied with a fine equipment of machinery that may be operated by either steam or electricity. It will be a model plant and everything about surface will be of the very best. The company already has erected a fine lot of dwelling houses for its employes, as well as several large and well appointed boarding houses. The location is a very pretty site and its close proximity to Ishpeming makes it desirable as a place of residence.

The board of review of the city of Ironwood, metropolis of the Gogebic range, has equalized the assessed value of the property within the limits of the municipality at $6,079,305, an increase of $535,420 over that of a year ago. Practically all of the increased assessment is on the properties of the mining corporations, city property being in the aggregate only $30,420 more than last year, while mine assessmens are $505,000 higher. Of the total of a little more than $6,000,000, the mining companies, banks, electric company and a lumber concern will pay taxes on $5,007,000, leaving $1,072,305 for all other property in the city. The mining assessments are as follows: United States Steel corporation, with the Norrie group of mines, $2,630,400; Newport Mining company, operating the big Newport property, $1,802,880; Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, owner of the Ashland mine, $366,720.

It is the claim of one Wm. Connor that a new and valuable ore field has been discovered by him in the northern part of Luce county, Mich. He has found an outcropping, he says, this the result of two years of exploratory work, and he asserts that assays show 55 per cent in metallic iron. He is very reticent as to the location of his find, evidently fearing that some one may rob him of the benefit of his discovery. Conner returned to Upper Michigan from British Columbia a couple of years ago and he claims to be an experienced prospector. It has been known that there were pockets of bog ore in the north end of Luce county, but nothing has heretofore been found indicating that any considerable deposit existed. Mining men take little stock in Connor's claims. Luce county is 100 miles east of the Marquette range.

CURTAILING PRODUCTION

Phelps, Dodge & Co., Have Cut Output 7 Per Cent This Year.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 20. — Phelps, Dodge & Co. have been curtailing the production of copper ever since the first of the current year. For the first half of this year this curtailment totaled 7 per cent. This rate will be at least maintained throughout the remaining months of 1910 while the management may see fit to reduce still further shipment of ores from its own mines.

While the oompany has been slowing down in the production of its own properties, the Douglas reduction works has greatly increased its custom business through the opening up of many independent mines in the Arizona district during the past year. If Phelps, Dodge & Co. did not accept this business other custom smelters in the district would, the Guggenheims having a plant at El Paso.

The gain of 5,000,000 pounds during the first six months of this year as indicated by the smelter yield of Phelps, Dodge & Co. has led to the false conclusion that these interests have been pushing productions. As a matter of fact, the falling off in copper output from the Copper Queen, Detroit and Moctezuma mines has been almost as great as the smelter increase, or to be exact, 4,300,000 pounds. From but 3,500,000 pounds of copper derived from custom ores during the first half of 1909 this business in the corresponding period of the current year had grown to 12,900,000 pounds.

TONOPAH HAS BIG PAYROLL

More Than 1,600 Men Now Employed in the District.

Tonopah, Nev., Aug. 20.—Wednesday was pay day for the Tonopah mines and the amount disbursed exceeded by several thousands dollars the amount paid out in the month of July, which totaled something more than $240,000. This means that the Tonopah mines and mills are giving employment to between 1,600 and 1,700 men, the largest number ever employed in the district and double the number at work in the Goldfield district.

The production of the camp for the month of July came near being a record-breakers, amounting to $850,000 gross. This exceeded the June output by about $50,000 and has been exceeded in only two instances in the history of the camp.

Last week's shipments of ore amounted to 7,308 tons, and giving this an average value of $30 a ton, puts the production for the week at over $200,000. If this rate keeps up for the balance of the month of August, it will bring the production close up to $900,000.

In ore shipments, Tonopah Mining led with 3,250 tons. Belmont followed with 1,700, Montana with 1,000, and Extension, MacNamara, West End and Midway with shipments ranging from 850 down to 100 tons each.

Tonopah Extension made a splendid record for July, the records showing that close to 4,000 tons was produced by the mine. The west drift in the property is out about 950 feet from the shaft and is fast approaching the Red Rock ground, which the company purchased a few months ago. With the pay-shoot extending and proved this far to the west and with the probability of its continuing several hundred feet farther in the same direction, the Extension is one of the prettiest propositions in the camp and is assured a future for production that cannot be estimated.

ARE TURNING TO GOLD STOCKS

Much More Favorable Attitude Toward the Nevada Issues.

Salt Lake City Utah, Aug. 20.—A decidedly more favorable feeling toward Nevada gold stock has set in the West, and according to brokers and engineers it is daily becoming stronger. The feeling is somewhat conservative at this time, but absolutely certain. The consensus of opinion is that this fall will see greater activity in gold stocks and more investment in them as staple securities than at any time since 1906-07.

Probably many of the Goldfield stocks have shown the greatest actual advance in this group. A great deal of new mining development is being done in Goldfield, and everyone speaks in the highest encouragement regarding the future.

A good deal of work is being done at Gold Circle, although the stocks of that district have shown little or no advance.

A marked advance has been shown in some of the gold securities of the Seven Throughs district in Humboldt county. Seven Throughs Coalition sold around 20 cents a few months ago, and while the management has not been pushing work to any great extent the stock has made a substantial advance. At present it is selling around 40 cents, a gain of 100 per cent.

The Nevada Hills management is keeping silent about developments since absorbing the Fairview Eagle and since George Wingfield has become its president. From a low price of 64 cents it has climbed up to $2.40, a gain of almost 400 per cent. Buying in this stock during the past few months has been of a distinctly good quality. Substantially higher prices in this issue are predicted on every hand.

AT THE LAKE COPPER MINES

Exploration a Feature of Week's Work—Cliff, Indiana and Wolverine Mining Companies Begin Work on Permanent Shafts—New Finds in Baltic-Superior Lode.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Section 12 Exploration company, operating in the horizon of the Baltic-Superior lode in the territory next northeast of the Isle Royale property, is obtaining an exceptionally fine showing of copper ground in the trench opened across the outcrop of an identified lode disclosed in the drill operations last fall. About fifteen feet of copper ground giving evidences of considerable leaching has been exposed in the bottom of the trench which has not yet reached below the weathered zone. A considerable quantity of native copper is also noted. The lode, across which the trench is being driven, was quite thoroughly tested by diamond drilling last fall, five drill holes being put through it, of which four holes yielded cores carrying copper in commerical quantity. The average width of the lode was shown by these borings to be around seventy feet.

Cliff.

The Cliff Mining company has broken ground for a permanent shaft in the Kearsarge lode. The location of the shaft is about one-half mile from the Ojibway. The Kearsarge lode received considerable attention by diamond drilling in years past, and yielded a number of cores carrying copper in commercial quantities. The work is being done under the supervision of the Calumet & Hecla Mining company.

Indiana.

The Indiana Mining company's No. 7 drill hole has passed through an unidentified copper-bearing bed at a depth of about 900 feet from surface. The new-found deposit shows a thickness of about fifteen feet. The copper is exceedingly fine grain and the character of the lode material is altogether different than that disclosed in the No. 2, or discovery hole, which yielded the sensational core of last winter. The No. 7 drill hole and also No. 9 hole are sinking steadily with the object of cutting the deposit encountered in the No. 2 hole. The company has a force of men engaged in clearing a site for a permanent shaft in the vicinity of the No. 2 drill hole.

Wolverine.

The Wolverine Copper Mining company has begun work on a permanent shaft in the Osceola lode traversing the western limits of the Wolverine tract. Test pitting has disclosed the ledge and work has been started in solid rock. The position of the Osceola lode is such that it can be mined to a depth of about 1,600 feet before reaching the boundary limits of the property. This ground though not nearly as rich as the Kearsarge lode on which the Wolverine is opened, may possibly yield fifteen pounds fine copper per ton of rock, and may be expected to materially lengthen the life of the Wolverine company in this territory.

Algomah.

The Algomah Mining company has engaged a diamond drill for the purpose of proving up the ore body disclosed in the exploratory trenches, and to determine the horizon in which this company is operating. The shaft which was recently started on this property has attained a depth of about thirty feet. A small hoist and air compressor have been installed and better progress in shaft sinking, which has thus far been carried on with the use of hammer and drill, may be expected. The occurrence of ore is rather unusual in this district and exceedingly limited in extension where found. Indications on the Algomah property, however, point to a considerable body of ore though it is generally held that the ore even here will grade into native copper at depth. The company is planning to treat a small quantity of the ore taken out in the course of development work.

Houghton.

The Houghton Copper company has received a small steam hoist and air compressor, and these are now being placed on their foundations preliminary to shaft sinking. The property was previously diamond drilled and a drill core of exceptional richness was taken from what very probably is the Superior lode, which is being wrought by the Superior Copper company next south. The known mineral-bearing portion of the Houghton Copper company's tract is comparatively small, but apparently richer than the average ground opened in this district, and is locally considered very promising.

Arcadian.

The Arcadian Copper company continues actively engaged in diamond drilling and surface trenching. The No. 6 drill hole has attained a depth of about 1,800 feet and is thought to be within 200 feet of the depth at which the Arcadian lode is being put down with the object of locating the southerly extension of the so-called New Baltic lode, the trend of which crosses the Arcadian property has not yet been established.

New Baltic.

The New Baltic Mining company has placed an order for a small steam hoist to be used in connection with shaft sinking already in progress on that property. The New Baltic shaft has attained a depth of about twenty feet and fair progress is being made considering the inadequate equipment in use. The shaft is going down in the foot-wall about twenty-five feet from the lode, which will be reached by crosscuts at the various levels after they are established. It is probable that the first crosscut and therefore the first disclosure of copper ground by this means will be opened at the 100-foot level.

AT THE ARIZONA MINES

All Sunday Work Has Been Discontinued at Calumet & Arizona—Good Progress at Denn—Rich Ore From Shattuck—Hoatson Shaft of S. & P. Making Record.

Bisbee, Ariz., Aug. 20.—Notices have been posted at all the mining shafts and offices of the Calumet & Arizona Mining company and affiliated companies to the effect that Sunday work on the properties of these companies is to be discontinued. This order will go into effect immediately and for the first time since operation of these mines began the employes will take a full day of rest, says the Bisbee Review. This order meets with almost unanimous approval from all classes of the workmen.

The Calumet & Arizona company has always met its men fairly and squarely, and until recently it was supposed that a majority of the men were in favor of the continuance of Sunday work. For the last two weeks a quiet and unofficial canvass has been made among the men, and it was evident from the figures that the sentiment on this question had undergone a change. Upon becoming acquainted with this change of opinion on the part of the employes the General Manager Greenway took the matter under advisement with the resulting order for the discontinuance of all Sunday work.

The only Sunday work that will be done will be such repair jobs as are found to be absolutely necsary, and that cannot be done while the mine is in operation, such as shaft repairing and work of the hoisting machinery.

Denn-Arizona.

Work at the mine continues to show the same steady progress and the ground encountered in the shaft is the same hard, black lime rock which was struck at a depth of 1,200 feet. This rock is excellent material in which to sink a shaft, as it is hard and firm and will not crowd or displace shaft timbers as is the case when the ground is soft and cavy. Drifting and crosscutting has not yet been resumed and all effort is directed to the sinking. In the past week a shaft has been sunk twenty feet, which shows an increase of five feet over the weekly average of fifteen feet. The shaft is now down 1,460 feet, and at the rate of progress made during the psst week a depth of 1,500 feet will be reached within two weeks, when work on a station will probably be commenced.

Shattuck-Arizona.

Shipments of rich oxide ores from this mine are being made at the rate of 175 tons per day. The ore will average 17 per cent copper which shows a richness which very few mines can equal. No sinking is being done at present as already sufficient ore has been blocked out on the levels to supply the demand for some time to come. The most of the ore shipped is from the upper levels and the sulphid ores on the lower levels will remain untouched until the copper market becomes stronger.

Calumet & Arizona.

When the word came early in the week to discontinue, temporarily, sinking in the Irish Mag shaft, the rumor was started and even found place in the El Paso papers that all work at this famous old shaft was to be discontinued. This rumor was promptly and emphatically denied by the C. & A. management and the statement was made that this report was absolutely without foundation. There were few in Bisbee who credited this sensational story when it was first published in the El Paso papers. The Irish Mag shaft, although the oldest mine of the C. & A. company, is yet full of great possibilities and to have had it shut down at this time would have been a calamity to the entire district. The electric hoist at this mine continues to give the same splendid service and is giving better service and hoisting more ore than even its builders claim for it.

Superior and Pittsburg.

The Hoatson shaft of this company continues to maintain its record as one of the richest and heaviest shipping mines of the Warren district. The bulk of the ore from this shaft is mined on the twelfth, thirteenth and fourteenth levels, although considerable is also mined on the eleventh and fifteenth levels. The bin capacity has been greatly increased and the loading of railroad cars very much facilitated since the erection of the new steel gallows frame. This has raised the height of the landing platform and has made the work of handling the mine cars much lighter. The work of cutting the station on the 1800 level of the Briggs is about completed as is also the tunnel which is being driven for a second connection between that shaft and the Hoatson.

The Wolverine.

Very favorable reports have come from this mine recently and some heavy smelter shipments have been made. This shaft has not been driven to a depth sufficient to determine the nature of the ground or the value of the copper ore deposits but it is the opinion of many that this will yet develop into a paying proposition.

RICH ORE IN THE AMAZON-MONTANA

Assays Show Good Values in Gold, Silver and Lead.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 20—Within the past few days four feet of first-class ore has been opened up at a depth of 250 feet in the property of the Amazon-Montana Development company, at Amazon, about forty miles east of Butte, on the Great Northern railroad. The ore is of excellent character and assays give it a general average of $27 to the ton. The values are $4 in gold, about sixteen ounces of silver, and the balance in lead. The vein has been drifted on for about fifteen feet, and the body of ore that has been opened up is on the hanging wall side. The vein is believed to have a width of about thirty feet, according to surface indications and developments at a depth of eighty-five feet, but in order to definitely determine the width crosscuts will be run at a distance of every fifty feet along the drift. At the present time the entire width of the drift is in ore, and the ore chute is showing a tendency to widen out.

This is the same ore body that was developed to a limited extent from a tunnel which was run several years ago by the original owner of the property. At that time several ore shipments were made and the returns were highly satisfactoy. The tunnel gave a vertical depth of about eighty-five feet. The same ore body having been developed by means of the shaft at a depth of 250 feet, it is now proposed to raise on the ore body and to open it up for its entire length. It is proposed to make regular ore shipments as soon as the raises can be started, which probably will be done before the close of the month.

UTAH CO. STATES POLICY

Production to Be Reduced to 7,500,000 Pounds Per Month—Other Reductions Looked for in the Near Future.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 20.—The Utah Copper company, about which there has been so much doubt regarding a reduction of its output, has been the first company definitely to state its policy and make announcement what the reduction would be. The statement recently made that the output for the next few months would not be over 7,500,000 pounds per month constitutes a very appreciable diminution from the last few months' figures. For example, Utah Copper output in June was 8,300,000 pounds and in May 8,800,000 pounds, so that an output of 7,500,000 pounds for the next few months will be a reduction of about 10 per cent when compared with recent months.

It is likely also that the policy which the Utah company has adopted will be reflected in Nevada Consolidated tarough the Utah company's 50 per cent stock ownership in the Nevada company, on the board of directors of which it has representatives.

United States Smelting company output from now on will be reduced, while the First National Copper company is likely to be eliminated from the producing ranks for a short period at least as reason of the probable closing down of it Ballaklava smelter as the result of difficulties with the farmers over the fume situation.

Should the Ballaklava smelter close down entirely, it would shut off production of the Bully Hill mine as well as the latter company has recently entered into a smelting contract with the Ballaklava.

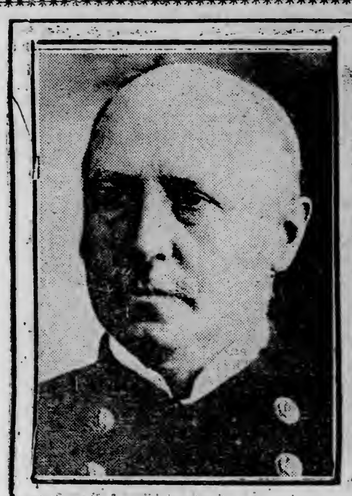
An Arizona mine producing about 1,000,000 pounds per month contemplates shutting off its production entirely although a definite decision has not yet been reached.

Under one pretext or another properties all over the country have been curtailing their output. The Amalgamated company favors curtailment and already this has been put into effect in many ways.

Of the 168,000,000 pounds surplus in this country, it is not generally understood that some of this copper belongs to consumers, possibly 25,000,000 pounds representing advance sales which will not be delivered for a month or two. Sales by the United Metals Selling company since this agency lowered its price to 12½ cents are believed to total fully 50,000,000 pounds. This covers a period of from two to three weeks. Notwithstanding this volume of business the United Metals Selling company is still believed to hold more than 100,000,000 pounds of unsold copper. In some well posted quarters it is estimated that before the United Metals Selling company lowered its price from 13 to 12½ cents this agency must have held much more than 100,000,000 pounds. It is pointed out that 100,000,000 pounds would not have prevented this interest from continuing to "hold the umbrella" as it has been the only company with spot copper to fill immediate demand. If a larger tonnage than 100,000,000 pounds were held, however, it either was carried abroad or figured in domestic deliveries to insiders.

While no actual syndicate was formed, European metal interests through their American connections have been free buyers of copper during the past fortnight. Most, if not all, of this will appear as exports, as the metal will be taken abroad where some will go into consumption and the balance held for future sales.

THESE MEN AND WOMEN HAVE REALLY REMEMBERED THE MAINE

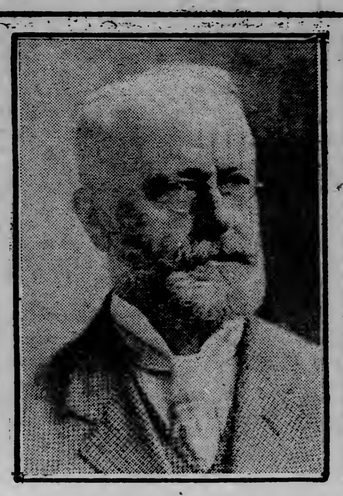


REAR-ADMIRAL L. F. E. CHADWICK

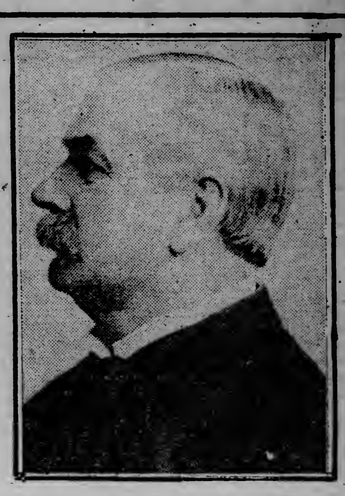
REPRESENTATIVE WILLIAM SULZER

SENATOR EUGENE HALE.

REAR ADMIRAL CHARLES D. SIGSBEE



GENERAL W. H. BIXLEY.



REPRESENTATIVE GEORGE A. LOUD.

Written for The Herald by E. J. EDWARDS ("Holland")

(Copyrighted, 1910, by E. J. Edwards.)

It was on Feb. 15, 1960, that the battleship Maine was blown up in Havana harbor with a loss of 231 lives. Today, the United States government, having been authorized by congress to act, is now engaged in devising plans for raising the bones of the ill-fated battleship and of the sixty-three sailors whose bodies were never recovered from their ship. Today, after a lapse of more than twelve and a half years, this is being done because, in all that time, and despite obstacle after obstacle, discouragement piled on discouragement, slight heaped on a slight, a valiant band of Americans have never ceased to "Remember the Maine." Unto solely to their unflagging efforts, a government that seemed content to forget the Maine so far as to let it lie rotting forever in a foreign harbor, was at last aroused to action; and before long, it is hoped, the remnants of the ship that was once the pride of the American navy will have been taken from the mire of Havana harbor and the bones of the sixty-three sailors imprisoned therein will have received a sepulture in American soil befitting that of the heroes they were.

The "Father" of the Maine.

It is not a long list, this of the names of the men and women who have labored incessantly in season and out for the raising of the Maine, and perhaps at the head of the list should be placed the name of William Sulzer, Tammany congressman from New York. No one of the little group—not even Admiral Sigsbee, who, when a captain, was in command of the Maine on the night of her destruction—has been more persistent in his efforts to bring about the resurrection of the battleship. He formulated bill after bill to this end, and when the matter was delayed by more pressing legislation he made the very halls of congress resound with his insistent "Why?"

Mr. Sulzer became an enthusiast on the subject of raising the Maine shortly after the Spanish war was decided in our favor. For several years he made it his special object in life to bring the business to a satisfactory issue. With that end in view he traveled constantly from one governmental department to the other in his endeavor to discover what was the real cause of the delay. At the height of his activity one of Mr. Sulzer's intimate friends declared that Mr. Sulzer had tried to raise the Maine until not only were his shoes full of holes, but the pavement between the departments was in a like condition. It wasn't bad for an illustration of the unflagging energy shown by the Tammany representative in behalf of the Maine.

Figuratively speaking, Mr. Sulzer left no stone unturned—except, possibly, those he had already worn into holes. He hammered away at congress, besieged the White House, enlisted Spanish veterans, boards of trade, chambers of commerce, governors, mayors, society women and what not and got them to petition congress, kept on introducing bills and right up to the last moment before congress took favorable action on the Loud bill, with an initial appropriation of $100,000, he waged his aggressive campaign.

In common with those who do things out of the common Mr. Sulzer has been called eccentric. Those who know him intimately declare that the only eccentric thing about him is a remarkable facial resemblance to Henry Clay. Like the great Kentuckian, too, Sulzer is magnetic, especially in his speech. He is master of not a few of the tricks of oratory and when he is speaking there is no lack of attention from his auditors. That he has a weakness for conspicuous waistcoats is a harmless idiosyncrasy of a man who is spoken of even by his political opponents as possessing unusual talents.

Like many another man of parts, too, Sulzer revolutionizes the natural order of the day, working off his most laborious mental stunts while the world is at rest. Those who are familiar with his methods are not disconcerted when he bids them to "come around to my office about midnight and we'll talk it over." He declares that he has never acquired the sleeping habit and is disposed to regard it as unpardonable loss of time.

"When do you sleep, Sulzer?" asked a constituent who had been granted one of these nocturnal business interviews.

The man who is secretly fond of the fact that he looks like the great Clay dashed back his mop of mouse-colored hair, overthrew a stack of half a hundred letters piled on the table before him and looked serious.

"Never, when there's anything else to do," he replied.

Despite the fact that he is a variant from the ordinary run of mankind, Mr. Sulzer has hosts of friends both in Washington and at home. His district in New York city is populated by millionaires at one end and pushcart men at the other, and he has many admirers among both classes. His remarkable oratorical facility, exhibited at its best from the tail end of a cart in his ante-election progress through his political demesne, is one of the most picturesque items of the great city, and those who halt to catch a fragment of his speech cannot reproach themselves for wasting time.

For some years now it has been the great ambition of Mr. Sulzer, whose adherence to Tammany has never wavered, to be governor of New York state. It is said that he believes he has a good chance of securing the Democratic nomination this fall. Should he ever succeed in sitting in the gubernatorial chair, the country should be prepared for some radical executive actions, provided Mr. Sulzer, as governor, lives up to his radical tendencies as a member of congress and a political speaker.

Like many another expert politician, Mr. Sulzer has a memory for names and faces that appeals to the average layman as being well-night remarkable. Some years ago, Mr. Sulzer betook his six feet and more of anatomy to a launching down in Florida, and while there he had the pleasure of meeting some of that state's prettiest women. Recently several of these ladies were in Washington, when Mr. Sulzer met them again and recalled the names of each without a slip, amid a chorus of "Why, Mr. Sulzer, how remarkable! I did not think you would remember me!" Of course, gallant man that he is (wasn't Henry Clay a most gallant gentleman?) Mr. Sulzer made the appropriate reply.

Representative Loud Big Navy Enthusiast.

But though Representative Sulzer deserves the palm for keeping everlastingly at it in behalf of the Maine he did not reap the honor of having one of his Maine raising bills passed by congress. Representative George A. Loud of Michigan, who is as ardent a Republican as Mr. Sulzer is a Tammany Democrat, is the legislator who framed the bill passed at the last session of congress appropriating money for the resurrection of the battleship. Like his colleague from New York, Mr. Loud, who represents the Tenth Michigan district, has been an enthusiast of years standing on the subject of raising the Maine, and whenever he saw an opportunity to further the cause he did not let the house forget that i had a not let the house forget that it had a duty to perform away off in Havana habro.

Mr. Loud's interest in things maritime has not been limited to the wreck of the Maine. From the moment of his entrance into the lower house of congress he has been a tireless advocate of the expansion of the American navy, and he has devoted himself to the exploitation of the proposition to add to it two new battleships yearly. He is also the originator of the plan now operative of building a fleet of 12,000-ton colliers for the navy, that its fuel may be carried in American owned and built bottoms. He had a stiff fight to put this idea through congress and he looks upon it as a notable victory in behalf of a bigger and better navy.

Mr. Loud's interest in maritime affairs is not the passing fad of a man of wealth; in his case it amounts to a passion. It was not inborn, as in the case of Senator Hale, maritime expert of the upper house, but when it finally made its appearance it dominated all other influences. The story of its development is full of human interest.

Mr. Loud's father was a pioneer lumberman of the Wolverine state and his boyhood and youth were passed in the woods. He and his husky brothers were bred in the primeval forests of the upper peninsula. They were nourished on the rough fare of the lumber camps and slept on spruce boughs. Bears, wolves, deer and abundant smaller game were close at hand, and the lads drank their fill of the joy of outdoor living and became adepts in woodcraft.

As time passed the family prospered. The boys were sent within the bounds of civilization to have some of the rough corners rounded and polished. George went to the Ann Arbor high school to prepare for the state university, but after graduation from the secondary institution he returned to the woods and resumed his career as lumberman with so much energy and consequent success that he soon became a rich man. Then, with leisure and abundant means, he indulged in globe trotting to his heart's content.

It was while so occupied that Mr. Loud was offered an opportunity which appealed to him so forcibly that he accepted without a reservation. It was an invitation from an old friend, Capt. D. B. Hodgdon, of the United States revenue service, to make a voyage with him on the McCulloch, a vessel fitted up with an armament of light guns and designed to prevent seal poaching. Since a civilian is non persona grata on board a government vessel, Mr. Loud enlisted as paymaster.

Before sailing, the objective point of the McCulloch was understood to be Sitka, Alaska, but instead the little vessel steamed slowly across the Atlantic to Gibraltar, on to Malta and through the Suez canal, and when she reached Colombo, Ceylon, advices from Washington awaited her commander to the effect that trouble was brewing with Spain and that the vessel was to join Dewey at Hongkong. Mr. Loud was advised to go ashore at Colombo, but he begged Capt. Hodgdon to let him proceed with the ship, and after some demurring the captain consented.

So it happened that, with the exception of a couple of newspaper correspondents who chanced to be on the scene, George A. Loud was the only American civilian who actually took part in the battle of Manilla bay. The role played by the McCulloch in that memorable affair was of considerable importance. During the fight Mr. Loud had charge of the after powder magazine and when the engagement was over he went with the McCulloch with dispatches to Hongkong telling of the destruction of the Spanish fleet.

That is why Congressman George A. Loud is always present at the annual dinners of the Society of Manila Bay, composed of officers who took part in that battle. On these occasions he is regarded as a guest of honor and is given a seat at Admiral Dewey's right hand. At one of these banquets the admiral told how the arrival of the McCulloch in Manila bay nearly upset all his plans for capturing the Spanish fleet. At the very moment when it was necessary to divert the attention of the enemy from his own operations, the firemen of the McCulloch began to shovel in coal, sending up a dense column of smoke from the vessel's stacks. The admiral confessed that this thwarting of his purpose to lie low filled him with murderous thoughts for the time being, but fortunately no harm came from it.

At the close of the war Mr. Loud resigned from the service and resumed his business, but he found that he was regarded as a hero by the people of his state. He was fairly pressed into politics, and his opportunity came he accepted a nomination to congress to become the champion of the new navy and a leader in the movement to raise the Maine.

In early life Mr. Loud knew intimately the French habitants along the Great Lakes and can speak their patois inimitably as given in Drummond's poems, "Wreck of the Julie Plante," "The Habitant" and "Les Vieuxtemps." His houseboat Voyageur on the Au Sable river is a roomy, lazy craft for fishing and hunting excursions shared by his friends. He is much interested in the cause of the blind and often talks before their circles and recites for them, and they are very fond of him.

Senator Hale's Activity.

It was but natural that the state of Maine should feel an especial interest in the project to free her namesake from long imprisonment in the miry depths of Havana harbor. It was equally to be expected that Maine's senior senator, Eugene Hale, would come prominently to the front whenever anything which concerned his commonwealth was under discussion. From the first, Senator Eugene Hale has been notably active in the movement which has had for its object the raising of the Maine. He has advocated it eloquently both in the United States and out, always with the assurance that the legislature of the Pine Tree State was solidly at his back. As a creator of public sentiment he has done yeoman work, and he has been ready at all times and in all places to champion the cause.

has been the acknolwedged authority on naval matters in the United States

Since his first appearance in the Forty-first congress, as member of the lower house in 1869, Eugene Hale has never once strayed outside the focus of the public eye. Now in his seventy-fifth year, master of all the ways that make for legislative prestige, he above all others was fittest to head the movement in the senate to raise the sunken battleship.

There is still another reason why enator Hale's intimate connection with the business of raising the Maine seems most appropriate—for many years he has been the acknowledged authority on naval matters in the United States senate, and this acknowledgment has been made by both his adherents and his enemies. "Putting it mildly," said a naval official to the writer, "Eugene Hale knows more about ships and about water than any other civilian living. From his youth he seems to have made a study of such things, and I have never been able to find him at fault in the business. What he doesn't know about the water and its following cannot be learned from books or in any other way that I know of."

When he made his first entry into congress he was already familiar with the seas "and all that in them is." He was a modest young fellow in those days, but during his ten years' service in the lower house his fame as a maritime sharp became so pronounced that President Hayes tried to induce him to accept the naval portfolio. Mr. Hale declined the honor, but continued to have an active participation in naval matters as a member of the committee on naval affairs. So intimate and far-reaching was his understanding of the naval situation at that time that nothing of importance was ever done by the department without he was consulted.

In 1881 he took up his quarters in the senate chamber, where he has remained to this day, in length of service the oldest tenant of that august establishment. For twenty-nine years Senator Hale's opinons on ships and the medium in which they float have been accepted as final; no one has the temerity to question his knowledge although his policy has been subject to the most violent criticism. So there is a singular appropriateness in the leadership of Senator Hale in this business of raising the Maine.

Mr. Hale's fondness for things maritime is emphasized by his fondness for swimming. At one time, when he was several years younger, he was regarded as among the best amateur swimmers in the country, and today, though his years are more than three scores and ten, he delights in a twice-a-day dip in the water in summer. Dip, however, is a misleading word, since the senator is a long distance swimmer, and the lake near his beautiful summer home in Maine has been traversed frequently by him. Mr. Hale's first swim is usually taken during an early morning hour, and the second late in the day. Those of his friends who are fortunate enough to be his summer guests are in the habit of accusing him of spending a large part of his summers in the water.

Senator Hale's Washington mansion is one of the finest in that city occupied by a government official, elective or appointive. It contains thirty-five rooms; twenty-two of them are living or sleeping rooms, and each has its open hearth. In the grand reception hall of golden oak is a magnificent Italian fireplace, with curved settees on either side, and above the fireplace is a balcony. The art works that the mansion holds are among the finest in Washington, and the senator's "workshop," as he calls it, is one of the most luxurious private mansion offices to be found in America or Europe, for that matter.

The Hero of the Maine.

Among the Americans not of congress who have been exceedingly active in the raise-the-Maine movement, none has been a more earnest or consistent worker than Rear Admiral Charles D. Sigsbee, whose name is destined to go down to posterity as the commander of the Maine on the night she met her doom. Of all those who have been waiting not patiently but hopefully, it is not likely that there is a more vigilant watcher than this veteran survivor of that sickening holocaust.

Admiral Sigsbee's "Personal Narrative of the Battleship Maine," is sufficient to set him apart as the one person in all the world who is most concerned in the lifting of that water-soaked hulk into the light of day. There are still a good many points to be settled to his satisfaction and there is no other way of reaching them.

Admiral Sigsbee's record was among the fairest ever won by sea fighters long before his act of bravery in Havana harbor set the world aglow with admiration for the American spirit as typified by him. He did good service at the battle of Mobile Bay and he showed not a sign of flinching in both attacks and in the final assault on Fort Fisher. His special naval inventions have inured greatly to the benefit of Uncle Sam, and nations other than ours have profited by his cleverness.

Since his retirement in 1907, Admiral Sigsbee has been devoting himself to literary work, some of it along the lines of his profession and a considerable part of it is of a miscellaneous character. He is master of a very pleasing style and had he chosen literature instead of sea fighting he probably would have made his mark long ago. He is a social favorite in circles, and is the amiable prey of all the philanthropic enterprises in the community. Arrayed in the imposing uniform of a rear-admiral, he is still far and away the most picturesque figure in Washington's naval colony. And when so arrayed the admiral is a source of unfailing wonder to his grandchildren. "Grandpa, are you going to get married," one of them exclaimed when the admiral appeared in a spick and span white uniform for one of Mrs. Taft's garden parties.

Others Who Really Remembered the Maine.

Another rear-admiral, also retired, who is deeply interested in the raising of the Maine, is French E. Chadwick, who was a member of the Maine inquiry board, appointed after the disaster to sift the matter to the bottom. Many of the things considered by that board of inquiry can never be made clear until the battleship is out of water, and for that reason Admiral Chadwick is another eager observer of the progress of the movement.

In the meantime, with the raising of the Maine always near to his heart, the admiral dispenses a royal hospitality at his beautiful Newport home, Fair Oaks. He also finds employment in literary work, being a diligent and scholarly historian, the author of the volume entitled "Causes of the Civil War," in Hart's American history. Recently, he has become greatly interested in municipal reform and has brought about some beneficial changes in the city government of Newport.

Rear-Admirals Adolph Marix and Richard Wainwright are still other gallant sailors who have always shown a deep interest in the raising of the battleship. Admiral Marix commanded the Scorpion during the Spanish-American war, and was promoted rapidly for conspicuous bravery. He also acted as judge advocate of the Maine court of inquiry, and on that board, too, was Admiral Wainwright. His most cherished earthly possessions are a silver loving cup, presented by the citizens of Gloucester, Mass., and a sword by citizens of Washington, for his gallant work as executive officer of the Maine when she was sinking and for his able command of the Gloucester during the war with Spain.

Among the civilians who have worked aggressively in the raise-the-Maine movement, Bernhardt Wall of New York city deserves special mention He was behind the cause on behalf of the United States Spanish war veterans. As for the rest of the ardent workers in the movement—the men and women who have really remembered the Maine all these years—their number is small and they are practically covered in this list: Orsco C. Woolson, New York city; the late Gen. O. O. Howard; George W. Bates of Detroit; William M. Koons, Mount Vernon, Ohio; John B. Moore, Washington, D. C.; Miss Edith A. Beard, Miss Beatrice L. Whitney, William J. Van Patten, Burlingame, Vt; A. H. Griffith, A. R. Poland of New York, V. H. Metcalf, Congressman George Edmund Foss, Robert Bacon, now ambassador to France; the late John Hay. E. M. Thompson, in behalf of the Seventy-fourth legislature of the state of Maine; A. King, Newark, N. J.; John T. Collins, Rutherford, N. J.; Mrs. Margaret Kean, Chicago; Admiral S. B. Luce, Newport; Fathers McGuigan, Carroll and Smyth, Dr. W. T. Russell, Mrs. C. Walton Dunlap, Mrs. Mary V. Goundie, Mrs. Ada M. Galloway, Mrs. Charles Sidman, Cora Campbell, Mrs. Lidie Oldroyd, the late Mrs. Helen G. Sparhawk, and Father Chidwick, who was the Maine's chaplain.

The Man Who Will Raise the Maine.

Today the hopes of this valiant little band of men and women are centered in the man who will have charge for the government of the task of raising the Maine—William H. Bixby, the recent successor of Gen. William L. Marshall as chief of the engineers of the United States army, after thirty years of service, during which time he has put a long list of successful river and harbor improvements to his credit.

Almost thirty years ago Gen. Bixby was sent by the government to attend the French war maneuvres and to inspect and report on the iron fortifications then in use in Europe. His report on his return to America was one of the most exhaustive and illuminating papers ever turned in to the war department. It was a report that gave its author instant recognition as one of the most capable engineers in the corps, and his services have been in constant requisition ever since. When the inland waterway development scheme now agitating the Mississippi valley became so prominent, it was Gen. Bixby who was largely responsible, and in 1908 he was made president of the Mississippi river commission. One of his most interesting details resulted when he was ordered to make a special inspection of the damage wrought by the Charleston earthquake.

Personally, the new chief engineer is thoroughly companionable. Despite his devotion to Uncle Sam's interests he is always ready to answer a question or listen to a joke. Asked recently to give his opinion as to the value of a vacation, Gen. Bixby declared that for him any period of recreation absolutely free from work would be an actual hardship.

"That's right, Bixby," put in a fellow engineer who did not agree with him on this point. "I've noticed that you always combine business with pleasure. When we go fishing, for instance, you put on your time while waiting for a bite in selecting a location for another lighthouse."

"Oh, I hope it isn't as bad as that," laughed the general.

"It is, though," insisted the officer, and then he proceeded to "make good" by telling how on a certain fishing trip the general and he had been fishing for an hour with a patience that would have delighted Sir Izaak Walton, but without encouragement, when he broke the silence by inquiring in a cautious whisper:

"Had a bite yet?"

"No," returned the general thoughtfully, "but that point over yonder is a bully place for a lighthouse."

WHEN TEDDY MAKES TOUR

What Will the Ex-President Talk About on His Trip West?

Washington, Aug. 20.—What will Theodore Roosevelt talk about on his Western tour which is to begin next week? That is the question that is interesting political gossips here now. That the ex-president can avoid politics entirely, particularly in the light of recent events in New York state, nobody is willing to believe. It will be the first round of speechmaking that he will have made since his return from Africa, and it is believed here that the thoughts that have been simmering in the mind of the most prominent man in America cannot be forced into the background for the entire time of the trip. Anyway, the politicians are ready to interpret whatever he may say to suit themselves, if as has been rare in the instances when the chief of Sagamore hill has spoken, there is such indirectness in his utterances as to admit of the possibility of "interpretation."

Col. Roosevelt's Itinerary.

His itinerary is as follows:
Leave Oyster Bay Aug. 25.
Arrive and leave Buffalo Aug 25.
Arrive in Chicago Aug. 26.

Subjects Not Disclosed.

The important speeches Col. Roosevelt will deliver during the above tour will be at Cheyenne, Wyo.; Denver, Colo.; Ossawatomie, Kan.; St. Paul, Minn., and Chicago. Their character, even their subjects, has not been disclosed, but the people of the country may expect to be informed of the former president's views from these points. He will be at Cheyenne on Frontier day, at Ossawatomie on the occasion of the John Brown celebration; at St. Paul in connection with the conservation congress, where he will speak on conservation, and in Chicago will address the Hamilton club.

This will not be the only trip the colonel will make during the fall. Upon his return from the West he will deliver a number of speeches in the vicinity of New York City. He then will go South, first stopping at Atlanta, Ga., where he will deliver a speech during the Uncle Remus celebration in memory of Joel Chandler Harris, for whom Mr. Roosevelt had a high admiration.

In Peoria on Oct. 12.

From Atlanta the colonel will go to Arkansas, and on Oct. 10 he will make a speech at Hot Springs. Two days later the former president will reappear in Illinois, having arranged to address a meeting of the Knights of Columbus at Peoria and in the Indiana city will speak in behalf of the re-election of Senator Beveridge.

It would seem the colonel had about done his duty in carrying out the above itinerary. But his plans show ne is not yet through. He will return to New York and tour that state, urging the election of the Republican candidate for governor—provided, of course, the candidate be of a character which justifies the support of a former president of the United States.

WHO BUYS THAT DINNER?

Several months ago a famous wager was made. Henry Watterson bet the New York World the best dinner New York can provide that before snow flies Taft and Roosevelt will be at sword's points.

Everybody with a drop of sporting blood in his veins is interested in the decision of that bet; but that isn't the only reason why a lot of people are watching intently the relations between the president and the ex-president.

It is reported from Oyster Bay that the Colonel is inclined to give the president credit for his flat rejection as chairman of the New York Republican convention. It is merely a rumor, one of those subtle emanations that it is hard to analyze. Roosevelt himself preserves a lofty calm, and so far has said or done nothing to prove or disprove the report.

It is reported from Beverly that the president is anxious to prevent a break with the ex-president, that if the Colonel really is miffed his disaffection is based on a misunderstanding, and that anyway a better understanding will be established as soon as this one goes from Beverly to Oyster Bay and talks with the Colonel, and that one comes from Oyster Bay to Beverly and talks with the president.

Roosevelt made Taft president, and turned over to him the causes of conservation and economic progress. Mr. Taft turned conservation over to Ballinger, and discharged Pinchot, its real prophet. Also, he turned the cause of progress over to Aldrich and Cannon, who did their best to beat its brains out.

There, one would think, would be enough reason for a coolness on the Colonel's part toward his successor, without the affront involved in the Colonel's recent rebuff from the "old guard" of New York Republicanism.

Samuel G. Blythe in the Saturday Evening Post tells a story tending to show that the trouble goes much farther back. He does not vouch for it, but merely says that many believe it implicitly.

The story runs to the effect that after the election Judge Taft wrote President Roosevelt a pretty letter of thanks, in which he declared that he—Taft—felt under greater obligations to Roosevelt for his election than to almost anybody else except "brother Charles." It is related that upon receipt of this letter the Colonel leaped many feet into the air, and hasn't come down yet. He felt no obligation to share the credit for Taft's election with anybody, even with brother Charles and his money bags. Later another letter went from Taft to Roosevelt in which the president thanked the ex-president once more for his help, which Taft assured the Colonel was more valuable than any other support, "except that of Brother Charles." Whereupon the ex-president made another ascension, making it even more difficult to come down. Then the ex-president went to Africa, and during all his stay he never even sent a picture postal card to his successor.

Was the affectionate greeting they gave each other on their single meeting since March 4, 1909, intended solely for the moving picture camera?

Will the New York World have to buy Marse Henry a dinner? Many would like to know.

Anyway, Col. Watterson say they are going to have that dinner, whoever pays for it.

THE FIRE HORSE.

Is the automobile going to displace the fire horse? It looks like it, and fire-fighting will lose a lot of its picturesqueness if it turns out that way.

New York, so the newspapers of that city say, is about to adopt motor apparatus generally in its fire department, and this at no distant date. Experiments have shown the practicability of the motor vehicle. Some time ago the New York fire department bought an automobile hose wagon for use in the high pressure zone. This has proved so satisfactory that the department has ordered four more of them, and also a motor fire engine that will be tried in competition with the machines drawn by horses. Advocates of the motor engine are confident that the test will result in the rapid displacement of the horse-drawn engines.

Maybe fire-fighting will be just as efficient with motor engines as it is now with horses, but it will not be nearly so picturesque.

What is a finer spectacle than the fire engine, drawn by three or four splendid horses, on its way to a fire? The horses used in the fire departments are the pick of the stables, and in the prime of their strength and beauty. They are groomed to a fine polish, until not a speck of dirt shows anywhere on their glossy coats. They are big, strong, handsome animals, combining strength and beauty as no other animals can. Their splendid grace and magnificent utility make them things of beauty that will be sorely missed.

If we must come to it, we must; but a motor-driven fire engine, chugging along the street on its way to a fire, will be no substitute for a handsome team of splendid horses, necks stretched, nostrils wide, eyes flashing, manes flying, reins taut—a picture that seems doomed to drop into the gallery of outgrown things along with the stage coach.

There will be compensations, no doubt. The motor engine will not develop glanders and have to be shot, though it will have its peculiar ailments. It probably will get to the fire as quick as the horses do, and maybe quicker. Perhaps, too, they will get automobile motors down so they will last longer than a good horse—for the years of a horse in the fire department are not long.

But if it comes about that the fire department stables are abolished and garages built in their stead, it will be a long time before some of us can adjust ourselves to the loss of the inspiring spectacle of a team of splendid horses drawing the fire apparatus at runaway speed.

LA FOLLETTE.

Returning from Wisconsin to Kansas, Senator Bristow said: "Senator La Follette will carry Wisconsin in the primary election Sept. 6 by from 50,000 to 75,000 majority."

Here's hoping Insurgent Bristow is correct in his estimate of Insurgent La Follette's chances. La Follette has his faults—we haven't yet met the man who hasn't—but as a pioneer in real reform, as a valiant fighter for the people, as an undaunted and unabashed champion of real democracy, he stands unique and alone in a class of his own. His renomination will be fought—is being fought—by every selfish interest in Wisconsin and the nation. The Republican organization would rather beat him than a dozen Democrats. The people whom he serves should flock to his support and make the verdict in his favor so overwhelming that no doubt will remain where Wisconsin stands in the sisterhood of states that are fighting for human liberties.

"DIXIE."

There was a political reception the other evening at Wallace, Idaho, and Senator Heyburn of that state was a guest.

There was music, of course, and while the band was doing its best to entertain the guests Heyburn noticed that it was playing the good old tune of "Dixie."

Rising theatrically, the senator ordered the band to stop.

"This is a Republican meeting," he said. "We want no such tunes here."

This makes the second time that Senator Heyburn has written himself largely upon the public notice as a consummate ass.

The other time was when he made a fuss in the senate about putting into the senate rotunda, in Statuary hall, a statue of Robert E. Lee. He offered a resolution against this "sacrilege," and after a heated speech in which he waved the "bloody shirt" of long forgotten sectional prejudice, nobody voted for his resolution but himself.

This country wants no such spirit as this in its public men. The war is over. Its issues are dead. The wounds of fraternal strife, kept raw and sore for years by Republican oppresions in the South, are healed at last. The war with Spain, which is likely to go upon the permanent pages of history as an incident that did this country less credit than any other war it has waged, at least served the splendid purpose of knitting forever the breach between the sections. The North has no patience with men like Heyburn, who would keep that breach open merely to gain passing notoriety for themselves.

Robert E. Lee, son of that "Light Horse Harry" who was such a gallant figure in the American Revolution, was a splendid type of man and citizen and one of the world's great generals. An opponent of secession, when his state went out he went with it and served it faithfully until to prolong the struggle was useless murder. He was a man whom the united country may revere, and no true citizen of the North will object to having his statue in the national capitol.

And "Dixie!" The man who can hear its rollicking strains without a thrill, who can listen to its dashing lilt without wanting to yell, is a man in whose veins circulates water and not blood. Though it became the war song of the embattled South, it is too inspiring a tune to be the South's exclusive possession. Let the North hear it and cheer it, as it hears and cheers "The Star-Spangled Banner." Let it be a token of a reunited brotherhood, of a people too big and broad and free and generous to hold petty grudges.

Let the bands play "Dixie" as often as they may, and if churlish statesmen object, let them emigrate with their musicless souls to some distant isle where they can console each other for the annoyance caused them by the mutual affection of a reunited people.

BANK PRESIDENTS AND THE ROCKPILE.

The other day a St. Paul judge sent a St. Paul bank president to the workhouse for thirty days because he had violated the law against running automobiles too fast.

It being rather unusual to see a bank president on his way to the rock pile, naturally the incident attracted much attention. Usually, when bank presidents and folks of that class violate minor laws they are let off with a fine, but in this case the judge permitted no such alternative, but gave a straight workhouse sentence.

In spite of the wide attention given to this case, there isn't anything very remarkable about it—or rather there should be nothing remarkable about it. A bank president who breaks a law ought to stand exactly in the same position before the courts as anybody else. The fact that bank presidents usually are circumspect about their doings, and that they are not in the habit of breaking laws, together with the fact that there are fewer bank presidents than there are of other people, should be the only things to make this case at all notable.

Theoretically bank presidents and longshoremen are equal before the law. Practically, they are not. The reason is that the ordinary form of sentence involves the alternative of fine and imprisonment. When a law is broken and the offender convicted, it sounds like equal treatment to impose a sentence of fine or imprisonment no matter who the offender is, but it isn't equal treatment. Most of those upon whom the alternative sentence is imposed are men who haven't the money to pay the fine, so they have to go to jail. When men of money are treated the same way, naturally they pay the fine and avoid going to jail.

To the offender without a dollar in his pocket or a friend to turn to, the alternative of fine or imprisonment is no alternative at all. Having no money to pay his fine, he goes to jail.

Petty offenders, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, are in that position. It is jail for them, because they cannot pay fines. When bank presidents or other people with money get before the court, the alternative of fine or imprisonment has no terrors for them, because they always pay the fine. When the offenses are more serious, a similar situation exists. The man of money can hire the best lawyers and keep up the fight indefinitely. The man without money has to take such lawyers as the court appoints for him, and take his medicine without an appeal if the case goes against him.

When a man of money, therefore, is convicted of such a serious offense as running his automobile in a way to imperil the lives and limbs of other people, the only way to put him on an equality with the poor offender is to do as that St. Paul judge did—impose a sentence of a term in jail without the alternative of a fine.

And that seems about the only way to keep in check the minority of automobile-owners who have no consideration for the rights of others.

WHEN THE "HERO" IS NOT A HERO.

The traditions of romance require that the "hero" shall be a hero indeed. He must be a sort of sublime superman, fertile in expedients, of marvelous strength and agility, excelling in all manly pursuits, sports and achievements. Though balked for a time, he must win in the end, and even to have his victory delayed too long is dangerous.

But novelists, of late, show a disposition to trifle with this tradition. The term "hero" has become merely an awkward trade term for the protagonist of the story, who may be as far from heroic as the imagination will run. Thackeray advertised "Vanity Fair" as a "novel without a hero," but with that single exception there were few conspicuous instances until lately where the traditional character of the hero was impaired in the least.

A recent English novel that has been published in this country has for its hero a man who, though he wins in the end, displays a most marvelous faculty for getting the worst of it. On page 23 his horse is gored by a boar, and he narrowly escapes death—an incident that isn't at all to his credit since by displaying the qualities expected in a hero he would have eaten that boar for breakfast. On page 68 his cousin knocks him senseless with the butt of a revolver, and since his cousin is the villain it certainly should have been the other way about. On page 89 he falls from his horse and is knocked into a state of coma. On page 153 he falls into a Moorish wheatpit, where he remains delirious for several days and is buried alive by the villain-cousin. However, he is rescued in time to undergo more humiliating embarrassments from this villain who has borrowed all the capacity of the traditional hero. Being kidnaped, on page 235 he is thrown from the rigging of a Sicilian smugglers' boat, and receives a jolt that would put any man out of business who hadn't, by this time, grown accustomed to that sort of thing. However, he is able to be up and about to get stabbed by the cousin on page 254. He escapes from prison, only to be roped and led back to it.

Finally he marries the heroine. Whether that is the climax of his disasters or not is left to the imagination. In the old, traditional tale it would be taken for granted that he lived happily ever after; but in novels where the hero is no hero, how are the readers to tell whether he lived happily ever after or fled to Reno after a period of most distressing matrimonial bickerings?

People used to like the traditional hero, even though his talents, beauty and virtues were unbelievably superhuman, because he was so much like what they wanted to think themselves to be. When they get to making heroes merely human it may be more realistic, but the novel has lost some of its savor.

Nevertheless, while the example quoted here is extreme, the reader who picks up a modern novel has no assurance whatever that the hero is going to turn out to be a hero at all. He may be an expert criminal, a consummate villain, a ludicrous misfit, or just a plain, ordinary person. Clearly the situation calls for a new nomenclature in fiction. It is suggested that novelists borrow a term from the stage, and call their "heroes" leading men and their "heroines" leading women; which isn't a bad thought at all.

DULUTH'S ASSESSMENT.

A correspondent in the Open Court points out that if the city's assessed valuation is increased, one effect will be to increase the sums raised by the levies fixed by the charter, and that that will encroach upon the other funds, the total being limited by the charter to $320,000, not counting several excepted funds.

That is true, but it is hardly a valid argument against such a readjustment of the assessment as will bring property that is under-assessed up to a point where it will bear its fair share of the burden of taxation. The fixed levies amount to only half a mill. If the total valuation should be raised from $38,000,000 to $42,000,000 these levies would bring $2,000 more, and the cut into the other funds would amount to that much.

Nevertheless, if the large amounts of property that are assessed too low are left as they are, the fact remains that they will escape their fair share of the tax load, and that owners of small homes and small properties will have to bear that share unjustly.

WANTS TO KNOW WHERE CITY WILL BENEFIT.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Very recent editions of your paper indicate that the county auditor and the county board of equalization propose to increase the city assessor's assessment of personal and real property approximately $2,000,000. Your edition of the fifteenth inst., says: "If the board finally passes upon the proposed increase it will mean thousands of dollars to the county." It will also mean thousands of dollars to the state of Minnesota, as the higher the valuation the greater the state apportionment of tax money paid by the citizens of Duluth. What is the situation as far as the city itself is concerned? The charter of the city of Duluth makes compulsary a levy of at least one mill for the light fund and a levy of at least one-half mill for the water and light plant fund for the purpose of reducing water rates to consumers. The charter limits funds No. 4 to 16 inc. to a levy of $320,000. An increase in the valuation, therefore, gives more money for the light fund and the water and light plant fund, thereby decreasing the levy for the maintenance of other departments in like amount. For example: Let us take valuations of $38,000,000 and $42,000,000. On a $38,000,000 valuation one mill amounts to $38,000 and on a $42,000,000 valuation one mill amounts to $42,000.

Result—

$38,000,000 Valuation.

Light fund, 1 mill	$38,000
W. & L. plant Fd ½ mill	19,000
Other departments	263,000
Charter Limit	$320,000

$42,000,000 Valuation.

Light fund, 1 mill	$42,000
W. & L. plant Fd. ½ mill	21,000
Other departments	257,000
	$320,000

Mr. Jackson, the former city assessor, materially raised the valuations. The real estate board and other organizations made unusually vigorous protests against the proposed increase, primarily on account of benefit resulting particularly to the county and state.

Permit me to respectfully call your attention to your editorial of Aug. 3, 1908, with reference to said increase; "The decision of the city board of review, as related in The Herald Saturday evening, to make a sweeping reduction in the assessed valuation of real estate in this city, is an encouraging response to the pointed protests that have been made against the arbitrary increases made by the assessor. The immense increase in the assessed valuation of Duluth would have reduced the tax rate, but it would not have saved a penny to the tax payers, and it would have made Duluth pay about $60,000 more than its share of state and county taxes." Will you kindly indicate the reason for change of opinion over two years ago, and, with reference to the proposed increases by the county board, let us have a definite report as to wherein the city of Duluth will be benefited.

There are inequalities in the assessment made by the assessor. We expect them and always will have them. No human being can make an equitable assessment. We will come nearest to an equitable assessment only under the following conditions: In the first place adequate funds must be provided. The Minnesota tax commission offered to finance the revaluation, the city to reimburse the state when funds were available. It was stated at the time that cost of revaluation would be approximately $20,000. The city of Duluth did not accept the offer of the Minnesota tax commission. One-half of the necessary amount was appropriated by the city, over one-half of which covered salaries of regular employes of the department, consequently the systematic work of revaluation was not attempted, and everyone was thoroughly aware of the fact. In the second place proper revaluation can only be accomplished under method similar to that employed in taking the recent census. The Commercial club, every organization and every citizen has a duty to perform, and upon these factors must depend to a very large degree the successful completion of an equitable assessment.

It is the purpose of the county board to equalize the present assessment, which is being given unprecedented publicity. Let them take up the matter from a purely "business standpoint" and endeavor to make an equitable division of the assessment. As far as the proposed increases are concerned, we again ask, wherein will the city be benefitted?

Very respectfully,
S. W. RICHARDSON.

Just a Little Mother.

She's just a little mother in a cabin far away;
Since I kissed her in the gloaming 'tis forever and a day.
In my dreams I hear her calling, calling o'er the weary sea,
"Come ye back to Ballyshannon, Katy dear, come back to me."

She's standing in the doorway, filling up the space,
With the kerchief o'er her bosom and the frills around her face;
She is smiling as our Lady smiles above the Holy Child,
And my heart runs forth to meet her o'er the waste of waters wild.

Do you know our Ballyshannon, where the very winds are sweet
With the saltness of the sea foam and the tang of smoldering peat?
Do you know our mists that fold us in a blanket soft and gray,
Do you know our Ballyshannon in the red rose dawn of day?

Then you see the little mother, just herself, so small and old,
With a look I'm sure would warm you were you shivering with the cold.
O, so mirthful, O, so patient, she whose work is never done,
O, so ready with her laughter at the rise and set of sun.

In the great house where I'm serving folk are ever kind to me,
But they do not guess my yearning for the cabin over sea.
Wage I earn and wage I send her, yet I cannot longer hide;
I must seek my little mother, I must nestle at her side.

She's just a little mother in a cabin far away;
Since I kissed her in the gloaming 'tis forever and a day.
In my dreams she's calling, calling! "Mother, darling, yes, I'll come;
I'll go back to Ballyshannon, to my mother and my home."

Nearer Home.

One sweetly solemn thought
Comes to me o'er and o'er;
I am nearer home today
Than I ever have been before;

Nearer my Father's house,
Where many mansions be;
Nearer the great white throne,
Nearer the crystal sea;

Nearer the bound of life,
Where we lay our burdens down;
Nearer leaving the cross,
Nearer gaining the crown!

But lying darkly between,
Winding down through the night,
Is the silent, unknown stream
That leads at last to the light.

Closer and closer my steps
Come to the dread abysm;
Closer death to my lips
Presses the awful chrism.

O if my mortal feet
Have almost gained the brink,
If it be I am nearer home
Even today than I think.

Father, perfect my trust;
Let my spirit feel in death
That her feet are firmly set
On the rock of a living faith!

Every Little helps.

New York World: The more Senator Aldrich sees of insurgent Republicans the better he likes Democrats. He could argue the tariff question with Democrats, he says, because they had some regard for accuracy, they had knowledge and they had a decent respect for the feelings of protectionists. How different with the insurgents! Their political existence depends upon their capacity to misrepresent, he says, and, worse yet, upon the ignorance of their adherents.

It is a pleasant thing to see brethren thus dwelling together in unity. This official expression of plutocratic Rhode Island's candid opinion of Iowa, Indiana, Kansas, Minnesota and Wisconsin Republicans will help at the polls in November, no doubt.

Probably also the senator's reassuring statement that his $40,000,000 combination (not a trust) is interested only in crude rubber (on the free list) which is sold to manufacturers of rubber (tariff increased by Mr. Aldrich from 30 to 35 per cent for purposes of uniformity only) will be of some service. The insurgents know even better than some Democrats that a monopolized market for manufacturers may help very materially the big dealers in raw materials that are duty-free, even though they are not "interested."

The Game of Politics.

Oh, some there be who sit at night
Against a table round
And find at poker a delight
That's varied and profound;
And some there be the dope sheets read
With joy-distended face
And feel the impulse strong to pick
The winner of the race.

Still others in this favored land,
While seeing certain gents
Each other neatly pound, expand
With pleasure most intense;
And others, when the shining sphere
About the field is tossed,
Feel here at last is found a joy
That's gilt-edged and embossed.

But those who feel the special call,
If honest, will admit
That as a game to catch them all—
Well, politics is "It."

While racing men may sagely bet
On winners that don't win.

As loudly as of yore,
And when the thing don't go to suit
Can be as mad and sore.

Most any time of day
And still not find himself compelled
A large amount to pay.

And everybody else can find
In politics the brand
Of pleasure suited to his mind,
As much as he can stand.
And this is why we give a toast,
The pen with zeal aflame,
To politics, of this our land
The "great and only" game.

The Real Meaning of Insurgency.

Boston Traveler: These Western men are insurgents, as the founders of the Republican party were insurgents. They are trying to bring the Republican party back to first principles. They want to free the slaves of the new social system, and guarantee them human rights henceforth.

And if there is any salvation for the Republican party, the way to that salvation is pointed by the insurgents.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

The Blues and What to Do With Them.

Who in the world first dubbed seasons of depression "the blues?" If it were not too late I should enter a vigorous remonstrance against connecting one of my favorite colors with a very disagreeable and painful mental state. When I look into the deep blue eyes of a dear little girl I know, when I gaze into the azure heavens, when my eye lights upon a beautiful turquoise stone, when I see the blue banner associated with a certain college, I wonder why blue should typify in the moral and spiritual realm something far from pleasing. Why should ministers talk about blue Mondays. Why not talk about green Tuesdays and violet Wednesdays.

Well the phrase is here and to stay. And the thing for which it stands is a grim reality. Few of us escape the moments when life seems an almost intolerable burden, when we are oppressed with its mysteries, when it stales on us and becomes unspeakably flat and cheap, when the waves of depression roll in upon our souls and for the time being submerges us.

Can we do nothing then but allow ourselves meekly to be submerged and then wait, as Noah did, for the waters to abate? I do not think we are left in such a plight. We can certainly get the right point of view concerning them. And right here, if anywhere, is to be found a reason for calling these experiences the blues. As we need the blue of the sky to offset the gorgeous tints of sunrise and sunset so our human life cannot be one continuous series of high lights. There is a hymn one of whose verses begins:

I thank thee, Lord that all our joy
Is touched with pain;
That shawdows fall on darkest hours,
That thorns remain;
So that earth's bliss may be our guide
And not our chain.

The order of life seems to involve a certain measure of discipline, of reaction from exceptional happiness, of the temporary sway of moods in which we feel the weight and strain and unsatisfactoriness of existence.

Such moods are not peculiar to us, they are common to the race. The best men and women in all the centuries have been subject to them. "Think it not strange," writes the Apostle Peter, to a group of early Christians referring to fiery trials that were upon them. This is the philosophical side of the blues and if we ever need a philosophy of life we need it when the skies are leaden above us.

But there is a practical side that deals with the kind of an active fight we ought to put up against these invaders of our peace and happiness. For blues are to be fought with all the infantry, artillery, and cavalry we can muster. Here are three suggestions for the warfare.

First get out into the open. Emerson used to send his children out for a walk when they became unbearably cross in the house. And a dose of sunshine and fresh air helps mightily when we are in the grip of the blues. And stay in the open long enough to let the hills and the valleys, the stars and the stones, the birds and the flowers, whisper to you their message of hope.

Get to work. Buckle down all the harder to the routine duty. Jump into the big task. Tackle the thing that looks hard and insurmountable. Do something for somebody else. Why are missionaries seldom blue? Because they are in the thick of the contest and on the firing line.

In the third place. Consider every attack of the blues a call to a deeper life with God. The only sure cure lies in this direction. Under the domination of a great depression of spirits a man has a right to face his Maker and humbly yet pleadingly ask Him what it all means and how it can be remedied. Straight to the loving heart of Him who is "our help in ages past, our hope for years to come" should we carry the mood that weighs us down.

And if we do this, we shall find as we grow older, that the blues visit us less and less frequently.

Hinckley Herald: Editor of Herald—I am a day laborer 40 years old and have a wife and five children from 4 to 15 years of age. I work on the railroad and get $1.50 per day. When I pay my rent, fuel, light, meat and grocery bills, there is little left to buy decent clothing with.

We spend nothing for pleasure, never go to places of amusement, and in fact, could not if we wanted to.

My oldest child is at an age when he could be greatly benefited by remaining in school, yet I have to keep him working almost the year round to keep things going, there seems no other way. I have often wondered how the boy will look at life.

Now I am temperate and industrious, I have ordinary intelligence and practice economy in every way possible, ing for myself and family, which should be the privilege of any man. I do not mean a luxurious living, but just an ordinary, plain living.

I am forced to put my children to work as soon as the law will permit. What chance have they with those who are able to remain in school?

Now what encouragement under those conditions is there for the ordinary man? Do you think Roosevelt's doctrine of large families a good one under such industrial conditions? I suppose Taft's and Sherman's arguments on the tariff ought to encourage me, but they don't. I am not as bad off as lots of other men, but when I get to be 50 or 55 years old, a broken down man, I suppose the tariff or something else will see after me and not allow myself and family to be destitute. I do not wish to be a grumbler, but have often wondered if other men in the same condition ever thought about these things. There must be something wrong somewhere. I wonder what it can be? Do you think Roosevelt's idea of increasing the population is going to help it? I wonder what makes living cost so much? I wish some of the other fellows running for office to the legislature and congress would try to give an answer.

An Attractive Special Edition.

The Omaha Bee has just put forth a handsome special edition of forty-six pages, the greater part of which is devoted to an exhaustive treatment of the commerce and industry of Omaha, in which the striking situation, the fine achievements and the splendid prospects of that lively city are convincingly set forth. Compact, full of rosy statistics welded together with entertaining descriptions, it is the best kind of advertising Omaha could have. It is well written, admirably arranged and printed, and is illustrated by plenty of good pictures. Altogether it is a splendid tribute to Omaha and a great credit to the Bee and to Charles C. and Victor Rosewater, its publishers, worthy successors to the founder of that excellent newspaper.

THE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL

is not an experiment. Six years ago it opened its doors with a modest plea in behalf of its aims and its methods, and the records of the young men and women whom it has sent to college and to higher institutions of learning amply justify the claims it then made in its behalf, and its past successes will only stimulate its staff to higher efforts.

It admits boys and girls, and covers the field from the primary grades to college. Its teachers are specially trained for the work and, except in the primary grades, are men. Its course of study is broad and elastic, and besides the regular studies includes Manual Training, Experimental Science, Music and Drawing.

It has satisfied others; it will satisfy you.

•••The Duluth Hardware company, with a capital stock of $40,000, has been incorporated by Messrs. Hanchett, Sheldon and Stevens of the firm of Hanchett & Sheldon, W. B. Roberts and H. S. Eaton. The officers ade: H. S. Eaton,; W. B. Roberts, secretary; F. B. Stevens, treasurer.

•••Steps are being taken by a number of well-known Duluthians, many of whom are heavily interested in mining and railway enterprises, looking toward the establishment of another national bank in the city. The authorized capital will be paid in at the start. This will make four national banks in the city, as besides the First National and the Bank of Commerce, the Marine will be organized under national laws within a few weeks. It will increase the capital, including surplus, of Duluth banks to nearly $2,750,000.

•••The contract for the stone work for the superstructure of the Lyceum theater has been let to Quimby & Oureis of this city. The contract is for a total sum of $37,000. Besides this, the Duluth Brownstone company is furnishing about $10,000 worth of stone for the theater. The superstructure is to be entirely of red sandstone from the Portage quarries.

•••One of the largest pine land deals ever transacted in the Duluth district has just been closed. The lands are situated north of Duluth and contain about 100,000,000 feet of timber. Over $235,000 was paid for the property, Duluth parties being the purchasers. It is said that the transfer means the erection of another mill here.

•••It is said that the West Duluth Land company has practically settled with the Polygonalk Lathe Company of Cleveland for the establishment of a wood-working plant at West Duluth. The number of men employed in such a plant is small, but the product turned out is large.

JOHN G. CARLISLE

By SAVOYARD.

John G. Carlyle's career in the field of our national politics began March 4, 1887 and closed March 4, 1897—just one score years. No more amiable man ever appeared in public life—not suave, debonair, magnetic, but sedate, serene, placid. He spoke evil of no one, and yet upon few men of his generation have been visited more abuse, opprobrium and scurrility than upon him. Envy is a powerful passion and loves a shining mark, and who would escape it must be without merit and without success. If he could have borrowed some of the virile qualities of his great fellow Democrat, and sometime rival, Samuel J. Randall, especially his magnificent and dauntless capacity for hatred, John G. Carlisle would have become a more interesting figure, perhaps a more successful politician, and might have attained to the presidency itself. It might have been better for him had he been an egotist.

Mr. Carlisle was born in Kenton county, Ky., Sept. 5, 1835 and the year he was eligible under the state constitution, he was sent to the state legislature—1859. The issue in that body was secession, and Carlisle was a Union man. Though a very young man his clear intelligence perceived that secession would be followed by war, and that war would terminate in the victory of the stronger, a habit that war had acquired even before Alexander of Macedon. In 1861 Mr. Carlisle was elected to the state senate to supply a vacancy, and in 1871 he was elected lieutenant governor of Kentucky. That, too, was the year he was eligible under the state constitution, to the office. He made a canvass of the state and it was not until then that Kentuckians realized how superior and superb were the intellectual capacities of the man. In 1876 when 41 years of age, Mr. Carlisle was elected to the Forty-fifth congress.

The Democratic leaders of the house of representatives at that time were Randall, Mills, Tucker, Knott, Cox, Alexander H. Stephens, Clarkson N. Potter and Fernando Wood. The disputed presidential election had been decided in favor of the Republicans, and the Democratic party had appealed the case to the bar of public opinion. It was the congress that saw the last of the seceded states taken possession of by the white, when carpet-bagging and knavery loosend their clutches upon the conquered provinces of the South. It was in that congress that the silver question was exhaustively debated, and it was by this congress that the Bland-Allison coinage bill was enacted. The death of Speaker Kerr during the life of the Forty-fourth congress sent the tariff question to the rear, and it was kept in the rear by Mr. Speaker Randall, who appointed a committee on ways and means hostile to that idea, William McKinly and Thomas B. Reed entered congress simultaneously with Mr. Carlisle and at a time when Mills, Culberson, Blackburn, Knott and Cannon were already conspicuous. Garfield was the Republican leader, and Fernando Wood the titular Democratic leader, though Randall was the real leader of the majority. Blaine, Ben Hill and Lamar had just been transferred to the senate.

It was the epoch of the "Bloody Shirt," and the grand old garment was the emblem of the "grand old party." The Southern outrage mill ground its grist of party passion and sectional hate on the eve of every election, to the end that the Northern heart might again be fired and treason again be made odious. "Vote as you shoot!" was the admonition from stump, from sanctum, from the altar of God, even, and was suposed to be the prompting of the most immaculate, as it certainly had been of the most lucrative, patriotism. One of the issues in congress had been created by "riders" on annual appropriation bills forbidding the employment of soldiers of the regular army to do police duty at the polls. The Democrats invoked John Hampden and announced the doctrine of the "long parliament" that supplies would be withheld until grievances were redressed. The Republicans answered, "Having failed to shoot the government to death, you would now starve it to death."

It was on this issue that John G. Carlisle made his debut in the American congress, and never in the history of that body was there before, or has there been since, a more triumphant maiden argument. It attracted universal attention and drew the fire of every prominent Republican statesman, editor and lawyer, in congress and out of congress. It stated with inexorable logic the Democratic case, that liberty was inconsistent with force at the polls, and that no people was free whose elections must be kept free by military supervision. It was the cue to every other Democratic leader, and Ben Hill and Allen C. Thurman, in the senate, only echoed what John G. Carlisle said in the house of representatives. There was no bluster, no passion torn to tatters, no fervid declamation, no splitting of groundling ears. The speech was as simple as the English tongue could express it, as plain as the human understanding could conceive it, and the reason so clear that the dullest mind could follow it. There were no big words, no involved phrases, no recondite meanings. Admit the premises, and the conclusion was inevitable; it was statement, clear, lucid, unadorned, unadorned. Though a new member, his name unheralded; though his was a strange face, his an unaccustomed voice, John G. Carlisle from that day was the first lawyer and the first logician in congress, and it is due to say that Garfield's reply stamped that intellectual Titan one of the greatest debaters of our history.

Carlisle belonged to the Morrison wing of the party, and in subsequent congresses he was a leader of the tariff reformers, and doubtless he was the ablest man among them—first in a company of which Morrison, Mills, Hurd, Tucker, Turner, Knott, the Breckinridges, Cox, Cockran, Wilson and others were members, and these were men whose forensic talents would have lent luster to any senate that ever deliberated in either hemisphere. Carlisle's speeches differed from all the others. He was not so fierce a debater as Ben Hill, not so brilliant an orator as William L. Wilson. He did not employ the rapier of wit or the bludgeon of sarcasm with humor as did Proctor Knott, nor did he embellish them with classical allusion as does Bourke Cockran. Stately sentences he left to W. C. P. Breckinridge, and convincing statistics he left to James B. Beck. He was to congress what Marshall was to the bench, a sedate, a profound, a conscientious thinker. Who of our public men save the great chief justice alone ever found so little use for the flowers of fancy or the tropes of rhetoric as John G. Carlisle? He never used two sentences if he could express the idea in one; he never employed ten words if nine would suffice. No other of our public men ever had so little use for an adjective unless it was Marshall, and not even Marshall or Webster himself could state a proposition clearer.

Though master of several languages and a well-read man, familiar with the classics, no one would ever suspect it from his speeches. There is not a quotation from the ancients, not a classical allusion, not a poetic thought, not a flower of rhetoric not an epigram, not a metaphor in any of his productions, written or spoken. If Greece or Rome ever existed we do not know it from this man. If Shakespeare and Milton were poets, Carlisle does not appear to have discovered the fact. Compare his speeches with those of J. Proctor Knott, himself a lawyer of the very first rank, and there is all the difference there is between the tulip and the violet. Knott has an exuberant style, is brilliant in command of language, and felicitous in classic allusion. What a wealth of expression is his! How vast his reading, and under what admirable and instantaneous command is his acquired knowledge! But Knott and Carlisle are as different in expression as the poetry of Lord Byron is different from the prose of John Locke. Carlisle was made for the bar aand the bench. He has the finest mind for the separation of truth from error of any man of his generation. As Chief Justice of the United States his fame would rival Marshall's and he would do the work that it took both Marshall and Story to do.

The Forty-eighth congress was overwhelmingly Democratic in the house of representatives, and the tariff reform wing of the party demanded the election of Carlisle to the speakership, and after a sharp struggle he defeated Mr. Randall in the caucus. Col. Morrison was appointed chairman of the ways and means committee and brought in a tariff bill reforming the incongruities of the tariff and reducing the revenues to the actual necessities of the government; but Randall had following enough on the Democratic side to defeat the passage of the measure, and he was strong enough at Chicago to get the protection he demanded incorporated in the Democratic national platform of 1884. The Democrats triumphed at the succeeding election; Mr. Cleveland was inaugurated president of the United States, and the Forty-ninth congress was a Democratic. Carlisle was again chosen speaker. Morrison was again appointed to ways and means. He again brought in a tariff reform measure, and Randall was again strong enough to defeat it. And he did this despite the fact that Carlisle had greatly curtailed the power of Mr. Randall's great committee by providing for a partial distribution of the annual appropriation bills. Many radical tariff reformers insisted that Mr. Carlisle deprive Randall of his chairmanship and thus oust him of his place of vantage; but Carlisle's mind was eminently judicial. He weighed the matter accurately and concluded that it was bad policy. He remembered what damage had come to the Democratic party when Stephen A. Douglas was deposed from the chairmanship of the then paramount committee on territories, and he had not forgotten the schism in the Republican party due in great measure to the removal of Charles Sumner from the head of the foreign relations committee, and so Mr. Carallsie took about one-half of the general appropriation bills from Mr. Randall's jurisdiction, and while it did not prevent the defeat of the Morrison tariff bill of the Forty-ninth congress to pass the Mills bill. As a sample of practical politics Carlisle's treatment of Randall was one of the most remarkable in our history. He deprived Randall of much of his power without incurring the hostility of the man.

Mr. Carlisle must ever be regarded as one of the great speakers of the American congress, ranking with Macon, Clay, Stevenson, Withrop, Blaine, Randall and Reed. In one respect he was greater than any speaker before or after his occupancy of that chair. He had as great a knowledge of parliamentary law better than any one of them. When lieutenant governor of Kentucky, 1871-1875, he made a profound study of the system, and when he came to the speakership of the national congress he not only understood the rules; but he knew why they were the rules. In the chair he was the judge ever, the partisan never.

The United States senate at different epochs was presided over by Aaron Burr, John C. Calhoun and John C. Breckinridge. It was said of the first of these that, in the chair, he exhibited the impartiality of an angel and the rigor of the devil, and perhaps there never was a finer presiding officer, unless it was John C. Calhoun or Henry Clay. If our country has produced one man above all others entitled to the cognomen, "Noble Roman," that man was Calhoun. He looked the part and he acted it. Dignity was stamped on his brow, and Calhoun in the American senate constantly reminded one of Cato in the Roman senate. Breckinridge was the personification of manly beauty. The noblest gentleman and the veriest scamp, alike could see that he was a high-minded man, and as a presiding officer, he was simply superb. Clay and Blaine were splendid in the chair, suave, urbane, magnetic. Randall and Reed were men of force, domineering, inscrutable. Mason was much of the Roman. Stevenson knew the rules thoroughly, and Winthrop was at once graceful and dignified.

Carlisle was great in all respects—he was dignified, judicial, correct, patient, a great presiding officer and a great speaker.

When Mr. Beck died, Mr. Carlisle was chosen his successor in the senate, and there he ranked with the foremost members of that body. His speech against the McKinley tariff was never surpassed in either house of congress and his debate with Aldrich on the wool schedule was remarkable, in that it showed that he was as well acquainted with the practical workings of the subject as he was with the Constitutional and economic principles involved.

But a new question became paramount. It rent the Democratic party in twain and shook the Republican party to foundation stone—the coinage question. Traditionally the Democratic party was the sound money party. It was so in Jackson' and Benton's day and in 1853, Democratic legislation put the country on a gold basis. When the first greenback was created not a single Democrat voted for it in the house of representatives, and the part was nearly unanimously against it in the senate; but now the two parties had swapped sides—the Democrats were for diluted money and the Republicans pretended to be for sound money. But it is a fact that the only real sound money ticket before the people when the test came was composed of Palmer of Illinois and Buckner of Kentucky. They had to dragoon the G. O. P. into it and, fourteen years later, there is the enormous amount of over $500,000,000 full legal tender, "basic" money in the country that is 50 per cent fiat, and will bring all the trouble the treasury can stand when it plays the part of "endless chain" in the next panic.

Mr. Carlisle was appointed secretary of the treasury in 1893. The Sherman silver law had already played havoc with the "free" gold in the Treasury and it was manifest that the country would go to the silver basis unless gold was secured. No gold came in from taxes, or very little, though prior to the enactment of the Sherman Silver law, over 90 per cent of the tariff taxes was paid in gold. There was no way to get it but to buy notwithstanding the public discontent, public slanders, public scurrilities. The public credit was preserved, however, and it was the greatest example of financial statesmanship in our history.

For four years Carlisle administered his great trust with consummate ability. His task was to preserve gold payments and this he did despite the commercial panic and despite the cowardice of both parties in congress.

In 1897 he retired to private life a poor man. He was the equal of any lawyer in the whole country, and he returned to the practice of his profession in which he has been very successful. The profession is more congenial to his temperament than is politics, and doubtless the last years of his life have brought him more satisfaction than he got out of the whole twenty years of political life from his entry into congress to his retirement from the treasury.

A few weeks after his retirement he went to Kentucky and delivered a political speech that was his farewell to politics. He closed with these pregnant sentences:

"Gentelmen, I shall forbear to say anything on this occasion concerning the recent Democratic administration of national affairs, except to assure its friends and its enemies alike that, from the president down to the humblest who co-operated with him in the exercise of executive authority, every member of that administration is content to submit all its acts to the severest scrutiny and wait patiently the verdict of impartial history. When the passion and prejudice, the personal animosities, and the personal grievances of these disordered times have passed away, and the public mind is prepared to consider administrative measures and domestic and foreign policies on their real merits, the last administration of Grover Cleveland will need no champion to vindicate its wisdom and patriotism before a just and generous people."

I do not believe anything more dignified ever came from the lips of an American public man, and I am sure no Howard, or Seymour, of the English nobility, ever uttered a finer sentiment, or entertained a loftier thought.

THE POWER AND THE GLORY. By Grace MacGowan Cooke, author of "Mistress Joy," etc. New York: Doubleday, Page & Co. $1.20 net.

Here is a charming story of Johnnie Consadine, daughter of "the borrowing Passmores," child of the wild, free Southern mountains where poverty and shiftlessness cast their spell; a beautiful flower struggling up from the ash heap. The tale of her aspirations, beginning with Julia Session's bodice, or one like it, and ending with a wider life and fuller, is told with tender faithfulness to life. Going from her mountain home to the mill town, where the cotton mills squeeze the vitality and hope and color and beauty out of youth to make dividends, turning it into drab and hopeless humanity, she invented an improvement in the mill machinery which was stolen by Shade Buckheath and "Pap" Himes. Her uncle Pros, too, found a rich nickel mine and forgot it in his senile childishness. Meanwhile, Gray Stoddard, a rich millowner and theoretical Socialist, became interested in her and helped her in her struggle upward, with a result, easily to be imagined, that is complicated by misunderstandings. How Johnnie's character was formed in these environments, and how her fortunes shaped themselves, make an unusually pleasant story, even against the infamously black background of the mill town where greed for profits grinds the youth and hope of the many into luxuries for the few.

THE WINDOW AT THE WHITE CAT. By Mary Roberts Rinehart, author of "When a Man Marries," "The Circular Staircase," "The Man in Lower Ten," etc. Indianapolis: The Bobbs-Merrill company. $1.50.

The author of "When a Man Marries," "The Man in Lower Ten" and "The Circular Staircase" has steadily grown in public favor until she is now about the most popular writer of mystery stories in America. The announcement of a new book from her pen is, therefore, one of extraordinary interest. "The Window at the White Cat" does not disappoint.

From the outset the reader is put into exactly the right relation with the author, characters and story. There is a sharp, brisk start, a robust, impenetrable plot, and there are people that must be either liked or disliked, for they can not be escaped. Fortunately, most of them, including charming Margery Fleming; Knox, the young attorney; Miss Letita Maitland, deaf, peremptory and interested in colored orphans; Miss Jane, timid and mousy and used, at the age of 70, to being sent from the room; Margaret, Knox's home-keeping sister-in-law; Burton, the gay and genial reporter, are extremely likable and the best of company. The story is compounded after a recipe that Mrs. Rinehart has already made famous; take one absorbing mystery, add an equal quantity of humor to lighten, sweeten to taste with love; stir the whole briskly until it is well mixed and puffy-light. In this case she has been especially generous and has provided two full-sized mysteries—for the disappearance of Miss Jane is just as baffling as that of the state treasurer—but as humor has also been provided in double measure, and the ingredient of romance is not scanted, the result is still happily proportionate.

Spontaneous, irresistible humor is Mrs. Rinehart's distinctive contribution to the mystery story. Hitherto it has been supposed that the tale of mystery must be deadly serious, that in order to grip it must also be grim, but Mrs. Rinehart has conclusively proved, to the enjoyment of many thousand of readers, that fun and thrills may be combined in the most successful and charming fashion. The result is new, "different," piquant. A remarkably original feature of the plot is the use of the scientific word test to determine whether or not one of the characters has committed murder. The solution of both mysteries is satisfactory. The mystery of the plot grips the reader's interest, its humor amuses and its romance charms. The new story is designed for the gayety of the nation, excellently framed to take the mind off the weather, dyspepsia and duns. Every reader becomes a detective on his own hook, sure that he has the one correct solution of the double-barreled mystery. Mrs. Rinehart, sitting back with her quiet, subtle smile, lets him think so. Her fun comes in when he sits up with a jerk of surprise as she discloses her double-decker secret in the last astonishment chapter. "The Window at the White Cat" charms, cheers and absorbs.

NOTABLE MEN OF CHICAGO AND THEIR CITY. Chicago: The Chicago Daily Journal.

The Chicago Daily Journal has achieved a unique and interesting feat. It has put its "morgue" into a book. The newspaper "morgue," you know, is its collection of pictures and biographical sketches upon which it draws when folks die or elope or jump off a bridge or do some other interesting thing that gets them into the news. The Journal had so many out-of-town requests for such material that it got out this book, and sends it to its newspaper friends with full permission to use its contents freely. And to be sure it is appreciated. A great amount of thought, time and labor has gone to its preparation, and it is not only a mighty valuable present for any newspaper, but it is a very interesting exhibit of the men who make Chicago, as well as of some of their work. There are a great many pictures of Chicago business and professional men, each accompanied by a succinct, but full biographical sketch, and many pictures of Chicago buildings and streets.

Of Books and Writers.

As a fitting tribute to Ellis Parker Butler's services to his publishers, Doubleday, Page & Co., the latter sent him, or tried to send him, last Christmas a specially bound vellum edition of his well-known humorous story, "The Thin Santa Claus." Through some inexplicable delay the same has just reached Mr. Butler, who makes the following characteristic reply:

"Coming at this time, when my thoughts are naturally on Christmas subjects (for publication in the December magazines sometime in early November), the Christmas remembrance is most timely. It arouses those pleasant Yuletide emotions so necessary for the the author to feel in midsummer."

One of the important autumn novels will be "Flamsted Quarries" by Mary E. Waller, best known as the author of "The Wood-Carver of Lympus," now in its twenty-fifth edition. "Flamsted Quarries" is said to be a powerful exposition, through characterization of present-day conditions of American life—social and industrial. The heroine is the child of Irish immigrants; the scenes of the book are laid in New York and the granite quarries of Maine. "Flamsted Quarries" will be published by Little, Brown & Co., Boston, early in September.

Another Sherlock Holmes is about to make his appearance in contemporary fiction. His name is Paul Beck and his adventures are said to be for the most part so strikingly original that they make fascinating reading. Whether he is extracting a confession from the guilty secretary of a murdered millionaire, unmasking a French count who was the smartest diamond thief in the world, or befriending a beautiful Spanish prisoner, the invincible Paul Beck is always equal to the occasion. The American rights for Paul Beck's exploits have been secured by Little, Brown & Co. of Boston, who will publish "The Quests of Paul Beck" early in September.

"While 'The Power and the Glory' was running serially," says Grace MacGowan Cooke, the author of this powerful and virile story, published by Doubleday, Page & Co., "I took a small railway journey in a middle western state. The train-boy had chewing-gum, peanuts, tough popcorn, and dejected fruit—but no reading matter except local papers for which I did not care, and I had failed to provide myself with a book. In front of me sat a wholesome, motherly-looking woman and a girl who appeared to be of the high-school age. They listened to my repeated demands on the train-boy for reading matter; they consulted in whispers and finally turned to me with a magazine.

"'There's an awfully good story in there—but it's continued,' the girl said, opening the pages at 'The Power and the Glory.' 'Mother and I have been just wild about it. We wrote to the editor to know how it's going to come out—at least I did, Mother wanted us to ask for advance sheets or something, because we are going to Bermuda and I am afraid we'll miss it or get it so late.'

"I tried not to look guilty. 'Thank you,' I said earnestly. 'I never read continued stories—but no doubt there is something else in the magazine that would suit me.'

"'Oh,' replied the girl, 'I was in hopes you'd read it and tell me how you thought it was going to end.'"

Justus Miles Forman in his new novel, "Bianca's Daughter" (Harper), has furnished the English critics with a dog-days' controversy. In "Bianca's Daughter" two men are devoted to a girl of 20. One of them is her own age and the other a man of 40, or old enough to be the girl's father. His interest in her, however, is not fatherly. Clement K. Shorter uses Mr. Forman's novel as a text for asserting that in England the age for marriage among men has incresed lately and goes on to quote Locker Lampson: "A wife should be half the age of her husband, with seven years added. Thus, if the gentleman be 20, his wife should be 17. If he be 36, she should be 25; and so on. No lady of the ripe age of 57 has a right to indulge in the luxury of a spouse who is less than a century."

THE PLANNING OF UNDEVELOPED CITY AREAS

Extension of a City's Plan to Annexed Territories—Utilization of Existing Roads—Provision to Be Made for Parks and Sites for Municipal Buildings.

Nelson P. Lewis, Chief Engineer, Board of Estimate and Apportionment, New York City.

(Exclusive Service The Survey Press Bureau.)

In all cities the older portions have grown from small beginnings, and the street plan has been the result of chance. Occasionally a city is created upon a site deliberately chosen, as for instance Washington. In such cases an opportunity is offered to create a plan peculiarly adapted to the special development in mind. There are a few other instances in this country where the future possibilities appear to have been realized. Indianapolis and Detroit might be mentioned. In New York City, the commission created in 1807 to prepare a street plan failed entirely to anticipate the future growth. This commission appeared to believe that the chief traffic would be across the island from the North river to the East river, and therefore, east and west streets were laid out with only 200 feet intervening, while the north and south avenues were placed from 700 to 900 feet apart. The values of real estate having become enormous, it is now impracticable to correct mistakes in this original plan within reasonable limits of expenditure.

A characteristic feature of most American cities is the lack of important diagonal streets leading to some definite point of interest. These diagonals need not be long, or straight for their entire distance, but different sections of them should be free from deflections. This is the charm of Washington and of Paris. One may follow the numerous diagonal streets in either of these capitals and be quite sure of reaching some point of interest. While it is often impossible to correct mistakes of planning within practicable limits of expense, there are few cities where conditions cannot be improved.

In many American cities additions have been made by extension of the city limits or by consolidation with other cities. Frequently these additions have been exploited by the suburban developer. They are often so limited in area that it is difficult to do anything but extend the city plan over them. It occasionally happens that an extension of the city limits will include a number of centers of population, and that these are disconnected and could be absorbed in a larger city plan without serious detriment. Areas of this kind are almost invariably traversed by highways which follow natural lines of traffic. They should be made the controlling features of the city plan. They are generally of the ordinary country road width. This will be totally inadequate but they are usually allowed to remain until they have been so built up as to make a widening expensive.

What then, is the logical method of procedure? The first thing is to determine the relative position of the different parts of the new territory. It will then be possible to proceed with mapping in widely separated sections with a positive knowledge of the relation of the street lines in one section to those in another. The next thing which will demand attention is the system of existing roads. There was, and is, a good reason for these. These roads should form the skeleton of our future street system. Often it will be necessary to straighten them, and in all cases to widen them. In the writer's judgment they should not be less than 100 feet in width and in some instances even wider. In the case of these latter if the old road had good shade trees the original highway can probably be reserved for railroad tracks and, perhaps, still another for automobiles.

These old roads may have been nearly paralleled or approximately radial, while the cross connections may have been infrequent or unimproved. They must, therefore, be carefully considered. They should be straight between the parallel or radial highways wherever possible.

When these controlling streets have been definitely determined we need not worry about filling in the spaces between. Whether it would be advantageous to have the intervening spaces treated in a uniform manner is questionable. Here, where the topography suggests it, a serpentine system of streets may be laid out; there, a generous depth of lots, with space for gardens may be provided; here, again, we may find a group of narrower streets compactly built up with secluded courts and small houses fronting upon a little plot of grass.

No reference has yet been made to a system of parks and playgrounds. The policy of most of our cties has been to defer the selection of park sites until the necessity for parks has become apparent. Meanwhile, the adoption of a street plan has converted acreage property into city lots with a great increase in value. If there is a particular bit of woodland, an elevation with a commanding outlook, or even a piece of low-lying land traversed by a stream, which has not yet been cut up into building lots, they can be most advantageously set aside as future parks. These reservations should be scattered so that there will be some open space within walking distance of every resident. These parks should be connected by adequate roadways, not necessarily straight or even of uniform width, but contracted where the topography would involve expensive construction and again expanded. In a territory such as we have been considering it may be useless to speak of the grouping of public buildings, for the important municipal centers have already been established. There are, however, minor public buildings, such as schools, libraries, public baths and comfort stations, police stations and fire houses, and it would be most desirable to set aside here and there what might be termed "municipal blocks," upon these buildings could be grouped in a very effective manner. The writer knows of no instance of the formulation and execution of a policy such as has been outlined, but it appears to be so reasonable and logical that it is a matter of surprise that the problem of making a city plan has never been undertaken in this summer.

SOCIETY

The event of the coming week promises to be the wonderland which the King's Daughters have been busy erecting on the Barnes property at Hunter's Park and next Tuesday all of the citizens who can conveniently leave their homes will be at the circus grounds ready to be entertained, amused and enlightened. A special matinee for children will be held in the evening.

A very particular feature will be the slippery slide. This contrivance is being built at a cost of $30 and is guaranteed to hold the fattest of the patrons. Small bits of carpet will be rented extra to make a sliding surface for the patrons of the slippery slide. A raffle will be held after the evening's entertainment to dispose of the slide and during the entire evening tickets for the raffle will be available.

That is to be another feature of Wonderland. Everything is going to be made as available as possible. Patrons will be waited upon expeditiously and gladly. There won't be any coaxing to get the attendants to take your money. "Pleased patrons" is the motto of the firm presenting the great spectacle, so says the management.

Another head-line attraction will be the great revival with an all-star and original cast of the tragic grand opera, "Julius Caesar," which was first given last winter at the Spalding by members of the King's Daughters. Other features will be pony rides and a red-hot wagon, picture postals, peanut venders, barkers and policemen, a shooting gallery, fortune telling and other features too numerous to mention.

AUGUST WEDDINGS

The following social item from the Minneapolis Journal will prove of much interest to many Duluthians, as Miss McCabe is the sister of Mrs. O. W. Rowe of this city, and niece of W. J. McCabe, M. M. McCabe and Dr. W. S. McCabe of Hunter's Park:

"At her old childhood home in Glasston, N. D., Miss Lou McCabe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McCabe of 3205 Second avenue south, became the bride of Arthur Edward Larkin of Merriam Park. The ceremony was performed yesterday afternoon in the little Methodist church at Glasston. The bridegroom had taken the flyer to Noyes, on the Canadian border, on Sunday morning, and was met there by Mr. McCabe and the bride in their machine and was taken across country about seventy-five miles to the town.

"Rev. C. H. Brown of Bathgate read the service. The church, with its capacity for 200, was filled. Golden rod banked the aisles. Garden flowers and wild flowers and foliage were everywhere. Before the service Miss Alice Armstrong of Glasston sang. Miss Edith Halcrow of Bosemont, N. D., presided at the organ.

"The bride was given away by her father. Her gown was of white satin with trimmings of rose point lace, made along semi-princess lines. Her shower bouquet was of white roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Jessie McCabe, who was gowned in a white lace princess. Her flowers were pink roses. Little Dorothy Rowe, a niece of the bride, of Duluth, was the ring bearer. She wore a fluffy white frock and carried the ring in a basket of roses. The other attendants were Charles Batson, who acted as best man, and the ushers were C. T. Welch, Roscoe McCabe and Stanley Armstrong of Glasston.

"The ceremony, which took place at 3 p. m., was preceded by the bridal dinner at noon. Covers were laid for fifteen at the country home of the bride's parents, which was bright with garden flowers, sweet peas predominating. Roses and lilies of the valley were also used in the decorations. The guests at dinner included Miss McCabe, Mr. Larkin, Mr. and Mrs. John McCabe of Duluth, Mr. and Mrs. George McCabe of Grafton, N. D.; Mrs. H. G. Irvine of Minneapolis, a sister of the bride; Miss Katherine McClellan and Miss Lillian Simpson of Minneapolis, and four of the attendants.

"A reception at the home of the bride was held after the ceremony until 5 o'clock. About 100 guests called. Assisting through the rooms were Mesdames John McCabe, George McCabe ant H. G. Irvine, and the Misses McClellan, Simpson and Ethel Halcrow of Bosemont, N. D.

Mr. and Mrs. Larkin came immediately to Minneapolis to their pretty new bungalow in Prospect Park, at 59 Williams avenue southeast. They expect to take a trip South in October.

"Mr. Larkin graduated a few years ago at the university, where he was a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. Miss McCabe belonged to Theta Delta Zeta, a former high school fraternity."

The wedding at Minneapolis Tuesday of Miss Alice Stratton and William Wayne Burris was of much interest to many Duluth people, as the bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Burris of this city and Miss Stratton was a guest here last week at the wedding of Miss Kathryn Burris and Edward Bradley.

The wedding of Miss Stratton and Mr. Burris took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stratton of 1004 Mount Curve avenue. Fifty guests were present for the ceremony and reception which followed. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ethel Stratton. She wore a gown of white messaline satin with pearl trimmings. Her veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white rosebuds and sweet peas. The groomsman was Samuel Hoyt.

At the reception which followed, Mr. and Mrs. Burris of this city received with Mr. and Mrs. Stratton and Mr. Burris and his bride. Miss Frances Burris of this city was also a guest at the wedding.

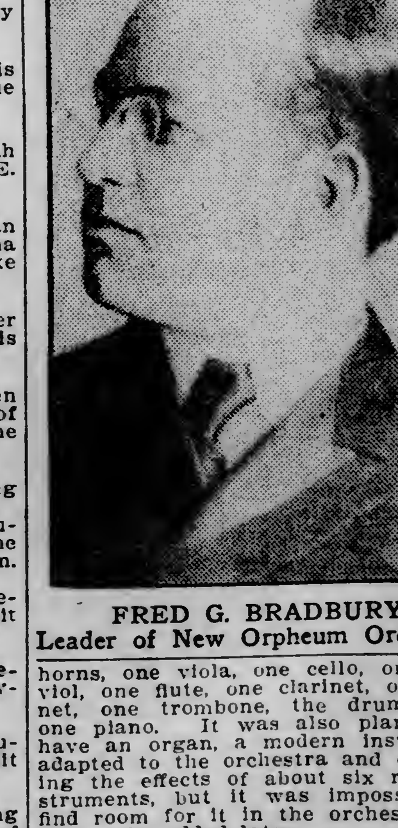
CLUBS AND MUSICAL

One of the most attractive features of the new Orpheum theater promises to be the orchestra, which will be under the leadership of Fred G. Bradbury.

Mr. Bradbury is well known in Duluth musical circles, having made this city his home for years, and his ability is recognized by everyone in his profession. The new orchestra will have fourteen pieces, an exceptionally large number for a theater orchestra. There will be three violins, two French horns, one viola, one cello, one bass viol, one flute, one clarinet, one cornet, one trombone, the drums, and one piano. It was also planned to have an organ, a modern instrument adapted to the orchestra and combining the effects of about six reed instruments, but it was impossible to find room for it in the orchestra pit. It may be added later.



FRED G. BRADBURY,
Leader of New Orpheum Orchestra.

Mr. Bradbury has announced that he will play no ragtime in the overtures, but will endeavor to keep them up to a high standard, musically.

HOW PERRY SCOTT HAPPENED TO BECOME VICTORIOUS.

BY WILLIAM WALLACE, JR.

THE boys of Dashville had become quite expert at flying kites. Indeed, kite-flying had become the fad with them and baseball and other athletic sports were sidetracked, so to speak, whenever the wind blew stiffly across the prairies. Dashville was situated on a high tableland and afforded the younger masculine citizens great opportunity for their kite-flying.

Perry Scott was one of the most enthusiastic kite-flyers of the town, and much of his spare time was spent in building large and pretty kites. His sister Myrtle often lent a hand at this work, and Perry frequently boasted that his sister could make as good a kite as he could.

Late in the summer, and when kite-flying was at its zenith, the boys decided to have a "kite-flying contest," a sort of tournament, as Perry Scott expressed it. The boy who flew his kite the highest and farthest was to receive a reward in the shape of a silver badge, made expressly for the occasion and paid for from the funds of the Boys' Kite Club.

A week before the grand affair was to take place each boy kite-flyer was as busy as he could be making a new kite for the occasion. Pins, bits of carefully whittled stick, colored paper, small pots or pans of flour paste, tacks, twine and many other materials used in kite-building were employed in the boys' workshops. The workshops were usually in old stables, woodsheds or big pack porches. And woe unto any member of a busy builder's family who happened to step upon any of the kite material or to misplace any of it in a thoughtless way. The kites under construction were as precious and valuable to the respective builders as is an airship to its proud inventor.

Perry worked early and late on his great kite, which was to be a masterpiece of its kind. And Myrtle helped him all that she could. She made nice smooth paste, supplied pins and tacks in plenty, also provided yards and yards and yards of good, strong, heavy twine. In fact, the twine had to be of the very best, and where it was knotted together the work had to be done very neatly. This part of the work was intrusted to Myrtle.

But much of the time, when Perry was the very busiest and needed Myrtle the most, the young lady was not to be found. And after calling to her repeatedly she would suddenly appear on the porch, where Perry had his workshop and in the most innocent way ask: "Do you want me, brother?"

Then Perry would explain that he needed her assistance in pasting two sheets of paper together very nicely. In a jiffy Myrtle would have the seam done as neatly as one could wish for, and then, while Perry was finishing some other bit of careful work, she would disappear as suddenly as she had appeared.

"I wonder what Sis is doing these days?" Perry asked of himself. "She will be here, helping me for half an hour, and then, when my back is turned, away she slips as silent as a mouse. I'll bet she's up to something that is being kept a secret from me."

Three days before the time set for the Kite Contest Perry had his new kite completed. And it was very pretty, too, with its long, brilliant tail of tinted paper. It was as long as Perry's body.

The boys entering the contest had agreed not to see one another's kites till they appeared on the contest field, which was on a broad, level space half a mile from town.

But they knew the importance of trying their kites before the final day, so each agreed on an hour on the field when the others were to remain away. Five o'clock in the evening fell to Perry, and with his huge kite, carefully carried over his head so as not to injure it in anyway, he and Myrtle went to try it on each evening of the three days that intervened between the completion of the kite and the day of the public flying.

Perry and Myrtle were much gratified to see the new kite soaring the sky, and both declared, "She's a success, for she goes like a bird."

At last the great day of the tournament arrived. The hour for the contest was placed at 3 in the afternoon, for at that time the wind was usually pretty good. To the satisfaction of all there was a stiff wind, and each contestant thanked his lucky stars for it. The boys came to the field, each bearing his kite with great care. Many of the parents were there, glad to encourage the boys in their kite-flying sport. And each boy's "best girl" was present to hurrah for her especial favorite, her "Knight of the Kite." Three of the smiling fathers were chosen to act as judges in the contest, and they took their stand on the highest spot of the broad field where no tree or shrub or ravine interfered with the boys' running.

When the boys had been called to place, each contestant prepared his kite for the signal, "Fly!" which was to be given by one of the judges. But just as the word was to be called, a spark from a cigar—held in the mouth of an onlooker—was wafted by the wind to the kite-line and ignited the paper of Perry's fine kite so suddenly that no one had time to know what was in progress till a flame licked up the kite, Perry and the other boys standing, open-mouthed, watching the ruin. Then, his face full of disappointment, Perry stepped from the line, saying, "I'll have to drop out of the contest, boys."

Of course, the gentleman whose cigar had been responsible for the accident, came forward and made many apologies, and expressed his deep sorrow that he had been so careless as to carry a lighted cigar on the field, and offered to make any amends he might for the loss of the kite. But Perry smiled as best he could, replying: "Of course, accidents will happen to one person as well as another. You did not think about the danger carried in your lighted cigar any more than did we. It's an accident, pure and simple."

While this conversation was going on, Myrtle, who was seated in a covered buggy beside her mother, sprang to the ground and busied herself at the back of the buggy-box. And as the boys were gathering round Perry, expressing their sympathy for him, and the gentleman whose cigar had wrought such mischief was trying to persuade Perry to "let him make the loss of the kite good," the little sister dragged from under cover in the rear of the buggy-box a great kite, an exact replica of the kite Perry had lost just a minute before.

Carrying the kite in her arms, Myrtle went up to her brother and said: "Here, Perry, this is as good as the one you lost. I made it myself, using yours as a model. That was why I stayed in my room so much these past few days. I feared something might happen to yours during practice or even after reaching the field. So, here is one to replace the burnt kite." A hearty cheer went up from the crowd as soon as they fully understood where the kite came from and who made it. And Perry, too full for words, took the kite and stepped into line. And then the signal was given, and away ran the boys, their respective kites soaring like so many gay-colored birds in air.

And when the contest was over it was Perry Scott who carried off the prize, and with tears of joy in his eyes he turned to Myrtle, saying:

"In reality, Sis, you are the prize-winner. I owe my success to your thoughtfulness and skill. You are a brick, Sis."

And every boy in the crowd cried out from his heart: "Sure, she is a brick and the dandiest girl in town. Hurrah for Myrtle Scott! She's all right!"

And Myrtle, blushing a pretty red, jumped into the buggy beside her smiling mother and whispered: "It embarrasses me, mamma, to be made a heroine of. Drive home as fast as you can."

And, amidst cheers, the buggy whirled away, and Myrtle shared the honors of the day with Perry, the winner of the prize.

"Here, Perry, this is as good as the one you lost."

Laughing Jimmy.

THE gayest chap in all the town,
So all folks say, is Jimmy Brown.
His face is smiling every day;

And I have heard his mother say
That even in his sleep he'll smile,
For he is happy all the while.

At baseball if he cannot bat,
Why, do you think that even that
Can make him scowl or darkly frown?
Well, no, indeed, not Jimmy Brown!
He says that laughter keeps him strong—
Makes him feel splendid all day long.

He says that tears and frowns make woe
To torture people here below;
So, smiling, goes he on his way,
Be he at work or at his play.
The sunniest chap in all the town,
Good-natured, laughing Jimmy Brown!

Selfish Sally Repents.

BY HELENA DAVIS.

SALLY was very, very happy, and danced about the yard. Her papa had just hung a swing for her from one of the long projecting limbs of a great tree. And in it he had placed a most comfy board seat, so adjusted that it would not fall out when you slipped out of the swing. You know most of the little board seats in swings are held in place by notches in the ends of the board; but this seat in Sally's swing was fastened securely so that it was always in place. Papa had really made a very fine swing for Sally, and now Sally was rejoicing over it.

"Come, get in, daughter," said papa. And he lifted Sally into the seat of the swing and gave her a push on her back. Away up and up and up went Sally—oh, so high! And away down and down and down came Sally every time she went up. And it was the greatest sport one can imagine.

"Now, daughter," said papa, "you may run and ask the Purvis children to come and see your new swing. I am sure that Johnny and May and Baby Nell will enjoy it as much as you do."

Sally was more happy than ever when papa suggested the Purvis children coming to play with her. She and Johnny and May and Baby Nell had such good times together—except when one of them got into a "pet" and acted naughty. Then a little brawl usually ensued, but never lasted long, for the children liked playing together too much to let misunderstandings stay between them. And Sally had no brothers or sisters and depended on the Purvis children for company.

So away went Sally, running to the home of the Purvises. And over the fence she called to Johnny, who was playing horse in the yard. A long broom handle was his steed, and a very fractious fellow he was, for Johnny had some difficulty in stopping him when Sally called out, "Oh, Johnny, you an' May an' Baby Nell mus' come to my house right away. I've got a new swing. Oh, it's lovely! It goes away up into the big tree."

After Johnny got his steed stopped he replied: "All right, Sally, I'll get May and Babe and come right over. They'll come afoot and I'll ride Buffalo Bill. He's fractious today; stood too long in the stable and needs exercise."

"Yes, he's about to throw you," declared Sally, for Buffalo Bill had begun to prance and plunge again with his rider and seemed on the point of throwing him over his head. But Johnny drew hard on the reins and Buffalo Bill was obliged to respond to the master's hand. Then Johnny went in quest of his sisters, who were having a tea party on the back porch. A great company (half a dozen dolls, old Tabby Cat and Fido) were assembled. But on hearing of Sally's new swing they very unceremoniously jumped from the table, said not a word in excuse and ran off toward their neighbor's house. Sally was in the swing when the Purvis children came into the yard, and she showed them how very, very high she could go into the tree.

Then May asked to swing. Sally got out of the swing very reluctantly and allowed May to take the seat. But scarcely had May gone a dozen times back and forth when Sally caught hold of the swing and stopped her. "Your time's up," she announced. May got out and gave way for someone else, but Sally did not offer the swing to Baby Nell or Johnny. Instead she climbed into it again and swung and swung to her heart's content.

After a few minutes Baby Nell asked to be allowed to swing, and Sally, who was selfish in her possession of the swing, shook her head. "Wait till you're invited to swing," she said, saucily. Then she kicked hard against the ground and went flying into the tree.

Johnny, May and Baby Nell held a whispered consultation. Then they turned and left the yard to Sally. For a while Sally enjoyed her swing alone; then she began to long for young company. "Why did those Purvis children go away?" she asked herself. "They couldn't expect to use the swing as much as she did, for it was her own property." Then, tiring of the swing, since no other children were there to see her enjoy it, Sally got out of it and went to the front gate and looked down the street toward the home of the Purvises. She could see Johnny riding Buffalo Bill about the yard and heard May and Baby Nell screaming with laughter over the horse's antics. All this merriment in the neighbor's yard made Sally very, very lonely, indeed, and how she wished the children would come back to her yard again or ask her to theirs.

After half an hour of loneliness, Sally decided to creep down to the Purvis' yard and ask Johnny and May and Baby Nell to come play with her. She sorely repented having treated them so badly, and if they would come again—why, she'd let them each swing as long or longer than she herself should swing.

And so she slipped to the gate leading into the Purvis' yard. Johnny happened to see her peeping through the palings and called out: "Come in, Sally."

"No, I want you and May and Baby Nell to come to my house—and swing all you want to," said Sally, in friendly tones. "I'm ashamed of myself—I was naughty a while ago. Will you come and swing?"

The three Purvis children held a whispered consultation and decided to accompany Sally home. "Of course, we didn't want to stand round and watch you do all the swinging," confessed Johnny. "We could have more fun at home than that. But if we can take turns swinging—why, we'll have lots of fun, and we'll all fare alike. See?"

"Yes, yes," cried Sally, who now understood how selfish she had been. "I want each of you to enjoy my swing. I'll let you swing more than I do, for you are company."

"Oh, no, that would not be fair," said May. "We'll all swing just the same. Let's count 100 for each. Shall we?"

And with a happy heart Sally cried: "Yes, that will be the right way. Let's all try to make each other have a good time. I am ashamed of having been so selfish—so very naughty."

Sally caught hold of the swing and stopped her.

When Reggie Danced and Paid the Fiddler.

BY MAUD WALKER.

IT was one of those calm, delightful days in August, such a day as children love. As Reggie stood looking out across the green carpeted lawn which surrounded his home an idea came to him. "I'll do it," he said to himself. Then he ran into the house and found his mother in her room reading. "Say, mamma, may I phone to Jack and Lily Rogers and Davey and Edith Brown to meet me down at the station and from there go to the woods? It is glorious in the woods today. And the leaves will be turning a bit, I dare say, on account of the dry weather. We can gather some of the first tinted leaves."

Mrs. Ward put aside her book for the moment and replied to her son:

"Will you just go over to The Point, dear?"

"Yes, mamma, just to The Point. You know, there's lots of fine scenery between here and The Point. And the woods at the base of The Point are fine and full of wild grapes and flowers."

"Well, you may go if you promise to return before dinner time," consented Mrs. Ward. "But keep out of mischief, son," she admonished Reggie as he hurried from the room.

Reggie cried out: "Yes, mamma," and was down the stairs two steps at a time. Then he kept the telephone busy till he got Jack Rogers and Davey Brown on the wire. The boys assured Reggie that they and their sisters would be on hand at the little railroad station at the hour appointed by Reggie, and that all would come for a good time, rambling through the woods.

At 1 o'clock Reggie arrived at the railroad station and found his four young friends already there. Then they set out afoot toward The Point, a fine mountain of some pretense, whose sides were covered with fine old trees and thick underbrush.

On the way the children passed several farms, one of which attracted Reggie's eye, as it had a fine apple orchard. And some of the trees were hanging full of great red-cheeked fruit that made the mouth water to look at.

"Say, I'd like to sample one of those apples," said Reggie, speaking to Davey and Jack. The girls, Lily and Edith, were several rods in the rear and did not overhear Reggie's remarks.

"Better not try it," warned Davey.

"No, if you want an apple—well, we might stop at the house, which is just round that turn in the hedge, and offer to buy some," suggested Jack.

"They would taste better if we were to slip into the orchard and sneak 'em," said Reggie, grinning mischievously. "I've always heard that stolen fruit tastes better than any other."

"I suppose some old sinner is responsible for that saying," smiled Davey. "But I believe in honesty in every respect. If you want what another has, buy it—if it is for sale."

"Oh, what is one apple worth?" asked Reggie. "Bushels of them will rot on the ground within the next month. Just see how they hang from the trees—almost breaking from the limbs! It would help the trees to take some of the apples off. So, were I to take just one, it would do some small good to the other apples on the same limb."

"That isn't the point," insisted Davey. "The thing is the fruit doesn't belong to you, and if you take it without asking permission you commit a—ahem—a theft, even though a small one."

"Oh, how you do strain at an atom," laughed Reggie. But by this time they had gotten well past the orchard and were passing in front of the farmhouse. The old farmer and his wife were sitting on the front porch, and as the little ramblers went along the dusty road the couple bowed in friendly country style to them. After the boys—and presently the girls—had turned a corner which shut off the view of the old farmhouse Jack remarked to Reggie: "An honest old couple, and they would gladly have given us the freedom of the orchard had we asked it."

"Don't be so sure of that," replied Reggie. "Every one of these old codgers has his bulldog or his shotgun. They are as stingy with their apples as though they could use every one that grew in the orchard."

Edith and Lily were now walking with the boys, and on nearing this much of the conversation regarding the orchard asked for particulars. And when they were told that Reggie was very anxious to "sneak" an apple they both showed their disapproval. "Haven't you enough change in your pocket to buy what apples you want?" asked Lily, ironically.

"That would be nothing out of the ordinary," declared Reggie. "I want the excitement of 'sneaking' an apple. It must be great sport."

So the children rambled on, reaching The Point soon after passing the farm where the apple orchard had so attracted Reggie's eye. Then they gathered some leaves, already touched by autumn's tints in advance of time. They climbed half way up The Point, but Davey, looking at his watch, cried out that it was time for them to be starting home.

"Yes, we are to have company for dinner, and mamma warned me to be back in time to dress for dinner," said Reggie. "Uncle Tom arrives on the 5:30 train and stops over the week-end with us. I haven't seen Uncle Tom since I was nine years old. And now I'm 12."

"Oh, won't that be nice," said Edith, who loved company. "You ought to take great pains with your toilet, so as to please your uncle. Let's start home at once."

"Yes, it's nearly 4 o'clock," said Davey. "And it's an hour's walk to town. We'll have to get a move on us. Come, kids, let's go."

Then, talking and laughing merrily, the five little friends started toward the town where they had their respective homes.

When they reached the farm having the fine apple orchard Reggie again began expressing a desire to "sneak" an apple. And Jack, having caught sight of a bulldog roaming the yard back of the farmhouse, and not far from the orchard, thought it a very good plan to give Reggie a lesson. So he said: "If you are bent on stealing an apple, climb the fence and do it. And we'll be the farmer's witnesses—if he wants us—that you committed the theft. But—let me warn you—there's a dog in the grounds."

"I'll be too quick for any dog," said Reggie, till now a very fine, honest chap. But somehow temptation had whispered pretty loudly to him on this outing, and he had listened, much to the regret of his friends. "I'm going to jump over the fence and sneak an apple. I see the very one I want—that whopper hanging there on that drooping limb." And Reggie pointed out the especial red-cheeked fruit he desired.

Reggie climbed the high board fence.

"If you do, I'll tell you what I think of you, so I will," declared Lily, speaking with severe emphasis. "I like honorable boys."

"And so do I," added Edith. "And to 'sneak' an apple is just the same as stealing."

"Oh, that's all you girls know of such things," laughed Reggie. "You attach value to a mere apple—that will doubtless rot on the ground—unless I eat it." So saying he climbed over the high board fence and started to climb the tree. Hardly had he reached the limb on which the coveted apple grew when a low growl was heard behind him, and looking below Reggie was frightened to see a bulldog coming at full speed toward him. He had scarcely time to reach the ground and to rush for the fence when the dog arrived on the spot and had him by the leg. Lucidly for Reggie, the dog got hold of his trousers and missed the flesh, thus doing Reggie no physical harm. As he went over the fence all in a heap the dog was shaken from his hold and fell back into the grass of the orchard.

When Reggie fell headlong over the high fence his face struck a sharp-edged rock, which inflicted quite a cut across his chin and lip and the rough weeds and grass scratched his face and disfigured one of his eyes. And the leg of his trousers which the bulldog had sampled was in a deplorable condition, for a great piece was torn out and a long rent ran up the side.

As Reggie, bleeding and bruised and very much ashamed, arose from the ground, where he had fallen so disgracefully, he tried hard to smile, and shook himself together as best he could. His four companions offered him no assistance nor sympathy, and Davey, looking at his watch, said: "You'll hardly have time to have your wound dressed before your uncle arrives. And—you'll have to change your clothes, I fear."

"One apple costs a lot sometimes, doesn't it?" asked Edith, looking the disgust she felt for Reggie at the moment.

"Especially if the apple isn't reached."

Just at this moment a voice called out from the orchard: "Heigh-ho, little folks. Come have some apples. I'll keep the pap back. Fill your pockets." It was the good old farmer, who had just happened to come into the orchard and saw the group of children outside the fence.

"I'm going to fess up," declared Reggie bravely. And he did. And he did not spare himself when telling the good old farmer of how he had tried to "sneak" an apple. Then, turning to his friends, he said: "I hope you will forgive me, girls and boys. It was an ugly thing to do. I have had my dance, so to speak, and have paid the fiddler. It's a wonder the dog didn't get me good and plenty, too."

"And your uncle will see a pretty badly bruised up boy at the dinner table tonight," said Jack. "That's too bad."

"Serves me right," said Reggie. "And I'll tell him just how I got the bruises, too. But I'd better hurry home and have dear mamma dress this cut on my chin."

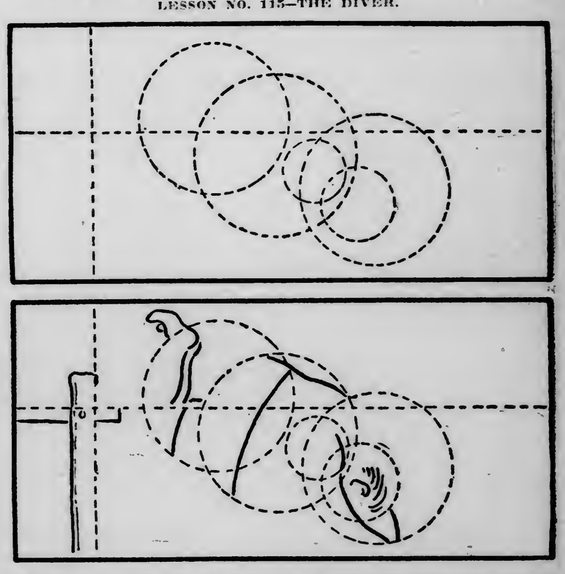
LESSON NO. 115—THE DIVER.



AT THE THEATRES

The dramatic season will be in full swing next week in New York, and in spite of the disastrous season last year, more than the usual number of new plays will be tried out.

The new offerings include everything from farce and musical comedy to problem play, and no one type of attraction seems to have the call. Some of the new productions which either have opened or will open in the near future, are as follows:

"Love Among the Lions"; "The Brass Bottle"; "Bobby Burnit"; John Drew in a farce called "Smith"; "The Country Boy"; the English comic opera, "Our Miss Gibbs"; "Madame Sherry" "Welcome to Our City"; "The Simple Life"; "The Echo," which is a musical piece starring Bessie McCoy; Robert Mantell in "Mr O'Flynn"; Robert Lorraine in "Man and Superman"; "The Balkan Princess," a London musical comedy; Harry Dixey in "The Naked Truth"; Arnold Daly in "The Kite"; Louis Mann in "The Dreamer"; Clara Lipman in "Marjory's Mother"; Thomas Wise in "An Old New Yorker"; Frank Worthing in "A Gentleman of Leisure"; Burr McIntosh in "In God's Country"; Miss Bessie Abbott in the opera "Ysobel"; a Zangwill play for Viola Allen; Margaret Anglin in "The Backslider"; Albert Chevalier in "The Caretaker"; Walker Whiteside in "The Melting Pot"; Chauncey Olcott in "Barry of Ballymore"; Maude Adams in "Chantecler"; Otis Skinner in "Sire"; "The Girl in the Taxi"; Blanche Walsh in "Barbareza"; "The Summer Widowers"; "Girlies"; Elliott in "A Dawn of Tomorrow"; William Hodge in "The Man From Home"; May Irwin in "Mrs. Jim"; Milton Lackaye in a new play; Mabel Hite in "A Certain Beauty"; H. B. Warner in that remarkable play, "Alias Jimmy Valentine."

The Duluth season opens today with the engagement of Mrs. Fiske in "Becky Sharpe" and "Pillars of Society." While the plays are widely different, they should both give Mrs. Fiske every opportunity to show her ability, of which there can be no question. "Pillars of Society" was the matinee attraction, and "Becky Sharpe" will be the evening bill.

Following Mrs. Fiske, the Forbes Stock company will give its closing performance tomorrow afternoon and night, and the Pierce Associate Players will open Monday for a run of two weeks, the first bill being "The Squaw man."

Mr. Forbes announced during the week that he would return next year, when it is likely that he will reap some of the benefits of the reputation he has established this summer for giving clean and meritorious performances of the best plays available for stock companies. The company did little better than break even on the summer, owing to the disastrous opening weeks.

Vaudeville promises to engross the attention of Duluthians next week. The opening of the new Orpheum theater Monday night promises to be a brilliant affair, and the entrance of the Orpheum circuit to Duluth will be watched with interest. The Bijou has prepared an exceptionally attractive bill for the week, also.

From the Grand Opera of Greece at the Bijou Next Week.

HARRISON GREY FISKE AS A STAGE REALIST.

The American stage is rapidly gaining a reputation abroad for a perfectly sane development in technical realism and stage direction, and one of the representatives of the new world and the new order of doing things, who is accomplishing the most along these lines, is Harrison Grey Fiske, under whose direction Mrs. Fiske and the Manhattan company appeared at the Lyceum this afternoon and will appear again tonight.

Mr. Fiske has gained an enviable reputation through some of the masterpieces of scenic invention which have marked his experience in play production.

The much-talked-of ballroom scene in "Becky Sharp" first drew attention to his genius for these things; then came the great mountain scene in "Mary of Magdala," which in turn was followed by what was one of the most beautiful scenes ever shown upon the stage, the poetry-breathing depiction of Grecian atmosphere and fidelity in "Sapho and Phaon," but his most sensational results were achieved in the realistic barroom of the first act of "Salvation Nell," and the tremendous tenement house and street scene of the closing act of that play. From Mr. Fiske also came the great cantilever bridge scene in "The Bridge," and more recently the atmospheric and wonderful realistic top of the mountain in "None So Blind."

In addition to Mr. Fiske's genius for scenic display, he possesses unusual gifts as a stage manager and to his efforts are due in a great degree the smoothness and generally perfectly rounded performances of the Manhattan company and other organizations under his direction.

THE OPENING OF THE NEW ORPHEUM.

The opening of the new Orpheum theater Monday evening promises to be a notable event socially as well as theatrically.

The house was completely sold out Thursday, the first day of the sale, and there were hundreds of disappointed ones who were unable to secure seats for the opening performance. The new theater seats 1,600 people, but every seat from the orchestra to the roof was disposed of Thursday.

Many large theater parties have been planned for the opening night. All of the boxes have been engaged for box parties, and the opening performance should be witnessed by the greater part of Duluth society.

The new theater is a beautiful building, furnished and equipped in the most modern style. Few theaters are provided with so many features intended for the comfort of the patrons, and apparently the building has been planned with the safety and convenience of the audience ever uppermost in the mind of the builder. The theater is as nearly fireproof as it can be, and there are twenty-six exits from the auditorium, opening on all four sides of the building.

There is not a pillar or a post in the auditorium, the galleries being supported by immense steel girders. The lobby is shut off from the auditorium by a corridor, the aisles leading directly to this corridor, and thus doing away with the drafts and noise from the front door. There is a lounging room, and dressing rooms for both men and women.

Those who have inspected the building this week have been loud in their praises of it and it is expected that the first night's audience will have nothing but words of praise for the new building and its decorations.

The opening bill, which will be one of the Orpheum circuit's regular bookings, will be headed by a miniature musical comedy entitled "The Leading Lady." This is simply a musical comedy boiled down to a twenty-five minute act. It will be presented by a company of thirteen people, incuding a sextette of chorus girls, and headed by Miss Marguerite Haney, assisted by Ralph Lynn and Edward Coleman. All three of the principals are from England. Miss Haney, who is not yet 20 years of age, has been very successful in England, and next season will appear in the annual revue at the Follies Bergere in Paris, taking one of the leading roles. Her two assistants are said to be clever young comedians who have been favorites with English audiences. The scene is placed in a New York hotel, and the act is well staged.

Since the days of Tom Thumb and his wee wife, probably no midgets have been more famous than the Rossow Midgets. They will appear in next week's bill, presenting an act of physical culture exercise, and exhibitions of strength, and featuring a burlesque boxing bout, which is said to furnish plenty of comedy. While the Rossow Midgets are small, they are said to be perfectly formed specimens of humanity.

"The Flying Martins" are probably better known among circus folks than in vaudeville, although they have established a name for themselves in the latter field. They are old circus performers, and are known from coast to coast among the followers of the sawdust ring. Their act is claimed to be a sensational one, consisting of work on the flying trapeze.

Zertho's Canine Comedians should prove an attractive number on the bill. There are fifteen dogs in this troupe. Zertho appears dressed as a clown, and the tricks of the dogs are all planned with a view of keeping the comedy element uppermost. In this respect it differs from most of the dogs, but it requires no less skilful training for that reason.

An act that is claimed to have genuine musical merit will be presented by George Lyons and Bob Yossco, who are billed as Italian street singers. They are dressed as typical Italian mendicant musicians, but their musical numbers are said to be of a high standard. Mr. Lyons is a harpist and Mr. Yosoco sings and plays the violin.

Composing and singing comic songs is the bid that Fred Duprez makes for the approval of the audience. He is billed "The Funny Song Man," and his act has been a big hit over the Orpheum circuit.

Last, but not least, on the bill is Nellie Nichols, the songstress comedienne, claimed to be the only Greek comedienne on the vaudeville stage. She was at one time a Greek interpreter in the New York courts, and has appeared with many musical comedies, among them "The Sultan of Sulu," and "Mr. and Mrs. Newlywed."

The Kinodrome completes the bill. The Kinodrome is the latest and best moving picture machine turned out by the manufacturers. The Orpheum circuit has always featured moving pictures, and a special effort is made to get the best and latest films.

The Orpheum theater will have an orchestra of fourteen pieces under the direction of Fred G. Bradbury, well known in Duluth musical circles. The overtures begin at 2:15 and 8:15.

"THE SQAUW MAN" AT THE LYCEUM.

"The Squaw Man," the four-act drama by Edwin Milton Royle in which H. E. Pierce & Company's Associate Players will appear at the Lyceum one week beginning Monday, Aug. 22, is the strongest American drama yet produced. That has been the verdict of the press wherever the play has been seen. The intense dramatic interest of the play, the novelty and originality of many of the situations, the vigor and simplicity of the language, the powerful delineation of the characters—some of which are new to the stage—are points that all critics agree upon. Mr. Jossey himself has a role that fits him like a glove whether he wears the red jacket of the British army officer, as he does in the first act, or the buckskin breeches and flannel shirt of the cowboy as he does in the other three.

H. E. Pierce & Company, have given the play a remarkable stage setting remarkable even today when managers are rivaling one another in the elaborateness of their productions. The scene for the second act—a typical frontier saloon frequented by cowboys, gamblers and desperadoes in Eastern Utah—is an extraordinary example of scenic art and one that never fails to arouse the enthusiastic applause of the audience. And the others are only less interesting because they are more familiar.

The company too is of the best. Blanche Douglas is the leading lady and a better actress could not have been found for the role of the countess, for love of whom the hero suffers so much. Two Indian characters a peace chief of the Utes, a commanding stoical figure, and his daughter whom the hero marries and whose love and devotion give a new insight to the nature of the daughter of the Western plain—are played and played as they ought to be by Frederick Monley and Jane Hampton. Marie Bonsall, George Dill, Wayne Ross and Edward Westfield with a score of others complete a cast that would carry a play with far less in its favor than "The Squaw Man," to a triumphant issue.

The same scale of prices that has been in vogue all summer will continue throughout the engagement of H. E. Pierce & Company's Associate Players.

SCENE FROM "THE SQUAW MAN," AND PICTURES OF MISS BLANCHE DOUGLAS AND WILLIAM JOSSEY.

BIJOU OFFERS STRONG BILL FOR THE WEEK.

The bill offered at the Bijou theater, lasting all week, should prove one of the best drawing shows of the year, as each act is a resognized attraction and could be classed as a hed-liner on any bill.

One of the feature offerings will be the well known comedy stars Miss Emerin Campbell and Aubrey Yates in a delightful one-act musical comedy, entitled, "200 Miles from Broadway," written by Edmund Day. The playlet is both novel and effective. The scene represents a near hotel in a small village in Vermont. Miss Campbell portrays the character of a stranded actress whose destitute circumstances forces her to enact the role of a waitress. Mr. Yates is seen in the character of a bookmaker who has escaped from New York because of Governor Hughes' reform crusade against the track.

It is during the actress' first experiences as a "biescuit shooter" in the small town hotel serving the New York race track man, that he reveals in her something which other waitresses do not possess. After weighing the situation for a moment, the bookmaker burst forward with this remark, "Say, lady, you don't work here all the time, does you?" In reply the actress relates her tale of woe. The two characters are presented with artistic execution. Their comedy is not only brisk and funny and immensely entertaining, but affords Mr. Yates an opportunity to display his excellent vocal qualities. The following is a press note by Amy Leslie, in the Chicago Daily News: "A comedietta of Edmund Day's remembered as the romantic fat man, in 'The Round Up,' is excellently played at the Majestic by Emerin Campbell and a company remarkable for its compactness and comeliness. Miss Campbell is talented and so is Mr. Yates. The piece is written with a quiet slam for the disconsolate soubrette and a rattling good idea of a hero in any place "200 Miles from Broadway."

C. O. Brown, general booking manager of the Sullivan & Considine circuit, has secured one of Europe's greatest singers, Signorina Bea Verera from the Royal Grand Opera of Greece. This famous coloratura soprano's high notes and vocal dexterity have won for her the appelation of "The Italian Nightingale." Mme. Verera will be one of the features of the Bijou's varied bill next week.

Hear what the press agent says of her:

"She is a youthful singer with a marvelously sweet voice of the finest training and of wonderfully developed and skilfully coloraua—bell-like staccati of pearly smoothness in diatonic as well as chromic runs produced with ease and artisticness. Signora Verera therefore combines technical advantages with the natural phenomenal range of voice in height. In those regions in which the voice moves only as in thinned air, ever conscious of a great risk, Signorina Verera is perfectly at home and masters all those tones compassing from high 'B' to 'E' and above high 'C' with perfect ease; in every phase of attack and sustained effect. It seems that only a wealth of Cleopatra hair keeps her on the ground. Of course, she has no great strength or breadth. But Mme. Verera has her hide and seek dimples, amid endless amount of art, splendid technique, and a voice of exquisite quality perfectly controlled. Her selections will include operatic and classical numbers by the greatest composers."

The most enjoyable musical treat will be the Three Imperials, Messrs. Davis, Willis and Guhl, who have a combination music song and mirth. They are comedians and singers of rare ability, while their selections on different musical instruments is of a very high standard. Playing classical musical instruments on standard as well as novelty instruments. Their offering is one of the cheeriest in vaudeville.

Busha & Peyser, "Premier Eccentrics" are European Pantomimists, who combine sensational acrobatic work with their pantomime antics. They run the gaunt of absurdities and offer a number of acrobatic feats.

As an added feature, the management offers one of Europe's strongest novelty acts. The searching of Europe on the part of John W. Considine for new novelties for the Sul-

"WILL RETURN NEXT YEAR," SAYS GUS A. FORBES.

"I shall return," said Gus A Forbes yesterday while he made eyelashes grow where there were but few before, and added scarlet lips and things to his beauty before the mirror in his dressing room. "I shall return," he said again while he put on stuff to make his hair shine, on the softly waving mass of golden brown.

"The summer has been a delightful one," said Mr. Forbes, "and I am already looking forward with pleasure to my engagement at the Lyceum next summer. Early next week the company disbands. Mrs. Forbes and myself will go to Brooklyn, where I open at the Gotham theater, Sept. 3. With me will be James Kyle McCurdy and Miss Kate Woods Fiske and Evelyn Watson to play roles similar to those they assumed here during the summer. I have a fine company and we anticipate a great year. Frank Fielder, Miss Desmond and Norman Wendell will go to the Calumet Stock of Chicago. Mr. Jamison will go to New York to go out with a road production."

The summer engagement of Mr. Forbes and his company at the Lyceum will close with the performances tomorrow afternoon and evening of "A Gilded Fool."

At the close of the season the matinee girl will be interested in who is married to whom in the Forbes company. Mrs. Forbes plays the few roles in which she appears as Miss Edith Harcourt. Miss Kate Woods Fiske, who has become very popular in the character roles she has assayed, is Mrs. James Kyrle McCurdy in private life. Miss Evelyn Watson, the ingenue, is Mrs. Norman Wendell and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fielder have snatched time from the adoration of Frank Fielder, Jr., to appear with Mr. Forbes. Mrs. Fielder has been known locally all summer as Miss May Desmond.

Mr. Forbes and his company have become deservedly popular during their engagement here and there has been much pleasure expressed at their return for next season.

AT THE MOTION PICTURE HOUSES.

The high-class pictures that have been exhibited at the Orpheum and Lyric theaters during the past few weeks have drawn huge crowds. More and more has it become a habit of those down town on shopping excursions to drop into these theaters for a short rest and recreation.

The pictures are bright and entertaining. They tell interesting stories and some of them are very instructive. Current events are reproduced in picture in such a way that they are made attractive to all. The moving picture is every day proving its educational value as well as that for which it was at first intended—entertainment.

The pictures for the first half of next week will be of more than ordinary interest. The programs for the two theaters follow:

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

News and Comment Heard Along Broadway—What Managers and Stars Are Planning for the Coming Season.

When Joe Weber puts out his English version of that highly moral bit of entertainment in the original German, as "Alma, Wo Wohnst Du?" Charles Bigelow will be the chief comedian and Kitty Gordon will be Alma. The affair is to open in Weber's Music hall on Sept. 22.

* * *

* * *

Lulu Glaser is to star under the Shubert management next season in a new musical production, which will be one of the early attractions of the year to be seen at a Shubert playhouse on Broadway. The piece is an adaptation from the German and made a great hit abroad in its original form. It will be presented in this country under the title of "The Girl and the Kaiser," Miss Glaser naturally playing the title role of the "girl."

* * *

The statue of Sir Henry Irving which Thomas Brock, R. A., is making for the Irving memorial fund, will not be completed this month as was expected, so the unveiling of the monument has been indefinitely postponed so the subscribers may have ample time to prepare to be present at the ceremonies when they take place. It does not seem likely now that the statue will be ready for unveiling until after the holidays.

* * *

When Miss Margaret Anglin signed up with Liebler & Co., she stipulated in the contract that unless a comedy satisfactory to her was found the contract would be null. George Tyler, just back from Europe, announces he has secured two. One of the comedies is called "The Backslider," and is the work of George Egerton. The other deals with the character of an Irish girl—a rollicking costume play of the days of King Charles. Louis M. Parker wrote it. It is not yet named.

* * *

Mabel Hite, who has been compelled to rest in order to effectively cure an affection of the eyes, will not be able to resume her work on the stage until some time in October.

* * *

Tyrone Power is to be starred in a play called "The Storm," written by Langdon McCormick. He will be under the management of Thomas Ryley and is to open his season in Boston in September.

* * *

Albert Chevalier has been induced to abandon the music hall stage permanently and take his place as a star in regular plays. His first appearance in America under the Liebler management will be in "The Caretaker." He will have the part of an old Frenchman. The character is said to be somewhat on the order of "The Music Master."

* * *

Cissie Loftus, who was compelled to submit to an operation on her throat in London, is reported to be recovering slowly. She will not be able to resume her work on the stage for some time to come.

* * *

Madame Rejane and her company are booked to play in Interlaken, Switzerland, early in September. The new wing of the Kurhaus, containing the theatrical hall, has been completed and will be inaugurated Aug. 1. It will provide an excellent place for concerts in the early and late seasons and opera, and special performances during the high season.

* * *

Louis N. Parker is busy constructing a new play based on an incident in the life of Lord Beaconsfield, for George Arliss, who will play the role of Beaconsfield.

* * *

Bertha Kalich is to have an American play as her vehicle for the comedy season. It is called "The Woman of Today," and is the work of Samuel Shipman.

* * *

"Alias Jimmy Valentine," which proved to be one of the most successful productions of last season, and was compelled to close its run in New York because of the hot weather, opens again at the Wallack theater on Aug. 22.

* * *

Julius Steger, who has been in vaudeville for a number of years, announces that the coming one is his final season in the two-a-day, and that he will head a production thereafter to be made by Klaw & Erlanger.

* * *

Isabel Irving, who has been selected to take one of the principal roles in "Smith," John Drew's new piece, made her first appearance on the stage as an ingenue in the late Augustin Daly's company.

* * *

Miss Marie Doro arrived last week after a seven months' vacation in Europe, to begin rehearsals for her new play, "Electricity." The play was written particularly for her by William Gillette.

* * *

Through Mr. Frohman's good offices two of the best known English stars will make their reappearance in America this season, Sir John Hare, whom he has persuaded to head the repertoire at his Duke of York's theater, will visit this country at the end of his London season. Miss Marie Lohr, the young acress who has created such profound a sensation in London, will also tour the states under his management.

* * *

The authors of "Decorating Clementine," MM. de Caillavet and de Flers, have asked Mr. Frohman for permission to accept William Gillette's new play, "Electricity," into the French. They have secured a promise from Miss Marie Doro to play the leading role in French next summer, when she has completed her English tour with Mr. Gillette. Miss Doro will appear in "Electricity" until late in the spring.

* * *

The most important importation that Mr. Frohman has made this season are the fifteen Gaiety theater favorites—dancers, singers and comedians—who arrived last week on the Teutonic. They will all have parts in the forthcoming production of "Our Miss Gibbs," the English musical comedy success. In fact, the only two principals who can boast of America as their home, are Pauline Chase and Bert Leslie.

* * *

Two new detective plays, each representative of the two schools, sociological and psychological, will be produced by Mr. Frohman during the fall. One is "The Yellow Room" and the other, "The Speckled Band, An Adventure of Sherlock Holmes," by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. Mr. Frohman has a fondness for detective plays and says that if he finds the American public has also, he will put on even more during the season.

Cholera Infantum Cured.

"Something like two years ago my baby, which was then about a year old, was taken seriously ill with cholera infantum, vomiting and purging profusely," writes J. E. Dempsey of Dempsey, Ala. "I did what I could to relieve her but did her no good, and being very much alarmed about her went for a physican but failed to find one, so came back by Elder Bros. & Carter's store and Mr. Elder recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea remedy. I procured a bottle of it, went home as quickly as possible and gave the baby a dose of the remedy. It relieved her in fifteen minutes and soon cured her entirely." For sale by all druggists.

Canadian Pacific to Install Moving Picture Shows on Trains.

Edmonton Alta., Aug. 20.—Moving picture theaters attached to the transcontinental expresses of the Canadian Pacific railway is the latest thing, and arrangements are now being made to carry the scheme into operation.

W. H. Harbeck of Vancouver is here, and states that within a short time the company will have regular theaters fitted up and attached to each train, in order that the tourists may get some idea of the scenery through which they pass by night. For several weeks past he has been engaged by the company to take moving pictures of the Rockies, and is now nearly through with his work. In addition to the scenery there will be shown various comical scenes, as well as some of the latest films turned out in New York and Paris. The scheme is a unique one, and it is expected that it will be followed by other transcontinental systems.

CAN GET $3 PER DAY.

Big Demand for North Dakota Farm Laborers Reported.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—An inquiry at the local employment agencies reveals that there is a great scarcity of laborers in this state at the present time. One of them said that he was willing to pay $3 per day for farm hands and could furnish employment right about Fargo, but there appeared to be none to be had.

"A great deal of grain," said he, "is yet to be cut and we have been sending to the Twin Cities and even as far as Chicago for help, and have been successful in getting some, but by no means enough. There is plenty of work for all who care to work."

There is also a good deal of inquiry at the Fargo Commercial club for farm hands and every effort is being made to supply it.

CROSBY MASS MEETING

Will Be Held Saturday Night to Consider Church Matters.

Crosby, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—This new town is making rapid progress. Over thirty new buildings have been erected during the last two or three months. A schoolhouse has been planned, and now the religious question is claiming the attention of this growing community. In order to promote its interests with the greatest harmony, a mass meeting has been called for Saturday night, which meeting, it is expected, will be addressed by George Crosby. Other speakers of prominence have been invited.

WILD GEESE PLENTIFUL.

North Dakota Game Warden Has Good News for Nimrods.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—"There will be plenty of wild geese this fall," said a well known hunter and traveler, after he had read the interview of George W. Wilkinson, the game warden, lying here.

"Recently I was in the vicinity of Devils Lake, and the way the geese were flying about reminded me of the times when a man with a gun in a very short time could get all the geese he could manage to carry home. The feeding up in the Canadian fields has been excellent for the geese this season, but the little lakes in that section have not afforded the geese as much water as they wanted on account of the dry season and the fowls are constantly flying back into North Dakota. They have had fine eating this summer on account of the fact that some of the grain has been too poor to cut and the hunters will have fine sport. I have also noticed that ducks, too, are plentiful, and that prairie chickens are more numerous than for years."

Drink Beer With Your Meals

GOOD beer, unlike the other beverages generally used at meal time, has a value beyond its thirst-quenching and refreshing qualities. The malt contained is in itself a food, the hops provide a valuable tonic and the small percentage of alcohol is a valuable aid to digestion. Choose a beer that is absolutely pure, that is aged so perfectly it cannot cause billiousness and that has a genuinely delicious flavor. Such a beer is

DEMAND FOR RESIDENCE LOTS CONTINUE STRONG

Call of Easy Payment Plan Answered By Thousands of People.

Heavy Sale of Lots in New Additions Is Reported.

The real estate market has noted little change in activity during the past week, according to nearly every dealer, the outlook is much brighter than it was a week ago.

For the past two weeks there have been many inquiries. These have been of such a nature as to indicate that the prospective buyers actually mean business. Not only have they indicated that they are ready to purchase property, but they have offered earnest money. The principal difficulty in closing up deals seems to be that the owners do not wish to dispose of the property, or are asking too high prices.

The buyers and the prospective buyers are the mechanics and the laborers. The movement among the working people of the city to own their own homes seems to be greater today than ever. For years these people have been saving their money with the view of some day investing it in a lot and house. Bankers of this city state that never in the history of their institutions have the saving departments been patronized as they are at this time. Working people are continually depositing small sums weekly, which are to be used for homes. The bankers claim that these are the only people today who are saving money, the other classes spending all they make.

The demand, therefore, for real estate is to be noted most in the northern part of the city, from Sixth street and along the hillside, while large numbers are bidding for lots in the West end and West Duluth. There is much interest manifested by working people in the easy payment plans for the purchase of lots and acreage lands in Woodland and other parts of the eastern section of Duluth. The fact that the Duluth Street Railway company has announced that it will extend the tracks to the hillside in the city proper from Fifth avenue east eastward on Seventh street, has brought forth special interest in property in that part of the city.

One real estate firm, which has done business in this city for over twenty years, declares that this month so far has been the most active August it has enjoyed in Duluth. Many deals, though not for large considerations, have already been completed, while many others are still being contemplated

One reason ascribed for the failure to close up deals is that many of the owners of property cannot be reached at this season of the year, as they are generally enjoying their annual vacations. July and August are alway considered quiet months, and little business is ever expected. However, this month has been a better business month than Augusts of previous years since the big boom in the early 90's. With the approach of the fall season business is expected to increase considerably.

Call for office space is again starting, and agents of business blocks claim that it will not be long before all the vacant office rooms will be occupied.

W. M. Prindle & Co. report that there has been much inquiry for acreage land within a short distance from the city limits, and to fill the many demands for such lands, this company has again placed on sale some land in the "Homecroft" district. There are about forty acres left in this district, which is located east of the end of the Woodland car line. Every acre is within easy walking distance of the street car, and the people living in that part can work in the city and at the same time have their homes upon a little farm of their own where they can enjoy country life. Last year over 100 acres were sold in this section.

The opening of Greysolon division puts on the market some of the best building lots left in this desirable residence section. Much of the land is high and wooded; there is no rock and the Superior street car line goes directly through the property. Situated as it is between Thirtieth and Thirty-first avenues east, only two blocks from Congdon park, it is a rare chance, and the terms offered by the agent, E. W. Markell are exceptionally attractive and put a beautiful building spot within reach of the many.

In regard to the real estate conditions, N. J. Upham, of the N. J. Upham & Co., stated this morning: "The market shows a much better tone than it did two or three weeks ago, with the principal inquiry for building lots. From the increased inquiries received during the past week we feel that the dullness of the early season is past and that we are now in for another fall market. We have disposed of nearly all the lots in the Woodbridge place, and already many houses are being constructed upon lots there. The lots are centrally located, and so are popular, but to add to this is the fact that we have sold them on the easy payment plan. We are advertising and expect to dispose of all the houses along the right-of-way of the Canadian Northern railroad by the end of this month. The contractors having the contract for the grading are anxious to get on the ground as soon as possible."

* * *

Whitney Wall & Co. are platting fifty acres of land north of the boulevard, between Fifth and Tenth avenues east. It has a frontage of 2,900 feet on the boulevard, is heavily timbered, and said to have rich soil. The company plans to sell the lots on the weekly payment system, which has become so popular here.

* * *

Lots in the Crosley park are still selling well, and the demand for them seems to be increasing each week. Many purchasers of lots in this park have already started building homes. Prindle & Co. are handling these lots.

* * *

A. C. Weiss has sold, through the office of Stryker, Manley & Buck, a residence lot on Fourth street, near Fourteenth avenue east, to Marie Peterson for $1,800.

* * *

A. C. Hubbell sold to George S. Rodd, lots 1 to 14 inclusive, block 2, and lots 1 to 10 inclusive, block 1, Grove Hill Park addition, for $2,750.

* * *

E. G. Banker has sold to Owsley E. Carman the westerly one-half of lot 3, block 94, Endion division for $2,800.

* * *

Ebert, Walker & McKnight company have sold a large tract of timber in sections 6, 8, 9 and 10-55-17 for T. M. Grady to Hagstrom Brothers of this city. The consideration is $9,100. The same firm also reports the sale of a new house and lot on East Sixth street for George F. Siewert to Alice G. Hoyt. The property brought $4,600. The firm sold ten lots in West Duluth, sold for J. H. Henninger to John Fife for $750. Mr. Fife bought the property for immediate improvement and will put up several houses.

20 CENTS A DAY

Will buy a lot close to the car line in LAKESIDE in a surprisingly short time. Why don't you save your pennies and own a home? Let us tell you how!

LAKESIDE LAND CO. 501-2-3-4-5 Sellwood Building.

Why Not Own Your Home?

We Will Lend You the Money at
5% SIMPLE INTEREST

Money invested in house rent receipts is a poor investment, and one that you will never derive any future benefits from. Anybody can pay rent, but it takes energy, economy and determination to own a home. We will lend you the money to buy, build, improve homes or lift mortgages anywhere in the Union. For each $1,000.00 borrowed, you pay us $7.50 per month, together with 5 per cent interest on yearly balances; giving you 10½ years in which to repay loan, with the privilege of taking up all notes or as many as you wish at any time, and by so doing you would get a discount of the 5 per cent interest on all notes taken up before maturity. We allow six months' grace in case of adverse circumstances. Now why do you pay rent when our plan will enable you to own a home with the money you spend for rent?

On receipt of this coupon, properly filled out, we will mail you full particuars in regard to our method of loaning money, or, better still, come to our office and let us explain to you our liberal proposition in detail.

FEW PERMITS ARE ISSUED

Building Work Is Confined Almost Entirely to Residences.

Wage Earners Lead in the Home Building Movement in Duluth.

Building permits issued by Building Inspector Keilley during the past week do not show much increase. In all thirteen permits were granted, calling for $31,500 in improvements.

Most of the work along building lines is being done among the working people in all sections of the city. The building cannot be said to be confined to any one locality, for there seems to be the same amount being carried on in all parts where the wage earners reside.

This activity among the mechanics and laboring men in building homes for themselves is on the increase, and according to real estate men it will become even greater. This class, through its frugality, is saving money for home building.

But a large percentage of those building homes have not the means to complete their houses, and they are forced to borrow money on their property, giving back mortgages. Real estate men who handle loans report that this line of the business has been quite active during the summer, but it promises to be even greater this fall for many are contemplating the construction of houses before winter sets in.

* * *

During the past week the contract for the construction of the new residence for J. A. Bradley at Twenty-sixth avenue east and Sixth street was let to Richard Hanson for about $6,000. The plumbing and heating was let to D. R. Black & Co.

* * *

The contract for the general construction of the new business block on Superior street between Third and Fourth avenues east owned by Judge J. D. Ensign was let this week to J. A. Roberts for $7,260. Contracts for the plumbing and heating have not been let yet.

* * *

J. J. Wangenstein is preparing plans for L. S. Loeb for a residence on the south side of Superior street between Eleventh and Twelfth avenues east, to be built of stone and stuckle.

* * *

Bids will be received by J. J. Wangenstein for a brick bank and office building for the First State Bank of Kewatin, Minn.

* * *

J. J. Wangenstein will receive bids for the construction of a four-room school building at the village of Alice near Hibbing. He has just completed the plans for this school.

And "closest in" to town, acre proposition that will ever be offered in Duluth. No other firm in the city can, or ever will, be able to offer you a whole acre tract of land as cheap and as close to the car line, modern improvements and in as desirable a living district.

The increasing population of Woodland will necessitate an extension of all these improvements and in a short time, then watch the prices of lots in

And vicinity. No restrictions are placed on this property. You have a chance for a nice country home where you can raise your own garden products, raise chickens or you can subdivide your tract into lots, place them on sale and realize an immense profit.

Don't Let This Pass Up

You who would like independence, and who is a rent slave. Don't pay rent, why should you when opportunities like this one presents itself?

COME SATURDAY OR SUNDAY

August 20th or 21st and spend a pleasant day in these suburban gardens. No locality in the city has a finer climate, such perfect soil for the gardening of celery and other vegetables, than Homecroft Park. Already this summer many fine gardens have been started.

INCREASE IN SHIPMENTS

Ore Movement From Missabe Docks Is Heavier Than Last Year.

Shipments to Date Exceed Last Year's By Nearly 2,000,000 Tons.

Ore figures for the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad show that the shipments of the season to date are considerably in excess of those of the same period last year.

To date the Missabe has shipped from its docks 8,921,611 tons of ore. Last season, from the opening to Aug. 21, 6,943,283 tons of ore were shipped.

The present week shows a total of 548,534 tons against 499,527 tons shipped during the third week of August, 1909. The record of the present month to date also shows an increase over a similar period of August, 1909. During the present month to date 1,663,723 tons of ore have been shipped down the lakes in comparison with 1,509,148 tons in the first three weeks of August of last year.

The Duluth & Iron Range has shipped during the past two weeks 524,900 tons from the docks.

NEW BOAT MAY RUN THIS YEAR

It was announced at the Duluth office of the Western Transit company today that the Allegheny, the new big freight steamer that is under construction for the company, will be delivered Sept. 15.

The new vessel will be on the order of the Munsey of the same line. It will be one of the most modern package freighters on the Great Lakes, and will be placed in service the present season.

If the fall business warrants, it is very probable that the Allegheny will make this port before the close of the season of navigation.

It was also reported today that the Anchor line steamer Wissahickon, which recently had her hull badly damaged, will be repaired some time next week. The work of repairing the damaged boat has been rushed, and the Duluth representatives of the company say the boat will be able to re-enter the package freight business by the latter part of next week.

BETTER OUTLOOK FOR LINE BOATS

Season's Business May Show Increase Despite Early Dullness.

Despite the light eastbound package freight business during the early part of the present navigation season, a dullness that extended well into July, M. S. Mead, manager of the Duluth office of the Western Transit company this morning stated that the records of the local office for business transacted at the Head of the Lakes, surpass the amount of package freight business done up to the present date a year ago.

Mr. Mead states, however, that the fact should be taken into consideration that the present season opened earlier than last season.

The outlook for fall business in the package freight line is very good, according to Mr. Mead, who says that business has shown a steady increase since July. If the package freight business continues to show an increase, Mr. Mead says the present season will not be such a bad one despite the gloomy outlook earlier in the season.

HOPELESSLY UNREGENERATE.

Chicago Record-Herald: The 4-year-old descendant of a line of Baptist ministers was found on tiptoe struggling to immerse her kitten in the rain-water barrel. The kitten was equally frantic in her efforts to avoid immersion, and at last, by dint of kicking, clawing and wriggling, managed to free herself from her small mistress. As the tip of the little tail disappeared over the wall the disappointed missionary ejaculated: "You won't be a Baptist! Then go and be a Presbyterian!"

NO SUPPORT; WHEAT SLIDES

Liquidation By Tired Holders --Large Receipts Press Heavily.

Only Export Trade Is From the Pacific Coast--Flax Strong.

Duluth Board of Trade, Aug. 20.—Wheat values declined today. There was some liquidation by tired holders. The market was almost barren of support. Trading was light. Offerings were scarce despite the heavy receipts and there was a poor demand for spot. Interest in the future options was at a minimum.

The foreign situation was less bullish. There was free selling in all continental markets and indications pointed to large world's shipments this week and an increased volume of wheat on passage. Export business was confined to the Pacific coast, which did a small business for direct shipment to France.

September wheat lost 1⅛c; December 1⅛c and December 1⅛c. Cash wheat was on a parity with the September contract. Oats lost ½c; rye declined from 72@75c to 70½@73½c and barley was unchanged. Durum declined ⅜c.

Flax was dull, but strong. Trading was light, but as offers were at a minimum buyers were forced to bid up the market to get small lots. September advanced 4c; October 2½c; November 3½c and December 3c.

Values opened weak and declined. Cables were disappointing, especially the Paris close which indicated heavy profit-taking in that market after a sharp advance lasting several days. News from France was less bullish and early estimates of sensational damage were said to have been exaggerated. Much of the wheat that has been bought by France will be delivered at Antwerp. The grain could be easily disposed of elsewhere if French requirements did not demand it. While the export business caused hope in the breasts of the bulls it should be remembered that the export business this year is far under that of last year at this time when nearly all of the season's export business had been transacted, especially for winter wheats. With a short crop and a market close to an export basis most people are of the opinion that there will be a market for all of the wheat raised this year as well as the carry-over. Export business was scarce. San Francisco reported two more cargoes of Pacific coast wheat worked for direct shipment to France. Bids were favorable and reports indicated that more business would be transacted before the day's close.

Argentine cabled that the wheat yield of that country will be 148,000000 bu against 135,000,000 bu last year. Wheat in the Southwestern provinces is in good condition but the outlook in the Northern provinces is not so favorable.

The cash markets were dead. There are few offerings and the milling demand for wheat is only moderate. While receipts of wheat here are heavy nearly all of the stuff is sold for Eastern shipment as fast as it arrives or it has already been disposed of. It is shipped out almost as fast as it comes to this market. The Eastern demand is fair.

There was considerable liquidation today and the market did not get much support. Increasing wheat stocks in the Northwest are providing a load that the speculator is averse to carrying. When the stocks have been thoroughly digested the speculator thinks the sentiment will turn to the bull side. In the meantime he is pursuing a waiting mood.

MARKET GOSSIP

Winnipeg wired: "Wheat will yield fourteen bushels to the acre along the Cadadian Northern railway from Regina to Saskatchewan Same average from district on Canadian Northern railway between Russell and Gladstone. Return of ten to twelve bushels for wheat and half crop of oats and barley will be obtained between Brandon and Winnipeg on the Canadian Northern railway. Fair crop between Calgary and Edmonton. Severe damage from hail at Plumas."

* * *

"Good barley is in a strong position owing to the malting situation, as maltsters on account of the reported shortage in the crop are inclined to anticipate their wants,' say Somers, Jones & Co. "The low prices of oats and corn are somewhat against barley values. There will be little oat mixing demand for barley and the quality being mostly good to choice malting, will make a larger proportion of the crop than usual available for malting purposes. We advise strongly to look out for small berried, thin or dirty barley, as it costs too much to clean it with present low prices of screenings."

* * *

John Inglis wired: Sargent and Dickey Counties, North Dakota, have a large acreage of durum. Figures 12 to 16 bu for Sargent and 5 bu for Dickey. Counties are disappointing. Wells county has a large acreage in wheat, 5 bu average. Grand Forks reports 12 to 15 bu. Oliver on western slope shows that western counties will not cut much wheat.

World's shipments estimated as follows: Wheat and flour shipments for Monday next at 10,000,000 bu against 9,584,000 bu actual last week. Of this Europe will take about 9,600,000 bu Total shipments last week, 11,120,000 bu and 10,112,000 bu a year ago. Arrivals of breadstuffs into United Kingdom will aggregate about 4,800,000 bu.

New York wired: From a good authority comes the following: The world's wheat crop will be 350,000,000 bu short. No country on other side will raise any more wheat than last year except Hungary. France is short 100,000,000 bu.

Kenyon wired Barrell from Leeds, N. D.—At Valley City wheat good quality averaging about 6 bu. Jamestown good quality will average 4 bu from there to Carrington, north lighter, will not average over 2 bu from there here. Oats will not average over 4 bu, barley very little will be cut. Flax will average about one bu per acre.

Walter Poehler was on the floor today after a trip through a part of North Dakota. He thinks the flax yields will afford as much surprise to the trade as the wheat outcome. The flax crop, he said, has shown considerable improvement on account of recent precipitation.

Baltimore wired: Grain merchants here continue to report a steady movement of wheat to France. It is the belief of some that the crops in this vicinity or southern wheat will be absorbed by the French demand. In addition to two cargoes recently noted as sold to Paris by Gilt & Fisher for shipment in August and early in September the same firm has received other orders. It has arranged for four additional cargoes to France late in September and early in October. The total sales to France by this firm alone so far aggregate about 1,000,000 bu. Other firms have also placed wheat in the same country as well as in Hamburg and other points in Germany.

Broomhall cabled: Wheat was under pressure of larger offerings induced by disappointing American cables, and values were ⅜d lower. Following the opening there was some show of steadiness and prices advanced slightly owing to the unsettled weather in the United Kingdom. Later and during the remainder of the session the market was influenced by speculative selling and prices declined, showing a break of ⅝@⅞d from the opening. The continent continues to be a reseller, and there are free offerings of Danubian and American winter wheat parcels. World's shipments are expected to be heavy, spot markets weak and generally 1d lower, and cargoes are freely offered at 3@6d decline. The general tenor of the weakness is due to a less active inquiry. At the close the market was weak and 1@1¼d lower, with the principal pressure in the March option.

Corn was ⅜d lower, with the undertone heavy. The selling was induced by the weakness in wheat and continued pressure of Plate parcels.

Cargoes of wheat off coast, 1; awaiting orders, 5. ..heat cargoes in distant positions weak and offered at 3d decline. Corn easy offerings at 1½@3d decline.

Commercial West says: "Thrashing returns from Minnesota and the Dakotas have rather substantiated the Commercial West reports than given reasons for material revision. Localities sending in reports of yields are parts of the Northwest where all along it was evident that good yields would result. Some phenomenal yields are reported in parts of Southern Minnesota, but these will be offset by very low ones in the northwestern part. The big yields in Dakota are reported in the southeastern part where the wheat acreage is light. Yet there is a crop feature of some importance in South Dakota, which is that large districts were cut, on which the yield is but 3 to 6 bu an acre. In June it seemed improbable that such fields would be cut. This may rsult in 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 bu that should be added to the Commercial West's estimate, which was 30,000,000 bu. There is no new feature to the North Dakota situation, and 35,000,000 bu seems high enough. Neither as yet is ther apparent any good reason for materially changing Minnesota, though if an estimate were to be made now, perhaps the total would be placed at 75,000,000 to 77,000,000 bu. instead of 70,000,000. We should say that 140,000,000 to 145,000,000 bu for the three states seems as high as conditions warrant placing the total.

Barrell's crop summary:

Argentine—Drouth still continues in the north although a private cablegram received late in the week, states that rain is threatening there. Seeding in the south is completed and conditions are satisfactory.

Australia—Outlook for the new crop is very favorable and considerable new crop wheat is being offered.

India — Weather is favorable, but holders are selling sparingly.

United Kingdom—Better weather is permitting harvesting.

France—Owing to poor yields this country has been a free buyer of wheat, in America especially, and import requirements will total from 48,000,000 to 96,000,000.

Europe—All countries, with the exception of Italy, are reporting satisfactory yields. In Italy the crop is turning out much poorer than anticipated.

Russia—This week's shipments are heavy although the movement in the interior is small. It is expected that holders will move considerable wheat to market this month and if prices prove satisfactory.

United States—Winter wheat movement continues heavy to all primary markets and tightness of money in the Southwest is a large contributing cause. Movement will continue heavy for the next week at least. Quality of new wheat is excellent. Spring wheat thrashing is now in full blast and in some localities is exceeding early estimates. Quality is the best in years. Movement will be free and will start at once. Considerable old wheat is being carried over by farmers.

The Cologne Gazette of July 23 has the following on the French wheat situation: "The appearance of France as a buyer falls hard in the scale as unfavorable weather makes people nervous. Estimates of the French crop is 115,000,000 hectolitres (a hectrolitre is equivalent to 2.83 bushels.) The consumption is 125,000,000 hectlitres. It is reported that old stocks may equalize the shortage, but large mills and speculators have bought foreign wheat mostly for future delivery, and chose Antwerp as the place of delivery, which is proof that the possibility to resell on a world's market has not been lost sight of. To have France a competitor has always been the dream of the English market bull, hence the streng English market."

B. Frank Howard estimates the hay crop of the country at 60,000,000 tons, compared to 65,000,000 tons a year ago. This showing indicates that this crop is not such a failure as supposed. The acreage was placed at 45,005,000 acres, against 45,744,000 acres a year ago.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Bearish Foreign News Causes Decline in Wheat.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Bearish foreign news caused a decline in wheat prices today and the market fell off from ¼@⅜c to 1c. The May delivery was weaker than September, scattered commission houses buying sparingly of the nearby option. The large receipts of late and a slackness in the cash demand also worked against the bulls. September opened ¼@⅜c to ⅝@¾c off at 99½c to 99⅞c and rested on the low point. December opened ⅜c to ½@⅝c down at $1.03½ to $1.03⅜.

The bears kept control of the market and prices declined sharply at the close. The close was weak all around with September 1⅜@1½c to 1½@1⅝c off at 98⅝c to 98⅝@98¾c. December closed 1⅛@1¼c to 1¼@1⅜c off at $1.02⅝ to $1.02⅝@1.02¾.

Liquidation by local longs kept the corn pit busy in the early trading and prices fell off from ¼c to ⅝c at the start, sagging another ⅛c and then steadying near to the opening point in the first hour. More rain in the corn belt delighted the bears and added to the certainty felt for a good crop. Sepetmber opened ¼c to ½@⅝c off at 61¼c to 61c. December started with a similar decline at 59¼c to 59c.

The market continued to decline, the weakness being pronounced late in the session. The close was weak with September 1⅜c to 1⅜@1½c offf at 60⅛c. December closed 1⅝@1⅞c off at 57¾@57⅞c.

Oats in the distant futures were weaker at the start with the other grains and the nearby option after a firmer opening also sagged. The market kept within narrow limits and steadied in the first hour from ⅛c to ¼c off. Opening figures for September were unchanged to ⅜c up at 35½c to 35⅞c. December opened unchanged to ⅛c down at 37⅜c to 37½c.

Limited offerings and some demand from packing house interests caused provision prices to advance from 5 to 12½c all around. Opening figures for the October products were pork, $20.87½, 12½c up; lard, $12.10, 5c up, and ribs, $11.75 to $11.80, 5 to 10c up.

EASY CLOSE TO STOCKS

Last Hour of Session Proves Dull and Commonplace.

Prices Are Inclined to Yield as Trading Nears the Finish.

New York, Aug. 20. — The stocks were lower again and some large blocks of Reading, Union Pacific and United States Steel were sold at from ½ to ¾ below yesterday's closing figures. The market otherwise was without essential change.

The bears did not follow up their advantage at the outset, and prices consequently worked back to a parity with yesterday's closing. Most of the business centered in Reading, Union Pacific and United States Steel, which likewise covered the widest fractional range. American agricultural chemical yielded 1¼ and American Car and American Locomotive 1. American Cotton Oil gained a point.

The market closed easy yesterday. After prices had returned to where they left off yesterday interest in the market abated and speculation became dull and commonplace. Fluctuations were restricted to the merest fraction in the most active stocks. International Harvester advanced a point while Republic Steel fell away as much. Prices were inclined to yield as the session drew to a close.

Cotton Market.

New York, Aug. 20.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of five points in the face of disappointing cables and reports of further rain in Texas.

Uneasiness over the August situation was more or less of a factor owing to a demand for that month from smallest shorts and after the opening prices sold up to a net gain of 16 points on the old crop and of 8 to 10 points on new crop deliveries as a result of covering and bull support. Private advices from the Southwest suggested that the Texas showers had been confined to the Gulf coast and the northern part of the state and the western belt forecast was for partly cloudy weather tonight and tomorrow.

Futures closed barely steady; closing bids: August, 16.27; September, 14.19; October, 13.50; November, 13.41; December, 13.41; January, 13.38; February, 13.39; March, 13.44; May, 13.48; June, 13.45; July, 13.46. Spot closed quiet, 45 points higher; middling uplands 16.40; middling gulf, 16.65. No sales.

COPPER STOCK BROKERS.

404 West First Street, Commercial Building.

Saturday, Aug. 20.

Our market should bump along toward higher prices from now on. Next week will be a swift one. I believe Red Warrior will start off and lead the entire list. One thing is certain and that is when we have such very hot weather the market is always slow. There is no good reason for this, but still it is a fact and it seems to take cool weather to cause a bull market.

We can point to many that should make a lot of money for purchasers. Freemont looks much higher. Good news from this mine has had its effect. It is now $4.62½ bid and I tip it as a purchase and you watch it advance.

Amazon Development has the looks of just as big an advance. This stock will be as sure as any and its possibilities are far beyond many of the other stocks listed on the boards. Good ore deposits and a big property and as good a management as any in the country.

ECLIPSE CONSOLIDATED MINING AND INVESTMENT CO.

316 SELLWOOD BLDG. W. H. SHACKEL, Vice President.

This property is located at Silverton, Wash., on the Northern Pacific railway, 45 miles from Everett, near the Monte Cristo Mines, and about 10 years from the well known Bonanza Queen, all along our immensely valuable water power flume. We have timber and mineral claims, as well as 36 town-lots, but the treasure of our holdings was found about 30 feet from our concentrator and power station just recently, where we uncovered one of the finest silver veins in the district. Although we had no gold at first we now have about $36.00 to the ton. The vein has widened from 18 inches to 5 feet 2 inches. Last two essays, $64.70 and $56.80.

Our engineer has estimated that we can pay a quarterly dividend of 3 per cent, but suggests that a much larger dividend can be paid if we will follow his plans and open up one more of the three other veins, which we intend doing, and are therefore offering 50,000 shares at $1.00 par.

Our present tunnel is about 600 yards from the Northern Pacific railway, and the new shaft will be on the western end of the property less than 200 yards from the railway.

This stock will be one of the surprises of the coming year and if quotations represent the value of other stocks we expect ECLIPSE CONSOLIDATED will reach $3 before January. Come and learn what this company has done. We have one of the best investment opportunities in the West. Don't let anyone mislead you on this, they may wish to sell something of less value, of their own.
